Federal Ruling Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal justice department has been asked to rule on the legality of an independent courier service to be established in Halifax by out-of-work letter carriers, Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey said Friday.

The postmaster-general referred the matter to the justice department after receiving a complaint from representatives of the striking Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW).

Letter carriers, who signed a contract earlier this year, were sent back last week because the strike by CUPW members left them without work. CUPW represents mail sorters and postal clerks.

Darrel Tingley, national director for the CUPW Atlantic region, said in a telegram to the post office that plans by a group of Halifax letter carriers to start their own delivery service would constitute a violation of the Post Office Act.

The letter carriers qualify for unemployment insurance benefits if they cannot find other work for the duration of the CUPW strike, which entered its 11th day Friday.

The strike has caused a boom in business for independent courier companies and other communications firms.

City Hall Studied

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Architects this week began examining the efficiency of city hall — a prelude to a facelift for the historic Corbett building.

City treasurer Wilbur Purcell said Friday the main area of the renovations will be the main front stairway and foyer of the building. A section of the structure virtually unchanged over the years.

"We're looking for architectural recommendations on how the entrance can be improved to be a more fitting entrance to city hall," said Mr. Purcell.

Last spring, city council authorized $4,500 for the hiring of an architect to do the work and included the cost in the city's current budget.

Also to be considered in the study is the efficiency and layout of the south west corner of the building which includes the second-floor offices of the mayor and manager and their secretarial staff.

Mr. Purcell said he hopes the study will be complete in time for budget discussions next spring when money will be set aside for necessary renovation.

Herrema Still Captive

MONASTEREVIN, Ireland (AP) — The kidnapers of Dutch industrialist Tiede Herrema were reported "extremely jumpy and arguing among themselves frequently" today after shooting a policeman in the hand.

The policeman was shot Friday night as he stood on a ladder outside the second-floor room of a house where Herrema's Irish guerrilla abductors, 29-year-old Eddie Gallagher and 19-year-old Marian Coyle, have been besieged by 300 policemen and troops for 13 days.

Police Supt. Tom Kelly refused to say what the policeman was doing. Half an hour later another shot was fired from the room, but nobody was reported injured.

The two terrorists have demanded the release from Irish prisons of three fellow Irish Republican Army members, including Gallagher's reported common-law wife. Authorities have refused and have pleaded with Gallagher and Miss Coyle to surrender.

Part-timers, Wages
Two Issues Left In Postal Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiations between the post office and the Canadian Union of Postal Workers broke off at 12:10 a.m. EST today, Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said, however, that both sides have agreed to meet again Monday.

Spokesmen for the two sides said they have been unable to resolve the two remaining issues — the use of casual mail union labor and wages.

Mr. Mackasey said following the adjournment that the "priority seems to be on casuals."

"We need the casuals but we're prepared to minimize our use of them," he said. "We can't give up the concept."

Jean-Claude Parrot, chief negotiator for the 22,000-member union, said:

"We will work on counter-proposals on casuals over the weekend. We asked for clarification on the post office position and found out their proposal was not what we thought."

Although spokesmen for both sides said they are anxious to reach a settlement to the strike by the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), they took a weekend away from the bargaining table will be beneficial. The strike now is in its 12th day.

Negotiations resumed last Monday and since that time all non-monetary clauses for a new contract have been resolved except for the casuals.

The two sides met for three hours Friday afternoon and then resumed at 7:30 p.m. EST. There was optimism at the start of the evening session that a settlement was in sight following a union announcement that it was "seriously considering a post office proposal on the casuals.

However, it appeared following today's adjournment that the two sides are still far apart on wages and casuals.

Mr. Mackasey said he was unable to find out if a wage offer of 11.7% an hour increase over 30 months was acceptable to the 22,000 inside workers.

Mr. Parrot criticized the postmaster general's bargaining tactics and said:

"We feel that now he's jeopardizing the talks."

Friday the two sides reached an agreement on electronic surveillance in the most office but, as with other settlements, no details have been made public.

Earlier Friday Mr. Mackasey said he ordered issuance of paycheques to the postal workers although he had been "accused of financing a strike and being a stiffie."

Prince Takes Over

Spanish General Still In Critical Condition

MADRID (AP) — Prince Juan Carlos de Borbon began settling into his new position as provisional chief of state today in Franco, removed by illness as dictator after 36 years remained in grave condition.

Franco, in his 15th day of lingering heart illness, showed signs Friday of peritonitis—inflammation of the abdominal membrane—that doctors said might hasten his death.

An early-morning medical bulletin said Franco rested through the night. But the 82-year-old generalissimo was also suffering from lung congestion, a failing heart and a buildup of fluid in his abdominal cavity.

Police sources reported the arrest Friday night of four top leaders of the Socialist Workers' party, but there was no indication of a general crackdown.

Police also prohibited a news conference for foreign reporters called by Prof. Enrique Tierno Galvan, head of the moderate Popular Socialist party.

Opposition parties are unauthorized in Spain. The only legal political group is the Movement, supported by the government.

Juan Carlos, France's designated heir, performed his first official duty Friday by presiding over a Cabinet meeting at which the future of the Spanish Sahara, expected to be his first major challenge, was discussed, but no decisions were made.

Cattle Coverage Coming

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Friday he is working on an insurance program to compensate farmers for the thousands of cattle that die yearly from disease and accident.

He did not elaborate but made the statement in an interview shortly before the Commons gave approval in principle to legislation which, among other things, would grant farmers limited compensation for such losses.

Mr. Whelan said the cost of offering full compensation under provisions of the act would be too high. A price breeding bull, for example, might be worth several hundred thousand dollars.

Instead, he indicated, he favors an insurance scheme in which farmers would pay premiums for coverage, the contributions are made by farmers for compensation they receive through the regulations of the act.

Diseases such as brucellosis, which causes cows to abort, and hoof-and-mouth disease, which forces farmers to destroy infected animals cost producers millions of dollars in losses each year.

Eastern Snowstorm Stalls Halloween

HALIFAX (CP) — Cape Bretoners will celebrate Halloween a day late because a vicious snow and wind storm kept the ghosts and goblins at home Friday night.

The storm also hit most of Newfoundland, knocking out power in many areas of both islands and leaving motorists stranded.

Up to 10 inches of snow were reported along parts of the Cape Breton shore and winds in Cape Breton and Newfoundland gusted to 65 miles an hour. Temperatures were near zero Celsius.

This morning Cape Bretoners and Newfoundlanders woke up to sunny skies and what promised to be a warm day. But several inches of heavy slush on the ground was expected to melt during the day.

Haunted House Hectic

So you wanted to visit a haunted house.

Paul Lucas of 88 Gilbert St. went all out to make this Halloween a memorable one for over 200 costume-clad youths who visited their home.

A recording of horror sounds amplified outdoors made some of the younger ones think twice about approaching the house, said Mr. Lucas. But once inside they enjoyed themselves, he added.

He said no treats were given out unless the visitors first either sang a song, told a joke, did a dance or did an impersonation but everybody participated.

"There are all those people who want to turn off the lights or poison the kids," said Susan Lucas, dressed up as a lunch-hack. "So why not give the kids something to enjoy that they'll remember."

Minister Challenges Labor

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — The strength of Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) opposition to the federal anti-inflation policy will have to be proved, Andre Ouellet, federal minister of consumer and corporate affairs, said Friday.

BGH Patients' Rights Protected As Student Doctors Learn

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The rights and welfare of patients at Belleville General Hospital (BGH) should be embodied in a policy statement before a proposed BGH— Queen's University Family Medicine Centre opens in 1977, Dr. Bruce Morgan of the BGH Board of Governors said Friday.

In conjunction with Queen's in Kingston, the centre will be located in BGH's Cavell Block and will house several medical practices which will be used to teach student physicians modern family medicine.

Current plans anticipate a total of 15 doctors in training in the Belleville program when it is in full operation by 1979.

Dr. Morgan told the board that hospital patients are concerned with losing their one-to-one relationships with their physicians, surgeons and medical management due to the imposition of residents and interns "whose function is to learn."

"We should have a think-out on this subject by the board," he recommended. "We should work out just what a patient should expect" when being committed to BGH following the switch to a teaching hospital.

Dr. J.B. McCherry of the board said it is important that patients not only know they have rights but that they also have a public responsibility to allow medical students to learn on their bodies.

Carl Bateman, board chairman, said a policy should include the opportunity for the public to appeal. He commented, "I think 90 per cent of the public know they have a moral responsibility" in further the teaching of student doctors.

Phillip Rickard, BGH executive director, informed the board that the BGH — Queen's liaison committee is currently in the preliminary stages of forming a policy which will be developed "in all openness."

of student physicians and also that they have the chance to opt out of the arrangement as is done at the university hospital in Kingston.

Belleville Ald. Stu Meeks of the board said he did not feel there would be any public opposition. He commented, "I

Bankers Taking Closer Look at Farm Financing

BY CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

While Canadian chartered banks taking a greater interest in agriculture, farm financing is taking on a national rather than provincial scope, says Belleville bank manager Jim Whipple.

"Farming has been subsidized by different governments, agencies in many ways. Each province has different types of programs for farmers," said Mr. Whipple of the Royal Bank, 346 North Front St.

Early this week he attended the third annual Canadian Bankers Association conference on farming. Bankers, representatives were at the Toronto meeting. A Belleville Bank of Montreal supervisor also attended.

"The conference gives us a national outlook rather than being centred in the provinces," said Mr. Whipple.

Governments and banks, he said, will review information presented in the conference and update implementation of farm credit policies.

"One economist suggested we're in the process of becoming short of food. We unset the increasing capital needs of farmers."

Agriculture, said Mr. Whipple, has changed from being a labor oriented industry to a mechanical, capital oriented industry.

Problems are created, he said, because the farmers' role is changing and they must learn to use credit wisely.

"On an individual basis they're all doing something wrong."

The need for farm credit has risen at a drastic rate, said Mr. Whipple in an interview.

In 1964, farmers borrowed about $700 million from Canadian chartered banks. The amount for this year is almost three times as much. According to Canadian Bankers Association figures farmers borrowed more than $2B billion from banks this year.

The totals don't include loans at a reduced interest rate made to farmers by the Farm Credit Corporation, a federal agency.

The purpose of the conferences, said Mr. Whipple, is to determine the best "blend" of government and private farm financing.

"We have some farmers who have a radical point of view when it come to government interference."

The Canadian Cattlemen's Association, said Mr. Whipple, opposes government subsidies. They say it will do the good producers more harm than good.

Farm Credit Conference

Belleville Royal Bank manager Jim Whipple says Canadian chartered banks are becoming more aware of the complexities of agriculture industry financing. He attended the third annual Canadian Bankers Association farming conference this week in Toronto.

Declining Demand May Mean Lower Milk Quota

TORONTO (CP) — George McLaughlin, chairman of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board, says there might be a large reduction next year in the quota for Canadian industrial milk production.

He said in a recent interview the market share quota for the next dairy year might be set at 110 per cent of estimated dairy requirements because of slipping consumption, a softer world market for dairy products and rising milk production in Canada. Two years ago, the quota was 133 per cent of estimated dairy requirements.

Ellard Powers, chairman of the Canadian Dairy Commission, said the level might go below 110 per cent of requirements. Industrial milk is used to make butter, cheese and skim milk powder.

The market share quota recently has been as high as 124 per cent of national requirements.

It was set at 125 per cent of the requirements in the start of this dairy year, reduced in July to 120 per cent, and producers agreed it should be no more than 117.6 per cent next year.

Mr. McLaughlin said the Ontario board had been arguing for a larger decrease before next April 1 the start of the dairy year, but until recently was resisted by producer groups in Quebec.

Now, he said, Quebec producers are concerned that there might be a shortage of dairy products and a larger reduction can be expected.

Mr. Powers said producers this year have utilized a higher level of their milk share quota than for many years.

A further reduction in quotas might not affect individual producers, he said, because most provinces have quotas they have not allocated to producers and the first reduction would be in the unallocated supply.

County Booklet Delight to Read

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — In recent years a growing number of Prince Edward County students have moved colleges rather than with kindergarten efforts under Opportunities for Youth summer programs.

Who can forget the fabulous Project Elan, an organized Romper Room introduced in the Armory Hall as a creative centre for community residents?

Then there was County Crafts, a boutique stocked with the work of Quinte area craftsmen and artists. Prices on many of the items were geared to rocket the richest tourist love budget.

The ingenious staff of this shop still seemed busy but the project received no substantial grant for two years in a row.

At last an OFY project with productive results has been introduced in Prince Edward encompassing for the rather lame efforts of former programs.

This summer four students, Candy Burley, Alice Cowan, Bonnie Hubbard and Susan Mason collaborated to write the excellent 76-page booklet Striking Times, The Workings of Prince Edward County.

The quality of the booklet clearly indicates that its authors spent long hours in interviewing and research and in style deserve extra enthusiasm for county folklore.

Striking Times combines the humorous, such as old-fashioned remedies and ridicules with in-depth interviews such as "Big Tim", the story of Prince Edward's woman grave digger Eileen Smith.

The interviewer observed that "the gentle beauty of this woman has been unmentioned" in newspaper stories.

In Striking Times the reader learns of Mrs. Smith's arrival in Prince Edward in 1943, her plans to join the army and her work as a grave digger at Bloomfield cemetery.

Well known stories of the county such as the history of Glenora Ferry and the Story of the Hallowell Hearse are retold with a fresh slant that gifts the booklet Striking Times with a "can't put it down" quality.

Copies of this soft cover publication have been placed in Picton Public Library and are free for the asking. In addition the booklet is available through local museums.

For the earthiest Christmas shopper who may be browsing for stocking stuffers Striking Times is a real bargain. It is the story of Prince as told by the people of Prince Edward and the reader from page one forward understands why this island community has been dubbed "The County."

Gun Control Needed Now

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — As Ottawa high school student shot up a classroom and then killed himself this week and most people in Trenton say it couldn't happen here.

A 13-year-old Trenton youth has a glass eye because of an accident he had while playing with a gun last month.

It is heating time of the year again and guns are becoming a more familiar part of everyday life for many families. Police and municipal officials offer gun safety courses in preparation for this time of the year when the woods and bush country are filled with sportsmen, many of whom are lucky to return home unharmed.

Weapons have always been a part of Canadian life, first when we were a young country and needed to fend ourselves off the land, and later, as part of an efficient, law-enforcement system. Fortunately, our attitude towards guns has been strongly influenced by the British system which frowns upon the indiscriminate use of weapons and every time a law enforcement officer draws his pistol he is accountable for this action and must file a report.

But, realistically, it must be accepted that we have been influenced by the U.S. attitude about guns which is the right to bear arms. It is lucky this policy has not pervaded our thinking too deeply yet and we may still be able to reverse the easy accessibility children and adults have to handguns and rifles.

But this smug attitude that we are different from our southern neighbors in our basic violent tendencies has been increasingly disproved in the past few years. Parliament is currently drafting stricter gun control laws and this may prove to be the answer but it will take more than a rule to curtail the indiscriminate use of guns.

A concerted effort must be made by every parent, adult and official to remove the weapons from the province of children. Controls must be regulated so tightly that is will be nearly impossible for a person to obtain the weapons to do harm to himself and/or others.

Is the right to bear arms, whether for personal protection or for hunting purposes, so sacred that it is worth the sacrifice of a human life?

Ask the young boy who is partially blind. Ask the parents of the dead Ottawa youth. Ask yourself.

Workers Scarce

BRAMPTON, Ont. (CP)— Klaus Wilkins is among dairy farmers who say they have problems finding workers to keep even for monthly wages up to $700 or $800.

"You can get people, but what we can't seem to get is experienced people you can depend on," Mr. Wilkins said.

His wife Monika said that when they advertise for help, they get a number of phone calls from persons who ask whether the work is eight hours a day, five days a week.

"You can't have a five-day week on the farm—it's impossible for dairy farming," Mrs. Wilkins said, "I don't know how they expect it."

Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins who have three children aged four to 10, are in the barn by 6:45 a.m. for the morning milking and finish the evening milking at 6 p.m., seven days a week.

With the help of milk machines and stainless steel pipes carrying milk to a central tank, each mill fig takes two hours,

Gardening Column

Consider Plants Part of Decor

By ROSS HAWTHORNE

Whether you know it or not, I don't write the headings for these articles. An editor does. I tried a few times but they didn't like my choices — and so I gave up.

But last week's heading gave me inspiration. The column was headed: "Indoor Plants Brighten Home" and it made me realize something.

There are an awful lot of people out there who won't get into indoor light gardening ever, but they probably have a house full of plants, or they'd like to and want to know how.

So Mr. Editor, this week and for a few weeks to come, since it's too early to start seeding next spring's flowers and vegetables under lights we'll follow up on the promise of your headline — "Indoor Plants Brighten Home".

They certainly do. In fact the best way to regard house plants is as part of the interior decoration of your home, just as landscaping should be regarded as part of the exterior decoration of your home.

But there's one thing you've got to remember, one problem you've got to remember in using plants as part of your decor.

Plants are alive and all have basic life sustaining requirements for their survival. Plus, if you want them to prosper, that extra essence called "TLC — tender loving care", that may go so far as the establishment of a reciprocal empathy between you and your plants, but certainly means that you provide them with more than the bare minimums for survival.

True, some plants will survive in unbelievably bad conditions of under-watering, too little light, too little humidity, and too much heat. The cactus, Sansevieria or Cast Iron Plant, the Aglaonema or Chinese Evergreen and the Sasseveria or Snake Plant. But that's about all they'll do — survive. And please notice all are foliage plants. Flowering plants on the other hand are much more demanding in terms of basic requirements.

Which brings us to the basic division in this and columns to come; the simplest possible categorization of house plants. And so we'll simply divide them into two categories:

(1) Foliage — (2) Flowering.

Foliage plants are best known, as their name implies, for their attractive foliage. Their flowers may be insignificant, ridiculous or non-existent. And flowering plants for their flowering habit, which can range from two weeks to continuous.

If you are brand new to the window-sill world, or are planning to utilize plants in room settings, then you're probably better off to stick to foliage plants. (Although contrary to popular belief, flowering plants such as African Violets are easy, even for the newest neophyte).

But no matter your choice, there are two timeless rule: each and every plant's needs are different in terms of the climate in which it will flourish. And the second rule to remember is: each and every window or corner in your home has a differing climate profile.

And so the process is simple: you matchy your plant's needs to that part of your home that meets those needs best, add "T.L.C." and develop a growing relationship.

U.S. Issues Warning On Nitrite in Meats

WASHINGTON (AP) — The agriculture department says the use of nitrite as a curing agent in meats should be limited because cooking nitrate-cured bacon produces substances that cause cancer in rats.

Dr. Donald Houston, assistant deputy director of the department's meat and poultry inspection division, said Sunday that cultivated bacon produces low levels of nitrosamines—between five to 15 parts per billion—when cooked at high temperatures.

Nitrosamines have been found to be carcinogenic in rats, Houston said.

"There is really no definitive research indicating whether nitrosamines are carcinogenic in humans," Houston said.

Hudson said nitrite, which has been used for thousands of years to cure meats and for which scientists have no substitute, is also used to cure other meats, such as frankfurters, bologna and luncheon meats.

He said studies that nitrosamines are produced only when nitrite-cured meat is heated to a high temperature.

He said, however, that if the level of heat is reduced to the point at which nitrosamines are not produced, there is a danger of botulism, a deadly infection.

P.M. Stiffens on Crime but PLO Still Coming—and in Jail the Living is Easy

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — Now it has been decreed by Maximum Leader of the in-name for Prime Minister Trudeau — that the field of criminology be reversed.

Society and its safety is to get the governmental priority.

And that is a switch.

In his day as Solicitor General, Jean-Pierre "Gumshoes" Goyer had it turned around the other way.

With PET nodding human-like approval, "Gummy", when he was in charge of the crime and punishment department, told it out on the parliamentary record that the care, feeding and taming of the criminal came ahead of the protection and preservation of the helpless potential victim.

And nobody in the House of Commons, not the Maximum Leader, the Opposition Pretenders or the trained political seals on the back benches, even suggested that Goyer had got it wrong.

So with our elected representatives off on a collective be-kind-to-criminals trip, Warren Allmand, when he became Solicitor General, continued to carry on coddling.

Then as it all started coming unstuck, and the taxpayers became upset over the continued killing of too many kids and cops, Maximum Leader, sensitive to the whims of the vulgar multitude, had second thoughts.

Not too strongly, though.

More selectively, actually.

Like announcing that the official rate would be relied out for the terrorist PLO at the UN Habitat next year in Vancouver, while snubbing farmers of the world by cutting at the last minute, an appointment to open the International Plowing match because a couple of plowmen from Rhodesia were competing.

The offending pair — Maximum Leader regarded them as racist white supremists — were not entered as Rhodesia but simply as competitors, as all the other contestants.

And like, we're coming down — but not too hard — on crime, comforting those most directly concerned by the soothing assurance that he wasn't about to take off on "some law and order kick," as he phrased it.

So he is going to get tough.

But gently, gently.

Those maximum security prisons in they are jestingly called, will still be maximum, but as before, not necessarily secure.

Maximum in creature comforts . . . dining rooms bright in decorator colors of zombie-yellow, sky-blue and summer-dawn-orange . . . single occupancy rooms, each endowed clear plastic windows, colored television with earphone for the privacy of quiet, undisturbed listening, air conditioning, carpeted corridors.

That is dreaded Millhaven, home of hard-core crime.

A well-known public figure, who spent a little time there on the invitation of a judge, joked, when on "leave" in Toronto that dear old Millhaven was like a high class hotel.

He spoke, appreciatively of T-bone steaks for dinner.

But that is only part of the maximum.

Not just T-bone, but wing or ham steaks, with two veg. salad, cheese, fresh fruit, pie, cake, pudding, but also, no pre-din-din martini nor any wine selection. Soup's the starter.

While Millhaven guests are feasting, their hosts consume bangers and mash.

Breakfast offers a nice choice of five cold cereals, individually packaged, or hot cream-of-wheat or cold oats, if preferred.

There is a selection of fresh fruits or juices to meet the mood of the morning, and a choice of bacon and eggs, or "eggs to order" for the hot-cakes with maple syrup, and, of course, white or brown toast with marmalade, jelly or jam, and tea coffee or milk. (No Bloody Marys, more's the hardship.)

Lunch with rolls has a nicely varied menu, interchangeable with dinner.

Many old age pensioners should have it half so good.

And should enjoy the same companion of free dentures.

But that is maximum.

Maximum that finds a convicted murderer and on leave from one of Kingston's prisons to attend university being picked up by the police for impaired driving.

When he promises no "law and order kick," Maximum Leader is not kidding.

A Blow to Free Choice

Actions of the federal government in recent weeks with regard to U.S.-controlled publications, even if they have been taken in the interests of nationalism, can only militate against diversity and free choice where our reading matter is concerned.

Revenue Minister Bud Cullen has announced content restrictions which will force the Canadian editions of Time magazine and Reader's Digest to be more than 80 per cent different in content from their foreign parent publications or lose tax exemptions for advertisers.

There are other stipulations aimed at "Canadianizing" the publications, but the net result, as Mr. Cullen acknowledges, may be to force the Canadian edition of Time out of business. Reader's Digest, with its huge readership, might be able to survive, he said, without tax exemptions.

But even Reader's Digest itself is not so sure. It points out in a release that if Bill C-58 is implemented in its present form, the enterprise will be placed in a critical financial position, and the jobs of hundreds of employees placed in jeopardy.

There are other anomalies to the Cullen edict regarding percentages of Canadian content and so on that there is not space to go into, but as The Globe and Mail's Geoffrey Stephens points out, the Bill discriminates in favor of those Canadian magazines which would concentrate on events within Canada and against those Canadian magazines which would report extensively on news beyond Canada's borders.

There's another twist, the prospect of ending one monopoly — Time Canada Ltd. — and the creation of another, homegrown little ol' Canadian one, in the shape of Maclean-Hunter Ltd. Yet, as the Montreal Gazette's financial editor, Terence Corcoran, points out, Maclean-Hunter's 1974 revenues of $132 million in fact top Time Canada's $15 million by far.

Loss of Time Canada and/or Reader's Digest would not be the end of the world, but it would be a blow nevertheless to the Canadian reading public, who are being deprived of freedom of choice, not to mention jobs and business potential. The Ottawa measure is punitive, unimaginative and discriminatory. Even at this late stage, the government should move to liberalize the legislation so all interests can be satisfied.

THE INFLATION FIGHTER

An Opposition Calling the Shots Could Play into Davis' Hands

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

There is only one thing certain. Parliamentary watchers are going to have a heyday.

The Political Grind

There was a time, as Minister of Labor, when Bryce Mackasey sat out marathon bargaining sessions to their finish.

The minister acquired a reputation as a troubleshooter, but Mr. Mackasey's resolute spirit and negotiating skill are not matched by the best of health.

He has had heart trouble and it was a relief in a sense that his problems of the past few days were diagnosed as nothing worse than exhaustion.

A choice of evils indeed, but at least the Postmaster-General was able to get back to negotiations on the postal stoppage after a weekend's rest.

It takes courage to keep going when the physical path is tough. But as Mr. Mackasey told a questioner, he was not prepared to sit through the night — his health would not permit — and he said he had no apology for that. Nevertheless, Mr. Mackasey is strong where it counts, in will and nerve.

Politics is perhaps the most demanding of jobs. For one, it sidelined former Agriculture Minister Joe Greene. He too was a relatively young man when he had a heart attack and it meant in his case he had to quit politics.

The Postmaster-General though is still in there — and who needs all night bargaining sessions anyway? Better that both government and unions get their sleep like everyone else, and have clear heads in the morning.

TORONTO — From the positions the government has taken since the election and at the opening of the session it would appear that it is going to try and let the opposition carry the ball.

Once it knew it was in a minority situation it had two choices.

It could go on the offensive and even though it would be attacked for defeat, and probably quick defeat, it would go down in a fighting and virile government mood and presumably gain some marks for this in public esteem.

Or it could sit back and have the opposition carry the play, essegially waiting for it, and particularly the NDP, to make some mistakes that would give it an opening to go to the people at a good time.

It is this second choice that it quite evidently has taken.

In the weeks leading up to the session it uncovered no new issues or programs nor did anything else to go on the offensive.

Rather it drew back on earlier positions, such as rent.

Then it showed that wherever possible it was going to be the leading the action.

It easily agreed to the opposition suggestion that committees of the house should have a majority of opposition members, giving them much more control of the house.

It didn't take a firm or responsible position on Hydro rates, which was really its duty, but preferred to leave it a committee of the house (opposition-dominated).

And when price and wage restraints were announced it very quickly took the opening it was given and said that it would not set up its own control mechanism but would leave this to Ottawa.

This could be smart politics.

It means the main burden will be on the NDP.

It will have to be careful that it doesn't present an issue on which the government might be able to take a good case to the public and on which the Liberals would have to join it in defeating the administration.

It would seem a cosy position for the government.

But in a minority house nothing is really cosy. Particularly in a provincial house where there is constant action (as counted to the federal parliament which can get tied up for weeks on one issue).

But gently, gently.

Those maximum security prisons in they are jestingly called, will still be maximum, but as before, not necessarily secure.

Maximum in creature comforts . . . dining rooms bright in decorator colors of zombie-yellow, sky-blue and summer-dawn-orange . . . single occupancy rooms, each endowed clear plastic windows, colored television with earphone for the privacy of quiet, undisturbed listening, air conditioning, carpeted corridors.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nov. 1, 1975

1911—British investigators announced it had been proved "as conclusively as possible without bodies" that Adolf Hitler was dead—20 years ago today—in 1945. It was found that the Nazi dictator had died April 30, 1945, in the chancellery bunker in Berlin as the city was overrun by Allied forces. The inquiry reported his body had been burned in a gasoline pyre.

1500—Sistine Chapel's Michelangelo ceiling first exhibited.

1512—King Edward VI's second Book of Common Prayer was used for the first time in England.

1936—Winston Churchill charged Germany with maintaining a "system of terror" in its war preparations.

1945—Fifty five persons died in a Washington plane collision and crash—the worse civil air disaster up to that time.

Soviets May Build up to Ten Large Aircraft Carriers

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The Soviet Union, with the world's second-largest navy and perhaps its largest submarine force, is moving into aircraft carriers, a development causing deep concern in NATO and United States military circles.

The Russians already have two helicopter carriers, small by the standards of the nuclear-powered giants in the United States Navy, and are said to be set for inshore tactical purposes.

But now the news is out that the U.S.S.R. has commenced construction of a Kiev class of 45,000-ton large carriers. They would give existing Soviet fleets around the world the potential to carry fixed-wing air power far out to sea.

The U.S. naval estimate is that the Soviet Navy will build perhaps six to 10 of these, with an even larger aircraft carrier class in mind for the 1980s.

The Kiev class carriers, still not as big as the American super-carriers, will carry VTOL (Vertical Takeoff and Landing) aircraft which would give their already powerful Mediterranean fleet the same ability to deploy air power as that which now has the U.S. Sixth Fleet has always had.

The layman probably can't believe or understand that the Russians move into major aircraft carriers has the implications given to it by the naval specialists in the Western navies.

But one should remember that the Soviet Navy straggling and naval architects carefully studied the quick and effective U.S. marine landing on the beaches of Inchon in 1950 as the basis for building their two existing helicopter carriers.

The amphibious U.S. operation in Lebanon allowed the Russians the kind of political as well as military implications of carrier use. The Americans expected the Russians to duplicate their own Lebanon experience during the Yom Kippur War of October, 1973, perhaps to assure their control of an Egyptian port like Alexandria.

Both the NATO and American naval strategists are afraid the Russians will now engage in a rivalry to build carriers of the kind they carried out in the '30s and '40s to match growing U.S. naval power in nuclear, missile-firing submarines.

This has resulted in a terrifying, lop-sided balance of first-strike power. Any one of the several hundred U.S. and Soviet nuclear submarines is capable of wiping out a chosen city target from a far away as 1,500 miles at sea.

But the Russians will not find the creation of a carrier strength as straightforward as building up submarine-strength.

Large carriers require immense shore-support facilities plus highly specialized crews on board not only for aircraft handling but pilots for the carrier-borne aircraft.

The Americans have 35 years' experience in operating large carriers in war and peace. This began with the first fleet build-ups of the Second World War in the Pacific and continued with their carrier operations during both the Korean and Vietnam wars.

The Russians have had none of this experience with aircraft carriers. In fact they gave no serious built a carrier of this size nor an aircraft for flying from a carrier flight deck.

But the Soviet push into carriers in the '70s, like their submarine expansion of the last two decades, is part of the long-term and ongoing naval strategy of Soviet naval chief of staff Admiral Sergei G. Gorshkov who has written widely about it in the West.

Inflation: Who's to Blame?

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

After reading your editorials on wage restraints I am compelled to write a rebuttal.

The concept that unions are the cause of inflation is pure fallacy. One good example is the pay raise to the Civil Servants just received. All over the 10 per cent limit or the $2,400 limit. Someone making 15 or 20 thousand does not need a $4,000 raise and to say that because this is mandated it keeps them within the guidelines is nonsense. You blame the unions for claiming as much as the system as they can get. These people get it without lifting a finger and they won't even increase the Gross National Product.

Federal MP's salaries have increased by 82 per cent from 1970 to 1975 while school teachers in Metro received 19 per cent, steelworkers 44 per cent and letter carriers 35 per cent over the same period. Corporation profits over the same period rose 227 per cent and this is after labor, raw material, depreciation etc., were deducted. Does this indicates unions cause inflation?

Artificial shortages were created by big manufacturers by buying up large quantities of an item, paper, iron, such as sugar, fertilizer, anti-freeze and others. Take one item, sugar, while the sugar companies were making enormous profits because of the so-called shortage, other countries which depended on sugar increased their prices on such items as soft drinks, jam etc. The price of sugar finally was reduced but the price of the items made from sugar did not come down. To say wages made up the difference is untrue as these plants are automated and have few employees. This indicates unions cause inflation.

Here are some interesting statistics on corporation profits. United Canso Oil and Gas Calgary for six months ending March 31, 1974, had a profit of $254,000. For the same period ending March 31, 1975, their profit was $37,600,000 or an increase of profit of 10,000 per cent. Here are some others; Canadian General Electric Toronto: an increase of profit over last year 170 per cent. Union Carbide, 151 per cent over last year. Dentar Ltd. Montreal, 103 per cent increase, Gulf Oil Ltd. Toronto, profits increased by $61,000,000 or 41 per cent in 1974 over the year before. The list could go on and on.

I am sure organized labor is quite willing to go along with wage restraints and have indicated so if the controls were fair so. They are not fair and this is borne out when you hear no complaints from the business world. They would be complaining if they felt they were hit as hard as labor. The B.C. Government has seen the restraints for what they are — wage retardation — and has acted accordingly by slapping on a price freeze.

There was a very interesting item in your paper on October 24, Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell said "the Federal government would be asked to exempt major oil companies from Combines Legislation" the Combines' Investigation Act as part of the Ottawa government inquiry into petroleum products prices, Mr. Timbrell said. The companies claim they cannot divulge their pricing mechanisms because the federal government could pounce on them like a ton of bricks. They believe disclosure would be detrimental to price fixing. This indicates unions cause inflation? Gimme a break! If you want to lay the blame for inflation somewhere, lay it where it belongs, in the lap of big business.

Sunday Store Opening

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I feel Alderman Cox's attitude toward Sunday shopping is admirable, religious but question his right to such impositions of religious views.

His elected position surely is to represent citizens of Belleville as a whole. I very much doubt that a majority of these citizens agree with Mr. Cox's views.

I personally, do not wish to shop on Sunday, but most certainly feel I have no moral right to prevent others from doing so should they wish.

If his own dominant religious views force him to object to the public being allowed a day to satisfy his own moral conscience, then his attitude is somewhat reminiscent of the more infamous periods in world history when dictatorial leaders attempted to force their personal views upon the populace "for their own good regardless". Surely one of the world's most sadly bear witness to the fact that more hardships has been placed upon past populations in the false name of religion than for any other reason.

Finally, if Sunday shopping were to be the greatest sin committed by even our most ardent Sunday supporters they must surely be saints in this day and age. I am sure that God will forgive us for allowing others to shop on Sunday.

Aspirin Effective Against Wry Neck

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Could you give me some information about spasmodic torticollis? I can't seem to find any information about this condition although I seem to have had it for eight years.— Mrs. E. S.

The cause of torticollis (wry neck) is not clear. It is a muscular disorder of the neck vertebrae which sometimes causes a tilting of the head. Fibromyositis (inflammation of fibro-muscular tissue) can be a cause but this should not have lasted eight years.

Heat and massage, along with anti-inflammatory drugs such as aspirin, have been used successfully, especially in early stages. In very early cases simple manipulation can correct the problem.

The exact cause of your condition is "spasmodic" torticollis. This is a rather rare adult form of the problem, and it doesn't respond as well to treatment as does the more common variety. Psychological factors may be involved.

The few cases I have seen have been in women who did not exhibit emotional upset. In stubborn cases surgery may be the only solution. An x-ray of the neck spine should be undertaken to determine arthritic changes there. You should consult an orthopedic specialist for a full evaluation.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Would you please tell me why you can pull some hairs from your face with tweezers and it's OK, but at other times it gets infected? Are there some hairs you should not pull?—A. T. K.

No matter how well you wash, there are many germs left on the skin of the face. Normally, they are harmless. However, pulling a hair leaves the follicle (or pore) open and exposed to infection.

It is best to snip hairs with scissors around the nose, face or broasts.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am bothered with constant, dull ear-ness. Doctors tell me I have hardening of an artery leading to the ear. Is there any hope for relief? Will the condition be cleared up ever?—Rev. A. C.

It is quite possible that faulty circulation to the brain is causing your dizziness.

There are obstructive, which would most likely be in the carotid artery to the brain, or can be determined by arteriogram. In such a case, surgery to correct the obstruction would bring relief.

However, persistent dizziness rather suggests a defect in the balance mechanism of your ear. Has this been investigated? There are various anti-dizziness medications available to alleviate this problem.

There are a variety of causes of dizziness. And, until the specific cause of yours is definitely established, there is not much to suggest in the way of specific relief.

In some cases, the problem disappears spontaneously. But if a vascular defect is involved, it will not.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I'd like to know if badly decayed teeth can cause a general tiredness, a feeling of being under par?—Mrs. D. L.

They most certainly can. Diseased teeth and gums can provide a convenient nidus, where germs to enter the body. Toothaches and sore gums can affect the prime purpose of these structures—grinding food for the early stages of digestion.

Their failure to perform such functions can lead to other digestion-type disorders of the bowel, with intestinal toxicity.

If these possible effects I've mentioned are the case, then you would be wise to get the teeth fixed up as soon as you possible. The expense may be high, but having good teeth and gums futures can save you more expensive problems later on. I suggest you get them done.

In spite of all of the educational campaigns in this area, a recent national health survey revealed that about 70 per cent of children under 15 had never been to a dentist. For the age group under five the figure was about 90 per cent.

Win at Bridge

West saves it for South

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

South knew that his four-card side suit was a slight overbid. When he saw dummy, the overbid became really squared. There were two sure diamond losers, one probable club loser and an adverse ace of trumps at the clubber against him.

Still, while there's life there's hope. South gave no indication that he had any intention of it. He won the heart in his own hand and led a small spade. West thought a while, hopped up with his ace and led the suit again. South won in dummy, slashed dummy's king of hearts and led the deuce of diamonds. South's 1st lost to West's queen. West decided that South held the king of diamonds and that a club shift was imperative. He led the 10 of that suit.

Now it was South's time to think but he solved his problem by playing dummy's jack of clubs to make his impossible game.

Ask the Jacobys

A New York reader wants to know if we ever have occasion to open a two-card diamond suit, when playing five-card majors.

We suppose that the heartline likes a 4-3-3-3 distribution like: ♠ A 7 3 3 ♥ K 8 6 5 ♦ A K 6 4 3 2. With 14 high-card points we are inclined to open 1 diddley. We do so with a rather unhappy club, but would not quarrel with an unhappy spade or heart but we would NOT open 1 diddley.

Map Drawn By Spacemen?

By Allen Spraggett
Copyright 1975 Toronto Sun

A television movie to be aired this season, based on the claim of a New Hampshire couple that they spent an hour aboard a UFO will make Betty and the late Barney Hill even better known than they are now.

Millions read about the Hills' stunning experience "in the book Interrupted Journey. It described how, on September 19, 1961, Betty and Barney, while driving about their home in Portsmouth, N.H., saw a huge, saucer-shaped UFO which they thought was coming in for a landing.

The next awareness they had was of driving down the highway many miles further on than they remembered being. They realized that two hours had mysteriously vanished from their lives.

Three years later, under hypnosis with Dr. Benjamin Simon, told me (and many others) that in the professional opinion the Hills were not insane and were not lying. Which leaves what?

Well, either that they actually were aboard a UFO or that they suffered a very rare psychiatric aberration. I'm sure that Dr. Simon had to invent it) which he called a shared dream.

Many who studied the Hills' story became convinced that it was not a dream. And now new evidence has come to light which supports their story.

The evidence is a strange "star map" which Betty Hill drew under deep hypnosis. She said it was a copy of one which the UFO commander had shown her, indicating the two stars around which orbited the UFO's home planet.

In 1964 when Betty Hill drew this map, it made little or no sense to anybody. It showed two large circles (supposed to be the UFO's "home stars") with lines radiating from them to various dots (the dots were said to be other planets and the lines were navigation routes used by the UFO's).

However, one woman who read the Hills' story was Marjorie Fish, a school teacher in Oak Harbor, Ohio. She had taken some astronomy at college and was intrigued by Dr. Simon's map. He had drawn under hypnosis.

"There was something concrete that could be checked out to see if it was true or fantasy," Marjorie Fish told me in an interview. "I decided to try to check it out."

Marjorie Fish's research turned up startling findings that a full report appeared in the Astronomy magazine the December 1974 issue.

"What I found," she said, "was an actual pattern of stars which is incredibly close to what Betty drew in her map. And significantly, these stars are considered by scientists most likely to have planets suitable for the development of life.

"The base star of the UFO are 36.6 light years from earth — which is incredibly far in terms of the vast size of our installar distances go. These stars are among earth's closer neighbors."

A light year is the distance light travels in one year and the speed of light is 186,000 miles per second.

The purported UFO base stars are in the constellation Reticulum and are known to astronomers as Zeta 1 and 2 Reticuli.

A really astonishing thing, said Marjorie Fish, is that when Betty Hill drew her map, the "parallel" or relative stars appearing on it was not known by science.

"In other words," she explained, "we didn't know at that time how far out in space these stars were, relative to the earth. No astronomer would have known that map in 1964 because there are no stars on it that appeared in no parallax catalogue at that time and which, as found by recent findings, would have been misplaced."

Corresponding Marjorie Fish's statement is the comment of a celebrated astronomer, Dr. Allen Hynek of Northwestern University.

"No astronomer on earth between 1961 and 1964 could have known that the triangle of background stars (in Betty Hill's map) existed in the present geometric position."

And then, could Betty Hill have drawn the map in advance of the scientific knowledge of the day?

"The answer's simple," Betty said. "I was really on board that UFO!"

Cornwall's Prussia Cove Site Of Annual Musicians' Seminar

PLYMOUTH, England (CP) — Prussia Cove, on one of Cornwall's most romantic and rugged stretches of coast has become the centre of an annual International Musicians' Seminar (IMS).

It began in 1971, when Sandor Vegh, the Hungarian violinist, stood on the headland overlooking Mounts Bay and said: "We must make music here."

His friend Hilary Behrens, whose family owns and farms on the Prussia Cove area, said: "Mr. Vegh is an inheritor of a great central European tradition of string playing and what we are trying to do at Prussia Cove is to give young people from all over the world the opportunity to work in England under a great master in surroundings that enhance the masterclass atmosphere."

So, it was to be the Behrens farm with a large constituted house on the cliffs that set the stage for the first seminar in 1972.

Behrens founded the seminar with Vegh, the Hungarian, another friend of Vegh, in association with Mary Verney (Lady Barnby) and Yehudi Menuhin, a former whose reverence for Vegh includes playing the Bach in the orchestra at Penzance, a town not far from Prussia Cove.

This year's seminar attracted almost 60 young musicians from Europe, Canada and the United States for its two-week run, and his professional colleagues Piper (Academia Cello) and Virginia Gutirama (viola). Gutirama is a member of the Trio Italiano.

Many distinguished soloists appearing on the international platform have been to the Prussia Cove seminars to learn from the experience of Vegh (himself a youthful pupil of Hubay, the famous Hungarian violin and composer) which stretches back to the Hungarian String Quartet in the 1930s and association with Pablo Casals at the Prades Festivals.

They have included the violinists Yehudi Menuhin, Shirkawa, to whom conductor Rafael Kubelik presented the Emperor Strad, and the cellist Lenkan player Rohan da Silva.

It is hoped to provide burses enabling talented young musicians to study anywhere in the world, the prizes going to soloists and a chamber ensemble chosen by a panel of judges that will include members from outside the seminar.

"The unusual situation at Prussia Cove is that we have young, highly talented musicians coming to England for master-classes to share a tradition of music-making under Vegh, a tradition that comes directly from Hubay, Vieuxtemps and Joachim," said Behrens.

Vegh, who also leads the Vegh Quartet, has virtually retired recently throughout his long career, although the Vegh Quartet's recording of Bartok string works in 1973 won the Grand Prix du Disque.

Because of the remarkable association between a beautiful but somewhat isolated part of Britain and the highest traditions of continental music-making, Sandor Vegh has become a familiar and well-loved personality in southwestern England.

Side benefits to the area around Prussia Cove include recitals given by professors and their pupils. They performed at Truro Cathedral for the first time this year.

Vegh's first recital at the famous Dartington Summer School in 1973 brought the comment from Sir William Glock, former controller of music for the BBC, that he had not heard playing of that quality and style since the late Enesc.

That committed international musician Menuhin who, like conductor Colin Davis, is one of the friends of the IMS, thinks highly of the work of the master-class atmosphere on young musicians.

"Even one meeting with a great master, such as Hostropovitch, can alter a young musician's life."

Madame Vegh said her husband's three weeks at Prussia Cove represented the longest period of the year that they spent in any one place.

"We feel we could easily have made a home in England, where the idealism of young musicians, in particular, is felt strongly by my husband."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Scott Trotter, 63, who was Bing Crosby's musical director for many years, died Wednesday of an undisclosed ailment, in recent years, Trotter composed the music for Charlie Brown television and movie productions.

DETROIT (AP) — The advertising agency which handles the account on the Chevrolet line of General Motors Corp. producers has rejected a lucrative offer to sponsor the U.S. television premier of the Oscar-winning film The French Connection because of its violence. The agency, which says it is after programs with a broader audience appeal, has turned down a film that advertise on the popular Hawaii Five-O serial—again citing excessive violence.

German Spoken Here
BOURNEMOUTH, England (CP) — A German student has come to take a city bus conductor for a ride by offering him a $5 note (£10.50) for a four-penny fare, thus getting a free ride. The pint failed when he told a police plan in his native tongue, as the conductor was taking German lessons. He stopped the bus at a bank to get change.

Test Yourself For Nutrition Week

Next week is Nutrition Week and one of the ways to recognize it is to question your own eating habits and the closely-connected matter of your physical fitness.

First, a simple fitness test.

1. Do you weigh five pounds or less over your weight as 21?

2. Did you refrain from smoking anything yesterday?

3. Find your pulse on your wrist. Take your pulse for 15 seconds. Was your pulse count 17 or less?

4. Stand up. Do the pinch test at your waistline, about one inch above your navel. Take a pinch of skin and fat in this spot with the thumb and index finger of your right hand. Then try to fit your baby finger of the left hand in between your pinching fingers. If you can, answer No. If you can't, answer Yes.

5. Standing up, try to slide your palms down the front of your legs and place your hands flat on the floor without bouncing. Can you?

6. Run on the spot quickly and vigorously for 15 seconds, lifting your knees high. Stop, take a deep breath and whistle or breathe out for 15 seconds without taking another breath. Can you?

Add up your yes answers. Six out of six is an excellent score. Five out of six is a good score, four out of six leaves loads of room for improvement. (This is a fitness test recommended by Participation. Don't try it if you have any doubt about your general health.)

What about the way you eat?

Try a daily score of your food intake. Score five points a day if you've had 1½ cups of milk, three points for one cup, one point for ½ cup and zero points for no milk.

For a serving of citrus fruit or juice, score four points and five points for one other fruit.

For a serving of potatoes, score five points and for two servings of other vegetables, score another five points. If you have only one other vegetable a day, score three points.

Score five points for a serving of whole grain cereal and five points for two or more slices of bread.

For a serving of meat, score five points, for an egg, score five points, for a serving of cheese score five points and take five extra points if you had a serving of liver.

Add up your score? 50 points means an excellent diet; 40 to 50 points means a very good diet, 35 points means a good diet and under 30 points indicates a diet which needs improvement.

These tests are part of a program of nutrition awareness being prepared by Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit, area home ecoomists and dietitians.

Volunteer Bureau Director Retires

By SHARON AIRHART

Ruth Burrows arrived to have coffee with a few fellow volunteers recently and found 130 members of the community gathered to honor her as her retirement as head of the Central Volunteer Bureau.

Mrs. Burrows, who organized the bureau in 1967, will leave volunteering behind to retire along with husband Freeman.

She began her career in volunteering during the Second World War when she worked with the Canadian Red Cross in Newfoundland. After the war she and her husband moved to Belleville where she began a volunteering career with youth work in the interests of her two daughters and has climaxed in her work as a founding member of the Canadian Corps of Volunteerism and as chairman of the Ontario government's task force on the needs of volunteer bureaux in the province.

While she retired from the bureau and other organizations officially, Friday she will continue to work with the provincial and federal volunteering organizations.

She will also continue with another pet project, which she initiated and planned, the Child Development Centre for normal, handicapped and children with special problems, until its opening in late November.

The centre, and Cheshire Home, are two of the most cherished accomplishments of the woman who, in a few short years, has been responsible for founding a Foster Parents' Association, establishing the bureau itself, acted as director for United Community Services, and functioned as a board member of Bridge Street United Church.

She has either initiated or been instrumental in the formation of Volunteer Bureau programs like Meals on Wheels, furniture sharing, English classes for new Canadians, toy sharing and the day nursery for handicapped children.

Through it all, Ruth Burrows has maintained that she does the work for her own benefit.

"I always got back a lot for myself ... there's something about sharing yourself that gives you a lift. There's always someone who can use whatever talent you may have."

In spite of the relative sophistication of the bureau under the Volunteer Bureau which she's prepared and presented briefs and dealt with the government on several levels, Mrs. Burrows maintains that volunteering is simply a neighbourly thing to do.

"The image of the volunteer is changing. It used to be the do-gooder carrying baskets to the poor. This just isn't so. Now people volunteer among their peer groups."

As she says, it's quite a thing to see the community meeting its own needs.

"The Child Development Centre is one of the examples of volunteers seeing needs clearly and doing something about it."

It is also an example, she feels, of the way that volunteers can augment and enhance a community's professional workers.

"Professionals are beginning to understand that volunteers aren't a threat but support and enrich programs," Mrs. Burrows says.

She is adamant that volunteer work remain such and doesn't believe that volunteers should be paid.

"I think out of pocket expenses should be paid, certainly, and a system of tax credits might make sense," she adds.

The payment for volunteers, if it is spurned, comes largely in satisfaction with the bonus of an expanded awareness of one's capabilities.

"A lot of women find out through volunteering that they have talent.

"The most interesting thing is to see change in people when they begin to volunteer — they just bloom."

In spite of the fact that women are joining the work force in increasing numbers, volunteering is growing by leaps and bounds.

"There were 12 volunteer bureaux in Ontario when we started and now there are 38."

Mrs. Burrows points out that 2,000,000 volunteer hours were donated in Ontario last year.

"More women holding jobs doesn't threaten volunteering," she adds, since men who traditionally have also played a big role in the volunteer movement.

"There are far more male volunteers than people realize — in things like minor sports and the Big Brothers movement."

Looking ahead, Mrs. Burrows would like to see more services for the elderly in Belleville and co-ordination of existing programs.

There's also a need to get involved with disenchanted youth," she says, "and a lack of sympathetic understanding of the problems of low income people.

For her own future, there is the work with the provincial and national committees on volunteerism.

"It's a job that needs a lot of time and I'll be able to tackle that with more gusto."

The Volunteer Bureau, which will continue to function with a new director, has been organized by Ruth Burrows to function under an umbrella structure of key volunteers.

"I'm very sorry to leave but you can hang on too long in a job," she says. "For me I'd like to begin writing about the things we've learned here, so that more people will benefit."

Volunteer Bureau founder Ruth Burrows retired Friday.

BEHIND THE MASK

By Louisa May Alcott

Edited by Madeleine Stern

Was Little Women one of your very special books? If so, it may come as a shock to learn that before Louisa May Alcott authored that series, she wrote thrillers such as Behind The Mask under the pseudonym of A.M. Barnard. This part of her creativity has been unearthed and authenticated by Madeleine Stern, an Alcott scholar, and publication was finally made possible after a long period of research.

The title story — A Woman's Power — concerns a governess, thwarted by love, who desires vengeance by planning to ruin an entire family. Another of the four remaining stories is entitled Pauline's Passion and Punishment. The tales abuse are provocative and have the reader into an atmosphere of suspense as the plot of each new lurious tale unfolds. We denote, too, a definite zing of feminist anger throughout the stories as the subservient role of women in society at that time.

Before settling down to these thrillers, read the illuminating notes supplied by Ms. Stern in the introduction for greater insight into the author's life. It is here we find Louisa May in a conversation that "my natural ambition is for fame, but I wish that I glared inscribe them upon my pages and set them before the public. No, my dear, I shall always be a wretched victim to the respectable traditions of Concord."

With this natural urge for a more macabre style of writing, and influenced by the Gothic novel then becoming popular in America, she couldn't help but produce tales of this kind.

Bingo: Is it Big Business Or Good Community Fun?

EDMONTON (CP) — Despite years of trying to live down a reputation as a town where bingo is the holiest form of action around, Edmonton still counts bingo as pretty big business.

A little too big, the Alberta government has decided.

Noting with concern a steady increase in the number of big-time, high-jackpot bingo operations around the city, the attorney-general's department announced in mid-September it plans to amend its licensing policy to restrict the game to the neighborhood level.

The announcement followed rejection of a license application by an organization made up of 20 community leagues that had proposed to stage nightly games in a renovated downtown warehouse with a seating capacity of 1,100.

John Lee, a Crown counsel with the attorney-general's department, said the new policy is not meant to reflect on the integrity of the organization behind that particular proposal, but is geared to end growing concern over the "commercial" aspects of the city's bingo scene.

He said the department is particularly concerned over details such as what proportion of the proceeds actually filters down to the sponsoring charity, and to what extent the big bingo halls draw players away from smaller service clubs and individual community leagues.

The department's feeling, said Mr. Lee, is that bingo "should be a neighborly and social activity, conducted in moderate prizes, where there is no room for commercial exploitation."

He said the operations of the city's five or six large bingo halls would be reviewed when their licences come up for renewal at the end of the year.

The new policy would also affect Edmonton's Kin-Canada Bingo, a weekly television bingo sponsored by the local Kinsmen organization in support of the 1978 Commonwealth Games.

"We'll have to go into the commercial question," said Mr. Lee, who said that would likely mean limiting how much of the proceeds go toward paying for air time.

Mrs. Isabelle Meldrum, president of the Federation of Community Leagues, said the leagues that had put forward the neighborhood proposal were "extremely disappointed and disheartened" by the government's decision.

Under that particular proposal, said Mrs. Meldrum, 25 per cent of the proceeds would have gone toward rental, 15 per cent toward overhead and the remainder to the sponsoring organizations.

Rather than feeling big bingos detract from individual operations, most community leagues feel the only way they can profit is by banding together to make their operations more competitive, said Mrs. Meldrum.

"Right now, there is an unfairness that exists because some of the leagues can have the bugs set-ups and others can't," she said. "Either they should all be closed down or some guidelines established which they should have to meet."

"It's the people who make the prizes big, not us," said Doug Robbins, president of the New Rainbow Bingo Association, a group of 19 community leagues and service clubs that rent a 700-seat ballroom for three nights of bingo a week.

"When you see the newspaper and all the bingo ads, I can see it's getting out of hand," said Mr. Robbins, who added he would have no objection to government guidelines on the operation of bingo halls.

At the Rainbow, he said, 58 per cent of the take goes toward prizes—which range as high as $3,000—with about 10 per cent to cover the $325 nightly rental and services of four salaried employees and about 20 per cent left for the sponsoring associations.

The prospect of limiting large bingo operations also raises the danger of the Rainbow's patrons, many nightly regulars and most senior citizens who say bingo is one of the few forms of entertainment they can afford.

"Why don't they clamp down on horseracing before they do things to bingo a little?" asked Agnes Tomashabsky, a regular player since 1956.

"If they took bingo away, there'd be nothing left for me to do," said Earl Shook, a regular player since the 12-year-old. He spends about $20 a day on bingo—encouraged by a $10,000 jackpot win a few months back.

"I don't know what I'd do if I didn't play bingo," agreed Loretta Wright. "I don't drink after all, and I certainly would never go to bars. The old folks' home will sticks for sure if they shut down the Rainbow."

Ann Landers Should Sis Tell Dead Brother's Secret?

Dear Ann Landers: I must talk to someone about this and you seem like a very close friend, even though we are strangers.

Last year my brother died in Omaha. Dad and I went for Tom's apartment and arranged for the funeral. While going through his personal belongings I found a letter addressed to "nomets . From The Portuguese." It was inscribed in Tom in a very romantic, tender fashion. I also found a love letter in the book, written from the same man to my brother. Their relationship was unmistakable.

I hid the letter and book from my parents because I wasn't sure they would understand. For months I have been torn between telling them and not telling them. I feel Tom wouldn't have wanted them to know of his sexuality because it could cause them sorrow. Yet, this is the way he was and perhaps they should be told. Sometimes I feel dishonest when we are discussing Tom and I keep this part of him from them. Perhaps if they knew the truth it might make them more sympathetic toward other homosexuals. Please, Ann, advise me.—He Ain't Heavy, He's My Brother

Dear Sister: Keep your lips sealed. The information would do nothing but create unhappiness. Moreover, you would be betraying your brother in the grave. Had he wanted his parents to know, he would have told them himself.

Dear Ann Landers: We have had so many family fights that I'm ready to settle—by your judgment. The problem is: Is nudity between my husband and me.

Edgar runs the house with a heavy hand. I realize I have given in to him in matters where I should have had or to some authority. I turned over the finances completely to avoid trouble. For example, I have always let him do the grocery shopping even though his choices were not what I would have selected.

Now things are getting out of hand. Periodically Edgar goes on "cleaning binges." He throws out things I want to keep. His standard excuse is, "Who needs all this junk?" Some of it belonged to my mother and I wanted to keep it for sentimental reasons.

Now he has encouraged our 15-year-old daughter to "show her independence" as he calls it. Suddenly she doesn't like anything I cook so she is cooking for her own suppers.

The kitchen is in mess because he is always trying something special. (Edgar has been doing this for years.) I hate fighting all the time so I keep my mouth shut and put up with it. But I know I'm being treated like a doormat and I resent it. Sometimes when I feel I am neither wanted nor needed around here and I'd be better off if I cleared out and went to live with my mother. What do you think?—Excess Baggage

Dear Ex R.: It sound as if your problems are so deep-seated and of such long standing that you can do little to alter things. One thing is certain. You won't going to change your husband, nor are you going to wrest from him any of the worthy jobs he has usurped.

I suggest counseling so you can learn how to live with the situation. I doubt that you'd find a better life if you moved in with your mother. What's more important, your 19-year-old needs you, whether you realize it or not.

Marrying Housewife Has Doubts About Performing Teen Weddings

TORONTO (CP) — Weddings with a difference are Kay Armstrong's stock and trade. But the Toronto housewife cum marrying chaplain still admits to an element of apprehension" when she solemnizes a ceremony.

"I guess it is the very young ones—weddings that bother me most," she said in an interview. "Often I have the young people don't have any idea what marriage is all about."

Mrs. Cook married 18 years to a store manager and the father of four children, has been performing marriages since 1972. Although not an ordained minister, she has been authorized by the Unitarian Church to perform not only marriages, but also funeral and christening services as well.

Because of the liberal views held by Unitarians on marriage, the church usually is deluged with requests for weddings by couples who can't, or won't get married elsewhere. The so-called "marrying chaplain" helps free regular ministers for other duties.

Mrs. Cook, who worked as a school psychologist and a therapist in a child guidance clinic before entering the marriage business, now is studying for her master's degree in adult education and community work at the Ontario Institute for Studies in Education.

She says she wants to be a marriage counsellor as well as a marriage maker.

Apples Promoted

HALIFAX (CP) — An apple a day may keep the doctor away only in children's books, but Jack Hawkins, Nova Scotia agriculture minister, says he wants to test the theory anyway. Beginning this month, students in the Colchester-East Hants amalgamated school board area will be given an apple a day as a pilot project.

You Can Over-winter Tender Glads, Dahlias

If you store your favorite plants properly over the winter, you will likely be assured of strong healthy plants the following year.

"Many plants die after frost occurs, says R. F. Gomme, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist. "However, dahlias, begonias and gladiolus will bloom for many years if they are properly cured and stored indoors for the winter."

Dig up dahlias carefully and remove most of the soil from their roots. After cutting off dead stems, air-dry the tubers for two to three days on your lawn. When the dahlia tubers are dried, they can be placed in plastic bags containing air holes, or in a box of dry sand or peat. Store them in a cool, dry location in the basement at about 4.5 degrees C (40 degrees F).

After digging up your tuberous begonias, remove the soil and stems as there can cause decay that will spread into the tubers," advises Mr. Gomme. "Clean off the soil and store the begonias in flats or in a bag of dry peat moss."

Gladiolus corms should be thoroughly cleaned of soil and their stems removed after they are dug up. Air-dry the corms for several days before placing them in a cool, frost-free area.

Until regular mail service resumes, alternate arrangements are being made for distribution of November 1 interest cheques on fully registered Canada Savings Bonds.

Holders of bonds who would normally receive interest cheques by mail will be asked to give their full name, address and postal code to the branch of the deposit-taking institution where they normally do business. This includes any chartered bank, trust or loan company and most other deposit-taking institutions. Holders will also be asked to indicate whether they wish to pick up their cheques or have them deposited in their account.

A system is being established to ensure that the cheques will then be forwarded to the appropriate branch, to be dealt with as instructed.

Every effort will be made to complete the transaction as quickly as possible. However, close to 500,000 cheques must be handled and some delay in distribution will be inevitable.

If regular mail service resumes before the special distribution is made, cheques will be mailed in the usual way.

Two Quinte Area Mormons Complete Missionary Work

Two Quinte area Mormons are completing their second year of missionary work in Ontario before returning to their homes and resuming normal activities.

The two are Elder Dale Anderson, 21, of Belleville and elder Richard Ewer, 20, of Trenton, who both hail from Logan, Utah.

Elder Anderson works with Elder Bruce Desbiens, 19, from Denver, Col., and Elder Ewer shares duties with Elder Terry Stark, 21, from Moose Jaw, Sask. All are members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

Elder Anderson says he has spent the past two months in Belleville and has four months remaining at his Ontario tenure. "Eventually, (when he returns home) I'd like to pick up a trade and be an electrician," he comments.

Elder Ewer has been in Ontario for 12 months and in Trenton for the past two months. When he goes home, he says he will likely return to college and major in music.

Elder Anderson says there are about 125 missions around the world containing about 21,000 missionaries mostly between the ages of 19-23 years. He says Mormons have a choice when they become 19 years of age whether to become a missionary.

He explains they have to spend a two-year tenure as missionaries in one mission which is chosen by the Mormon prophet, church president Spencer W. Kimball, 80-year-old leader of the 3.3 million Mormons around the world.

Following their tenure, the missionaries return to their homes to resume their personal lives, Elder Anderson says.

"I was an automechanic and worked on a farm before becoming a missionary," he adds.

Elder Ewer says he had completed one year of college and was majoring in geology before he became a missionary. He says missionary duties include door-to-door visitations, teaching families of any religious denomination about the Mormon Church and speaking at churches and schools on invitation.

"The Mormon church doesn't have a professional clergy," he says, so congregation members have church duties which former missionaries take up as well when they return home.

Elder Anderson points out that each missionary spends his entire two-year tenure at his own expense and has to rent accommodation wherever he stays.

He notes that congregation members can assist missionaries but that assistance cannot be financial.

Elder Dodenbier has been in Ontario for nine months and in Belleville for the past month. He was an automechanic before turning to mission work and plans to return to his trade upon completion, says Elder Anderson.

Elder Stark was also a former auto-mechanic who will resume his trade later. He has been a missionary in Ontario for only about a month — the entire time in Trenton.

Completing Work

Elder Richard Ewer (left) of Trenton and Elder Dale Anderson of Belleville, missionaries with the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, appear pleased that their two-year missionary work in Ontario will soon end and they can go home to their families in the U.S. and resume their personal lives. Both hail from Logan, Utah. They are two of about 21,000 Mormon missionaries in about 125 missions around the world.

Willed Money

PRESTON, England (CP) — Seven clergymen have received legacies totalling £12,500 (£30,875) in the will of a wealthy churchgoer. Margaret Rice 61, willed sums ranging from £2500 ($1,750) to £2,500 ($2,750) to the clergymen all of the Preston area.

Rich Is Boring

BARNSLEY England (CP) — When Roy Rollinson 29 won £94,000 ($206,800) in the football pools he bought himself a home and settled down to the good life. But he soon was bored. So recently he signed up for an unpaid job repairing roofs. "It's much better, now" he says.

Pay Rent Hikes to Courts Says Centre

The Quinte Information and Assistance Centre is advising tenants to pay any rent increases "to the courts" until the province establishes its rent" control legislation.

Information centre spokesman Bill Hockley said Friday the trend of rent increases is developing — as landlords try to cash in before legislation is passed.

Mr. Hockley said a number of complaints have been submitted to the centre in the last two weeks and tenants have been advised to pay the normal rent to the landlord and the increase "to the courts."

"By paying into the courts, no one can say tenants are not paying their rent," he said.

In the meantime, retroactive legislation may wipe out the increase, he said. Then the court will either return the money or at least the amount in excess of permissable increases, said Mr. Hockley.

He said his centre in the past two days has been informed of eight cases where the rent has been increased, with increases ranging from $10 to $77.

One tenant he said claimed the rent had been increased three times during this year.

Mr. Hockley said some of the tenants who have come to the centre have been forced to leave their accomodation because of increased rents.

"People are afraid to stand up and do anything about the increases because they are afraid of losing their lodging," he said.

Information centre staff are documenting the rent material and sending it along to the official opposition party in the Ontario government, said Mr. Hockley.

Queen's Park Rejects Hillcrest Sewer Funding

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

There will be no provincial government financial support for construction of sewers in the Hillcrest community, states a letter from the ministry of the environment.

The letter delivered by special courier to City Hall Friday will not go unanswered, says Mayor Ben Corke.

In recent weeks, city administration has attempted to cool the Hillcrest situation where a ratepayers' association is boiling over the financial burden the new sewers are causing.

While a spokesman for the residents there said the issue is serious and financial liability is being documented the Ontario ombudsman will be approached to intervene.

Responding to the ministry's position that it will not subsidize capital costs, Mayor Corke said, "Of course I'm very disappointed but I'm not through with the ministry yet."

In its letter, the ministry contends because there is no provincial ownership of the Hillcrest sewer system, it does not qualify for the 75-per-cent subsidy afforded other sewer systems.

The mayor said he will meet with with local provincial politicians to lobby for a reversal of the ministry's decision and if necessary will make "direct representation to the minister."

If the province does not change its stand and if the decision is made to go ahead with the work, "the cost would be an unrealistic and possibly unfair burden the local residents would have to bear," said Mayor Corke.

He pointed to similar sewer servicing work being carried on in Thurlow Township where residents will pay no more than $130 a year for the services. Early reports show an unsubsidized cost to Hillcrest residents would be substantially higher.

"I hope to meet with the residents to go over the situation again and I always hope to get additional information particularly facts and figures to say just where we stand," said Mayor Corke.

If the subsidy applies in Thurlow, then it should apply here, said the mayor.

Asked if the city would continue ahead with the work if provincial funding is not forthcoming Mayor Corke said more information is needed before that decision is reached.

"The great majority of the community already have been serviced but there are still a goodly number of homes left without sewers," he said.

"I think a way can be found," said Mayor Corke.

Pins in Apples, Injured Youth Mar Otherwise Quiet Night

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Pins in apples in Belleville and a youth struck by a car near Bayside were the only two serious incidents reported by city police and Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville during Halloween.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said only two apples were found in the city with pins in them and the matter is still under investigation.

He said the apples were handed out to 10-year-old Christine Guest of 117 West Bridge St. and Jo Linda Hawkins, 14, of 110 Prince of Wales Dr. but no injuries resulted.

OPP said Teresa Barre, 15, of 140 Mobile Village at RR 2, Trenton was struck by a car driven by John Anderson Good, 17, of RR 2, Trenton at about 10:40 p.m. Friday on White's Rd. near Bayside.

A Trenton Memorial Hospital spokesman said Miss Barre is listed in satisfactory condition and her extent of injuries is being determined today. Cpl. William Reis is investigating.

Chief Crosbie said 73 calls were handled by his department between 4 p.m. Friday and 8 a.m today — 53 of them within the first eight hours between "there were fewer calls than last year."

He said 13 persons were arrested — three on impaired charges, two for petty trespass and the remainder on various liquor charges.

"There was one minor hit-and-run accident where we apprehended the driver," Chief Crosbie said. "Windows at a couple of Schools were broken."

He said no underage drinkers were discovered in drinking establishments. "Most hotels were checking very carefully."

Besides the pedestrian car accident, Belleville OPP said there was "nothing really serious" but they expect more calls today as people inspect premises in daylight.

A spokesman for the Trenton Police Department said, this Halloween was the quietest and least destructive celebration in recent years in the Trenton area.

"It is a pleasant experience to be able to say that the youth of Brighton and all over our coverage district acted in a responsible and mature manner," said Cpl. Earl Bush of OPP at Brighton on the easy night his detachment enjoyed.

Belleville Fire Department responded to three calls where leaves were set on fire by pranksters — 8:53 p.m. at 349 Bleecker Ave., at 10:46 p.m. at 256 Bleecker Ave. and 2:17 a.m. at 178 Hershimer Ave. Their other call was to 62 Donald St. at 10:04 p.m. for a mattress fire.

Pranksters Roll Car

MADOC — Halloween pranksters rolling around the Madoc countryside did just that Friday, they rolled a parked car into the ditch.

Damage is estimated at about $200 to a vehicle owned by Daniel Chewns of RR 3 Madoc.

Mr. Chewns parked the car at the side of the road County Road 12 at Hazzards Corners early Friday after having mechanical difficulties. He planned to leave the car at the side of the road, about half a mile from his home, and repair it on Saturday.

Police suspect a group youths rolled the parked car into the ditch.

Coaches Clamor For Position

Members of a local broomball league recently found there is at least one way to get a winning combination.

The group recently advertised in the help wanted classification for a volunteer coach for one of the league's teams.

Telephone calls came in a clean sweep the first day the plea for help appeared.

If you are looking for help to sweep away your problems call The Intelligencer Want Ads Department at 962-9171 and place an economical fast action classified ad.

Under Arrest

Jean-Paul Arbour, 6, arrests his younger sister Monique, 4, during a neighborhood Halloween party at Nicholson Catholic College on Pinnacle Street. Between 400 and 500 trick or treaters were expected to show up at the event. It is the fourth year it has been held at the school.

Corke Backs Controls

Belleville mayor Ben Corke says rent control is a provincial responsibility and agrees rent control is needed.

"Controls of that nature must be handled by the senior government to give the legislation provincial authority," said Mayor Corke.

And "undoubtedly, the provincial government will be bringing down legislation of that sort," he said.

Rent controls will affect "relatively few landlords," said Mayor Corke. He said only a fraction of the province's landlords are taking advantage of the situation.

Commenting on whether rent controls would jeopardize new apartment construction, Mayor Corke said "people will go ahead and build anyway."

BGH Faces $7,000 Hike In Parking Lot Costs

Belleville General Hospital (BGH), Board of Governors were forced Friday to reapprove an estimated cost for alterations to BGH's west and south public parking lots because the first estimate was $7,000 too low.

The board learned the first figure of $13,715 was too optimistic and the new figure is $22,045. The contractor is Tatham Co. Ltd.

Gerry Joyce, chairman of the board's planning and property committee, said a lower cost could not be realized because there is only one tender.

He said the other four area firms in the business "apparently slackened off."

About the low estimate, Mr. Joyce commented, "I think our consultant was too optimistic for which he has been questioned diligently."

Bewitching Refreshment

Patron's at Docter's Hotel, Station Street, enjoyed Halloween capers by two waitresses who were in their costumes early Friday for afternoon visitors. Eva McDermott (witch) is with Heather Varty (mouse).

Councillors to Decide Summer Games Bid

City council Monday will be asked to apply for the 1978 summer Ontario Games.

The resolution, on council's agenda, follows a recent decision of the recreation-areas committee.

Any such application must go to the culture and recreation ministry for consideration.

Council's agenda also lists for decision a petition for a meeting presented two weeks ago by residents of the south end of Hillcrest where the second phase of the neighborhood's sanitary sewer system now is planned.

The petition — prompted by controversy over sewer installation charges of the first phase elsewhere in the neighborhood — asked council to meet with ratepayers to discuss costs.

A petition for a sewer and pumphouse on Pepper Ave. east of Sidney St. also is listed for council's decision.

Many Say They See Need for Rent Controls

Rent — particularly high rent — has pushed the stage of simply being a problem and has emerged as a boiling political issue.

Neighbor to neighbor, government to government, the question of rent control has emerged and is being wrestled with — the spotlight now trained on Premier Bill Davis and the Ontario government.

How much one pays for accommodation is a highly subjective issue depending on personal preference.

In addition, no matter how high rents seem to be, if the owner cannot make a reasonable return on his investment the chances of him continuing to plough his money into a apartment construction become slim.

How high is high when it comes to rent and what boundaries are set up to constrain an investor's definition of reasonable return pose precarious questions to the Ontario government.

For a group of Belleville shoppers, the line must be drawn but not at the expense of either the tenant or the landlord.

KLASS TUINMAN

A West Huntingdon farmer, Klaas Tuinman says rents are too high and they should be controlled, "to addition, because there is a shortage, the rents will be going up."

"It's a good move on the part of the province to take steps to control rent."

JOY ROBINSON

A registered nurse, Joy Robinson, says some rent increases may be necessary but that landlords should have to justify any increase in rent.

In principle there should be some limit to rent "and that there should be some control over the situation."

CHARLES DEVRIES

Charles Devries agreed rents are "pretty high . . . for the average man anyway."

It's difficult for the average wage earner to keep up with rents and "while there should be some guidelines from the government on rent ceilings, government shouldn't have complete control."

HARRY MORROW

"If we want apartments built, we have to allow the investor some return on his money," says Harry Morrow commenting on the two sides of the coin. "It is a vicious merry-go-round as labor charges more which increases the cost of living."

"We have got to give some controls a try though," he said.

JESSIE FRASER

"I think there has to be some controls," said Mrs. Jessie Fraser. "Landlords seem to put up the rents whenever they feel like it."

"Rents are so high now that young people can't afford to save for a home of their own,"

MARTEN LEWIS

"There's a lot to be said for both sides — the tenant and the landlord," said Marten Lewis. "A landlord takes an awful beating both on the capital cost of building construction and the continuing cost of maintenance."

"The government must consider both sides before controls are instituted."

We Have Reached Our Day of Retribution

For the last 20 years Johnny Canuck and the boys have been getting together over a few brew and a fast paced card game. Now the time of reckoning has arrived, Johnny and the boys have to face the consequences of a life of exertion free frivolity — size 48 and a cheshire lisa in a sea of rolls somewhere between a sunken naval 7and plumpled shoulderr.

But all is not lost. Out of the midst of our physically sloven existence came a man with a plan. A saviour to lead us against the lackadaisical tyrant from within.

Come Wednesday this wizardess headache will be in the "Friendly City" to spread the epistle of the fitness apocryphal.

Keith McKerracher founder and president of the Canada Participation Movement will man the podium at Centennial Secondary School and warm the cockles of the pudgy little hearts.

"Most Canadians just don't realize how out of shape they are," said McKerracher from his Montreal office "it stems from the fact that they simply won't admit it themselves they aren't fit."

Sound overly vindictive?

When it gets right down to it though, how many of us really do admit our shortcomings. Participation's goal is to make it a little easier for us to look at our condition so we will have a better chance of tightening our belts.

The men behind the program are not athletic health nuts or fitness experts, they are a group of marketing researchers who have designed a successful way of selling the idea of fitness to Canadians.

"A lot of people look or, at least, used to look at fitness as something for the winners who made the team, said McKerracher, "we've sold Participaction as a team for losers and more people are realizing that staying in shape is for everyone."

Much interest in the presentation, and you can bet it'll be an enlightening experience, begins at 7:30 p.m. and will be followed by a question and answer period.

So if you've got the time, and you should have since it's a proven fact that Canadians are lazy, then the price is just three bucks. The evening is being presented by the Nurses Section of Quinte Area of the Ontario Lung Association.

Bobcats Have Bag Full Of Goodies for Fans

The Belleville Bobcats had a few tricks up their treats when the Markham Royals came calling at the Memorial Arena Halloween night in the second encounter of the season between the two clubs. The Cats skated and scored their way to decisive 7-3 victory over the Royals keeping Belleville's unbeaten streak alive in the Metro Junior B Hockey League.

Friday night's game was no contention, as far as action was concerned, with an air of game between the clubs when the Cats edged the Royals 5-4.

"I expected a lot tougher game from them (Markham) tonight," said Belleville coach Meehan Bonnar.

The first two periods were good enough ones for us though," added Bonnar as an afterthought.

Going into the final 20 minutes of the game Belleville held only a slim 3-1 lead over the visitors although the locals had had a noticable edge in play during the latter part of the middle frame. Belleville fired three quick goals before five minutes of the third period had elapsed, knocking the wind out of the Royals former back sails.

The locals again received all round steady performances right from the excellent work of netminder Jeff Merrill to the fine scoring and defensive tactics through the rest of the team. In all, seven different players tallied for Belleville with Grant Gorgan picking up three assists to go along with his goal, the opening marker of the game.

"Gorgan played just a super game for us again tonight," noted coach Bonnar in recognition of the slam dunk artist centre skated. The game's nicest goal, by far, was scored by Scott "Scooter" Samis who more than lived up to his knick name on the play.

Samis took the puck behind his own net and with a series of moves (if I knew Gopdd, it's a slap shot that if Markham netminder Bruce Mikkel, saw he was powerless against. Bubba Thompson rounded out the scoring in the first two periods for Belleville as he banged in a Tony Mac-gher rebound at the mid way point of the second.

Eric Powell, Bruce Leadham, Bob Thompson and Tony Meagher all added third period singles to finish up Belleville's scoring , in the third period.

Despite winning, the Cats suffered a loss. Thompson after scoring his goal in the third period was given a five minute fighting major and a game misconduct by referee Don Goodridge.

The strange point about the call other than the fact that Thompson's counter part in the scuffle only received two minutes, was that immediately after shooting the puck into the net he was belted by the fist of Markham's Laurie Nisbor and has a shiner to prove it.

Referee Goodridge, after the game, noted only seeing the punch thrown by Thompson which results in the automatic suspension of the Belleville forward for two games. By the time the incident occured, Markham had already been displaying an over aggressive style, especially after plays had been whistled dead.

One very prominent factor in the Belleville win, particularly when they travel to Whitby. From there they go to Kingston and then to Toronto where a Friday night game against the Oshawa Legionaires.

And Don't Come Back!

Belleville Bobcat defenceman Joe Edwards gave Markhag attacker Rod Harris a rude welcome as he stepped across the Belleville blueline in Friday night's Metro Junior B encounter at the Memorial Arena. The Cats downed the Royals and by doing so retained first place in the East Division and remained the only unbeaten team in the league.

Trenton, Moira Make Final

Moira Trojans will square off against Trenton Tigers on Tuesday afternoon in Trenton for the Joe Dell of Quinte Secondary School Football League Junior championship. The two clubs earned their respective berths in the final with semifinal victories Friday.

At Moira, the Trojans scored a touchdown in the fourth quarter to break a 16-16 tie and hold on for a 24-16 win. Meanwhile, in Trenton, the Tigers ousted a stubborn Centre Hastings squad 13-0.

The Trojans and the Chargers finished with identical 8-2 records on the season. Both had scored 145 points over the seven game schedule, but Centennial had only allowed 88 points against as compared to Moira's 98.

Still, the home club had enough up their sleeve — namely the legs of halfback Jeff Hunciman — to pull off the victory.

Moira jumped into a 16-0 lead in the first quarter. Their points were accumulated on two TD's, both by Runciman, and a pair of two point conversions, both by quarterback Dave Bennett.

Nevertheless, the Chargers weren't about to lie down and play dead and they replied to Moira's scoring with an identical number of points in the second quarter. Elusive Terry Thompson, several Moira turnovers and nearly 100 yards in penalties against the Trojans keyed Centennial's response. Thompson crossed the Moira goal line twice and counted a two point conversion. Rick Bradford got the other two pointer to put the Chargers on equal terms again.

The two clubs battled relentlessly through the third quarter though the home squad appeared to have the upper hand. However, a goal line stand early in the fourth served to turn the momentum of the contest around.

The Chargers moved the ball out of their zone, but when they went to the air to break the play down field, an interception put them back under the Trojans thumb.

On the first play off scrimmage following the interception Runciman broke 30 yards straight up the middle for the game winning touchdown. That was capped with a two point conversion by Ray Gee. And that's where the scoring ended. For the remainder of the game the Trojans fell back into their see-saw battle at midfield.

In Trenton the Tigers were up to par; nothing less than overpowering. Losing only Bob Mounds said, "They're the best team we've played all they showed it today. They should go all the way."

The Centre Hastings coach was beaten by the best and that was no disgrace, especially since his team gave the tremendous tabbies their best run of the season.

No team had limited the powerful Tiger offence of under 20 points in seven starts this year, the Trenton crew had the best offensive records in the league with 217 points and the best defensive mark — just 40.

The two clubs battled back and forth for two scoreless quarters Thursday before the strength of the home club finally began to show. The Tigers kept the Centurions bottled deeped in their own end for nearly the entire third quarter.

On a third down situation the Centurion punted blasted a kick out to mid-field. Then Mark Secretin and Wayne Murphy, the Trenton punt return men, pulled a little razzle-dazzle out of the annals of Notre Dame to break the game open.

Succato took the ball and got across field. At the same time Murphy began his charge in the opposite direction. The receiver handed the ball off to his cohort on the way by and Murphy, galloped 30 yards for Trenton's first major on a punt-return reversal.

Late in the third quarter Dave Petrican came out of the Trenton backfield and hauled down a Brian Hannon pass to put the Tigers in position for their second TD. it took Trenton three trys but finally they got the ball across the line from 12 yards out. Henry Peterson went over in top from the one on the third and final attempt.

That gave Trenton a 13-0 lead. Placekicker Secretin then converted the major to put the home team decisively in front.

Centre Hastings tried everything to come back. Succato even implemented a double reverse, but it got them nowhere. Finally, as the Centurions looked like they might be rolling, Trenton defensive half Gary Cafferty intercepted a pass on his own 30 and ran it back to the visitors 20. That was the straw that broke the camel's back and shortly afterwards, time expired.

That Was a Soft Landing

Moira Trojan running back Jeff Runciman got one of a very few easy landings on this tackle in Friday's Bay of Quinte Football Junior semi-final game. The speedy back had his fall cushioned by one of his tacklers, Barry Dafoe (underneath). That however didn't mean Runciman had it easy on the play. Rick Bradshaw (left) helped the down. Runciman scored all three Trojan touchdowns in his club's 24-16 victory.

Brighton Upset

Nicholson Catholic College, behind the outstanding defensive work of Mark Crawford, upset East Northumberland Secondary School, Friday 3-1 to advance to the flay of Quinte Secondary School Junior championship scheduled for Tuesday afternoon against BCI.

East Northumberland was previously unbeaten in action this season while winning the West Division and Nicholson was dominant in the East division.

The Brighton crew took a 1-0 lead three minutes into the contest when Phil Hennessy picked up a loose ball and drove it home.

Nicholson was back on even ground five minutes later when Frank Sherk scored. Late in the first half they went ahead when Pat Hurley booted a ball over the goal line from close range.

Hurley scored his second of the afternoon when, at the five minute mark of the second half, Nicholson was awarded a free-kick. The Nicks forward buried the ball over the defensive wall, out of the goalkeepers reach and into the net.

Game time for the championship, being played at Sir James Whitney, is 2 p.m.

IN SEMI-FINALS

PARIS (AP) — Wimbledon champion Arthur Ashe of the U.S. moved into the semi-finals of the French indoor tennis tournament Friday by crushing Onny Parun of New Zealand 6-4, 6-0. In the other quarter finals, Ray Moore of South Africa beat Jeff Borowiak of the U.S. 6-7, 6-4, Tom Okker of Holland beat Jaime Fillol of Chile 6-1, 6-4 and Ilie Nastase of Rom'a beat Eddie Dibbs of the U.S. 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

EFC Playoff Spots at Stake

Montreal, Alouettes do battle Nixon, 31, who general manager Frank Clair said "had his problems" this year, Peter Dalla Riva, Gerry Organ and Gary Kunyk are deemed adequate Canadian replacements for Nixon.

The Rough Riders have a one-point edge over Montreal in the standings, with the first-place finisher receiving a bye and a home-field advantage for the EFC final Nov. 15. The second-place loser plays host to a third-place club in the semi-final next Sunday.

Toronto Argonauts, holding most of the cards, and Hamilton Tiger-Cats play for third-place today in Hamilton.

The Rough Riders, like a refurbished lineup into the showdown with Montreal, while the Alouettes permitted some access in that wide open loss to Rhome Nixon, who has turned in many fine performances against them, will not be in uniform.

Nixon was cut Friday to make room for Sylvester (Muddy) McGee, a flashy 24-year-old halfback who played two years with Atlanta Falcons of the National Football League.

"I'm impressed with the way he catches on," said Riders offensive coach Tom Dimitroff while watching McGee in workouts this week. "With his speed going wide, it would ease the load for Art Green and give him more room for his inside running."

The Riders opted for McGee's value on kickoff, sweeps and deep passes ahead of the established long threat posed by loss by 15 points or fewer, but coach Russ Jackson hopes they don't look at it that way.

"I don't want anybody even thinking about how many points we can afford to lose by," he said.

The Argonauts have outscored Hamilton 66-56 in three games this year, two of them victories. But if the Tiger-Cats win by 15, Toronto advances anyway because of superior record against EFC foes.

The Tiger-Cats, then, must win by at least 16, and place-kicker Ian Sunter is on record that they will do better than that.

"There is no doubt in my mind we are going to beat Toronto in the next game and wipe out the Argos' point spread," he said after the Argonauts beat Hamilton 27-23 in Toronto last Saturday. "I will be very disappointed if we don't beat them by 20 points."

The Toronto-Hamilton game was to be televised on the CBC national network starting at 1 p.m. EST today, while the Montreal-Ottawa clash is scheduled for the CTV eastern network starting at 2 p.m. EST Sunday.

Restraining Order Placed on NFL Ban

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A federal judge issued a temporary restraining order Friday that partially prevents the National Football League from enforcing its ban on signing players from the defunct World Football League.

United States District Judge Edward Devitt's ruling applied only to the nine players who filed the complaint, rather than as a class action that would have covered all former WFL players.

He set a hearing on the request for a temporary injunction for next Wednesday.

His order said the NFL and its 26 teams "are hereby restrained and enjoined from failing any action prohibiting, discouraging or otherwise preventing plaintiffs from negotiating and contracting with defendant member National Football League clubs."

At the hearing, Edward Parker, lawyer for the nine players, argued that they would be irreparably harmed if they were not permitted to sign with NFL teams.

The WFL folded Oct. 22, leaving about 380 players out of work. NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle last week said his league would not permit its clubs to sign players from the defunct teams.

Bengals 6-0 Record Meaningless Without Win Over Steelers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For Minnesota Vikings, another victory means little more than a better shot at perfection. But for Cincinnati Bengals, it might mean not only perfection but survival itself.

The Vikings and Bengals take 6-0 records into their National Football League games Sunday, the Vikings visiting Green Bay Packers and the Bengals hosting the defending champion Pittsburgh Steelers.

But while the Vikings appear to be en route to another title in the National Conference's Central Division, the Bengals are literally fighting for their lives, playoff-wise.

They're only a game ahead of the Steelers and the injury-plagued Houston Oilers in the American Conference's Central Division. So a loss by Cincinnati could leave first place split three ways.

In Sunday's other games, it's Houston at Kansas City, Dallas at Washington, New England at St. Louis, Atlanta at New Orleans, Buffalo at New York Jets, Cleveland at Baltimore, Miami at Chicago, Oakland at Denver and Detroit at San Francisco. On Monday night, it's Los Angeles at Philadelphia.

San Diego played New York Giants today.

The Steelers are unbeaten in their last eight games—but they haven't won in Cincinnati since 1971. In fact, that 21-13 victory was the only one in the clubs' 19-game series which the home team has lost.

The Bengals, who slipped past Atlanta 21-14 last weekend, will be relying on Ken Anderson's passing mastery—but they'll have to have more. No team in the NFL is better at stopping the pass than Pittsburgh.

The Steelers will have their work cut out for them, too. Cincinnati ranks second only to league-leading Oakland in AFC total defence. They're expected to have quarterback Terry Bradshaw and fullback Franco Harris at full strength. Bradshaw suffered a strained tendon in his knee last week in Cleveland, squeezed over Green Bay while Harris is nursing a sore toe.

The Packers lost their first four games before upending Dallas and coming close to doing the same to the Steelers.

The Oilers end Chiefs' early three-game winning streaks into their game at Arrowhead Stadium, where Houston hasn't won since 1967. Kansas City, 5-1 in the nurturing playoff hopes. The Chiefs and Denver are only a game back of first-place Oakland in the AFC West.

The Atlanta-New Orleans game is similarly tailed in the NFC East, with Dallas leading Washington and St. Louis by one game.

The Cardinals must try to cool off Falcons' rookie quarterback Steve Grogan, who passed for two touchdowns a week ago after replacing reinjured John Plankett. Atlanta goes with new quarterback Kim McQuilken, taking over for injured Steve Bartkowski. He will be aiming to ruin Ernie Hefferle's debut as the Saints' new head coach.

Buffalo O.J. Simpson, who zoomed his way for 157 yards in the Bills' 31-0 victory over the Jets, needs a 62-yard performance against them this season to become the first player to gain 1,000 yards in each of his seven years in the league.

Miami's Larry Csonka, who has been averaging 100 yards per game, is expected to have no trouble against the Bears, who have allowed 88 points in their last two games.

Baltimore, got 45 of them with Bert Jones passing for two and touchdowns and running for one. The Colts snapped a three-game losing streak by beating the Jets. They hope to extend Cleveland's winless streak to seven games.

The Dolphins, coming off a three-game road trip, can assure themselves of first place in the AFC East at mid-season by beating Chicago. The Raiders can do the same in the AFC West with a triumps over Denver. The hapless Lions are hoping Joe Reed, a former San Francisco quarterback, can successfully replace Greg Landry and Bill Munson and carry Detroit past the 49ers.

Buffalo Bills veteran [illegible] back O.J. Simpson takes a handoff from quarterback Joe Ferguson during one of the Bill's practice sessions. Simpson needs just 29 yards in this Sunday's game to reach the 1,000 yard mark in rushing for another season.

Turner Says It's His Turn For CFL Lineman Award

EDMONTON (CP) — Offensive tackle Charlie Turner of Edmonton Eskimos said Thursday "it's about time" he received the western nomination as offensive lineman of the year in the Canadian Football League.

"I think I'm good enough to win," said Turner, whose opposition will come from Dave Braggins of Montreal Alouettes, the Eastern Conference nominee.

The finalists in five award categories were announced Thursday. The final winners of the top player awards will be announced during Grey Cup Week in Calgary, Nov. 17-22, and Turner said he is already thinking about his acceptance speech should he win.

"I think I'm one of the best in all of football," said Turner. "I'm not sure I want you to wire that because I'm modest."

"So, we're introducing our new Red, White and Blue plan with lower Red and White fares."
Here's what we've done. We've kept the famous Red, White and Blue system which offers savings when you travel at off-peak periods.
We've eliminated incentives for some people (youth and family plans), so we could lower all Red and White fares for everyone! Blue fares are basically unchanged. The 65-Plus fare discount still applies, as do attractive rates for groups.
We've changed the basis of peak and off-peak travel within the territory between Quebec City and Windsor/Sarnia from day of the week to hour of the day. Now you save by the clock instead of the calendar.
We've left the basic system unchanged for Transcontinental, Maritimes and other long-distance trains.
To explain the plan in detail, we've designed a new "travel savings calendar." It shows you how to travel when trains are less crowded, and save.

Giacomin Bewildered

Rangers' Goalie Gone to Detroit

NEW YORK (AP) — The shakeup of New York Rangers continues as long-time goalie Ed Giacomin joins the National Hockey League club's growing alumni association.

In their third deal in four days, the Rangers sent Giacomin, their No. 1 goaltender for the last decade, to Detroit Red Wings for the $30,000 waiver price Friday night.

Tuesday, the Rangers sent backup goalie Gilles Villemure to Chicago for defenceman Doug Jarrett. Thursday they dealt centre Derek Sanderson to St. Louis for a No. 1 pick in the 1977 amateur draft.

Giacomin, a fixture on the Rangers and one of their most popular players, took the news hard.

"I'm sitting here completely numb, hardly functioning," he said. "In his contract deal I'm being like I'm embalmed, or dead.

"Tell me, why?" the 36-year-old Giacomin asked. "Tell me why they did it this way. Tell me why they had to do it to me in a way that hurt, a way that makes a man feel like he's dirt, some kind of garbage. That's what They threw me out. They told me I wasn't on waivers, then they tell me I was claimed on waivers.

"Why did they lie?"

Giacomin was beginning his 11th season with the New York club and had a career goals-against average of 2.72.

This season he got off to a slow start, as did the team. In four games he had three losses and a tie, and a 4.75 goals-against mark.

"I played a lot of years with that guy," said defenceman and team captain Brad Park, "I'll miss him."

"It's a funny game," added centre Pete Stemkowski. "Here today and Detroit tomorrow. It proves a player should always keep one bag packed. We'll miss Eddie."

Giacomin, the Rangers' career leader with 49 regular season shutouts, shared the Vezina Trophy as the NHL's top goaltender with Villemure in 1970-71. He was twice selected to the NHL's all-star first team and twice named to the second team.

"This move is a good one for Eddie in terms of longevity," said Rangers coach Ron Stewart. "He has another year to go with us and then they (Detroit) need goaltending help. This move will extend his career.

"He's a heck of a goaltender and should be a great help to our club," said Detroit general manager Alex Delvecchio. "Hopefully, he's not looking at retirement. But he has to get over the shock of leaving New York. He was with the Rangers for a long time."

Young John Davidson, obtained in the off-season from St. Louis, liberates the Rangers' No. 1 goaltending backup man. The Rangers announced they were recalling goalie Dave Wilson from Baltimore Clippers of the American Hockey League.

Flames Blank Seals

Slow Night in Major Leagues

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Atlanta Flames extended their unbeaten streak Friday night, courtesy of the obliging California Seals.

The Flames started the season with four losses, but since then have rebounded with four wins and two ties in their last six games, including a 3-0 burial win over the Seals in the only National Hockey League game Friday night.

In World Hockey Association games Friday night, New England Whalers and Edmonton Oilers played to a 2-2 tie and Cleveland Crusaders beat Quebec Nordiques 6-2.

Curt Bennet scored his second goal of the season and goalie Phil Myre turn back 13 California shots in the Flames' victory. Tim Ecclestone scored the other Atlanta goal in the third period.

The Seals, who are winless in their last four games, are in last place in the Adams Division, two points back of Boston Bruins.

The win pulled Atlanta into a third place tie in the Patrick Division with New York Rangers, a team rocked by personnel changes, including the shocking Friday of veteran goalie Ed Giacomin to Detroit Red Wings for the $30,000 waiver price.

Edmonton got goals from Barry Long and Dave Dunnigan to tie the Whalers, who lost two players during the game to injuries.

Goaltender Paul Hoganson apparently escaped serious damage when struck full in the mask by Long's wicked shot late in the second period and defending forward Tom Webster suffered a hamstring injury when speeded near the Oilers net a few minutes later.

Hoganson was replaced by Bruce Landon and the pair faced 20 shots by Edmonton's Ron Chipperfield, who scored with 10 points in seven games since Friday. Able left the contest but watched part of the third period from behind the bench.

Long's shot hit Hoganson so hard that the goaltender needed stitches where the edge of the mask was driven into his forehead.

TOM WEBSTER

Danny Arndt and Ron Climie scored for New England.

Rick Ley scored three goals and added one assist to lead the Crusaders to victory over Quebec.

Steve Sutherland and Reiner Houle scored for the Nordiques. Al McDonough, who had two goals and Danny Grum rounded out the Cleveland scoring.

Roberts Worth All That?

EDMONTON (CP) — The Oilers are in the market for a defenceman, general manager of the New England Whalers of the World Hockey Association says Jack Kelley said Thursday.

"We're looking at a defenceman who can play a regular shift and who can move the puck," Kelley said. "We're not looking for a big name player, but we're looking for a player who can help us."

Kelley said Thursday he has been in contact with Oilers general manager Larry Gordon about defenceman Gary Smith, but Gordon has refused to discuss the matter.

Smith, 24, has played with Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada Hockey League last season and the signing of the youngster before his junior hockey eligibility expired was a violation of WHA bylaws.

"Just, because the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has certain rules about not signing players with pro teams until

Knights Ride High at Home

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

London Knights extended their home-ice winning streak to seven games Friday with an 8-6 victory over visiting Ottawa 67's in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A action. The win leaves London in fifth place in the Emms Division.

In other games, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds defeated Kingston Canadians 9-3 at the Sault, St. Catharines Black Hawks battled to a 6-6 tie with Hamilton Fincups, Peterborough Petes tied Kitchener Rangers 5-5.

Steve Stockman, London's first-round draft choice scored three times to lead the Knights to victory before 2,340 fans.

Other London scorers were scored by Tom Rowe with two, Brad Marsh, Vern Stenlund and Dwight Schofield.

Peterlee scored his 18th and 19th goals for the 67's and had one taken away late in the third period which would have tied the game 7-7.

Lee broke in alone on London goaltender Mike Kasmeris and fired a high shot which appeared to go in just under the crossbar. Referee Wayne Marshall allowed play to continue and about a minute later Stockman scored the final goal of the game.

Doug Wilson and Tom McDonell also scored two goals apiece for Ottawa.

League play resumes today with Ottawa at Kitchener, On Sunday, Hamilton is at Toronto, Ottawa at St. Catharines, London at Oshawa, Windsor at Kingston and Sault Ste. Marie at Sudbury.

Greyhounds 9 Canadiens 7

Sault Ste. Marie built up a 6-1 lead and then coasted home to victory over the Canadians.

Terry Lanchard, Randy Borbely and John Tavella paced the Greyhounds with two goals apiece while single goals went to Peter Lindbergh, Doug Paley and Gord Lorimer before a crowd of 2,862.

Mike Rhinas and Rob Plumb replied for Kingston.

The victory leaves the Greyhounds unbeaten at home in eight starts.

At Kitchener, Mark Kirton's second goal of the night with 1:05 remaining in the game gave Greg Millen pulled for an extra attacker Forechecking Mike Ge, before 2,689 fans.

Kitchener trailed 4-3 until late in the final period when Red Berenson scored goals at 15:18 and 16:06 to give the Rangers the lead.

Expos' Vacancy Filled by Kuehl

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos announced Friday that Karl Kuehl will direct the National League baseball club's next year and that the team's executive structure has been overhauled.

Kuehl, 39, the youngest man to manage in the league, has signed a one-year contract as managing-hitting boss of the club, as president John McHale and Jim Fanning, slated as the general manager was abolished, prepared to take a tighter grip on the day-to-day operations than they had in the regime of Gene Mauch, fired as manager Oct. 2.

Fanning becomes vice-president of player development with responsibility for the club's players and field personnel at both the major-and minor league levels.

Kuehl, the second man to manage the Expos, boasts an impressive minors record in stating record during which he oversaw development of many of the youngsters who joined the Montreal lineup in 1975.

Mauch built a 499-677 won-lost record with the 1969 expansion club but was fired when the Expos slipped a notch to 4 in the fifth place won with Chicago Cubs in the East Division with a 75-87 record this year.

"I know this team is going to improve," said Kuehl. "This is the thrill of my life but the idea is to win and I have to settle down to that now."

McHale blocked Kuehl from his position as manager of Memphis Blues, Montreal's Class AAA affiliate in the International League, said he does not believe Kuehl's lack of major-league playing or managing experience will hurt his chances.

"We hope to give him support in the area of experience with the right kind of coaches who can fill in the blank spaces."

Mauch's coaching staff got the axe with him, and the Expos still are seeking to fill the positions.

Kuehl, who says players should discipline themselves, expressed a different philosophy from Mauch, whose nickname was The Little General bespoke his rigid disciplinarian attitude.

"But discipline should come from within," Kuehl said, "and you and your players should program your minds. I like my teams to be as close as a family."

Kuehl's style twice won him manager-of-the-year awards in the minors and produced a 291-227 record during four seasons, two with Quebec Carnavals of the Eastern League and two with Memphis.

Sunday, Nov. 1

Aries (March 21 - April 19) This should be a fun, active day, but if the festivities spill over into the evening you're likely to run out of steam early.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Be sure to consider your mate's wishes today when making plans. If you're in accord, friction will result.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You'll have buyer's remorse about anything you've impulsively today. Think before plunking your cash down.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Concentrate on having a good time today. Dismiss financial and business thoughts for the time being. They can be attended to later.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Toward evening you'll lack patience with those who do not jump immediately to your commands. Be careful or you'll stir some sibling up at home.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're going to do any travelling today, check connections and accommodations well in advance. Something could get fouled up.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Don't make any deals with a friend at this time who wants a piece of the action for helping. Wait till he produces, then talk terms.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Others will resent it today if you place your self-interests too far above theirs. Be co-operative, not demanding.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Normally you're a rather optimistic and self-assured person, but today you' harbor doubts about something you're involved in.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be careful today you don't make a commitment to a friend without first talking it over with her and getting her consent.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You tend to do things today without fully appreciating all the ramifications involved. What's easy may in reality be very hard. Avoid getting into philosophical or political discussions today with friends. The conversation could turn into a very serious debate.

For Monday, Nov. 2

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be careful in your business affairs today. Matters could suddenly take an unusual turn. You might be caught off-guard.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Agreements you enter into today should be reviewed very thoroughly. Be sure even the smallest clause is spelled out clearly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're very inventive today. You'll come up with a better method for doing a repetitious task that tied you down previously.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll be fortunate only with carefully calculated risks. Should you press your luck too far it won't stand the strain.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) An unusual day for you, one of sudden beginnings. Something from the past will be terminated at your interests shift to something new.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) Weigh your words very wisely today or you might blurt out something that shouldn't be divulged now. Think before speaking.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conditions are unique for you materially. Gains could come from your usual contact sources.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You'll be both bold and clever in handling situations affecting you today. The results will be gratifying, yet your tactics will surprise others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your best ideas will come to you today if you're in some place where alone where peace and quiet. Jot them down for later use.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) An interesting new acquaintance will suddenly enter your life. This person will be introduced to you by an old friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You'll not be deprived at this time of rewards rightfully due you, just be patient. Let events run their course.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Success is yours today if you don't set your sights for something you've recently learned from an unusual experience.

Law of the Conference Still Faces Problems

WASHINGTON (CP) — It was windy, wet and wintry in Geneva and diplomats attending the International Law of the Sea Conference were complaining of colds, the flu and like a bad pain in the neck, one of them explained.

That the last March, and while the Geneva weather may have been the same in 1974, evidence to indicate any significant progress on the problems which bedevilled the 2,000 or so delegates who met for seven weeks in the storied Palais des Nations.

Nevertheless, the conference is scheduled to reconvene in New York early next year in a further attempt to hammer out a law governing the future use of the world's oceans.

Meanwhile, however, signs are growing that more and more countries are becoming impatient and unwilling to wait much longer for the elusive international accord before taking action on their own.

Iceland recently extended its fisheries jurisdiction to 200 miles offshore, the Canadian government has said it is considering similar action and Ottawa is the New York conference fails.

In the United States, bills to create a 200-mile fishing zone have been passed by both the Senate and House of Representatives, and there are similar canvassing plans to do the same in other countries that have already done so.

Ironically, one of the few areas in which a fairly strong consensus emerged at Geneva was fisheries. Only one basic agreement that a coastal state must have jurisdiction over management of fish stocks and minerals in a 200-mile zone, it none.

Details of this arrangement remain to be worked out, and implementation depends on agreements being reached on a number of other extremely sensitive subjects.

Canada, Australia, India, Argentina and others, for example, are pressing for an acceptable formula that would control over 300 miles or to the edge of the continental margin where it extends beyond that distance. Landlocked and some geographically disadvantaged strongly opposed, arguing that anything beyond 200 miles is the common heritage of mankind.

In the Canadian case the margin, which includes the continental shelf, its steep slope toward the depths and finally the gentler glide to the ocean bottom, extends more than 400 miles in places off the East Coast.

Some diplomats here believe a compromise agreement eventually be possible if a formula can be found for sharing the resource revenue from the margin area beyond 200 miles with underdeveloped landlocked states. But there are few signs of such optimism.

Numerous other unresolved difficulties still face the conference but U.S. officials say two of the most important deal with rights of passage through straits and the establishment of an international seabed authority to exploit mineral and other resources.

The problem with straits arises because a fairly well established accord to extend to 12 miles from three the offshore area over which a coastal state may exercise sovereignty. That will bring many straits which are previously been international waterways under national jurisdictions.

A number of countries, including Canada, want to redefine the traditional right of innocent passage, which means basically that a foreign vessel can use such straits as long as it doesn't threaten the peace, order or security of the coastal state, to include provisions covering threats of pollution as well.

Big shipping countries such as the United States, Russia and Britain are firmly opposed to any such measure because they say it is symptomic of moves toward giving coastal states far too much latitude to interfere with their vessels' movements.

On the question of a seabed authority, a potential billion-dollar industry is at stake.

Many parts of the seabed are covered with potato-sized nodules, rich in such minerals as manganese, copper and nickel. Most countries agree these would be mined, using pioneer technology, with revenues being equitably divided among all states.

But the rich, industrialized countries want a powerful body as international authority would simply act as a licensing agency for private firms which wanted to mine the nodules. The poorer states want the authority itself to undertake the work.

The poorer countries also want the authority to be governed on a one-vote-per-country basis with all states represented. The larger countries say this is unacceptable because they would be constantly outvoted.

A Canadian compromise proposal, which has gained some support, calls for a kind of joint venture system, providing the authority with freedom to negotiate contracts covering half the international seabed with the other half being divided according to broad guidelines to be drawn up later.

The Canadians have suggested as well that only the most general policies of the authority be determined on a one-country-one-vote basis with a small representative executive handling day-to-day operations.

What seems more likely to happen, U.S. officials say, is that the conference will simply become a continuing process for codifying unilateral actions which, however distasteful, will gradually be regarded as acceptable and thus lead to international conflict. That is a possibility which nobody seems to rule out.

Newfoundland Catch Down Last 2 Years

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—fishermen have noted a decline in lobsters in catches of Atlantic salmon during the last two years.

Last year's total catch was almost 34 million pounds combined with the 1973 catch, the amount the previous season was 31 million, and the total expected to be even higher.

Most of the increase in quantity of the catch has also improved.

This season it was not unusual to net salmon weighing between 11 and 20 pounds compared with fish weighing as little as five to six pounds the previous year.

While nobody appears to know exactly what has caused the better catches, some observers are inclined to think the ban on commercial salmon netting in the 1960s.

For instance, salmon fishing was banned off Port aux Basques, on the southwestern tip of the island, to an effort to improve the stocks in the great rivers of the west coast.

On the northeast coast, hundreds of fishermen found the cod and fishery a failure and were able to continue fishing only because of the good salmon run.

A spokesman for the provincial fisheries department says most fishermen along the northeast coast have been taking between 1,000 and 1,200 pounds of salmon annually but this year the take is up to between 2,000 and 3,000 pounds.

Along the south shore of the Avalon Peninsula fishermen have also had good salmon catches for which they are getting for $1.30 to $2.00 a pound.

Sports fishermen have also had a good season, better than last, despite the fact that many rivers were closed part of the year because of extremely low water conditions.

During the closure period some fish rivers were closed to anglers and put more fishermen on the salmon rivers which did not have a severe water problem.

Revenues from the federal fisheries department show that for sharing the province's island yielded 17,946 salmon licences to be issued, compared to 12,222 for the 1974 season.

Rivers in the central area of the province gave up 9,000 fish compared to 4,000 a year ago and other areas reported an increased yield.

Most of the commercial salmon catch is made in the spring and early summer months but there is a fish factory in Bonavista and Notre Dame Bays. The sports fishermen had to get their rods and reels away in mid-September.

But if you think the salmon fishery is good, one federal department official says 1975 "will be the year of the mackerel."

This species, despised for generations by New Newfoundlanders as more of a nuisance than a money maker, is suddenly emerging as one of the best food fish of the sea. Broiled, it is a gourmet's dream.

The new interest in the mackerel is probably due to a development program started this year by federal and provincial governments, including the four Atlantic provinces and Quebec, to increase the catch and find markets at home and abroad.

Newfoundland says and insists are teeming with mackerel and the government has turned but to be a happy one for the fishermen.

Novel Farming System Improves Soviet Harvests

KISHINEV, Soviet Moldavia, (Reuter) — Faced with their second successive harvest failure in four years, Soviet farmers this year will be looking closely at a novel system of agricultural organization fast spreading through this small southern republic.

The catch-phrase is agro-industrial co-operation and officials here maintain their system can sharply raise the output of all kinds of agricultural produce — and cut down on both costs and manpower.

Described by many as the Soviet countryside, it takes away many of the traditional functions of state and collective farms and concentrates them in massive interfarm co-operatives superficially in a single area.

The aim, officials say, is to introduce industrial, production-line methods, with regular hours for workers and less waste of resources. Instead of every farm having its own cattle and milk herd, for instance, as many as 14 or 15 collectives pool animals and herds to build a single herd or rearing the profits according to their contributions.

On the experience of Moldavia, the Soviet Union's new drive to establish agro-industrial complexes and private sectors altogether is to be greatly enlarged in the number and variety of production under the administration of the state.

So far, moves to spread the reform, as practised in rich, fertile Moldavia, to other areas have been cautious and have appeared to run up against particular resistance in the Baltic states of Estonia and Latvia.

But in this republic, officials from government to village level are confident they hold the key to the future—a conclusion even apparent by an open endorsement of the system by party leader Leonid Brezhnev in a speech here last year.

"The example of Moldavia," Brezhnev declared, "and the successful growth of production on the basis of farm co-operation and inter-industry co-operation is a clear-cut illustration of the fact that it is time to... raise sharply the effectiveness of agricultural production."

The system first took root in the rich black earth of Moldavia in the 1950s, but it was not given a formal central government go-ahead until some five years ago. Now, according to local party officials, it is farming over a few of the republic's 681 collective farms and 24 state-owned cooperative units.

The areas covered by such complexes range from agriculture, including rabbit-rearing and calf-breeding to wine, vegetable and fruit processing.

In the Kotovsk region south of Kishinev, for instance, one joint egg-producing complex was set up to replace 40 small poultry farms. The region's party first secretary, Yevgeny Kalenik, told newsmen visiting the republic that the new unit now produced 10 times more eggs than all the old farms put together.

Poor Health Forces Caouette to Leave Social Credit

OTTAWA (CP) — Citing health reasons, Social Credit Leader Real Caouette announced he will step down as leader of his party at a weekend meeting of the party's national council.

The council, at its biennial convention, decided Sunday a leadership convention will take place in Ottawa, the fall of 1976. Mr. Caouette will remain as leader until that time.

The 58-year-old leader, who has been a diabetic for some time, says his health in recent months has been improving, but he does not have the vitality to fight another national election campaign.

He will remain MP for the northwestern Quebec riding of Temiscamingue.

Mr. Caouette added there is no question currently of his changing his mind.

Despite the surprise decision, a number of MPs in the 11-man Social Credit caucus already have expressed interest in the leader's job. They include: Gilbert Rondeau (Shefford), Rene Matte (Champlain), Leonel Beaudoin (Richmond), and Andre Fortin (Lotbiniere).

Other possible candidates are Mr. Caouette's son, Gilles, a former MP and now a full-time party worker, and Martin Hattersley, an Edmonton lawyer who was re-elected Sunday for a second two-year term as the party's national president.

According to a resolution passed by the council Sunday, the leadership convention will take place between Sept. 1 and Nov. 30 of the next year. The party's national executive will decide the exact dates.

Mr. Caouette said in an interview Sunday he would not intervene in the selection of the leader nor would he consult himself to supporting his son's possible candidacy.

His said his health has improved considerably since the spring and his weight has increased from 148 pounds to 158 pounds but he said he feels the nation is right to step down from the leadership.

In a 40-minute speech to the council delegates Mr. Caouette called for national and party unity to overcome what he termed a general malaise in the country.

"There is a political vacuum in our country," he said. "People do not know where to go.

He pleaded for national unity and chided fellow French-Canadians who place the blame for all their problems on English-Canadians.

"If Quebec hasn't developed, it's not English Canada's fault, but the fault of some d---d French-Can- lans ..."

Piping Up for Youth

Band Instructor Norm Meldrum (middle) looks for more youth to join his combined veteran-youth pipe band sponsored by the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans — The Duke of Edinburgh Unit (ANAF). Eventually, the band will separate into ANAF senior and Air Cadet bands.

Junior Pipe Band Seeks Members

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Like the Pied Piper of Hamelin, Norm Meldrum hopes a few young people will be attracted to the three junior pipe band in Belleville.

Mr. Meldrum is band instructor for the fledgling, combined veteran-youth band which, if membership becomes sufficiently, will be split into senior and junior bands sponsored by the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans — The Duke of Edinburgh Unit (ANAF).

"Anybody that's interested, we'll be glad to take them in and teach them," he said Sunday following parade instruction at the Belleville Armory.

The band also practises each Tuesday evening at the ANAF building at 187 Front St.

Some of the veterans are former members of an original ANAF band which formed in 1951 and folded about three years ago. It is still active under the sponsorship of the Belleville Kinsmen Club.

Mr. Meldrum said the new ANAF outfit, will march during Remembrance Day activities in Belleville on Nov. 11. There are currently 12 members and 14 beginners.

Drum major Al Burns said it is the ANAF's youth development bagpipe band. He explained the senior pipe band is simply development which also includes the air force.

"Eventually, if recruest band) will be broken up into a senior band for the Army-Navy and an air cadet band on its own," Mr. Burns noted.

Officials Seek System To Replace QEMO

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Talks proceed among Belleville area officials to discover a new system which will replace the now-defunct Quinte Emergency Measures Organization (QEMO).

Belleville Ald. Stu Meeks of the Belleville General Hospital (BGH) Board of Governors told the board recently he has met with General Radio Service (GRS) representatives in Belleville to discuss a possible volunteer setup similar to that under the direction of Angus Dailly, former QEMO co-ordinator.

He said he also met with the regional director of the department of communications in Kingston Thursday and the two men will meet again to discuss the use of a radio frequency allotted to the Quinte area for emergency purposes.

Philip Rickard, BGH executive director, said a recent BGH disaster committee meeting expressed a great deal of concern that the QEMO co-ordinator has gone.

He said the committee hopes for the appointment of a new person to co-ordinate disaster activities of fire, police and other emergency vehicles.

Mr. Rickard said the committee plans a simulated disaster exercise at BGH in the spring of 1976. Trenton Memorial Hospital and the Canadian Forces Base Hospital at Trenton will be invited to participate, he added.

Radiation Threat

Deloro Man Asked To Vacate Home

DELORO, Ont. (CP) — Ted Galloway of Deloro says he and his family have been ordered to leave his home because of the danger of atomic radiation.

Mr. Galloway said represen tatives of the Ontario health ministry and officials of the Atomic Energy Control Board delivered a letter to him Friday ordering his family to leave their home within two weeks.

The letter said health inspectors had "found a condition that is dangerous or likely to become dangerous to health and safety because of the high concentration of radioactive material in the air within the household."

The letter, signed by Dr. J. H. Aitken, an inspector of the ministry of health, said the house will be closed "until the present condition is no longer objectionable."

Mr. Galloway, who says he has developed lung cancer, said he is relieved to be moving his family. He lives in the house with his wife and one of their five children.

He said the ministry will pay for the expenses of moving and acquiring a new residence. He said he is looking for a house in the area.

Dr. Aitken said in an interview today that the radiation problem involves slag piles at an abandoned mine near the Galloway home. The mine was owned by a mining and smelting company.

Against Economic Controls
OFL Heads Will Call for Protest

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — More than 1,300 union leaders are here today for the Ontario Federation of Labor (OFL) annual convention and federation president David Archer says none of them are likely to support the federal anti-inflation program.

Mr. Archer said Sunday he will be surprised if delegates do not give unanimous approval to a policy statement condemning the selective wage and price controls as a "travesty of justice" and calling for a massive campaign against the program.

"I think the only opposition will come from delegates who think it is a good resolution but does not go far enough."

A position paper presentedby OFL executives urges the affiliate unions, which represent 700,000 workers, to defy the federal guides by pursuing their collective bargaining goals with vigor and determination.

The federation's executive also is asking affiliates to "make generous contributions to the Canadian Labor Congress' national fund to fight the loss and combat its inequities."

The congress, which is the country's largest organized labor body, has announced its outright rejection of the federal program and last week made plans to establish a $500,000 fund to fight or withdraw from Parliament a bill implementing the controls.

The OFL position paper to be considered by delegates to the three-day convention says the controls interfere with the collective bargaining system and will result in increased conflict between labor and management.

Stephen Lewis, Ontario Opposition and NDP leader, told the federation's political education committee Sunday he cannot criticize Premier Barrett's NDP government for its recent decision to order free dental visits in British Columbia back to work and to freeze prices.

"If the public interest is in danger or if the economy is grinding to a halt, I guess even a democratic, socialist premier has no alternative but to do what Barrett did," Mr. Lewis said.

Mr. Archer told a news conference Sunday that even an amended version of the anti-inflation bill now before Parliament likely would not be sensible to organized labor.

"The present controls are so one-sided as unfair and so inequitable that it is useless to discuss them."

Army Sources Say Colby, Schlesinger Out of Jobs

There have been longstanding differences between Schlesinger and Kissinger over detente. Kissinger has designed and supported detente with the Soviet Union while Schlesinger often has expressed a skeptical attitude toward that policy.

Democratic critics indicated that Schlesinger's dismissal resulted from this friction between him and Kissinger and that Kissinger has emerged the winner in a power struggle.

Colby's replacement as CIA chief has been predicted for some time. He has been criticized for his stewardship of the agency in many of the misdeeds the agency has been accused of uncovered before he became its head.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary James Schlesinger and CIA Director William Colby are being ousted in a reshuffle of United States national-security posts, top Pentagon officials say.

At the same time, Henry Kissinger will relinquish his job as chairman of the National Security Council (NSC) while retaining state secretary, the officials said.

President Ford and top White House officials declined to confirm or deny the shuffle. When reporters asked Ford about the reported changes, Ford replied: "I'll have you all." Kissinger responded with small jokes, and White House press secretary Ron Nessen shrugged and declined to say when he might have something to say.

There were unconfirmed reports that Colby will be succeeded by George Bush, now U.S. representative to China. Kissinger will be succeeded as chairman of the National Security Council by air force Lt.-Gen. Brent Scowcroft, Kissinger's protege and now his deputy, and that Donald Rumsfeld, now White House staff chief, will take over Schlesinger's Pentagon post.

Beware Deer Escaping!

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Today is the first day of the hunting season and one area deer attempted to escape the heavy forest traffic by visiting downtown Trenton early today.

A police spokesman said a patrol car chased a four-point buck through the downtown area for more than an hour before they were able to drive the animal out of the municipal limit.

Postal Talks Resume Today

OTTAWA (CP) — Negotiators in the national postal dispute were scheduled to resume their talks at 10 a.m. EST today after recessing during the weekend. The strike now is in its second week.

When talks adjourned early Saturday following a marathon round of bargaining last week, two non-monetary issues remained to be settled.

Spokesmen for both sides say they have been unsuccessful in their attempts to agree on the issue of casual non-union labor and electronic surveillance as well as wages.

Joe Davidson, president of the 22,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), said Sunday the rank and file have been overwhelming in their support of their negotiating team. Mr. Davidson spent most of last week meeting union locals in Western Canada.

Mr. Davidson, responding to comments from Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey suggesting that his presence at the bargaining session could speed the talks, replied: "I have every confidence in the negotiating team and have no plans to join the talks."

Meanwhile, Marcel Perreault, head of the Montreal CUPW local, and Jean-Claude Parrot, chief negotiator, addressed about 500 union members in Montreal Sunday.

"There hasn't been a single telegram or telephone call to the bargaining team telling us to go quicker and get the strike over. This is very impressive," Mr. Perreault said.

Mr. Parrot told the members that despite post office negotiators' unrealistically rejecting all union wage proposals "the union will remain flexible."

"We know we will have to compromise," he said.

Mr. Mackasey, who personally intervened in the bargaining last week said Saturday he is unable to determine if the wage offer tabled by the post office is acceptable to the union.

The offer, recommended by a conciliation board report, is for a $1.70 an hour increase over 20 months. The letter-carriers settled for the same amount last April.

The hourly rate now is $4.38 and the offer will increase this to $6.38 an hour or about $13,600 a year by late 1976.

The union has demanded a $1-

The man's body was discovered through a helicopter search by provincial police near the shore of McAbey Lake.

Cause of death has not been established, police say. The body was sent to the forensic sciences laboratory in Toronto for a post mortem last week.

High School Stepping Stone to Future

Education does not end at graduation from high school, Philip Lachapelle, Grade 13 valedictorian told Centennial Secondary School graduates here Saturday.

"Never for one second think this is the end, no matter where you go or what you do," he advised. "For a book light shut is but a block of paper knowledge."

"It can only be the beginning of true education which man is so lucky to be able to hold," he commented.

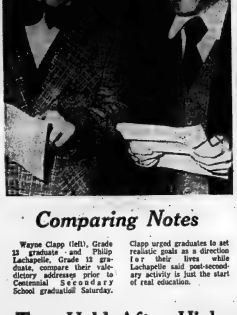
Mr. Lachapelle was one of two Centennial valedictorians. The other was Grade 13 speaker Wayne Clapp.

"Knowledge is everywhere and our school is only the means of shaping and moulding this knowledge for easier understanding," r. LaChapelle stated.

"Our school has taught us how to absorb and utilize knowledge for our benefit."

Mr. Clapp urged graduates to set realistic goals but not to make their goals the centre of their lives and rather use them as a direction in their lives.

He stressed the necessity of becoming aware of the happenings going around everyone, as building blocks for the future are established now.



Comparing Notes

Wayne Clapp (left), Grade 13 graduate and Philip Lachapelle, Grade 13 graduate, compare their valedictory addresses prior to Centennial Secondary School graduation Saturday.

Clapp urged graduates to set realistic goals as a direction for their lives while Lachapelle said post-secondary activity is just the start of real education.

Driver Charged

An 18-year-old Marmora man has been charged with failing to report an accident and careless driving following an incident on Main St. Halloween night.

Terry Phillips, 18, was arrested by police Saturday after a car owned by Donald Mullan was hit the previous evening. Police estimate the damage to the Mullan vehicle at $300.

Damage to the Phillips vehicle is estimated at $250.

Mavis Wansbrough (seated), representing the Trenton Legion, inspects a book listing the men who died in service during the First and Second World Wars. Mrs. Julie Sager, who produced the hand-inscribed volume explains the work that was necessary to complete the commemorative effort at the presentation ceremony Sunday afternoon.

Home Splashed With Paint

PICTON — Picton Police Chief Charles Fletcher today reported a relatively quiet Halloween night' here but largely due to the efforts of the Quinte Communications Club.

Chief Fletcher said that the radio club dispatched five cars and two radio operators who patrolled the streets Friday night instead of a base station in the fire hall. The volunteers worked from 7 p.m. until midnight.

One of the few incidences of vandalism reported occurred on Union St. when a home owned by Gary Brown was splashed with gray paint.

Also, on Saturday night, Queen Elizabeth School was smeared with white paint.

Educator Stresses Learning Doesn't End in Classroom

Leslie F. Reid, deputy director of the Hastings County Board of Education, told Quinte Secondary School graduates here Saturday "the individual who graduates today and stops learning tomorrow is uneducated the day after."

Mr. Reid pointed out that graduation is only the end of a phase and the greater part of life lies ahead.

He suggested graduates should make some provision for further training or education. "The business and industrial world will not care where it is when this year's or next year's graduates swarm into it. One must keep learning to keep up."

However, Mr. Reid noted that such training or education does not guarantee an educated person. "Degrees are useful on a thermometer but a man can acquire a university degree without it signifying that he is really of great usefulness," he remarked.

Regarding the selection of a suitable vocation, Mr. Reid stated, "remember, the future belongs to those who plan where they are going, prepare themselves for the journey, perform their tasks skillfully, seize their opportunities and persist in spite of setbacks."

He urged graduates to develop a set of personal values. "In applying it to your own life, you learn to tell truth from falsehood, fact from opinion, the real from the phoney and the beautiful from the tawdry," he said.

Mr. Reid stressed that a person must have a planned effort for the prospect of a successful life. "A person without a plan is adrift, but a drifter wailing for his life course to be dictated by events as they happen," he said.

University Shock For Many: Grad

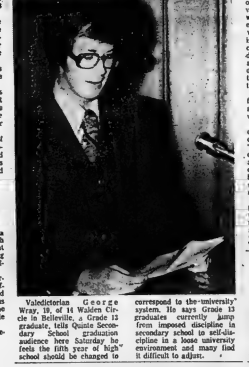
Grade 13 should be similar to first-year university to eliminate an abrupt change in educational systems currently experienced by high school graduates, a 19-year-old Grade 13 graduate told the Quinte Secondary School graduation here Saturday.

Valedictorian George Wray of 14 Walden Circle in Belleville commented, "If Grade 13 was orientated to a greater extent to this first year at university than it is now, the existing extreme changeover could be handled by the student much more efficiently and emotionally and allow him or her to move directly into the so-called 'swing of things'."

Mr. Wray explained the differences on entering university. "where I find an overwhelming lack of discipline."

"There are no attendance checks in most of the lectures or in the classes," he outlined. "One is free to actually walk out of a lecture at any time and no one really checks up on your work to see if it has been completed, except in the case of essays and similar assignments."

"This new concept of complete self-discipline, coupled with the entirely new environment, leads to a very discouraging outlook on the first few weeks of university," Mr. Wray remarked.



Valedictorian George Wray, 19, of 14 Walden Circle in Belleville, a Grade 13 graduate, tells Quinte Secondary School graduation audience here Saturday he feels the fifth year of high school should be changed to correspond to the university system. He says Grade 13 graduates currently jump from imposed discipline in secondary school to self-discipline in a loose university environment and many find it difficult to adjust.

Two Held After High-speed Chase

BRIGHTON — Two youths were arrested and charged with early today after a 30-minute, 20-mile, high speed chase, said officials of the Brighton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Charged with theft of an automobile were Richard LaBelle, 17, of Port Colborne, and a 15-year-old juvenile, also from Port Colborne. Police said LaBelle was also charged with dangerous driving.

The chase started when a Brighton OPP constable observed the suspects car pulling out of a service station in Brighton. The car failed to pull over when flagged down and the chase on Highway 30 towards Campbellford proceeded at speeds between 75 and 80 miles an hour, police said.

Police said the car avoided a road block established by the Campbellford Police and was finally halted when the local police cruiser blocked the vehicle's path.

Police estimate damage to the Campbellford cruiser at $400.

Police Identify Body Found by Children

City police have identified the body of a man found dead Sunday at the rear of Bowery Retail warehouse on Station St. as Thomas Claude Quinn, 61, whose last known address was RR 1, Cortyville.

Chief Dougal Crosbie said today the man was discovered in woods at 2.35 p.m. by two young children who told an unidentified woman who in turn summoned police.

A post mortem conducted at Belleville General Hospital established exposure as the cause of death. Coroner Dr. William Bates pronounced the man dead at the scene at 3.40 p.m.

Chief Crosbie said foul play is not suspected.

Four Cars Clipped

TRENTON — Town police are investigating a series of accidents involving a Brighton woman after four parked cars were struck resulting in more than $2,000 damage Saturday morning.

Erma Gillis, 35, of RR 3 Brighton, parked her 1974 Quinte Hotel parking lot when the accidents occurred, police said.

As police spokesman said a vehicle struck a parked car to the hotel lot, exited from the lot, and proceeded westbound on Elgin St. driving on the sidewalk and jumped the curb onto Murphy St. where she hit a sign.

The car then entered Graham's rail car lot, hit a parked cab, travelled through a fence and then struck unattended vehicle, said police. The car was then placed off the third vehicle and was in collision with a fourth parked car, which was pushed into a wall.

More Crime Possible via Economic Woes—Also a Stock Market 'Armageddon'

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Talking to Harry D. Schultz, the Zurich-based investment adviser, is like stepping step-shots from Bobby Hull at training camp. The shots come fast, hard and often.

Talking to Dr. Schultz, unless you are a business writer, is also expensive—$100 for a three-minute "special quickie" consultation, $1,250 an hour regularly, twice that on weekends.

The U.S.-born former newspaper man now publishes the Harry Schultz letter every three weeks. Its six tightly filled pages are crammed with high-powered, specific advice aimed at investor-subscribers in 50 countries.

Dr. Schultz has little patience with the conservative approach to investment. On a visit to Toronto the other day, he said that people who hold assets—as opposed to trading them—are "not well informed."

Here is his suggestion, as of late October, for a portfolio for the flexible investor:

—25 per cent gold shares, bullion, or futures. Dr. Schultz has long been one of the strongest advocates of gold, and considers its month-ago dip below $130 an ounce as a once-in-a-lifetime chance to get rich quick.

Among gold stocks, he favors Campbell Red Lake Mines as a "beautiful vehicle" for traders. Flexible investors should also own gold bullion (to be traded less often), some gold futures contracts (but be prepared for quick swings in the market), and some South African gold-mine shares.

"We are short on a few gold bull market," he says. Recent price: About $165.

—25 per cent in a mix of perhaps four currencies. He favors the Swiss franc, the West German mark, the Dutch guilder and possibly the French franc. The U.S. dollar has ended its rally and will decline, he expects, while the Canadian dollar is likely to become even weaker. (Recent level: 98 cents U.S.)

—15 per cent in industrial stocks. Dr. Schultz takes a technical approach to stock-market forecasting and his interpretation of the charts is that the Dow-Jones average of New York industrials will yet notably exceed a record 1,000 during the next 18 months (up from the recent 800 level).

Even a DJIA of 1,200 when discounted for inflation would not be unduly high: "It's a catch-up procedure," he said. (He is less optimistic about the Canadian market's prospects.)

But Dr. Schultz is wary of the stock market's long-te m fo "I see the end of 1977 as Armageddon."

As for the rest of the flexible investor's portfolio, 10 per cent ought to be in silver futures, bullion (recently about $4.25 an ounce) and shares; seven per cent in assorted commodity futures; five per cent in low-grade coin gold and silver (he still favors the non-ounce South African krugger rand and the Mexican peso, both gold); and three per cent in platinum futures and shares.

Turning to the economic outlook, Dr. Schultz expects world and-income controls to do little good.

He agrees with those who argue that anti-inflation controls always fail and he looks for Canada's inflation rate to rise to the 25 or 30 per cent range within 15 to 24 months—on the premise that controls will not remain in force for the three years that the Trudeau government has promised.

But he is even gloomier about the social and political consequences of such rapid inflation. Economic troubles could lead to a much higher crime rate, to which there could well be an entrenched public response, he says.

Other well-known financial forecasters would vigorously disagree. But the Schultz hiking average in recent years, especially on gold, has been high.

A New Belleville

A facelift for Belleville?

It's not a new idea. A decade ago the concept of a "Norwich Plan" improvement project was discussed, after the fashion of the East Anglican city in England where merchants were encouraged to do some cleaning and painting of storefronts.

In the years between Belleville has seen something of the kind, with merchants giving expression to their artistry in this kind of medium. It has not been any concerted plan, but nevertheless improvements have been observed.

Across the street from this office moreover the exterior of the building on the corner of Pinnacle and Bridge Street, which includes the Belleville Club, has a fresh aspect after a clean-up.

And now the process has been taken a step further with news that the Quinte Real Estate Board hopes to renovate an old home in the city's heart. With city land in short supply, and only a few homes that have deteriorated, the plan has merit. It should also have the desired effect of encouraging others to carry out similar renovations.

Cities such as Toronto have seen a lot of this sort of redevelopment and it is difficult to see anything but good from similar initiatives here.

Nothing of fine idea too in terms of the 1978 Centennial. Belleville could present nothing so pleasant and desirable than that the older treasures of its heritage should be given new life and thus prolong their usefulness.

Breadth of View

Ideally, the truly-educated man should have available to him a wide variety of reading matter. Libraries around the country, of which the Corby library here is a fine example, have enough to satisfy most tastes.

Spend a quiet hour in the reading room and a library member can come away acquainted with such diverse and interesting publications as South African Panorama and Northern Neighbors, an illustrated magazine published in Gravenhurst which tells with pride Soviet Union and other Communist bloc nations, as well as a wealth of other magazine literature from home and abroad.

Northern Neighbors is not given to exposing the shortcomings of the Communist world, in the spirit of self-criticism to which we are accustomed in the West, but comes on strong on national achievements while taking a dim view of anything to do with capitalism. This is only to be expected from such a journal but the fact that it is available in our libraries says a lot about the freedom of choice we enjoy here and the essential stability of western democracy.

South African Panorama is a glossy publication which depicts the beauty and day-to-day life of the country. Being a government publication, it also puts the best face on everything, but from this too there emerges an impression of a multi-racial society which is more advanced and successful and free than the outside world gives credit for.

Maligned for its separatist, racial policy, South Africa nevertheless was described by one U.S. visitor recently as a "whopping success, and attracts far less racism and envy and hatred." The speaker was Llewellyn H. Rockwell Jr., president and editor of the journal of socio-economic medicine, Private Practice, who accuses critics such as the New York Times, Senator Kennedy, and even the United Nations of being less than objective in their attitude toward the republic.

French Jets

Remember the days when the Soviet Union and China were pretty good friends? The Chinese air force was equipped with Soviet MiG jet fighters. In recent years however relations between the two big powers have cooled and a further sign of this is the fact China is seeking military aircraft elsewhere. Hence, the Peking government is reported to want at least 200 of the latest Mirage fighters from France.

One of the big imponderables of the future is the status of the Soviet Union and China a decade from now. In recent years there have been border incidents and it would be surprising if hostilities of greater or lesser magnitude were to break out again.

France Is a Stumbling Block To Canadian Seat at Economic Talks

By JOHN HAY

LONDON (CP) — Canadian diplomats encountered unexpected opposition in their campaign for a place at a big-power economic summit meeting in France next month.

Canada has made public bechind-the-U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger for participation at the conference, to which the United States, Britain, West Germany, Japan and Italy also have been invited by French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing.

While in Britain recently Allan MacEachen, canadian external affairs minister, said British Foreign Secretary James Callaghan supports the Canadian cause. He said the Germany also is sympathetic.

But a French Embassy official here said: "Canada is not invited."

The heads of government meeting will deal with such issues as trade, monetary affairs and East-West relations.

Diplomatic sources offer various reasons for the dispute over seating at the conference, originally suggested by Giscard d'Estaing as a way for the big Western industrial countries to plot their economic strategies together.

Some say France fears Canada will side with Washington in an argument over links between economic and political policy while others say an invitation to Canada might fool relations within the European Economic Community (EEC).

Reports of possible Canadian solidarity already have sparked complaints from Belgium and the Netherlands that they have been excluded while four other EEC members—Belgium, France, West Germany and Italy—have been invited.

The diplomat suggested a simpler reason for France's stand: "The French just like calling the shots."

Political Doubletalk

Ottawa Journal

It has become the custom for commentators to talk about the "illegal" government in Rhodesia. Perhaps one of them would take the trouble to enlighten the public on what makes Ian Smith's such a one-text. What is it that makes a government legal or illegal?

Is any government that breaks away from British colonial cost of without approval of the British Parliament, illegal? If so on why do we have any truck with the Americans?

Is a government illegal where there is not a universal franchise? The Chile of countless that category, from Russia and China on down, would be substantial.

Is a government illegal if a military leader kicks out an elected president? That list includes most of South America, a big piece of Asia and most of Rhodesia's neighbors in Africa.

If Canada chooses not to recognize the government of Rhodesia, or any other country, that is our prerogative; but let's not play with words. The English language has problems enough standing up to the youth sub cultures and the ad writers without adding to feed off the politicians and the journalists as well.

Centennial Celebrations Need Community Effort

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

"The Man on the Street," Some oldtimers apparently used this phrase recently at a Council meeting and I'll alter it to "The Person on the Street". Centennial '78 needs all thirty five thousand (five hundred of them as volunteers. To point to an achievement by others, for instance:

THE TOWN OF KELLS, IRELAND

Tabernacle United Church Bulletin, dated Sept. 14, 1975, attracted my attention, and could be of particular interest to Belleville citizens as we approach our Centennial Year. Several points are emphasized in appreciation of Ireland:

In 1938, Margaret and I had the pleasure of visiting Dublin, and of taking a local bus to the town of Kells; just a short ride, and not far from ancient Tara. There, in Kells, the older and more settled citizens speak lovingly and pridefully of their "connection" Kells, and our name caught their fancy. Some of the younger members were influenced by the political events and used the modern term, "Canadian Mor".

Margaret and I are somewhat interested in the history of our families, and we were in the "old country". She was looking at names on stone fronts, and wished to take a couple. I decided on a haircut and was looking for a barber.

I stopped to talk to a friendly passer-by, opening the conversation with some comments on the clean, "attractive streets and flowers" across the right note! He was chairman of the Kells Civic Improvement Committee", and his town was winner of the Tidy Towns Cup in all Eire that year. He told me a little of how they went about it, and included some information about Kells. I got directions to, and visited the Market Cross—old home of St. Columba. (He called it "the Anglican Cliff" of St. Colum of the Church).

I then resumed our search for a barber shop, in which he said "Come along and sit down a bit; I'll find one."

What a job that committee had achieved through citizen cooperation! Every street look fresh and new. No litter, and flowers and fresh paint were everywhere. It's now know someone from the trade will can get a copy of that church bulletin, have a look at the picture of a main street in Kells; it would interest him, made that way by proud and determined people.

I hesitated to tell "The People on the Street" in Belleville about Kells because of contrast Kells is such a small place by comparison. But, just a few days ago, I was in Rochester, New York, ten times our thirty five thousand, and there I saw the "Clean Machine", part of a Rochester-area Get-together to make and keep their city attractive.

Belleville is one of the many beautiful old Ontario cities with roots long predating 1878. Many groups including the Garden Club Association and business people deserve our praise. Our city is cleaner than many, but we have room for improvement.

(1) Manitoba maple jungles around the downtown area, our show window.

(2) Litter collections at fences and hedges in central Belleville and in every ward.

(3) Cans, bottles, cigarette butts, match covers, wrappers, etc., etc., etc., dropped by the "People on the Street".

I have to do something, but you have. The "Person on the Street" is all important. Will you organize a "Keep Belleville Clean and Beautiful Committee" or how about a "Boost for our Block Campaign"? Centennial '78 needs you.

A Spoiled Generation

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Have you noticed our children lately? A frightening lot. There is not a timid or shrinking violet amongst them. All cry and bellow and whimper in a new and unbelievable manner. Others dawdle behind them (as always, or more than always) but g l e a m i n g, chicago-plated and fully invited into their effort. Hence the children's cockiness.

Does this matter much?

You bet!

Be confident, they have already ceased to grow. Years from now they will still be b e l l o w i n g and whimpering, waiting for the machinery to work and the endurance of their fellows. Not a few generations of this sort world are already upon us. Many belong to C.U.P.E.

Kenya's Jomo Kenyatta Blots His Political Copybook

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Twenty years ago Kenya's aging President Jomo Kenyatta was on the most wanted list of the British civil and local security forces in the bloody battle against the Mau Mau rebels.

They were about the first of many African liberation groups which the world press has exposed to world view since 1954 and fought with a particular cruelty, beheading their prisoners, white and black, descerating corpses in a manner which wouldn't be seen again in Africa until the Congo upheavals of 1960.

Kenyatta was described as a bloody killer and revolutionary, an African set on chaos as a way-of-life and the total eradication of the white man from Kenya.

The Kenyatta of the 1970s, who has been president of a successfully multi-racial African nation since 1963, is revealed to us as a very different man, a conservative, a pragmatist and one of the very few African leaders who has permitted representative government to flourish.

What made him change so drastically? The fact is, he never did change. He had always been that kind of leader of his tribe the Kikuyus, today the leading tribe, behind the Mau Mau represented a sect of bitter racists and fanatics who had run very little internal support from Europeans in Kenya and the other major ones of Kenya.

Fortunately the press has become much more sophisticated about reporting on African politics than in the early '50s. The African freedom fighters of 20 years ago have become and his neighbor Julius Nyerere, president of Tanzania, have long been in the light of world publicity and criticism.

Once again Kenyatta is in the world's press. This time it is reporting on the activities of the president and his family in espionage, unpaid bills and even some suspect of political murders.

Accusations in the still-free Kenya press and the still-open parliament say the Kenyatta family are refusing to pay high bills for personal luxuries. Most of the claims have not been denied by the family.

Most distasteful in his previously long and unblemished record where corruption is concerned, are the activities of Mama Ngina Kenyatta the flamboyant fourth wife.

She came to world attention more than a year ago in her open and blatant efforts (which were successful), to seize illegally a valuable ruby mine, prospected and owned by two American geologists.

She did this by organizing the destruction of the public record of their claim which had been concluded under existing Kenyan law.

Kenyatta's wife also engages in the banned charcoal trade selling the fuel at high cost to Arab and Asian customers, but in the process denuding Kenya's already slim forest reserves.

This is a process which in Kenya as elsewhere also leads to the denuding of arable land.

Another Kenyatta female family member is the mayor of Malindi, the country's capital and yet another allegedly involved in getting members of the family free of the courts, is a senior Kenyatta cabinet minister.

Against this unexplained degree of himself in Kenya's parcel of creating a balefully unpredictable legacy which a good deal of political freedom for the people, from conquest to the police state in Uganda and the disaster of Idi Amin's regime.

Kenyatta has not engaged in the mass deportation of wealthy East Indians to seize their possessions and expropriate their savings as General Idi Amin of Uganda has done.

Nevertheless his blatant venality has continued to flourish and perhaps mortally marred the record of one of Africa's most impressive leaders in a continent of mainly black oppression at the top.

Red Cross Plans Regional Approach to Local Service.

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The Ontario Red Cross is beginning an internal public relations campaign to sell its volunteer workers on the benefits of establishing a regional structure similar in design to existing government services, a district workshop here was told Saturday.

The project will divide the 138 branches in Ontario into 13 co-operative regions which will then share finances and servicing of related areas, said Dan. King, agency development officer.

"The need for restructuring has become evident to the executive officers, because some municipalities are saying if we don't service all the areas, urban and rural, with the same benefits then government will get involved," Mr. King said.

The Regional approach will allow for the most effective utilization of all the assets of the agency and will improve communications between the branches, he said.

"There may be some objection by people in areas who are raising the bulk of the money but the whole will not have this to become and issue," Mr. King said. "Not many people realize the national organization holds title to all properties and monies and as has happened once before, can revoke charters of the individual branches," he said.

Many of the local representative at the workshop voiced concern that the local branches would lose their autonomy, but Mr. King said such is not the plan.

"The key to entire Red Cross operation is maintaining the individuality and recognition of the volunteers who are making the organization a success," said Mr. King.

Mr. King said a regional setup was a suggestion by the executive on how the organization might best to handle problems of inflation while providing services to the entire province.

The change to a regional structure would not be sudden but rather a gradual switchover that may take as long as ten years and would be correlated with the needs of the local chapters.

"The key to the program is sharing, services, efficiences, more effectively," Mr. King said.

There is a pilot project, based on the theme, "No Branch is an Island," but will be inaugurated in the Burlington — Oakville area in November, said Mr. King.

"We hope the project will provide the necessary information for all branches to examine and decide whether they will support this approach," Mr. King said.

The authentic doll is used to teach school children about native recreational pursuits.

Agency to Take Closer Look At Branches Not Paying Way

TRENTON — The executive board of the Ontario division of the Red Cross is currently investigating whether to impose spending restrictions of local branches that are not self-supporting, Dan King, development officer said Saturday.

Speaking after a district workshop at the North Trenton School, Mr. King said the discussions were prompted by the financial strains being placed upon the organization by inflation.

These discussions come after a recent statement by the agency that if the Quinte area does not begin paying its share of the bills some local programs will be pinned out.

Many of the 138 branches in Ontario are not self-supporting and a review is also being undertaken to find ways and areas where existing programs can be pared, Mr. King said.

"If we can operate more efficiently we can provide a more effective service to the communities and meet the increasing challenge of servicing the entire province, not just the urban centres," Mr. King said.

The financial and program review was being discussed as part of the Ontario division's campaign to convince local branches and volunteers that a restructuring program, advised on a regional system, would benefit the organization, he said.

Mr. King said that nationally, only Ontario and Alberta are self-supporting with the excess funding used to finance the rest of the country's services.

Fire Guts Home

AMELIASBURGH — A family of 11, the youngest six weeks old, lost their home and belongings in a fire Saturday that gutted wood-frame house they rented here.

Deputy Chief Roger Flower of Ameliasburg Fire Department said Bruce Cooney ran from his home, located at the entrance to Smoke Point road at Highway 33, three miles south of Carrying Place, to a neighbor's home to call the fire fighters when a fire broke out of the first floor and spread quickly to the second.

Chief Flower said no one was injured in the 6 p.m. hour blaze.

Firefighters from Carrying Place and Rossmore fought the blaze, but were hampered by high winds.

The house is owned by Perry LaGrade. Mr. Cooney had no insurance on his belongings.

Chief Flower said faulty wiring was suspected as the cause of the blaze.

High School Grads Praised For Years of 'Dedication'

By TERRY SPRAGUE

PICTON — A total of 301 students from Grades 13 and 13 were presented with diplomas Saturday night as Prince Edward Collegiate honored the 1974-75 graduating class in main auditorium.

Among those addressing the crowd was Douglas Caley, chairman of the Prince Edward County Board of Education. He noted that PECI had a lower drop-out rate than any secondary school in Ontario and also one of the lowest vandalism rates. He attributed this record to the students whom he termed as "hard working and dedicated".

Valedictorian John Singleton, president last year's student council and currently a journalism student at Carleton University in Ottawa, commented, "One thing I did learn at high school is how confused we all are, in public school we were sure what we wanted to be when we grew up. High school, however, opened up new doors, and may not be any closer to a decision, but we are more prepared."

In his reminisces of high school, he recalled, "Remember the school dances of Grade 9 — how we stood around all evening trying to look cool? Through the years we shared tests, jokes, boyfriends and girlfriends, but most of all we shared the experience and enjoyment of learning how to get along."

John Singleton also was recipient of several awards including the Thomas Kinsey Memorial Scholarship, Achievement Award, in recognition of his combined excellence and outstanding achievement in studies, and the Salt of the Earth Award, given to students who have undertaken major responsibilities in extra-curricular affairs.

A new award donated this year was the Mark Hale Philosophy Award, presented to Grace Webster, who achieved the highest excellence in mathematics in Grade 13. The award is in memory of the late Chris Goodmurphy, a top math student last year, who lost his life in an accident this spring. The award was presented to Miss Webster by his fellows.

Among those presenting awards were James Taylor, MPP for Prince Edward-Lennox and minister of community and social services; and George Hees, MP for Prince Edward-Hastings.

Close-circuit television was provided to accommodate the overflow crowd in the main lobby and a reception was held in the cafeteria following the ceremonies.

Quinte Cuisine

This South American stew is an ideal company dish for the time of year when pumpkins are plentiful, Steve Airhart says. It's served in a cooked pumpkin and you must be sure to scoop bits of pumpkin pulp into the stew when you're serving it, he adds. Mr. Airhart teaches at Queen Elizabeth Public School.

Pumpkin Stew

two pounds beef stewing meat two cups chopped onions two cups chopped green peppers four tbsp. oil
one tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
one bay leaf
½ tsp. thyme
two tbsp. tomato paste
two cloves garlic
¼ cup dry red wine
two cups beef bouillon
two cups buttermut squash pieces two cups fresh or frozen green beans two cups diced carrots large can tomatoes
one package frozen corn one large pumpkin
½ cup milk
salt and pepper

In a heavy skillet, heat fat and slowly cook onions and peppers until they are limp but not brown. Add pieces of beef and brown slowly. Add wine, bouillon and seasonings and simmer five minutes. Transfer ingredients to a large heavy casserole and place in a preheated 225 degree oven for four hours. Alternately, you can bake at 250 degrees for one hour. Add all of the vegetables except the corn and continue to cook, increasing oven temperature to 375 degrees. Add corn and cook another five minutes. Ladle stew into heated cooked pumpkin (see instructions below) and serve.

To prepare pumpkin: Cut a generous top off the pumpkin and remove seeds, scraping out fibers. Take care not to make a hole in the bottom or sides. Rinse the pumpkin with milk and sprinkle with salt and pepper. Roast the pumpkin and its lid upside down for about 45 minutes until it is tender but not so soft it will collapse. If you prepare the pumpkin ahead of time, refrigerate and then reheat in oven.

Golden Wedding Anniversary

In honor of the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Vaughan, their sons and daughter invited relatives and friends to an At Home on October 4 at the Vaughan residence on Dundas Street West.

Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan were married by Canon Ramsay Armitage October 14, 1925, in the Church of The Messiah in Toronto.

Lyle Lennox, groomsman at the wedding, and Mrs. Willard Knowles and Miss Edith Steel, also at the wedding, were all present at the anniversary celebration.

Also present were the Vaughan children, Supt. Robert Vaughan, RCMP, Ottawa, Warren Vaughan of Belleville and Patricia Speyer of Kitchener, and their six grandchildren.

During the afternoon Dorothy Campbell and Dorothy Ridley presided over the dining room, and Michelle Bookhout acted as maid. The guests were invited to sign the guest book by grand-daughter Patti-Ann Vaughan and grandchildren Robert, Christopher, Jennifer, Terri and Heather assisted by daughter-in-law Linda Vaughan in entertaining the guests.

Many gifts, flowers and cards were received by Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan, who were further honored by a family dinner at the Four Seasons Hotel in the evening, with 74 attending a banquet when their children was the centre-piece and an RCMP crested medal awarded, belonging to Robert Vaughan, was used to cut the anniversary cake.

Cablegrams and messages of congratulations were read by Jean Ellis, and the toast was given by Grant McAllister. Robert Vaughan was master of ceremonies and Patricia Speyer made a speech congratulating their parents. Warren Vaughan presented them with plane tickets for a trip to Disney World in Florida.

Known for their active role in community service, Mr. and Mrs. Vaughan have resided in Belleville since 1930 when they came to teach at the Sir James Whitney School, then the Ontario School for the Deaf.

Mr. Vaughan established the public speaking contests at the Royal Canadian Legion and was also instrumental in the renovating of the Cheshire Home.

In 1970, Mr. Vaughan retired from the Hastings Board of Education, and Mrs. Vaughan retired after 30 years of service in the Belleville General Hospital out-patients department. Since their retirement the Vaughans have travelled to Britain, Europe and Alaska.

Congratulations were received from Governor General and Mrs. Jules Leger, Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, Leader of the Opposition Robert Stanfield, Premier William Davis, Jack Ellis, MP, and Mayor Ben Corke.

A coffee party for out-of-town guests, who came from a wide area for the occasion, was given October 5 at the Vaughan residence.

People and Animals Alike Charmed by 'Scamper' Racoon

By ISABEL HUGGAN

Perhaps when she was a baby, Scamper was well-named. But now that she is seven months old, the racoon adopted last March by the Rose family is far too fat to scamper. "Waddle" would be a more appropriate name!

But no matter what she's called, Scamper is a happy addition to the household that already contains more conventional pets — a cat and two miniature collies. And oddly enough, although they're strange bedfellows, the animals get along very well.

"We plan to give Scamper to a man who says Scamper's been wild animals," says Dorothy Rose. "Because we could never turn her loose. She's not afraid of humans or dogs, so she'd never last in the wild again."

Mrs. Rose, her husband Vernon and daughter Reagana have all become devoted to their round, furry pet, who has her own cage outside the house, but who is allowed inside for social visits. Pretty well house-trained, according to Mrs. Rose, Scamper likes to pad around the family room, investigating nooks under and behind the furniture.

"We feed her corn, bread and apples and, says Mrs. Rose, "but to begin with, when she was only the size of my hand, we fed her milk with an eyedropper. Then she progressed to a baby bottle that she held with all four paws as she lay on her back."

Scamper also likes sweet things, and will search Dorothy's pockets with her nimble paws if she smells a hidden cookie or candy bar. And then, immediately devours it!

Ordinarily, Scamper digs right in, ignoring the racoon custom of first cleaning food. "She only washes things before she eats them if she's not terribly hungry," says Mrs. Rose.

The Rose family has learned — bit about Scamper's habits during these months of taming the wild animal into a good-natured pet. Their current concern is whether or not the racoon will hibernate, as it would in its free state.

"We're not going to give her away until the spring, so we're making a cozy dark corner in the pen so that if she wants to slow right down and stay there, she can," says Mrs. Rose. "We haven't noticed any changes yet, except that she seems to have put on a lot of extra fat lately. "I must admit I've grown attached to Scamper, and I hate the thought of parting with her," she adds, cuddling the very content and bright-eyed racoon on her knee.

"She's been fun every minute."

Ann Landers

Children: Beautiful Blessing Or Life's Greatest Burden?

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I have been married for a year and are undecided as to whether or not we should have children. Perhaps your readers can be of some help to those of us who are asking ourselves this question.

Do people in their 30s, 40s and 50s regret not having had children when they were young? Are they honest? Or do they enjoy the freedom from the responsibilities that many parents and grandparents find burdensome?

I've heard some couples say they wish they had never had children—that their lives were beautiful until the kids came along and ruined everything.

Would you ask your readers to express their views and help us decide? We would especially like to hear from older people who do and do not have children. This is a case where we could learn from our elders.—Prospective Parents

Dear Pros: I can tell you right now you're going to get six of one and half a dozen of the other. It depends on who you want to listen to.

Some parents will tell you their children have made them nothing but grief. Others will say their children have been life's greatest blessing.

Speaking for myself, my only child, a daughter, has enriched my life enormously. The experience of raising a child, watching her grow and develop into a mature woman (now the mother of three fine children) has added a dimension to my own life that is indescribable. I could not have been more blessed.—Long Beatrice

Dear Ann Landers: I think you goofed, Ann. I refer to your comments to the young bride whose husband chose his dog over her.

I would agree that in most cases the wife should be number One. However, there are exceptions to everything and I'm close friend of mine was the perfect example.

This friend chose his wife instead of his dog when confronted with the same choice. He ended up losing his health and pulling up with the unbelievable antics of a lush who had a voice like a drill sergeant and treated him like dirt.

Had he chosen the dog, the worst he could have wound up with would have been a case of ticks or fleas and maybe a bit of porpoise. Also, when he came home at night he would have been greeted by a friendly pet—who was sober.

I'm not implying that a dog can take the place of a wife. I am only saying some guys would be better off with a good dog than a bad woman.—Of Philosophy

Dear Ol' Phil: I'll go you one better. All guys would be better off with no woman than a bad one—and you can forget about the dog.

Dear Ann Landers: Please answer a simple question for me. I'm ashamed to ask anyone else and it is driving me balmy.

My husband is hooked on TV. He will watch anything. Even test patterns. The minute we finish supper he runs to the TV set and there he stays—until he falls asleep. Sometimes I tiptoe over and turn the set off. The minute the set goes off he wakes up and yells, "Turn the set back on. I was enjoying the show."

Will you please tell me how a person who is quiet asleep (and snoring yet) can tell whether a TV set is off or on?—Going Bonkers

Dear Bonk: A continuous sound can keep some people awake, or even asleep. When the sound stops they miss it. Although it sounds nutty, it's true.

Dear Ann Landers: I come from a family of seven children, all alive and financially comfortable. One member of our family is so unbelievably cheap when it comes to gift-giving that it's a disgrace. She is a woman of means, yet she gives presents the average person would be ashamed to drop off at Goodwill or the Salvation Army. It's always a second-hand, worn-out piece of junk, or something she bought at a garage sale.

Recently my husband and I received a gift that was so shoddy the only place for it was the trash can. I was infuriated. I told my husband, "This is the limit. I'm really going to let her know I've had enough of her chintziness."

My husband feels I should say nothing. His philosophy is, "It's the gift is whatever you want to give."

Is it possible that if I blew my top I might be doing my sister-in-law a favor? Maybe she'd wise up and stop presenting such shameful pieces of junk.—Insulted Once Too Often

Dear Often: Save your wind to cook your soup, Honeybun. The Last of the Big Spenders is not about to mend her ways. Those types are incurable. She's a penny-pinching cheapskate and shameless in the bargain. Just keep saying "Thank you," and head for the trash can when Lady Bountiful's gargage arrives.

Athlete Files Human Rights Grievance

TORONTO (CP) — A law student at the University of Toronto has filed a grievance with the Ontario Human Rights Commission after the faculty soccer team is be men's intramural league was suspended because of her participation and that of a team-mate.

Vicki Terrise, who lodged the complaint, and team-mate Linda Robinson said they were told the team was suspended because they are too weak to play.

Miss Terrise said that league director David Copp has a book that says women's ligaments and bones are 20-per-cent weaker than men's and 16 days out of the month women are 40-per 15 per cent weaker due to their menstrual cycle.

"Even if it is true, all it means is that women are accepting a 30-per-cent greater chance of injury," Miss Robinson said.

She said that after a meeting with Mr. Copp, she felt there was no rational policy justifying the suspension.

"We just felt men would feel uncomfortable playing against us because they would be afraid to tackle us," she said.

"But as far as I'm concerned, that's their problem."

Mr. Copp said several books indicate women may be even weaker than the 30-per-cent figure quoted in The Female Athlete by Carl E. Klafs and M. Joan Lyon, physical education professors at California State University.

"My contention, is that because of the relative differences in strength, I'm not very happy about rescheduling activities where girls are playing contact sports with men."

And "when a man steps out and finds a woman carrying a puck or dribbling a soccer ball, nine out of 10 men would draw back from the situation and that would spoil the game for them," he said.

Mr. Copp said he had no choice but to suspend the team

Function Better

TORONTO (CP) — Students in Grade 6 function better if they are grouped with students in junior high school rather than with elementary school children, the Toronto borough of Etobicoke's board of education reported recently. The report was part of the board's research into phasing out composite (Grades 1 to 8) and septet (Grades 7 and 8) schools in favor of middle schools (Grade 7 and 8).

Estrogen Therapy May Cause Cancer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The hormone estrogen, prescribed for women in menopause, is believed to be the cause of an estimated 35-per-cent increase in the likelihood California researchers is uterine cancer cases among sufferers white women.

California tumor registry statistics indicate the uterine cancer rate rose to 31.4 cases per 100,000 population in 1973 from 27.2 cases per 100,000 in 1969.

Dr. Donald Austin, who heads the registry, said Wednesday the statistics were based mainly on San Francisco, but a similar increase during the same period had been reported by the Connecticut tumor registry.

He said the use of estrogen has shown a parallel increase in the same period that the uterine cancer rate has been rising.

Pacifiers May Injure Babies

OTTAWA (CP) — Some Rigo Pretty Lip Soother pacifiers may injure babies, Andre Ouellet, consumer affairs minister, said Friday.

The minister said in a statement some of these pacifiers have been reported by consumers in break off at the mouth guard after use. There was concern the nipple might lodge in the back of the throat, causing aphixiation.

Mr. Ouellet said the manufacturer of Rigo pacifiers has withdrawn the soothers from sale and the consumer affairs department has alerted stocks under the Hazardous Products Act.

He urged parents to examine Rigo soothers carefully for cracking or tackiness. If there was cracking or tackiness, the soothers should be discarded.

The department is carrying out a survey of pacifiers on the market as part of the enforcement program of the Hazardous Products Act, he said.

Morocco Plans March Into Sahara

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Morocco says it is going ahead with its march of 350,000 unarmed civilians into the disputed Spanish Sahara despite threats of war from Spain and Algeria and an appeal from the United Nations Security Council to call off the invasion.

Spanish sources reported that Moroccan troops crossed the frontier Sunday and clashed with Saharan tribesmen in the anti-Moroccan Polisario Front.

The Moroccan government has denied that its troops were involved, but Information Minister Ahmed Taibi Benhima said: "Sahara residents seeking reunification with Morocco may have raised the Moroccan flag at certain points that may have been evacuated by the Spanish Army."

Prince Juan Carlos, in his first venture into foreign policy since becoming Spain's acting chief of state, flew to the Spanish Sahara Sunday and told the Spanish army and local officials in El Aaiun, the capital, that "Spain will fulfill its promises."

"I is 37-year-old prince pledged to preserve intact the prestige and honor" of the Spanish army. Then he flew back to Madrid and called a meeting of top government ministers and military chiefs to discuss the crisis.

Morocco claims the northern part of the Colorado-size territory on its southern border, which inclines some of the world's richest phosphate deposits, while Mauritania claims the rest. Algeria, which has an 18-mile border with the territory, is backing the Polisario Front's demand for a self-determination referendum among the colony's 80,000 people, most of them nomadic tribespeople. Algeria wants to build a railway across the territory from its large iron deposits near the border to the Atlantic.

Spain, preparing to give up the territory if it can continue sharing in the phate industry there, at first was in favor of the referendum proposal. When its, 18,000-man Saharan army was threatened with invasion by a horde of Moroccans, it negotiated to transfer the area to Morocco and Mauritania but returned to the self-determination proposal under pressure from Algeria.

The Security Council unanimously adopted a resolution Sunday urging all foes countries "to avoid any unilateral or other action which might further escalate the tension in the area." Representatives of the four said their governments will not back down.

Moroccan Ambassador Driss Slaoui made clear that the march...King Hassan II plans to reinforce Morocco's claim is still on.

"The position of Morocco has not changed," he said; Morocco "will act within the framework of the legitimacy of its rights."

Moroccan officials have said the march across their southern frontier will start by Thursday.

A representative at the Security Council debate, Fernando Arias-Salgado, said "it will be repelled by all means at Spain's disposal, including the use of armed force."

"Algeria will take on its own responsibilities," said that country's representative, Abdellatif Rahal. He told a reporter that meant Algeria, too, would use force against Morocco.

The council asked Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to continue the consultations he began last week during a trip to the four countries. Waldheim, reported proposing that the United Nations take over the territory for a six-month cooling-off period, cancelled a trip to Cuba and met with Moroccan and Spanish representatives.

Cancels Plans

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim has cancelled plans to visit Cuba because of the Spanish Sahara crisis.

The secretary general, who was to have left Sunday for Havana, for a UN economic commission conference, resumed urgent consultations over the Sahara Sunday night.

Crash Kills 4

WALKERTON (CP) — Four persons, three of them in one car, were killed Saturday night in a head-on collision on a three kilometre stretch 25 miles southwest of Owen Sound. Dead are Douglas MacKinnon, 19, of Dobbleton, Ont.; Dennis Prevost, 18, and Judy Goodale, 18, both of Port Elgin, Ont., and James Boland, 25, of Hamilton.

Coroners Jury Recommends Federal Inquiry Into Crash

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T., (CP) — More than a year after it was sent to their deaths in the worst aviation disaster in the history of the Canadian Arctic, the federal government was officially asked during the weekend to find out why.

An inquest which began in April ended Saturday night when a five-man coroner's jury recommended a federal inquiry into the crash Oct. 20, 1974, 31½ miles short of a landing strip at Fort Point, on Melville Island.

The Panarctic Oils Ltd.-chartered four-engined Lockheed Electra was on a routine flight to change drilling crews at the site. Two members of the flight crew survived the crash.

The inquest, directed by Coroner Walter England of Yellowknife, N.W.T., knife, was frustrated by the refusal of the two survivors and other witnesses to testify.

Mr. England can compell testimony only from witnesses within the Northwest Territories. One of the jury's 14 recommendations was that the powers of the coroner be broadened to enable him to subpoena witnesses from anywhere in Canada.

The jury established that the plane's approach was normal up to 30 seconds before the crash, although the pilot was unaware of severe weather conditions on the ground. At that point the plane began its descent to 300 feet. During the last five seconds it descended at about 2,000 feet per minute to impact.

The jury noted that, without testimony of the two surviving crew members—co-pilot Dave Hlation and flight engineer, Gary Weyman—and other key witnesses to clarify discrepancies, "we cannot come to a firm and more comprehensive verdict."

"We therefore strongly recommend a public inquiry into the events immediately preceding and following the crash, . .

Beirut Fighting Subsidies

BEIRUT (AP) — Another lull in Lebanon's Christian-Moslem war set in today, with only scattered shooting reported. Broadcasts and newspapers expressed hope that the 12th ceasefire negotiated by Premier Rashid Karami might be successful.

Security officials attributed the new lull to round-the-clock negotiations by Karami, Palestinian guerrilla leaders and representatives of the right-wing Christian Phalange party, Militiamen of both sides began to heed the repeated ceasefire calls of their leaders.

Left-wing Moslems and Palestinian guerrillas halted their week-long assaults on the downtown hotel district, where Phalangists and militiamen of the National Liberal party were holed up in the Holiday Inn, the Phoenicia, the St. Georges and other vantage points.

Residents of the area reported large numbers of armed men withdrew late Sunday afternoon and through the night.

The ceasefire in the eastern suburbs was delayed when Christian snipers killed two Moslem officers, a Palestinian guerrilla from Yasser Arafat's Al Fatah organization and a Lebanese army major, as they were driving through the Moslem suburb of Chiyah.

The snipers fired from the neighborhood Christian suburb of Ein Rummaneh, and the two neighborhoods exchanged fire through the night. But by morning, Beirut Radio reported "all areas are relatively calm," although it said most streets and highways were "still risky."

"The steps are slow but effective toward quieting the situation," said Zuhair Mohsen, leader of the Syrian-backed Saiqa guerrilla group.

There were several reports of humanitarian actions by gunmen who brought supplies to hungry civilians trapped in combat zones, recovered household goods which had been looted during the fighting and gave protection to refugees seeking to return to their homes.

Home Evacuated

TORONTO (CP) — The home of William Ross, Metropolitan Toronto school board chairman, and education centres in North York and Scarborough were evacuated Saturday after police received a bomb threat. Police say an anonymous caller told of bombs left in shoe boxes in all three places, but no bombs were found. Officials say the bomb scare apparently was triggered by a pay dispute between the board and teachers.

Opening Bonspiel Comes To Close

By TOM GAVEY

Curling is enjoying a real boost at the senior level as over 48 teams competed for the Charles Lovett Memorial Trophy; he Bay of Quinte Curling Club's season opener.

The event was played over a period of several weekends and was supposed to wind up on October 25. Because of soft ice it was postponed until November 1.

Eventual grand champion was the Dr. Findlay McCorquodale rink consisting of the skip, his wife, Helen, and Bill and Mrs Normingdale.

The win didn't come easily, as the McCorquodale rink had to get by Bill Spinelli's foursome for the title.

Second event winner was the Ross Booth rink, with Martha Booth, Les Taylor and Hilla Holland in the foursome.

Third event champions were Frank Morrell, at skip, Jesse Baker, Jim Hughes and Evenne Welsh.

The fourth event was taken by Paul Duncan's crew, with Gloria Jones, Jack Cooper and Carol Laundry making up that winning combination.

"This is one of the most successful bonspiels we've ever had," said bonspiel director John Kennedy.

The next event, on November 21-22 the Colonial Real Estate Mixed.

So far the club has its largest enrollment ever, with over 400 members. The club is extremely active; seven days a week, with very little free ice time.

Warm weather conditions also don't hamper the club again this year, and it looks like the many bonspiels planned will go right on schedule.

"This should be a banner year for curling in Belleville," said Kennedy.

HOCKEY TIPS

By BOBBY ORR
Copyright 1974, Toronto Sun Syndicate

WHAT'S THE MOST IMPORTANT HOCKEY SKILL? SKATING

There is no doubt the most important part of hockey is skating. Take a look around the National Hockey League and you'll find some smooth and rough skaters but they are all able to get the job done. And they are strong on their skates, which is quite important.

For youngsters, I highly suggest skating as much as possible because the more you do it the more you will develop strength in your legs.

If you can get ice time on certain days, it might be helpful to begin exercises to develop your thighs because that's where your power comes from.

Should a youngster want to be a hockey player, he'll have a better chance if he can skate. With the presence of some fine coaches in minor hockey these days, the stress is being placed on skating. From there, the young player can learn the other fundamentals such as passing, shooting and checking.

The lesson here, though, is to skate as often as possible. When you practise, make certain to forget about slapping the puck around in fewer of skating — backwards, forward and sideways. Practise slope, starts and work on your stride.

Practise your crossovers that is crossing your left skate over your right and vice versa) when skating around the net. The crossover provides a lot of acceleration.

On the first day of soy practice, I'd suggest simply skating. Work on starting by getting up on your toes then taking about four or five running jumps on your toes and you're on your way.

There are no secrets to skating. The whole thing is quite simple. Whether you play goal or centre, the more proficient your skating, the better your game.

Belleville Collegiate Senior Girls Keep Tournament Championship at Home

The Belleville Collegiate Institute senior girls basketball team proved to be very good hosts during Saturday's BCI Invitational Senior and Junior Basketball Tournament held at BCI. The home team capped a perfect record Saturday night by downing Smiths Falls 53-39 to clinch the title.

It was a battle of the undefeated when Smiths Falls and BCI took to the floor for the final game. Smiths Falls had just previously edged Kenner Secondary School 44-38, in one of the best games of the day, and showed the effects of that game in the late stages of the one with BCI.

In the middle two quarters BCI. limited their opposition to only six points while racking up 31 points thanks to some excellent defence "and lots of desire," according to the victors' coach Sue Sparks. BCI appeared to give Belleville a slight edge despite the height advantage of the Smiths Falls squad.

At the end of the first quarter, it appeared both clubs were very evenly matched with BCI holding a 13-9 edge. The Collegians broke loose in the second quarter limiting opposition to only four points which finished up the half with BCI out in front by a score of 25-13 and well on their way to victory.

Sue Wilson had her best game of the day against the Smiths Falls seniors as she racked up 14 points. That gave her top scoring honors for BCI over the course of the tournament. Wilson totalled 35 points, Lisa Vincent was next in the race with 33 while Holly White collected 28 points for the days work.

In the first game of the day, BCI met Belleville High School from Pembroke when they disposed of with a decisive 61-16 win. From there the champions met Loyalist Collegiate, of Kingston, which had just lost to Renfrew. BCI managed a slim 26-19 win over the Kingston squad. Dot Mills were next to go down to the BCI girls in the semi-final game by a 36-28 margin.

Doc Mills, up until that point, had been undefeated, winning their first contest against Port Hope by a score of 33-14 and taking their second of the day 41-34 over the Cobourg girls.

Smiths Falls carned the right to advance to the finals of the tournament by picking up wins over: Cobourg in the first round by a 40-14, Port Hope in the second game by a 40-17 score and a 44-38 win over Renfrew in the semi-final game.

In the junior section of the tournament, Loyalist Collegiate finished off with a perfect record by downing Fellowes of Pembroke by a 52-40 score to win the junior title. Centennial Secondary School of Belleville who were favored in the tourney last out to Fellowes in the semi-final round. The BCI junior girls, the only other local team entered, lost their first two starts of the day against the strong competition.

Centennial won their opener against Kenner Collegiate, Peterborough 27-19 and then faced Cobourg, who had lost to Smiths Falls in their first round. From there Cobourg were sent to fall to Centennial, this time by a 35-28 score. Fellowes then slipped by the local girls 38-22.

BQYC Cups and Flags Night

Stairs Climbs to Top of Sailor's List

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

If you ask people at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club who the best sailor in you're sure to get a variety of answers. But ask them who the hardest working member of the BQYC is and it's pretty clear. Winner of the 1975 Knights Trophy, Ed Stairs, was a popular choice for dinnant executive attending the Annual Cups and Flags Dinner at the club Saturday night.

"He's a hard worker and is always willing to lend a helping hand," said fleet captain Bev Quincy.

Stairs wasn't the only one to receive hardware though, as over 15 awards and trophies were presented in all.

One of the most important trophies was the Commodores Cup, given to the BQYC club champion. This championship is decided by a points system awarded in club approved races. Winner for 1 1 1 wi the boat Mai Tai, viking class. Captain Dick Bird and his crew of Scott Couture, Christopher Couture and Colin Bain were the winners.

Another important award was for the winner of the Katy Grey Race, with Grant Baldwin, skipper of Varuna, the winner there.

The Braidwood Cup was presented for the first time; by donator Jack Braidwood. The trophy went to Dr. Ken Douglas, skipper of Serendipity.

Two series were run in 1975 — the spring and the summer — which had sailors competing for every Wednesday night and on weekends with a point system. Winner of both events was the Mai Tai, sailed by Bird and his crew.

One of the most prestigious trophies was the one for the Round-the-County-Race, which is probably the biggest race at the BQYC. Winner was Keith Burley, of Hamilton. The first Belleville boat was, you guessed it, the Mai Tai.

All in all the sailor was a productive one for all the sailors especially for the Mai Tai and its crew.

"We had a very good year, and we hope to do even better in 1976," said crew member Scot Couture.

One of the awards the skipper and crew received was donated by Stu Meek. When opened it was found to be a duck, symbolic of the one the Mai Tai lows behind it in races.

Other skippers who did well over the year included Grant Rathbun, Freeman Hunyvers, Dave Dobbs, Don Demmins, Dr.Mustard and Dr. McDougald and Rod Prudhomme, redution a few.

Of course, Knights Trophy winner Ed Stairs also came out ahead, gaining a third in the Round-the-County-Race for non-spinnaker class boats.

Sailing is said to be a leisure sport, but the BQYC sailors they were quite active in 1975.

Anne Dodson of Belleville Collegiate Institute senior girls basketball team effectively blocks a shot by Smiths Falls forward Sharon Connerty during Saturday's BCI invitational junior and senior basketball tournament at BCI. The BCI seniors, showing excellent ball control, picked up the title by downing Smiths Falls 53-39.

Norm Dube, a native of Sherbrooke, Que., scored two goals to lead Springfield Indians to a 6-4 victory over New Haven Nighthawks in one of the two American Hockey League games Sunday.

The win was only Springfield's second of the season in 10 tries and left them with a 2-8 record in the Eastern Division cellar.

In other games Sunday, Nova Scotia Voyageurs edged Baltimore Clippers 4-3 and Rochester Americans and Providence Reds played to a 6-6 tie, and Rochester Americans downed Richmond Robins 6-4.

On Saturday, Rochester and Hershey tied 6-6, Richmond edged New Haven 6-5 and Providence beat Springfield 4-2.

Don Selling opened the scoring for Springfield at 2:15 of the first period to give them a lead that was threatened only once when New Haven tied the score near the end of the third period.

Dube's first goal came at 8:15 of the second period. New Haven made the score 3-1 at 15:45 on Tom Oxley's goal, but Dube popped in his second goal with his second goal to increase the Springfield lead.

Brian Shmyr, Chris Abarens, Bill Lochead scored the other New Haven goals, and Murray Kunz scored into an empty net for Springfield in the final minutes of play.

The third-period goals within eight seconds powered Rochester past the Robins.

The Americans jumped out to a 2-0 lead on first period goals by their top scorers, Doug Gibson and Doug Halward. Richmond's Dave Kelly scored the first of his two goals to cut the margin to 2-1 at the first intermission.

The Robins dominated the second period and pulled even on goals by Terry Harper and Bob Ritchie, but Harry Shaw scored just 34 seconds into the last period to narrow the Richmond lead.

Barry Merrell's drive at 8:01 of the last period proved to be the game-winner and teammate Gordie Clark iced the victory with his breakaway eight seconds later. Kelly closed out the night's scoring with his second goal.

Defenceman Chuck Lukas scored the first two goals of his professional career, one of them the winner, as Nova Scotia edged Baltimore.

Down 3-0 early in the game, the Voyageurs also got a two-goal performance by Sean Shanahan and Glenn Goldup added a goal.

Don Grierson scored twice for the Clippers while Bob Gratz and Fred Speck provided single goals.

Daley Finally Beaten And Jets Lose 1-0

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Quebec's Steve Sutherland broke the shutout string of goalie Joe Daley at Winnipeg Jets on Sunday night and created a traffic jam at the top in the Canadian Division of the World Hockey Association.

When Sutherland scored with less than four minutes to play he broke Daley's string of 240 shutout minutes and gave the Nordiques a 1-0 win.

The win moved the Nordiques into a first-place tie with the Jets in the Canadian Division standings, with Edmonton Oilers sniping at their heels, just two points back.

The Oilers tightened the race Sunday with a 5-3 win San Diego Mariners. In other Sunday games, Calgary Cowboys edged New England Whalers 4-3 and Cleveland Crusaders downed Phoenix Roadrunners 5-3.

On Saturday, Cincinnati Stingers downed Calgary 5-3, Minnesota Fighting Saints edged Houston 4-3, Toronto Toros shaded Denver 3-2 and Quebec dropped Indianapolis Racers 5-3.

Sutherland scored his second goal of the season on a shot low to Daley's stick side. Sutherland and Gaston Gingras were on a two-on-one break after a shot by Bobby Hull was knocked down by Quebec ace.

WINS RACE

BRISTOL, Tenn. (AP) — Richard Petty, down once by two laps early in the race, made up the deficit with skilful driving and turned in a busy victory Sunday in the Volunteer 500 Grand National stock car race. The veteran Dodge driver from Randleman, N.C., won by more than a lap over Lennie Pond of Petersburg, Va., in a Chevrolet.

HAS EASY WIN

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Richishaded Adriano Panatta of Italy Brezand into the second round ... the $100,000 Stockholm ... the world's biggest indoor tennis tournament—with a 6-4 victory over Haroon Rahim of Pakistan on Sunday. Panatta, 25, won his opening match of this Grand Prix tournament in 1½ hours, breaking Rahim's serve once in each set.

The Jets and Nordiques have 16 points each, but Quebec has played one more game than Winnipeg. Winnipeg was a 5-2 winner over the Nordiques in their only other game this year, the WHA season opener.

Edmonton goalie Dave Dryden lost his stick five times but kept the Oilers in the game the first two periods, when his team-mates were holding out Minnesota and outshot 29-16.

Rusty Patenaude scored two goals and Norm Ullman one as the Oilers resurged from the second period with a 3-3 tie.

Ullman and Patenaude set up Doug Barrie for the winning goal midway in the final period and Tim Sheehy added an insurance marker.

A line of Lyle Moffat, Gerry Pinder and Ron Ward produced four goals and five assists for the Crusaders, who have had a five-game road trip Tuesday at Denver.

"That whole line skated beautifully," Wilson said. "Ward is playing defence. Aero (Pinder) never has played better and Moffat really played a smart game—he was all over the place.

Phoenix, which still has three stops left in a nine-game, 21-day road trip, was beaten Wednesday in Cleveland, losing three games in a row.

A goal by newcomer Murray Keogan at 1:40 of sudden-death overtime lifted Calgary, playing its fourth game in five nights, over New England.

A pair of third-period goals by Butch Deadmarsh, who drew an assist on the Cowboys' first goal, forced the game into overtime.

Besides the Cleveland-Denver game, Tuesday's schedule has Toronto Toros at Indianapolis, New England at Winnipeg, Quebec at Edmonton and San Diego at Calgary.

Eddie Still Their Man

NEW YORK (CP) — More than 17,000 people stood in Madison Square Garden Sunday night and gave Ed Giacomin, former goalie for New York Rangers, an emotional welcome rarely seen in hockey.

"Eddie . . . Eddie . . . Eddie," they chanted, drowning out the Star Spangled Banner.

Giacomin, bowed and wearing the bright red road uniform of Detroit Red Wings for the first time, cried.

All the pent up anger of Ranger fans, obviously bitter over the decision to cut Giacomin out of their lives, welled into the chanting and the cheers everytime a Ranger got a penalty or when Detroit scored a goal, or when Giacomin made a save, at least for the first couple of periods.

"It was something I'll never forget," said Ranger captain Brad Park after the Red Wings piled up a 6-0 lead in the first period and defeated the Rangers 6-4 in the first Detroit win on Garden ice since March 4, 1970.

Giacomin was picked up by Detroit for the $20,000 waiver price Friday night after more than 10 years as the Ranger goalie.

"It was thrown to the wolves," he said after being told of the decision Oct. 31 by general manager Emile Francis.

"The Ranger fans . . . the way they chant Eddie, Eddie, Eddie. It always cost chills down my spine. Now, I'll never hear it again."

But Giacomin was dead wrong. After he heard it many times during most of the game Sunday night, some of the bitterness had left him.

"Amazing, how everything sort of takes care of itself because the last couple of days were pretty sad. I made the decision to play (for the Red Wings)."

"And all the ice when I met some of my players this former team-mystery I tried to hold back. I've never been a sort of emotional man. I guess, but I just couldn't hold back."

One Ranger took a shot and told Giacomin he was "sorry."

Billy Fairbairn hit Giacomin high on the chest on a breakaway for the first Ranger shot and Giacomin said he was relieved. He stopped 42 shots.

"I wanted to get the game going because I was shaking so," he said. "I had the feeling that if you don't hurry up and get a shot on me, I'm going to collapse.

"Even through the game I really thought I might faint."

Giacomin is on the last year of a no-option contract. As a Ranger he was one of their highest salaried players in the $130,000-to-$200,000-a-year bracket.

Giacomin will fly to Toronto Wednesday for a game against the Maple Leafs. He said he will continue negotiations with Red Wing officials for a new contract.

TWO DEMOTED

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — In an effort to fight a losing streak his sagging World Hockey Association Indianapolis Racers' coach Jacques Demers sent the team's leading scorer and another popular forward to the minor leagues Sunday night. Right winger Bobby Whitlock and left winger Murray Hanlley were sent to Nashville Knights Comets in the North American Hockey League. Demers, who called centre Bob Jones, the Nashville leading scorer last year, and left winger John Sheridan to replace the pair.

Hall of Fame Adds Six More

HAMILTON (CP) — Four players and two builders were inducted into the Canadian Football League Hall of Fame Saturday night.

The players were halfback Dick Shatto of Toronto Argonauts, quarterback Ken Ploen of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, fullback and defensive back Ry Bailey of British Columbia Lions and tackle Herb Trawick of Montreal Manager of the Year.

Honored as builders were Tom Brook, who brought Calgary Stampeders out of the doldrums in the late 1940s, and Lew Hayman, president of Toronto Argonauts.

Shatto was signed in 1954 by Frank Clair, who was then Argo coach and still holds 13 team records. He is now marketing and media manager of the Toronto Argos.

In 11 seasons with Winnipeg, he led the Bombers to three Grey Cup victories and was named all of them against Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Bailey was one of the original members of the Lions when they were formed to join the CFL in 1954.

Trawick, who was named to the Montreal Alouettes Hall of Fame last month, was signed by Montreal by Lew Hayman in 1948 and remained with the Alouettes for 12 years.

The Stampeders were floundering when Brook hired Ken Lear as head coach in 1948. Calgary had a 35-game unbeaten streak under Lear and won the 1948 Grey Cup that year.

Hayman, whocame to Canada in 1922 to help coach basketball at the University of Toronto, coached five Grey Cup winners. He was with the Argos until 1946, when he moved to Montreal, then returned to Toronto in 1958.

It's Davis Day

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League will sign running back Anthony Davis this morning.

The newspaper says Davis a running who led the defunct World Football League in scoring, rushing and passing receiving, legally became a free agent Sunday.

Davis's contract with Southern California has made him a free agent when the Sun failed to play two scheduled games in a row. The second of those games was Sunday.

Although the Argonauts — knocked out of the CFL playoff picture Saturday—have not announced an agreement with Davis they have scheduled a news conference for this morning.

The Toronto team has been negotiating with Davis since shortly after the WFL folded. He visited Toronto with his agent Oct. 14 and 15, meeting with Argo officials and watching an EFC game.

Organ Tops in East

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Gerry Organ retained his Eastern Football Conference scoring championship Sunday, collecting 16 points—including four field goals—as Ottawa Rough Riders smothered Montreal Alouettes 46-6 in the final scheduled game for both teams.

Organ went into the contest trailing Terrence Argonauts' Zoe non Andruzyshyn by 13 points after the Argo kicker was held to four points in Sunday's 36-10 loss to the Tiger-Cats at Hamilton.

The Ottawa player tied the race with his fourth field goal of the game at Ottawa's Lansdowne Park with two seconds remaining in the first half and added three more points by converting all three Riders' touchdowns in the third quarter.

The Big Z held the runner-up spot with 121 points followed by Hamilton's Ian Sunier who closed out the season with 118 points against Toronto for 10th. Montreal's Don Sweet, held scoreless in the season finale, finished in fourth spot with 107 points.

The first player to break into the kicking-dominated scoring race was running back Art Green of Ottawa who scored one touchdown Sunday and completed the year with 14 for 84 points. Two points behind him was veteran wide receiver Terry Evanshen of Hamilton who included two two-point conversions in his total.

Constable To File Report

OWEN SOUND, Ont (CP) Constable Robbie Schnurr of the provincial police said Sunday he plans to file a report on a Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League game in Owen Sound to the attorney-general.

Constable Schnurr, a spectator at a game Sunday which Owen Sound Greys won 8-1 over Welland Sabres, said he felt the officiating of referee Ralph Sparks of Toronto left much to be desired although 33 penalties were called.

Last week, Attorney-General Roy McMurtry called for an end to violence in hockey games.

On Sunday, the Sabres received 15 minor penalties, a five-minute major penalties, a 10-minute misconduct and a match penalty for deliberate injury. The Greys received 10 minors, two fighting majors and a 10-minute misconduct.

Constable Schnurr said he felt more penalties should have been called against Welland for unnecessary roughness, high sticking and slashing.

The constable is a member of the Greys executive and of the scouting staff of the Ontario Hockey Association' Major Junior A league.

Riders Bury Alouettes; Playoff Berth for Cats

By SCOTT ABBOTT
The Canadian Press

Ottawa Rough Riders, who needed only a tie, buried Montreal Alouettes 46-6 Sunday, nailing down first place in the final game of the Eastern Football Conference regular season.

Toronto Argonauts, who could have got by with a 15-point loss, dropped a 26-10 decision to Hamilton Tiger-Cats Saturday and dropped out of the playoff picture.

Hamilton meets the Alouettes in a semi-final game in Montreal next Sunday with the winner advancing against the Riders in Ottawa Nov. 14.

The Alouettes faced the Riders before a record Ottawa crowd of 32,342 which saw Ottawa build a 25-0 lead by half-time.

Ottawa quarterback Tom Clements displayed his credentials for rookie-of-the-year honors in the Canadian Football League, throwing two touchdown passes to Tony Gabriel among his 18 completions in 34 attempts.

Art Green ran for one touchdown, Molly McGee capped a 80-yard drive with a touchdown run of three yards and Dick Adams, moved to linebacker from his regular defensive halfback post, scooted 38 yards with an interception for another score.

Gerry Organ kicked four converts and four field goals in winning the EFC scoring championship with 124 points, three more than Zenon Andruyshyn of the Argos.

"Considering the importance of the game, I'd have to say it was my best game," Clements said. Coach George Brancato appeared to agree.

"He's had some good ones, starting with his first against Saskatchewan, but this has to be one of his better ones. He's getting better all the time and you just can't fluster him."

Clements was not around to be flustered—and hardly would have been anyway—when Steve Ferrarelli plunged three yards for Montreal's only touchdown midway in the fourth quarter. Jimmy Jones, who relieved starting quarterback Sonny Wade, missed Johnny Rodgers on a two-point conversion pass.

The Riders assumed control of the game early, gambling on a third-and-one play in their first series. Green slipped through to operate in the line, broke left and, with Mondy Jackson providing protection, cashed 41 yards into the end zone.

"Sometimes you get lucky on those short yardage situations," Brancato said. "He caught them playing up tight and just slid outside."

When Rudy Sims recovered a fumble by Wade moments later at the Montreal 31-yard line, the Riders marched again, with Organ kicking a 28-yard field goal. The momentum was established and Ottawa went on to score the first six times it had the ball and eight of the first 11.

Montreal coach Marv Levy, who said he was "more than satisfied than disappointed," now must prepare his club for the Tiger-Cats, who qualified for the playoffs with 1:05 remaining in their game when Ian Sunier kicked a 43-yard field goal.

It was enough to give the Tiger-Cats a one-point edge over the Argos in the four games they split this year—and put the Hamilton club into the playoffs.

Sunier had booted three before that and added converts after touchdowns by Terry Evanshen—on a two-yard pass from quarterback Jerry Keeling—and Andy Hopkins, on a two-yard run.

Toronto quarterback Chuck Ealey scampered 25 yards for a touchdown on a broken play and Andruzyshyn kicked a convert and 17-yard field goal.

Sunier who had gone on record as saying the Ticats would overcome Toronto's 15-point scoring edge after their 27-21 win a week earlier, kicked field goals of 16, 47 and 43 yards in the last nine minutes before the drama they needed, out the game may really have been sleep.

Toronto centre Stew Francis felt the game with ligament damage late in the first half, bringing tight end Tom Simpson to take the ball on first and second down and defensive tackle Garrett Hunsperger in to do it in punting situations.

Sunier's decisive field goal was set up when Andruzyshyn, taking a low snap from Hunsperger, tried to run with the ball but fumbled out of bounds.

"I've never snapped before, let alone in a game," Hunsperger said. "I thought I did a pretty good job. That snap wasn't that bad was it?"

While Hunsperger ponders the question, the Ticats have a week to prepare for the Alouettes.

Two Eskimos Set Records

Burden Tops CFL Rushing Mark

By JOHN SHORT
The Canadian Press

For Willie Burden, Sunday was a day most athletes only dream about.

He ran the Canadian Football League rushing records and several two touchdowns as Calgary Stampeders whipped Winnipeg Blue Bombers 35-28 in the final game of the season for both Western Football Conference teams.

And he heard his mother say his effortsmade her feel like a queen for a day."

Mrs. Burden, widowed several years ago when her husband died in a fire, took her first airplane trip and arrived in Calgary from Raleigh, N.C. in time to surprise her son.

"It made me feel good," said Burden after he had run 26 times for 238 yards to establish a single-season rushing record of 1,897 yards, erasing Earl Lunsford's mark of 1,794 yards set in 1961.

"I guess you could say I did it for my mother."

Burden, 25, in his second year with Calgary, also set a single season record for rushing attempts. He wound up with 332, nine more than the record set last week by George Reed of Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The result meant little to either team, although it allowed Calgary to escape the cellar-dweller basement. Winnipeg was assured of third place when Edmonton Eskimos edged British Columbia Lions 13-8 in a down-pour in Vancouver.

George McGowan set a CFL pass-receiving record and Dave Cutler a CFL field goal record for the Eskimos. Cutler kicked field goals for all 12 points Saturday, giving him 40 for the season.

Winnipeg meets Saskatchewan Saturday at Regina in a sudden-death semi-final for the right to face first-place Edmonton in the Western final at Edmonton a week later. Although with B.C. in points, Calgary finished fourth because the Stampeders beat the Lions three times this season.

Burden's two touchdowns included the winner in a high-scoring contest. He burst over from the 13-yard line after scoring previously from the two.

Other Calgary touchdowns were scored by Tom Forzani, WFC candidate for rookie-of-the-year balloting, and Andy Hopkins, on a two-yard run.

Toronto quarterback Chuck Ealey scampered 25 yards for a touchdown on a broken play and Andruzyshyn kicked a convert and 17-yard field goal.

Sunier who had gone on record as saying the Ticats would overcome Toronto's 15-point scoring edge after their 27-21 win a week earlier, kicked field goals of 16, 47 and 43 yards in the last nine minutes before the drama they needed, out the game may really have been sleep.

Toronto centre Stew Francis felt the game with ligament damage late in the first half, bringing tight end Tom Simpson to take the ball on first and second down and defensive tackle Garrett Hunsperger in to do it in punting situations.

Sunier's decisive field goal was set up when Andruzyshyn, taking a low snap from Hunsperger, tried to run with the ball but fumbled out of bounds.

"I've never snapped before, let alone in a game," Hunsperger said. "I thought I did a pretty good job. That snap wasn't that bad was it?"

While Hunsperger ponders the question, the Ticats have a week to prepare for the Alouettes.

Staubach Loses Cool and Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sometimes there's more to a penalty than just 15 yards. Sometimes it's the difference between winning and losing.

In Washington, it was a 15-yarder slapped on Dallas quarterback Roger Staubach for throwing a punch in frustration at Pat Fischer after a pass interception.

"That's the thing that gave us the impetus," Washington quarterback Billy Kilmer said. "Roger's just not his cool."

And in the heat of sudden-death overtime, the Redskins and the Cowboys lost the game too. Kilmer and the Redskins, aroused by the incident and heaved by the 15 yards it gave them, marched relentlessly to the Dallas goal line.

Then, with 4:34 done in the extra period, Kilmer himself banged over for the touchdown that gave Washington a 30-24 victory.

In Cincinnati, a desperate Ken Anderson was tearing apart the Pittsburgh defense with his passes, trying to bring the Bengals back from a 23-3 deficit which he had slashed to 23-17.

But with the Bengals on the Pittsburgh 24-yard line with less than five minutes to play, a holding penalty on Cincinnati tight end Bob Trumpy moved the Bengals back to the 35.

One play later, Mike Wagner made his second interception of the game and returned it 45 yards to Cincinnati's 28. That set up another Pittsburgh touchdown and the Steelers prevailed 30-24.

Bengals' coach Paul Brown saw that holding call as the game's critical play.

"There wasn't much difference between the champs and the runner-ups except for that 15-yard penalty," he said.

In Sunday's other NFL games, St. Louis Cardinals beat New England Patriots 34-27, Houston Oilers downed Kansas City Chiefs 17-13, Minnesota Vikings defeated Green Bay Packers 30-17, Buffalo Bills edged New York Jets 24-23, Miami Dolphins mauled Chicago Bears 46-13, Oakland Raiders crushed Denver Broncos 45-17, New Orleans Saints beat Atlanta Falcons 23-7, Detroit Lions downed San Francisco 49ers 20-17 and Baltimore Colts beat Cleveland Browns 21-7.

In Monday night action, New York Giants whipped San Diego Chargers 35-24. Los Angeles Rams defeated Philadelphia Eagles tonight.

Terry Metcalf scored on runs of one and seven yards, from scrimmage and on a 69-yard sprint with a punt to carry the Cardinals past New England.

Houston quarterback Dan Pastorini and wide receiver Ken Burrough hooked up on touchdown pass plays of 71 and 37 yards.

Minnesota, trailing 17-14 on Ben Packer touchdowns by reserve running back Barry Smith, rallied in the fourth quarter on Tarkenton's fourth quarter touchdown passes of 19 yards to John Gilliam and 15 to Chuck Foreman.

Buffalo quarterback Joe Ferguson clicked with O.J. Simpson on a 12-yard touchdown pass for the victory.

Simpson rushed for 94 yards, giving him 1,005 for the year and 7,283 for his career, moving him past Leroy Kelly and into fourth place among the NFL's all-time rushers.

Bob Griese passed for 288 yards, including touchdowns of 20 yards to Norm Bulaich, 79 yards to Nat Moore and 10 yards to Fred Solomon in Miami's rout of the Bears.

Jim Plunkett passed for two touchdowns in the third quarter and Pete Banaszak ran for two more in the fourth as Oakland overcame Denver's 10-7 halftime lead.

Archie Manning beamed a 73-yard touchdown pass to Larry Burton to help the Saints give Hank Stram, their new head coach, a victory in his debut against the Falcons.

Flyers Whip Napanee 7-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Three goals by Phil Baird led Barrie Flyers to a 7-2 win over Napanee Comets in Ontario Hockey Association Senior A action Sunday.

In the only other scheduled game Sunday, Thunder Bay Twins defeated Whitby Warriors 5-3 at Thunder Bay.

On Saturday, Thunder Bay tied 3-3 with the visiting Warriors and Cambridge Hornets edged Orillia Terriers 3-2.

Gary Lyle scored twice for the Flyers on Sunday, and Paul Regan and Doug Acomb scored the other Barrie goals.

Wayne Elder and Charlie Convery scored for the Comets.

League play resumes tonight with Whitby at Lindsay.

Twins 5 Warriors 3

Thunder Bay Twins scored three unanswered goals in the third period Sunday to snap a 3-3 deadlock with Whitby in a game played before a crowd of 2,250.

The win gave the Twins six of a possible eight points in back-to-back weekend games.

Because the Twins are playing an abbreviated schedule, a win is worth four points and a tie two points.

Playing coach Brian DePiero paced the Twins with three goals, while Russ Elliott and Chuck Kelner got the other goals. Ed Philpott and Doug Keeler replied for Whitby.

The Twins took advantage of five minor penalties against Whitby by scoring two power-play goals. Thunder Bay was assessed just two minors.

Brian Wilson turned in a standout performance in the Whitby net by blocking 48 shots. At the other end of the rink, Ken Torko turned aside 30 shots for the Twins.

Hornets 3 Terriers 2

Mark Durnwell scored at 11:25 of the third period Saturday to give Cambridge the win before 1,100 spectators.

The Hornets tied the score early in the second period on goals by Jerry Herrigan and defenceman Doug Mckay.

Warriors 3 Twins 3

Ron Campbell scored Thunder Bay's first goal of the season Saturday and Paul Raymer replied for Whitby to leave the teams deadlocked at 1-1 after 20 minutes of play.

After a scoreless second period, playing coach Brian DePiero scored on a power play in the third to give the Twins the lead. The Warriors tied the game midway through the period on a goal by Bob Edmonds.

NOTHING
about your new color television going on the blink. It's not even funny (only) when you find out that the large TV repair shop you've been using for years (and doesn't do repairs in your home) has their repair work out to somebody else. Sometimes even a month or more. Sometimes.

At Angelo's TV you don't have to worry. We sell top quality NEW color television sets. Then we service televisions too. That's not all — we're right here in Belleville. We're not around when you need us.

Drop in this week and take a look at some QUALITY color sets. We're at the Belleville Plaza.

Artist in Residence Defends His Regionalism

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Greg Curnoe sat in his new studio, an annex to the McIntosh Art Gallery at University of Western Ontario, and worked on his latest painting titled Doc Morton — a bicycle built in 1934.

Mr. Curnoe, 38, is the first Londoner to be appointed artist-in-residence at Western. He was chosen from several well-known artists for the prestigious post.

He said it is right that a London artist should hold the job, for he believes in support of the home-grown product.

But he expressed annoyance at having been accused of being parochial and said misunderstanding continues concerning what his regionalism, his Canadianism and his anti-Americanism.

"When some of us got together and started the Region Gallery and put out a magazine, we didn't realize we were doing something that was the beginning of a widespread trend," he said.

"We didn't know regionalism was going to be the thing and we just thought it would be good to do it here."

Mr. Curnoe said he believes that local activities and art of all kinds deserve recognition nationally and internationally.

His anti-Americanism is a wish for Canadians to stand up and say: "We're good, sometimes even great and we are Canadians, not Americans."

His water-colors of bikes are owned by the National Gallery and the Art Gallery of Ontario and he has three more planned.

Mr. Curnoe ranks Matisse and Van Dongen at the top in influences on his work from the time he was an art student to the present.

He has been studying Van Dongen more intensely in the last while in preparation as "doing a lot more life drawings than I've done for a long while."

He is also participating in the life class instructed by Roy Fenwick at the university and what comes from it will be part of his one-man exhibit in the McIntosh Art Gallery next spring, he said.

Mr. Curnoe is also still active with the Nihilist Spasm Band, a group of city residents who play on home-made instruments, have no director and are strictly individualists in the way they play with no regard for technical excellence or balance.

"The National Gallery chose the Nihilist Spasm Band to represent Canada at the Paris Biennial in 1969," he said. "It was because we were doing something unique that we were chosen."

And he laughs when people try to see something profoundly planned about his paintings, whether old or new.

"I couldn't see the solemn approach to art at all and I still can't," he said.

Newfoundland Has Poor Vegetables

ST. JOHN'S Nfld. (CP)—The past summer was a relatively poor season for vegetable growing in Newfoundland and many farmers report they had reduced crop yields.

Reports from various parts of the province vary but the overall picture shows the root crop harvest will probably turn out to be below last year's which depicts the biggest victim.

Last year the potato crop was good but many farmers had a difficult time marketing their crops because of an abundance of imported spuds selling at low prices.

July was a trying month of long, hot days for east coast farmers while rain in August started a period of renewed growth for their crops, those that had survived July's heat. Small seed varieties such as lettuce were lost during the mid-summer drought.

The hay crop did not suffer severely during the hot days. The wet spring brought grass to a well-advanced growing stage by late June and the stands were able to stand up to the high temperatures.

In pasture lands, however, the story was different. When livestock was turned out to graze, the spring growths were chewed down and the second growth was inhibited.

In the central area of the province, root crops did not feature quickly. One farmer who has worked the area for 15 years said potatoes "took the worst beating" with the crop only half what was been expected.

Reports from the west coast were more favorable than those from the other areas.

In the Codroy Valley, a verdant area of rivers, root crops were equal to or better than average in yield although the hay crop was down by half.

Unlike the eastern area where spring rains had helped the early formation of grass, the western sector had no heavy rainfall after early May and the usually abundant growth was stunted.

"The season got off to a poor start with low temperatures during the early part of June," said one federal official.

Laser Used In Weather

TORONTO (CP) — Researchers at York University are using a laser to pierce some of the smog surrounding the chancy business of weather prediction and pollution detection.

Glen Baines, one of the researchers on the project, said the laser may some day provide the most accurate analysis of atmospheric conditions in the country.

"Although weather predictions such as 'it will rain today at exactly 2 p.m.' are still a long way off, this machine makes such precise forecasts at least a possibility for the future," he said.

The weather project is one of several being undertaken at the university's Centre for Research in Experimental Space Science.

For Tuesday, Nov. 4

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your thoughtfulness today may not reap an immediate reward but it will not be forgotten quickly. You've won a loyal ally.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) One who is very fond of you now needs your moral support. Let her know you'll stand behind her decisions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Unity there is strength today. Work closely with those who share a kinship of interests. Mutual benefits will result.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It's to your advantage to conduct important business late in the day. At that time you tend to view things more prudently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If your priorities are not in proper order today the results will be fruitful. Handle domestic and financial situations first.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's a good day to take care of a serious matter you've been postponing. When dealing with the party concerned be friendly but firm.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conduct one who is obligated to you financially today to see if some type of repayment plan can be worked out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Follow through on today's developments. They'll lead to benefits for your career—and more, anyone. Don't be afraid of extra responsibility.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Youre a bit reluctant to ask another for something that's owed you. Talk it over now. It won't jeopardize the relationship.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Others will be playing a bigger hand today than you'll be aware of in a matter that's important to you. Fortunately, it's in your favor.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Time is your ally today. Be persistent. Don't give up if you suffer a temporary setback. On the second try, you'll make it.

Surgery Corrects 'Funnel Chest'

By G. C. Thorarson, MD

Dear Dr. Thoreson: My daughter is that 15-month-old and has what the doctor calls a "funnel chest." He says it is not a very serious one at this point. We have discussed it and I have not been able to understand much about it.

I would like to know what causes it? Is there anything to do about it?

Can it be cured or fixed now or in later years?

—Mrs. G. C.

A funnel chest, called "pectus excavatum," is a depression of the breastbone (sternum), the vertical structure to which the ribs are attached. In funnel chest, the depression is at the lower portion of the chest and it causes the characteristic howing in of the chest. Thus the name.

Its cause is uncertain. One theory is that there is a maldevelopment of the front cartilages of the diaphragm — a shortening of a central tendon attaching to the breastbone — which exerts an abnormal inward pressure.

My consultant, Dr. J. H. Hertzler, a pediatric surgeon, tells me this is an unusual condition. He believes it is caused by parts of the fetus exerting abnormal pressures on the breastbone. Since it may be found in several members of the same family, hereditary factors are suggested.

This birth defect is serious only when the depression is severe enough to cause a "crowding" of organs that lie behind the area — the heart and lungs, notably. Your physician apparently feels your daughter's case does not fit that category as yet, so it poses an immediate problem.

Later, if necessary, surgery can correct the depression. This is done after the fourth year, and is possible up until puberty. An X-ray of the chest from the front and the sides will provide continuing information regarding the progress of the condition.

The child should be watched for such symptoms as undue shortness of breath. When the child can co-operate, lung function tests will help keep you posted on progress. Heart function will also be monitored from time to time to detect any impairment.

Some surgeons are reluctant to suggest repair of the defect unless it can be demonstrated that the condition poses an actual threat to health. Some do not consider repair for cosmetic purposes justified.

I have had personal experience with this problem in a grandson. After examination and testing, it was decided to do nothing. The boy, now 12, tells the curious simply that he was "born that way". The funnel is little over a year old, needs nothing done at present.

Exercises to develop the chest wall are important. Pulling on a rope, push ups, deep breathing, blowing into a balloon or on a musical instrument have been helpful in improving a minor depression.

For you, the next few years will be the crucial ones.

Dear Dr. Thoreson: I would like to make donations to fundamental doing research on both the diabetes and kidney disease, but I cannot seem to find how to. Can you give me any addresses? — Mrs. F.E.

Local diabetes and kidney foundation units are usually listed in telephone directories of any large city near you. This usually applies to other groups doing research into other diseases. These groups welcome such donations.

CONFIDENTIAL TO Mrs. A.: — The fact that you have not had intercourse in more than 20 years would rest out pregnancy, especially since you say that you are still menstruating. Precautions under similar circumstances, even though you are 50, would be in order.

Oswald: "The continent-wide charity game will be played later on this month. This duplicate game is played all over the continent under the auspices of the American Contract Bridge League Charity Foundation."

Jim: "With its 4d thousands of people playing the same hands anything is likely to happen and does happen."

Oswald: "Here is a hand from the spring game. The bidding in the box is what might take place with a pair who play standard Americian without any blayman responses. South opens two notrump with his balanced 22 high-card points. North bids his five-card club suit and South shows his five hearts. Then after North raises to game, South takes the bull by the horns. Blackwoods to find the missing ace and goes to seven."

Jim: "There are 13 easy tricks. The hands are a perfect fit and we imagine that many pairs wouldn't even get to six. Of course, the score would go to anyone who bid seven notrump. A finesse is required but the finesse is on."

Ask the Jacobys

A reader from North Dakota wants to know if we would open the bidding at 1 spade and with:

♠ A K Q 8 7 3 ♥ K 7 ♦ A 8 4 ♣ K 5.

The answer is a decided "No". Not only are we unlikely to lose points because of bidding with this balanced mass, but we also lack the match partnership confidence that he will start to dissect at our bids.

Town Hit Hard By Rail Accident

BOMBAY (AP) — All work ceased in the villages of Mankhurd and Govandi when a Deccan Queen express train roared through at 80 miles an hour.

The doors of houses were closed and the muffled cries of women and children filled the air.

Almost every family in Mankhurd has a member or a relation in India's most ghastly railroad accident in many years.

Sixty-one residents were killed when the truck bringing them back from a wedding was hit by a speeding express train at a level crossing.

The injured included Uttam Kumar, 4, and his grandparents, Asha Lata, the bride.

Bagoo Jagtap, a 60-year-old farmer of Morcegaon, said the tragedy could have been avoided if the level crossing had been manned by the railroad police or a safety system by electronic devices.

"We will not rest until all the crossings in the country are made safe," said Jagtap. "If necessary, we will stage a march on Parliament in New Delhi. For the past 10 years I've sue will dominate Morcegaon."

But Junior Railway Minister Mohammed Qureishi said it is not possible to make every level crossing safe.

"About 17,000 of the 41,000 crossings all over India now are manned for safety," he said. "We do not have the resources to man all of them. It is the duty of people using unmanned crossings to take care and watch out for trains."

A senior official of India's government-owned railways said train drivers are often careless when approaching level crossings.

"Some are so drunk they can't even see or hear approaching trains."

A report in the newspaper Maratha Patrika said as many as 1,000 people die in level-crossing accidents every year.

Last year, 300 careless commuters died under the wheels of speeding trains in the Bombay area.

Summer is the worst period for level-crossing tragedies in rural India because it is the travelling season, he said.

It is a common sight to find bullock carts carrying wedding guests moving slowly across the tracks.

Said the driver of the crack Bombay-Madras mail train: "Often, I have to keep sounding the locomotive whistle continuously for several minutes to scare away the carts. I dread the timing of the wedding season."

The federal railway ministry plans to spend $30 million this year on construction of overpasses and underpasses at "vulnerable" crossings.

Said a ministry official: "The problem is while more railroads are being built to open up inferior areas, peasants are also building more dirt roads across rail tracks to speed up marketing of their produce."

Lewis Denounces Civil Disobedience

BARRIE, Ont. (CP) — Civil disobedience is not the way to oppose the federal government's wage and price controls, Stephen Lewis, Ontario New Democratic Party leader, said Saturday.

"I don't believe in civil disobedience," he told the Simcoe Centre NDP Association. "If you don't like the law, change the government."

Mr. Lewis said in an interview, referring to a plan by the Canadian Labor Congress to spend $200,000 in a campaign against the guidelines, that it is perfectly legitimate to campaign against the guidelines, exercise collective bargaining and exercise the right to strike.

But he said "acts of civil disobedience like a general strike in open defiance of the guidelines should not be pursued. They are destructive of society."

Maloney to Investigate Provincial Institutions

TORONTO (CP) — Arthur Maloney, Ontario ombudsman, said Sunday his office will investigate statements and charges that a major riot might occur at any provincial correctional institution at any time.

"I have been informed of the resolution adopted at the annual meeting of the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) relating to the alleged state of affairs in the correctional institutional system," he said in a news release.

Mr. Maloney said Keith Holyer, legal officer for the ombudsman's office, will meet with Vic Cooper, president of CSAO correctional services division.

Mr. Cooper made the statements regarding conditions at the institutions at the annual CSAO meeting last week.

The ombudsman said he had noted Mr. Cooper's comments on the alleged inhuman treatment of prisoners, "the possible threat to the lives and property of our citizens and the possible danger to the lives of correctional officers."

Mr. Holyer also will meet with officials of the ministry of correctional services and other CSAO members.

Meanwhile, Donald Kerr, spokesman for the ministry, said in an interview Sunday that many provincial institutions are seriously overcrowded at this time in time.

Mr. Kerr said police and courts continue to put more persons in custody to await trial because of public outcry at letting persons accused of crimes out of jail on bail.

If the number of persons remanded increases, a program to ease overcrowding in existing jails may be delayed, he said.

Mr. Kerr said there is $60 million in new construction under way to replace outdated institutions in Toronto, Hamilton and London, Ont. But he said the new centres will not be able to ease overcrowding in existing institutions until fall, 1977.

Pepin Cautions Board's New Power

OTTAWA (CP) — Jean-Luc Pepin, chairman of the anti-inflation review board, says the new board may not have as much independence as the former food prices review board.

Appearing on the CTV program Question Period taped Friday and broadcast Sunday, he said the food price board was much more marginal to the operation of government than the new board, which will be "part of a much more global operation of the government against inflation. . ."

However, he said he personally feels it would be in the interests of the government, the people and the board to have a "certain independence of views from the governmental."

Mr. Pepin, a former industry, trade and commerce minister, was asked about the effects of labor's not supporting the government's wage and price restraint program.

"Well, this is where the reaction of the Canadians as a whole is of paramount importance," he said.

"If there is, and it appears that it is growing, . . . a strong desire on the part of Canadians as a whole, as a population, to make this thing work . . . it will have a snowballing effect on others who are less sympathetic to it at first glance."

Mr. Pepin also said it would have been easier to organize the board if the government had frozen prices for 30 to 60 days.

However, there were disadvantages to a freeze and it would not have been in accord with the "self-voluntary restraint that the government is indicating. . ."

Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the food price board, is vice-chairman of the new board and Mr. Pepin said her system of checking out complaints about high prices will be used.

Lawyers Should Specify Fees

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyers should tell new clients in writing how they calculate their fees even if the information is not requested, says an Ontario Supreme Court official.

William McBride, a taxing officer who arbitrates disputes over fees between lawyers and clients, made the comment in a judgment that reduced by $2,500 a bill of almost $6,000 a Toronto lawyer had charged a woman to handle her prolonged divorce case.

Mr. McBride said evidence indicated the lawyer told the woman he would charge $1,000 for an uncontested divorce and $1,500 if the husband fought her petition. He said an hourly fee rate was not discussed.

He said the lawyer's accounts showed that he charged $75 an hour for his own time, $15 an hour "for a law student who worked for him and $5 a letter for 85 letters—totalling "a jarring fee of $5,962.50."

The lawyer testified that he did not send the woman a bill when the fee reached $1,500 because he did not think she was able to pay it. Mr. McBride asked: "How, pray tell, is she supposed to pay the larger bill?"

Contentious Bills Before Parliament

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has struck a tentative agreement with opposition parties to pass a series of bills — some of them highly contentious — by Christmas.

Party House leaders already have set Dec. 19 as the target date for starting their Christmas recess and have negotiated a rough schedule of business to be disposed of in the meantime. Included is the controversial anti-inflation bill, now under detailed study in committee after a stormy debate at second reading.

Also on the list, along with several minor bills, is legislation to overhaul the unemployment insurance program, reduce spiralling medical care costs and rubber stamp tax changes that took effect when the last budget was tabled in June.

Negotiations by House leaders are common in setting the Commons agenda but the talks on what should be cleared by Christmas have started earlier than usual.

"We all know there is a lot to be done," says Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin. "They (the government) are pretty far behind."

Stanley Knowles, New Democratic Party House leader, said there is no guarantee that the tentative agenda will be completed.

"It doesn't take much to throw these things off. One unexpected setback and that could be it. But this is what we're talking about."

Sunday Trucking Before Supreme Court

OTTAWA (CP) The Supreme Court of Canada will be asked today to scrutinize the federal Lord's Day Act and to decide the quarrelsome issue of long-haul Sunday trucking.

The City of Hamilton will ask the high court to hear its appeal against a federal transport commission decision allowing two major long-haul trucking companies to work Sundays. If the court agrees to hear the appeal, the outcome is likely to affect many large trucking companies operating on a national scale.

The two motor vehicle transport committee of the commission granted permission in May to Motorways (Ontario) Ltd. of Rexdale, Ont., and Soo-Security Motorways Transport Ltd. of Winnipeg to operate Sundays on most major highways between Montreal and Vancouver.

The committee refused to hear Hamilton's arguments about noise, pollution and congestion, saying it does not have the power to take those factors into account.

Its decision was upheld in September by the Federal Court.

The Lord's Day Act prohibits trucking on Sundays except in cases of necessity or mercy, and the transport commission is empowered to decide the exceptions.

The committee said in its May decision that maximum utilization of motor transport equipment is essential to provide the lowest freight rates. Sunday layoffs might cause highway transport rates to lose their competiveness and the result might be higher prices for consumers.

Some Progress But...

Monetary Issues Still Unsettled

OTTAWA (CP) — Post-master-General Bryce Mackasey said today that all but monetary issues have been resolved following an all-night session of talks between the union and post office.

The talks were adjourned at about 5:30 a.m. EST and were to continue at 2:30 p.m. today.

"We've cleaned up all the non-monetary clauses," Mr. Mackasey said. "The only ones left are monetary in nature."

The postmaster-general said he was pleased with the results of Monday night's meeting, but added:

"I don't want to make any predictions—we're still a far way from a settlement."

Both Mr. Mackasey and Jean-Claude Parrot, the chief negotiator for the 22,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), had appeared optimistic when they entered the night bargaining session at about 10 p.m.

Mr. Mackasey had said, on leaving for a short recess just before 1 p.m. that the session he had just left was "the most fruitful two hours I've spent in a long time."

The night session was the third of a day.

Some observers believed the so-called casual clause was the only one really remaining to be settled in detail, along with the issue of electronic surveillance.

Both sides already had agreed in principle the use of casual labor is necessary for smooth post office operation at certain times. What had to be settled was when those times would be and under what conditions casual workers would be employed.

The money issue is relatively clear cut.

Mr. Mackasey has maintained since well before the strike started 15 days ago that there is no more money available than the $1.70-an-hour increase recommended in the conciliation report brought down by Judge Jean Moisan of the Quebec Superior Court.

That offer, over a 30-month contract, would be retroactive to Jan. 1 with each worker getting a lump sum payment of between $1,000 and $1,200 and a cost-of-living increase.

The workers now earn an average $4.58 an hour and the union, once asking a 71 per cent increase in 24 months, has lowered its sights to 31 per cent over a 27-month contract.

Belleville to Apply For 78 Summer Games

BY HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A request that Belleville be the site of the 1978 summer Ontario Games is off and running.

City council Monday night approved a resolution it apply to the provincial government to send the big province-wide meet of amateur athletics to Belleville for the city's centennial year.

The application—after months of reviewing the possibilities of such a project—which also produced an administrative committee that wasn't feasible.

But the decision received little comment when it came before council—rest is by the recreation-arena committee.

It was to the committee that former mayor Robin Jeffrey early this year first posed the possibility of the 1978 games as a prime part of the programming for Belleville's centennial.

Later, the committee discovered that one of the criteria laid down by the province's culture and recreation ministry governing the games involved accommodation.

The ministry wanted to know if Belleville could accommodate the expected 2,000 athletes who would participate in the long-weekend series of sporting events.

A survey of Quinte-district hotels, motels and institutions by recreation director Clifford Belch indicated a shortfall of about 250 beds.

Later, in an interview, Ald. George Zegouras, committee chairman, expressed confidence sufficient facilities would be available in the area by the centennial.

Noting the problem, Ald. Stu Meeks last night said: "We've contacted J.R. Burns, Canadian National Railways Belleville district manager about one solution: Could CN provide public man sleeping cars to help offset any accommodation shortage during the Games.

Mr. Burns had asked the request in writing, he said.

Ald. Joe Cox said the recreation — arena committee could later suggest such a letter be sent by city council.

There are both winter and summer Ontario Games. The committee — among other reasons — opted for the latter as weather event because of certainty of climate and facilities. More institutional dormitory and catering facilities might also be available in summer.

The provincial games — for which participants are chosen from regional events — are aimed at improving competition and producing better athletes, says Lorne Williams, former city recreation director and now the ministry's field consultant working out of Belleville in a territory reaching to the Quebec border.

Such events also aid in selection of entrants for the Canada and Pan-American games, he believed.

Approval of Belleville's selection is now up to the province, he said.

If endorsed the ministry later will send down officials to help co-ordinate the programs as the event approaches.

Mayor Ben Corke Thanks Robin Jeffrey

City Plaque Not Enough As Council Thanks Jeffrey

BY HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A familiar personality—whose leadership of Belleville's civic affairs ended with an even more dramatic political segue—sat briefly back in city hall Monday.

This time Robin Jeffrey stood outside the regulation rail of the city council chamber where her political career unfurled—and its abrupt interruption a few short months when she resigned as mayor in an unsuccessful bid for higher office as a provincial government candidate.

But Monday the former mayor's presence in the city's political arena was plenty—and warmly—personal.

She was there at the request of city council to receive civic thanks for her years of local government service—a record dating back to 1958 when she first took her place as an alderman, then as mayor by election in 1973 and again last year by acclamation.

Formally, the gesture came in the standard form — a plaque.

But, said Mayor Ben Corke—appointed Mrs. Jeffrey's successor when she resigned to run as Progressive Conservative candidate in Quinte in the Sept. 11 provincial election—her civic contribution, "cannot be realized by the single presentation of a plaque."

Belleville had an "excellent leader" in a community for its quality and industrial location had a reputation for "honesty" in the world of business and finance.

"In this excellent blend is your own mix of dedication and good sense" — and the blend is richer because of it," said Mayor Corke.

Mrs. Jeffrey told her former colleagues her life had changed "dramatically" since the previous election.

"I know the joy of victory — and I know the anguish of defeat," she said.

However she said, she would maintain a life interest in municipal affairs.

She offered one bit of advice: It's important for the public to understand what local government intends. A "knowing public" assist any municipal council."

However, her present retirement from civic affairs may do it to be total as she presumed.

Before the council meeting ended Ald. Stu Meeks gave notice of motion he would ask council to form a special committee to organize the planned 1976 visit of citizens from Belleville's twin city of Lahr, West Germany.

He will propose it be named the Twin City Committee, said Ald. Meeks.

And its chairman: Robin Jeffrey.

Ford Claims No Policy Change in New Personnel

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is changing personnel not policy, saying a new team of "my guys" will continue on a course of peace and prosperity for the United States.

Ford announced the biggest shakeup of his administration Monday night in the top levels of defence and foreign policy. He also said that while Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller is dropping off the 1976 presidential election team, Rockefeller has promised to support his election bid.

Ford told a news conference that he isn't worried about Ronald Reagan or any other challenger and that he is optimistic about the election.

"I am not worried about any competitor, Democratic or Republican," he said. "I am confident the American people feel that we have been successful in foreign policy, the Middle East, Europe, et cetera.

"I am convinced that we are well on the road to a good economic situation in 1976. So, when you combine peace and prosperity, any incumbent president ought to be very happy."

The biggest changes included:

—James Schlesinger, who has frequently disagreed openly with State Secretary Henry Kissinger over defence policy as the Soviet Union, is out as defence secretary. He will be replaced by Donald Rumsfeld, now White House staff chief.

Sources close to Ford say Rumsfeld will balance Kissinger's influence and that both will have equal access to Ford, though Pentagon officials say Rumsfeld will have to assert himself early to avoid being dominated by Kissinger.

—William Colby is fired as head of the CIA, to be replaced by George Bush, former Texas congressman, Republican national chairman, U.S. ambassador to the United Nations and now U.S. representative in Peking.

—Elliot Richardson, former attorney-general and current ambassador to Britain, is to become commerce secretary, this fourth cabinet post under two administrations. Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem., Minn.) foresaw the move as adding Richardson's name to the list of Republican vice-presidential possibilities.

Commerce Secretary Rogers Morton is returning to private life after the first of the year, but Ford says he will be calling on Morton for aid in the future, making speculation about a campaign post.

—Kissinger gives up his role as director of the National Security Council (NSC). But Ford says he still will have the dominant role in the formulation of and carrying out of foreign policy.

Barrett Calls B.C. Election Dec. 11

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier Dave Barrett, appealing to the "unheard majority" to express its feelings at his government's anti-inflation measures, called a provincial general election Monday for Dec. 11.

Mr. Barrett told a news conference that his New Democratic Party government is taking the people of B.C. to accept the Oct. 7 legislation forcing a temporary end to four major labor disputes and the Oct. 17 freeze on the price of food and other essentials until Jan. 1.

Other policies and programs dealing with inflation will be spelled out during the election campaign, said the premier.

The NDP took office in September, 1972, after defeating the Social Credit party, which had governed the province for 20 years under the leadership of W. A. C. Bennett.

Official nominations for the province's 55-seat legislature will close Nov. 27.

Standard-set dissolution of the house: NDP 37, Social Credit, 16, Liberal 2, Conservative 1, vacant 1.

Opposition Leader Bill Bennett said in Kelowna, B.C., the premier called the election out of fear of the government's record.

He said the government has depleted the B.C. treasury and caused heavy unemployment.

Liberal Leader Gordon Gibson said his party is ready for an election, but said he disagrees with the timing of the election because it will take place before redistribution of provincial electoral boundaries is complete.

Mr. Gibson said he does not expect his party to form the next government, but does expect to split the NDP vote and have a minimum position of balance of power.

Principals Will Back Striking Teachers With Their Salaries

BY RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

Trenton branch of the Ontario Public School Men Teachers' Federation (OPSMTF) has thrown its support behind a province-wide drive to establish a strike fund from the salaries of principals and vice-principals.

Bill 100, the controversial legislation governing teacher-board negotiations, prohibits principals and vice-principals from striking with teacher federations. However, principals and vice-principals have traditionally been members in these federations and often end taking an active leadership role.

Last summer the provincial executive of the OPSMTF set up a plan whereby all member principals and vice-principals would forward their salaries during a teacher strike but would continue to pay salaries to OPSMTF until the duration of the strike.

Hastings district OPSMTF president Wayne Sheppard said Monday the strike fund will be used to support a strike. However, he said the OPSMTF had pledged to return 50 per cent of the contributions made by each principal or vice-principal once the strike has concluded.

These funds will be added to a larger strike chest made up of $200 promissory note from each member teacher in the federation. The note will be used by the OPSMTF to borrow money for strike support and political activities.

Although he does not anticipate a strike situation in Hastings County Mr. Sheppard said the financial support of the principals and vice - principals will be a moral victory for the teacher federation.

All federations protested the legislation last spring which prohibited principals and vice-principals from joining the teachers in a strike. Mr. Sheppard, who is a teacher at Queen Victoria Public School in Trenton, said the principal's contribution represents another form of protest.

Traditionally, principals have viewed themselves as teachers first and school administrators second. Many of them agree the legislation alienates them and forces them to take sides with the board of education.

Last spring the Hasting County Board of Education ordered this part of the legislation claiming that principals have an equal duty to operate the school facilities and be directly responsible to the board.

Other teacher federations, including the Ontario Secondary have act on similar war chests in the vent of a strike.

The Trenton members of the OPSMTF supported the action at its organizational meeting last week. Newly-elected president Wayne Wickson said the promissory note program is vital to teachers this year.

Bayside Traffic Problem Worries Staff and Students

By JERRY BROWN
Staff Reporter

BAYSIDE — Students and staff at Bayside Secondary School are wondering whether it will take a traffic fatality to draw enough attention to the hazardous turn problem from the eastbound lane of Highway 2 before the situation is corrected.

A group of student leaders has sent letters to the editor asking "Does a teen-ager have to be killed before the reeve and council (Sidney) and the ministry of transportation and communications (MTC) realize the seriousness of our problem?"

The students said their actions follows two accidents at the sight within four days last week, making the total number for the year five.

"It is a dangerous condition that has been present since the school was opend in 1973 and should be resolved," said Lisnar Read, principal.

Mr. Read said the ministry has recognized the stretch of highway as a problem area but said blinking lights and extra turn lane were not called for.

The ministry said the students and staff using the entrance should begin using the Alkens Read entrance to the grounds now used only by buses and that a turn lane be built, and that local drivers should become "self-educated" about the trouble spot.

Mr. Read said it is not logical to reroute all the vehicular traffic through the bus area where 90 grade school children currently enter and exit their school behind the main building. He said he feels it is not feasible for people in boards about the problem because of the geography of the road at this point.

"Not only is the entrance shielded from view of eastbound vehicles but all these drivers have a tendency to speed after passing Alkens Road, never realizing there may be a school road so close," he said.

There have been at least 13 accidents involving eastbound cars turning into the school from Highway 2 and all of the cars have been struck in the rear," Mr. Read said. There was one accident where a parent and three teen-agers in the car were barely able to escape from two rear windows before the inside of the car burst into flames," said the principal.

Studies conducted by the ministry contend that illumination of the area by the flashlights or turn lane would not rectify the situation because these actions are only necessary in certain weather conditions under the highway act.

The Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police suggested more than a year ago the ministry re-examine the problem, said a spokesman.

"The MTC is fully aware of the present condition at this intersection and it is still under investigation," said a department commander V. A. Clive, Monday.

Sgt. Clive said the director of the safety standards branch of the MTC would be in Belleville on a routine visit Nov. 19 and that the problem would be discussed with him at that time.

Eric Runacres, director of education for the Hastings County said his office is aware of the problem and is currently considering what action to take.

"We have been going through normal channels but it looks like the only thing that may help the situation is a trip to Toronto," Mr. Runacres said Monday.

"I guess anyone that is making a turn into the school just has to keep looking over their shoulder and checking the rear view mirror until the problem is fixed" said Mr. Read.

Students Protest Traffic

Dan Quinsey, a member of the Bayside Secondary School leader's club presents a petition to school principal Liston Read. The students group is protesting lack of response from the ministry of transport and communications which has stated there is no need for illumination traffic signals or a turn lane at the school entrance, the scene of 13 car accidents since the school opened three years ago.

Town Letter Wants Parking Clarification

PICTON — Town council has agreed to forward a letter to the owner of the Armory Mall seeking his co-operation in enforcing private parking regulations without offending shoppers.

The letter was suggested by Picton mayor Donald King who told council Monday that he has received several complaints from residents whose cars were chained to weighted blocks when they parked at the rear of the mall. A telephone number and the word "impounded" is written on the barrels and when the motorist dials for help a man arrives who charges $10 for removal of the chains.

"I think it has a definite bearing on the town and it is not good for public relations," asserted mayor King.

Town solicitor Jack Ward told council that the signing at the rear of the mall makes it difficult for motorists to determine the reserved areas. He added that the fact that tenant parking could mean that shop owners, staff and or shop owners and their customers customers.

The solicitor noted that if the entire lot is reserved then there should be two signs on Mary Street advising the public of the limited parking.

"It is a questionable situation now," said Mr. Ward.

He suggested that the man who arrives to remove the barrel and chains is not impeding a fine of $10 but is just charging for his services.

Picton deputy-reeve Richard Byers said he viewed the situation with mixed feeling as he has experienced problems with motorists who park in his private lot.

He said that his signs and newspaper advertisements are totally ignored and he understands the frustration of the mall owners.

The deputy-reeve added that if the town intervenes with a letter to the mall owner because of a citizen's complaint there will be intervence in a civil matter.

Council Orders Committee To Check Lock-up Facilities

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A special committee of town council appointed Monday by mayor Donald King will investigate complaints from the Picton Police Commission concerning lock-up facilities here.

The committee was named after council received a letter from police commission chairman Jesse Masson emphasizing that cells at the old Prince Edward court house and jail are "inadequate and dangerous."

Mr. Masson noted that the police commission informed council of the inadequacies of the detention facilities several months ago and stated at that time that it was not prepared to take responsibility for any incidents that might occur there "which would be beyond the control of the man who was left in charge during a detention time."

He added that Picton police chief Charles Fletcher is primarily responsible for what occurs in the lock-up The chief has stressed the condition of the cells to the police commission and it is agreed that the situation is deplorable."

Mr. Masson said the cells are inadequate and dangerous because they cannot be heated properly and the cell doors represent a hazard to potential suicides.

"If anything happened as a result of these conditions someone would be severely criticized," declared Mr. Masson.

He observed that the police commission does not feel it should take responsibility for conditions at the lock-up and he suggested that town council is primarily responsible because it controls the funds necessary to provide the proper detention facilities.

Town clerk Andrew Jarvis told council the town rents lock-up facilities at the court house for $1,200 a year" as is" and adding there is little chance that the province will agree to major renovations to the cell area.

He said that council has studied the feasibility of utilizing the lock-up at the local Ontario Provincial Police detachment headquarters but it is not adequate.

He appointed Picton reeve Larry Richardson, deputy reeve Richard Byers and councillor Russell Alexander to a special committee that will meet with the chief of police and report to council.

Woman Killed

TRENTON — A 63-year-old Athens woman died in Trenton Memorial Hospital after the car she was the sole occupant of went out of control on Highway 401 and crushed her, Monday morning, a police spokesman said.

Dead is Blanche Watts who was thrown from the rolling vehicle and pinned underneath it, police said. The car was travelling eastbound, three miles west of Trenton, when it lost control.

Proclamation Fails To Get Council Okay

PICTON — Town council Monday night refused to proclaim Nov. 2 to 8 as Nutrition Week because the proclamation would not be backed by special events or a publicity campaign.

Dr. C. R. Lenk, medical officer of health with the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit requested the proclamation in a letter to council.

He said it was originally requested by the chairman of the Nutrition Week Committee of the Ontario Dietetic Association.

Picton reeve Larry Richardson stated that the request was late and he could see little value in the proclamation unless it were backed by a specific program of events.

"I am not opposed to weeks"; they are fine in their place," he observed.

Reeve Richardson added that the organizations and groups requesting the proclamations should be prepared to pay for the advertisements.

Council voted to receive and file the request for Nutrition Week here.

Religious Wars of Our Time Show World Has Advanced Little Since Crusades

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Remember the religious wars of — my high school history book?

There was, for example the Thirty Years War between 1618 and 1684, whose cause and bloody battles which devastated what is modern Germany for almost 100 years, were all based on bitter religious differences between Protestants and Catholics.

Long before that war, there were the many crusades of medieval times, pitting the best warriors and the devout rank-and-file of Christian Europe against the same kind of people in the Islamic Middle East.

And in between these events spanning about five centuries, were other wars, civil wars, brutal assaults by monarchs on their subjects, the Spanish Inquisition burning Protestants, the Tudor English Queen beheading Catholics, all of them in the name of religion.

History then was taught almost with an academic sigh of relief that all this blood and hate- bigotry was in the history books.

Yes said our history teacher, we did have wars in our own time, like the First and Second World Wars but they were fought for the preservation of "high ideals."

There was no muddy religious basis for the greater human and physical destruction they created than the Thirty Years War fought for three decades was capable of producing.

In a way our history teachers were wrong on this assessment. As a boy I remember the heavy, hard-bound volumes of the First World War's pictorial history produced by The Times of London and in which the chaplains of either side were photographed at prayer or saying mass with the troops in the field.

There were the Protestant padres and Catholic chaplains in the field with the British and French soldiers praying for mind against the Imperial German Lutheran padres on the other side.

And over on the Eastern Front, it was the Catholic Christ of the Austro-Hungarian armies against the Orthodox one of the incense-wielding fierce-eyed priests of the Imperial Russian Army.

And in the Ottoman Empire, ally in the line, because of the century of the Lutheran Germans and Catholic Austrians, the calls to prayer to Mohammed were made by the muezzins in the last historic appeal to Jihad or the holy war, practised so many times in history by the Turks.

So why should we be offended by similar events as Lebanon and Ireland where societies are torn asunder by what are still religious wars?

In not modern Ireland merely a lingering appendages of the centuries-long Western European Catholic-Protestant rivalry of history?

And as for Lebanon, this area surely was the seat of the one- sided bloodletting between Christians and Moslems being repeated today in the most vicious and sophisticated capital city of Beirut!

All this is as true so it is tragic. As one great figure said, mankind has learned nothing and forgotten nothing from history.

In fact the idealism which was genuinely associated with the cause of going to war against fascism in the '30s and '40s was legitimate, perhaps the only legitimate cause for war in our time.

Lebanon and Ireland tell us that we have not really moved far in time from the Crusades. What a sad, sad parody for mankind.

Hillcrest's Troubles

It will be interesting to see if "a way can be found" — as Mayor Corke has put it — to obtain government support for construction of sewers in Hillcrest.

As of now the situation does not look encouraging. The city has already had word from Queen's Park that it will not receive the financial backing it seeks.

This is not New York, but there is something of the same kind of principle involved perhaps.

At the same time, Mayor Corke points to the subsidization of a similar project in Thurlow township. Is the township more in the category of "provincial" for grant purposes than Hillcrest which is part of Belleville?

As for the Hillcrest residents' position that they may approach the Ontario ombudsman, it may be asked if this sort of thing comes within his jurisdiction?

Mayor Corke himself is well acquainted with fund-raising. If there is no money to spare from city coffers, or the cost is beyond the ability of Hillcrest taxpayers . . . what then?

There is usually money for food, shelter and beyond that, for some of the material pleasures of this life — from cars to television — but beyond that again there is a grey area in which people and governments find themselves in difficulties.

Belleville city council and the people of Hillcrest find themselves in that situation right now. How it will be resolved we shall have to wait and see.

Cheese Plant Sale

Ordinarily, The Intelligencer does not accept contributions of verse. In the past we have made an exception on Remembrance Day, and again recently when a letter to the editor came in the medium of verse.

Another one has been received alluding to the Foxboro cheese plant sale. It's in verse form too which, by rights, is not encouraged. The point it makes though, in answer to the question, "What are these monopoly things,?" is that they "are the biggest result of 'Capitalism insane.' "

It may be conceded the plant has been passing through an uncertain period in its history — this is the second corporate takeover in the past year or so. Nevertheless, it will be business as usual.

True, it involves a move to Napanee where the operation be combined with a skim-milk powder plant. However, while travelling back and forth will involve some inconvenience, the Foxboro jobs will remain open in the new location.

This is a lot better than the daily shuttling back and forth from Toronto and points east which some workers at a Bath hydro operation are experiencing, and infinitely better than no job at all.

In life, adaptability counts for a lot, under the capitalistic term or whatever. And always, in this democracy, a man has free choice.

Hospitalized Children

Life is very much a matter of ups and downs.

Some figures released by the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto illustrate the point. In one way they are a message of hope, in another they represent tragedy and despair.

The number of children treated for accidental injury for instance has dropped — from 262 in 1970 to 18,800 in 1974. However, other injuries, including those from attempted suicide, sexual assault and child battering increased between 10 and 30 per cent last year compared with 1973.

Why accidental injuries have declined is not explained — perhaps advertising on the subject is having its effect — but there are unhappy overtones to the evidence of increasing assault and suicidal tendencies. We can only hope the figures in these categories will drop also in the years ahead.

New Emphasis on House Procedure

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Normally the day-to-day proceedings of the House are of very little interest to you in the public.

The many rules and their implications, absorbing as they may be to the members, to the man on the street have all the grab of a wet kleenex.

But with this House that could be changed.

Even before it is over, the procedures could be all-important.

The life or death of the legislature could depend on the procedures and rules and their interpretation. And anyone who wants to follow the House closely, and for a change a good many people do, will have to be alert to these rules.

Most important and probably crucial will be the interpretation of just when the House formally has lost confidence in the government and an election is thereby automatically called.

There has been one important assumption on this which may not turn out to be as routine as many people have taken it to be.

This assumption has been that once a government has been defeated on an important piece of business, a major bill is lost or a budget item is turned down, there automatically is a lack of confidence in it and there will be an election.

The authorities on parliamentary procedure generally would support this interpretation, but this doesn't necessarily mean it will apply here.

There is no precedent for a dispute on this point here in the legislature, but there has been one in Ottawa, and leading from it, there is a possibility that the government does not have to necessarily accept a defeat as a confidence vote.

The precedent was with the Pearson government when it was in a minority in Ottawa.

It was defeated on one of its measures. But although it was generally assumed at the time that this meant an election it didn't turn out that way.

The government took the position that it didn't recognize this defeat as a lack of confidence and eventually it was sustained on this position in the House. The opposition parties didn't particularly want an election.

This Ottawa development knocked all other precedent for a loop. And as it is doubtful if any parties here really want a quick election, except possibly the government, it is probable that before this session is over we will be having controversy on the point of just when the government is irrevicably defeated.

Restraint Has More Backing Than May Be Supposed

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs

Analyst

Thomson News Service

The anti-inflation while paper isn't all black, despite what its critics are saying.

In fact public support for the government's economic policy is probably a good deal stronger than the noisy opposition suggests.

Postal workers here and there across Canada, having decided that a 28 per cent wage increase is acceptable, have settled their union leaders and returned to work.

Sentiment among Canadians on fixed incomes seems to favor the restraint program as an alternative to an ever-increasing rate of inflation.

And at least some professional and business groups have pledged their active support, to help make the program work.

"Controls never work" is a cliche that has been repeated too often. The evidence of the demonstrable fact that they can do some good.

It may be true to say that controls never work perfectly. But then neither do most things in this life.

Continued failure to take any action against inflation would soon have brought the Canadian economy and the Canadian inflation rate to the level of the British and Italian.

Up to a point, anti-inflation guidelines did work in the United States a few years ago.

"They worked for a time," better of President Richard M. Nixon had initiated them money supply so irresponsibly in order to ensure his 1972 re-election.

One lesson that Canada could well learn from the 1971 U.S. experience is the value of flexibility in program. Provisions in supplementary benefits while maintaining a limit on increases in direct wages and salaries.

Employers were allowed to make substantial increases in commitments to employees' pensions in the United States — then, and some such provision ought to be made in Canada now.

Significant improvements in employer contributions to pension plans, combined with the wage increases permitted under the guidelines, should be a satisfactory package for union members and their employers.

Increased pension-fund contributions would not be inflationary in the sense that a big lump in take-home pay might be.

It could, instead, be anti-inflationary, since pension and the like would invest part or all of the increase in productive capital enterprises.

That's just one example of the kind of flexibility that could make the restraint program more acceptable and effective.

The wrong kind of flexibility would be the kind that exempts these in business, labor and the professions who demand higher inflation and think they have enough muscle and monopoly power to force the government to their will.

Equally wrong is the disturbing kind of exemption that the federal government gives itself despite its 28-billion deficit this year.

It is still planning to expand its military civil service by 1.5 per cent this year, and it is reluctant to cut back on any significant scale merely time-honored-spending programs.

There would be big benefits in the anti-inflation program.

But a realistic effort on the part of the government to make it work—through deeds as well as exhortation—would go a long way toward restoring the spirit of public co-operation that could gradually bring the inflation rate back down to a manageable level.

Bridge St. Poolroom's Closure Revives Memories for a Former City Resident

Shades of "Summer of '42." The memories evoked in the classic Herman Raucher novel are everyman's memories of youth. The thoughts given expression in the following letter to the editor could almost be a chapter from that book.

They recall the downtown Belleville of 30 years ago, and in particular a Bridge Street poolroom — one that is now across from this office.

Pure through the window into the dark interior today and the gaze travels to the old clubhouse beside, on the ceiling neon lights now extinguished, at the far end barred windows.

There's not much else — only ghosts — but in the window ledges there is some advertising material that had come to publish, and one regular piece of literature, "Just a cut" — postmarked Toronto.

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I hear they have closed Lafferty's poolroom.

Will some one please drop by the old place before the demolition team of the provocators more in and collect all the memories I left there? Having taken place 30 years ago, the events could be considered so faded by time as to be not worth saving. But in my mind, I still see them plain.

Kindly look for Roddy Lyall, Maurice Rollins, Doug Johnson and my brother Lloyd engaged in a four-hander at the front table. Johnson is the big man who sometimes takes his shot while the balls are still rolling. And unstable.

There's Doug Leggat explaining to Buddy Cavanagh what it means to "play the lights". It seems you aim your cue ball at the tiny gleam on the object ball which is a reflection of the shaded light suspended over the table. It is a gloriously unlikely theory and Doug played it for days. I can't recall whether it improved his game but it led to a counter-play which became standard. Whenever your opponent lined up his shot, you simply pushed the plunger lamp to start it swinging, thus casting on the table a changing pattern of lights and shadows.

Check table number four placed just past the jog in the wall where the poolroom widens. There, Bob Ragsdale, another who has careers tripped. He is about to take four photographs of this correspondent standing at four different positions around the table. Later, Ragsdale developed the shots, trimmed and saved the part of each negative containing the pool player, stuck the four of them down so cleverly that it appears to be practically invisible, after which he developed a print. The framed picture hangs on my wall today; myself shooting pool with three others me's, all looking stylish in our Royal Stetson debuts with the Chicago block, and pretending to smoke a cigar.

Look, for the proprietor, Bill Lafferty himself, grinning his teeth in splendid mock fury, swaggering from behind the counter clutching the kelaying pin he got back there, pretending he was about to "put it to bed" up a developing argument. The demonstration always worked; tempers were cooled or, at least, set aside. Behavioral experts could have taken lessons from Lafferty — a classic case of age controlling youth by the use of humor and mutual respect.

Don't forget to rescue a few nickel bags of peanuts and a couple of tall, cool Pepsis! Or maybe a squat bottle of Stubby lemon-lime. Grab one of Lafferty's cheeseburgers invented during the early Forties for "Marines Training" when we were dinin' hamburger. Those soft buns crammed with sliced onion and tomato and cheddar cheese were so delicious we insisted on having them made available every day of the week.

Save me some of those Canadian pounds, too. We used to shout, "Sold the farm!" when an easy shot was left for an opponent; learning mediaeval history up the hill, we sometimes changed the cry to, "Sold the fief!" Lafferty's fervently-hammered cue ball ricocheted ten times around the table and eventually dropped into a pocket, thus ending him politic. Doug Johnson used to say, "This table leaks." And everybody snarled, "Buck fever!", if a shooter spent too much time lining up a shot that had money riding on it.

Is is possible to save a smell? If so, rescue for me the pungent tang of billiard chalk mixed with the oily scent of dustbane, the bite of cigarette and cigar smoke, the brady bouquet of Barleycorn, and a faint whiff of text books and loose-leaf notebooks piled on chairs waiting to be taken home with us when we headed for the hills.

It becomes obvious that this effort to salvage the past is a hopeless endeavor. Even the memories of Lafferty's Poolroom are overlaid with other collections and it is impossible to separate them.

There sits "Pop" Shiels expressing benign disbelief at the unexpected victory of Alf Landon by Grant Locke in his algebra examination paper. "Like Grant, they call me," was the response. And he remained true to name from that day on, even when he worked a spell on the lakeboats. Legend has it he was late one day and his boat sailed without him from the Government docks. So he bicycled swiftly to Bay Bridge where he stood on the open span and jumped aboard as his vessel passed below. "Honest Grant, we called him.

Now observe Miss Merry (we called her Nellie P. with great affection) assisting us over arrangements for the high school play or inspiring us to make a chocolate bar from Hallam's Grocery along Queen Street, but only on condition that we bring back one for him. And music. Here is the late Mrs. Fred Fenwick and the choir at St. Michael's and All Angels'. It is Christmas Eve carol service and we are all there in our robes and surplices. Austin Watkins on one side of me, Jay Beamish Fenwick on the other while across the aisle, Barbara Joan Houston is singing a solo in her pure, lyrical voice.

It's great fun looking back, I it . . . If you can manage to see through the tears in your eyes.

Provincial Judge Fines Chicago Man For His Part in Dredging Conspiracy

TORONTO (CP) — A provincial judge imposed fines totalling $130,000 Monday on a Chicago man and his company, charged with participating with a group of Canadian construction and dredging companies in a conspiracy to defraud the Canadian federal government.

Albert Goldfarb, 59, pleaded guilty earlier in the day to a fraud conspiracy amounting to $982,000 involving him and his company, Jayde Hydraulics Co., which has a nominal base in Hamilton. Jayson was run by an interlocking trio of directors of Construction Aggregate Corp. of Chicago.

Goldfarb was one of 12 dredging company executives and their firms who came before Provincial Judge Fred Hayes in a wide-ranging case involving allegations that the companies and their executives conspired to defraud the Canadian government of more than $4 million by rigging bids on dredging contracts over several years.

Prosecutor Rod McLeod told the court it was the practice of the firms to get together when a government dredging contract was coming up and decide which firm should have it. The others would then overbid so highly that the designated company was sure to get the contract at an inflated price.

Mr. McLeod said as a rule the companies and some of their executives would divide up the proceeds of the contract, with the contracting company getting 70 per cent. The remaining 30 per cent was split among the companies that co-operated in the bidding scheme.

Except for Goldfarb, all the executives Monday elected trial for themselves and their companies by a judge or by a judge and jury.

Preliminary hearing of the Canadian companies was due to open today, and the Crown has stated it has a great deal of paper evidence to enter. After that, the hearings may be adjourned until spring.

Judge Hayes imposed fines of $60,000 and $10,000 on the Jayson company and $30,000 on Goldfarb personally.

Millhaven Warden Caught In Middle of Demands

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Guards and prisoners at the penitentiary disagree about how the prison should be run, and the man caught in the middle is Arthur Trono.

Mr. Trono, 45, a corrections official who started as a guard after graduating from university, is regional director of penitentiaries.

"You can either become very cynical or very permissive in this job and both are extremist," he said in a recent interview.

Mr. Trono said penitentiaries such as Millhaven—a six-acre compound of steel and cement which makes extensive use of punitive measures—offers little chance for a prisoner to successfully return to society.

Although the 350 prisoners at Millhaven have been pressing for a number of changes, including less segregation, the prison's 185 guards are demanding tighter security measures.

"My own philosophy is to consider the people you are dealing with and not try to be all things to all men," Mr. Trono says. "When it comes to the dangerous inmates, you don't try to make a silk purse from a sow's ear."

Mr. Trono said he is aware of the list circulating in the penitentiary which contains the names of several informers and guards marked for death.

Poor Will Not Suffer: Lalonde

MONTREAL (CP) — The federal government has no intention of riding out inflation "on the backs of the poor," Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Monday.

Mr. Lalonde said suggestions by some provincial premiers and business leaders that the federal government reduce its spending were "wide of the mark" because much federal spending is in the form of transfer payments to assist low-income earners.

He was speaking at a meeting of the Canadian Club of Montreal.

Mr. Lalonde said expenditures by the federal government, as a percentage of the gross national product, have not increased significantly since 1961 and federal spending on goods and services has fallen.

He also criticized the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) for resisting the federal anti-inflation program, saying the CLC was asking the government to "regulate everything else but not to regulate the collective bargaining process."

Securities Industry Urges Banks to Stop Some Services

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian securities industry urged Monday that chartered banks be prohibited from providing most services offered by investment dealers.

A joint brief of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada and the three major trusts and Vancouver—says only the securities industry should be involved in stockbroking, underwriting and distributing new issues and counselling investors.

J. R. Kimber, president of the Toronto Stock Exchange, told a news conference the securities industry wants the Bank Act's section on securities clarified when the act comes up for revision in 1977. The current act empowers bankers to acquire and deal in securities.

The brief says there is a fundamental difference of purpose between banks and investment dealers and that the capital market "will perform best if both the banks and dealers perform their special roles without undue co-mingling of activity."

"The purpose of Canadian chartered banks is to accept and accumulate deposits and to lend the funds so acquired to governments, businesses and individuals," the brief says. "In the process, the banks loan or invest the deposits they control wherever and on whatever terms they deem to be most advantageous.

"It follows that banks cannot provide disinterested advice on primary financing if they vigorously pursue their basic purpose of investing the savings controlled by them. Nor, if gathering deposits is essential to their function, can they advise, in an objective way, hundreds of thousands of providers of capital with respect to alternative forms of investment."

Globe Says Wagner Receiving Supplement

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Quebec Conservative member of Parliament Claude Wagner has acknowledged for the first time that he is receiving regular financial support in addition to his salary as an MP as a result of his decision to join the Conservative party in 1972.

The newspaper, in a front-page Ottawa story by reporters Jonathan Manthorpe and Hugh Winsor, says the existence of "the Wagner trust fund" has become an issue in his bid for the Conservative leadership and "became be clouded, on Sept. 5, 1972, that there was any such fund."

The story says The Globe and Mail "has confirmed that a trust fund of $300,000 was established in 1972 (after Mr. Wagner had left the Quebec Liberal government) and that it was designed to give Mr. Wagner an annual interest of about $30,000 a year for 10 years. He does not have access to the principal."

In 1972, when he announced his candidacy for the Conservatives in the federal riding of St. Hyacinthe, Que., Mr. Wagner is quoted by The Globe and Mail as having said: "I have no need of, I have not asked for, nor have I been offered any pension fund or financial assistance."

The Globe and Mail says that Mr. Wagner, in an Ottawa interview Monday, said there was no discrepancy between his "acknowledgement" that he received financial arrangements and his denial that he was receiving money.

Mr. Wagner maintains that the financial arrangements were made after the 1972 election, which involved him helping out. There is a certain amount left in the fund, through the year, which I do not control, for travel and what is left is being used for the work in which I am engaged."

Mr. Wagner refused to disclose who is providing the money in support. "I have no obligation to make this public," he said. "I believe my wife, my bank manager and the income tax department."

Mr. Wagner was unavailable for comment. Local friends said he remains in the federal riding the Globe and Mail report.

Lewis Criticizes Provincial Government

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, the Ontario NDP leader, said Monday in the legislature that the provincial government has not provided political leadership and has abdicated many of its responsibilities.

Mr. Lewis, making his reply to the speech from the throne, criticized the government in the fields of rent control, price control and oil and gas price fixing. He also criticized the Ontario government for the way in which it has decided to support the federal government's anti-inflation program.

Although his one-hour speech was critical of the throne speech, the NDP leader did not move the customary amendment in the speech. He said he did not think moving an amendment of non-confidence was appropriate and said his party will consider such a move when the speech has been fully debated.

Referring to the fact that the NDP is the official Opposition, with 38 seats compared with 36 for the Liberals and 31 for the Conservatives, he said: "I guess the presence of the Socialist bogey is trauma enough to unsettle some of you (government members)."

Mr. Lewis said that "your political leadership was wanting before the campaign; your political leadership was wanting during the campaign and failure of political leadership persists now."

Mr. Lewis said the question of rent controls has clearly exhibited the government's lack of leadership. He said that since the election, the government has shown a "succession of retreats and pirouettes" on the question of rent control, rent review, and tenant security.

The NDP leader said the question of energy was one of the central issues during the campaign and there was the government has failed to provide leadership. He accused the Conservatives of allowing the price of gasoline and home heating oil to increase although the Ibilster Report on energy did not make any such recommendation.

The NDP leader said the government showed a lack of political strength when it turned the matter of Ontario Hydro rate increases over to a select committee. But he said the opposition parties would give Hydro the kind of public scrutiny which has not occurred in a political context for many years.

He said the way in which the Ontario government used the federal guidelines showed a lack of leadership. Ontario acted in "uncritically, almost mindlessly" without knowing anything of the rules or regulations of the anti-inflation board, Mr. Lewis said.

Davis and Nixon Debate Advertising

TORONTO (CP) — Premier William Davis and Liberal leader Robert Nixon exchanged bitter words in the legislature Monday over a government-sponsored pamphlet published during the Sept. 18 election campaign.

During the heated exchange, the premier accused the Liberals of untruthful advertising in the campaign.

Mr. Nixon renewed his criticism of the government for a newspaper advertisement Sept. 13 which the election expenses commission ruled "offended the spirit" of the Election Finances Act.

The advertisement, placed by the housing ministry, said the government would establish rent review boards in co-operation with local municipalities.

Mr. Davis said the commission expressed an opinion that the advertisement offended the act's spirit, but did not make a formal resolution.

The premier added that if the government had passed legislation under the expenses law making it compulsory for advertising to be reasonably truthful, it "would have then obliterated your total campaign." Government advertising was at least truthful, he added.

Ontario's Credit Rating Being Reviewed by New York Investors

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Ontario's triple-A credit rating in the world of finance is being reviewed by New York City investors.

The newspaper says Moody's Investors Service Inc. is reviewing the province's triple-A status and a decision will be made this week.

Ontario has a $300-million bond issue going to the New York market in less than two weeks and a drop to a double-A rating might mean about $3 million more in annual interest charges, The Globe and Mail says.

It says that by conventional rating measures, the province's standing has been deteriorating. The newspaper says the Ontario deficit has continued to climb to $2 billion this year and that some rating people say the deficit has exceeded five per cent of the provincial budget for the last two years.

The Globe and Mail quotes Jackson Phillips, Moody's director of the municipal bonds division, as saying that a change in rating would be unusual but "these are unusual times."

Jittery investors may demand slightly higher interest rates and the government's minority position and the NDP opposition may affect the credit rating or fractionally raise interest rates, the newspaper says.

It says that a triple-A rate is said to be worth about one-quarter of a percentage point lower in interest rate than that of a double-A borrower.

Smith Says Prisons Now Overcrowded

TORONTO (CP) — Many of Ontario's prisons are seriously overcrowded but the situation has not reached the critical stage, John Smith, correctional services minister, said Monday.

He told the legislature that the overcrowding can cause security problems and his ministry is moving as quickly as possible to open new facilities.

Mr. Smith said he welcomes the decision of provincial ombudsman Arthur Maloney to investigate complaints about conditions adding that the government will co-operate fully.

Mr. Maloney announced the investigation after claims by guards that conditions in some prisons are creating near-riot conditions.

Mr. Smith told NDP Opposition Leader Stephen Lewis that he has visited a number of institutions since his appointment as minister. He said new centres will provide some relief.

Outside the legislature Mr. Smith outlined some of the problems. For example, he said, there are 74 prisoners in the Brampton unit which is designed for 30 persons.

Controls Will Raise Car Insurance

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government's anti-inflation program will have an effect on future rate increase in car insurance, Sidney Handler-a, consumer and commercial affairs minister, told the legislature Monday.

In reply to a question from the NDP leader, Stephen Lewis, Mr. Handleman said there still was some confusion as to whether the insurance companies will be required to go to Ottawa to justify future increases.

HURRY TO PRY FORD SALES TODAY!
Engineering refinements to the 1976 Ford car lines have resulted in dramatic fuel economy improvements and better driveability in terms of easier starting, better stop-and-go response and smoother acceleration.
U.S. E.P.A. standardized test results (sales-weighted) have been and are being used by automotive manufacturers for fuel economy statements. Such tests are performed on a dynometer to simulate city and highway driving. Because the average figures cover many engine and transmission combinations and optional equipment, the car you choose may perform differently.

Emergency Monitoring Eases Life of Elderly

LUTON, England (CP) — The elderly residents of the Marsh Farm estate—a new housing project in this town 30 miles north of London—no longer fear emergencies since special monitoring equipment was introduced into their homes.

The equipment, which is housed in the estate's office in the centre of the circular area, is a centralized alarm system serving the 280 old people's flats.

The scheme cost $23,000 ($48,300) and has been described as the most ambitious yet undertaken, to protect and care for the elderly in their homes.

The console in the housing office is manned day and night by a team of eight specially recruited paid wardens working in shifts.

They are ready to receive emergency calls from residents should they have an accident or feel unwell, and can summon help without delay.

The communications centre staff are not just operators but trained wardens skilled in dealing with problems by verbal contact alone. Either the person can be reassured or, in a real emergency, medical attention can be summoned or a backup warden sent to the home.

Five of the wardens handle the shift-working; the other three personally visit each of the senior citizens regularly.

One of the big advantages of the system is that it has allowed different types of homes—high-rise flats, maisonettes and bungalows—to be incorporated in a single project. Even then scheme, even though they are scattered over a wide area.

Each of the houses wired to the master console has a sender-receive unit fixed to the wall and this can be switched on from the living room, bedroom or bathroom with the use of trailer cords.

For privacy, the units can be switched off so that the warden has to hunt first to get the tenant to switch on. Or they can be left in the open (on) position so that the warden merely has to select the appropriate channel to speak directly to the tenant.

Many of the residents prefer to have their speech channel open so the night warden can "flash around" without disturbing anyone, checking only for unusual sounds that might suggest trouble.

Duty wardens not only receive calls from the old people but regularly call them to ask how they are, have a short chat and find out whether they have any special needs. "This helps to anticipate possible emergencies and to dispel feelings of loneliness," said Frank Hamel, housing manager.

He said Luton does not overlook old people living in other parts of the town. It has made a point of publicizing the fact that its housing service is there to help them and invites them to its housing offices to talk over their problems.

Hamel said he gives this advice to the elderly: "Your house may be too big for you, the repair bills may be worrying you or you may feel the need for someone to turn to for help if you feel unwell. A modern, warm flat may be the answer."

Consequently the council operates a scheme by which it can offer to buy an elderly house-owner's home and rehouse the owner in a flat.

If the rehousing need is urgent, it may buy at full market price; if the need is not so great it would offer a "sitting tenant" valuation—about 75 per cent of the market price—that would still rehouse the owner.

Hamel said that concern for all residents is shown by the council operated H card scheme. Cards bearing an H Help symbol have been delivered in all homes in the town so that anyone in urgent need of assistance can place the card in the window to be seen from outside.

"Anyone passing by is then asked to knock and offer help," said Hamel.

Luton has gone from a small marketing town of rural industry—the traditional industry used to be the making of straw hats—to an important car-making and light engineering centre with a population of 180,000.

It's recent expansion project was started by the municipality in 1967 to provide 1,000 homes for 10,000 people. These range from apartments in blocks to family houses and old people's flats for two.

In planning the estate, the principle of segregation of traffic and pedestrians has been followed and the area is designed to be self-contained for nearly all service.

The site layout provides a main circulating road divorced from the house footpaths which converge on small pedestrian ways leading to bus stops, the school and the district centre.

This centre, with its own shops for day-to-day needs, a church, social centre, clinic, library and a day centre for the elderly, sets the on-the-spot theme at Marsh Farm.

Catholic Author Flays Church's Liberal Group

In The Gates of Hell, Roman Catholic author and critic Anne Roche is angry at a great many people in her own church, mainly the liberal theologians and bishops who have come into prominence following Vatican II.

The Second Vatican Council itself she sees as leaving Catholic doctrine intact. It is the way it has been interpreted by the liberal group, as "the spirit of Vatican II" which she feels is doing untold damages to the life of the Catholic church.

Liberals (in the religious sense) who come under her fire range from theologians Gregory Baum and Rosemary Ruether to Prime Minister Trudeau and the Jesuits, whom she describes as "a religious order that has gone all its collective head."

The new reformers, she charges, "are trying to bring about a change not in doctrine but in world view. . . . There are few, as a result of the unaccountable collapse of authority, two irreconcilably opposed world views—the liberal and the conservative, or the anti-dogmatic and dogmatic—within the Catholic Church."

Puzzling as to why the reformers should want to take away her faith, she comes to the conclusion that "the spirit" working through the attack on eucharistic belief is the same diabolic spirit who had dealings on the faith and patience of Job. As Pope Paul put it, the smoke of Satan has entered into the Church."

Anne Roche is a native of Newfoundland and spent three years as a novice in an enclosed order of teaching nuns in that province. She left before taking her final vows. Reverend Mother, she relates, sent her home when it became "glaringly obvious" that she was not cut out for the community life. She later married a Protestant, John Waggoner, who became a convert to her church, and they now live in Welland, Ont., with their four boys.

According to the publishers, the book is intended for the reader, Catholic or non-Catholic, who thinks the Second Vatican Council changed the teachings of the Roman Catholic Church. Non-Catholic readers will probably find a bit of trouble with her many references to Catholic practices and terms unfamiliar to outsiders, and Catholics themselves will probably bog down at some of her sentence structures.

"Thus, the Catholics (and like-minded Jews and Protestants) engaged in collection signatures for a petition to Parliament beseeching it to legislate to protect human life from conception to natural death, though they hope to double their original estimate, also accept quite without anger, but it will eventually make no difference, that's a society bent on its own destruction cannot be turned away from it by the polite adherence of Christians (and Jews) to democratic rules."

But her concluding advice to her conservative Catholic friends is simple and to the point:

"Where Peter is, there is the Church. And don't let the bastards drive you out of it."

The Gates of Hell, Anne Roche, 256 pages; $4.95; McClelland and Stewart.

Homosexuals Seek Equal Status

LOS ANGELES, (Reuter)—Homosexuals have declared war on the United States armed services and police forces to stop them using homosexuality as a bar to employment.

The air force has already fired one servicewoman, Sgt. Leonard Matlovich, who admitted he was a homosexual.

A second case still is pending at Langley Air Force Base in Virginia, where Sgt. Richard Hicks has been seized as homosexual.

In San Diego a three-man navy review board has recommended that naval reserve Cmdr. Gary Hess of Santa Barbara, Calif., be discharged immediately because of his homosexuality.

Hess, 40, a father of four who has brought up his children alone since his divorce in 1971, has served for 16 years in the navy and describes his career as spotless.

He has sued in federal court to block the discharge, arguing the navy is violating his right of free expression under the constitution.

In Los Angeles, the city's civil service commission recommended recently homosexuals be hired on the police force under certain conditions but then backed down somewhat under angry pressure from the city's outspoken police chief, Edward Davis.

The police force controversy has provided a whole new range of material for Los Angeles' main jokester, Bob Hope.

"I was stopped by a traffic cop on the way here tonight," Hope wisecracked at a dinner attended by the police chief, "it smelled his perfume before it heard the siren."

Hess, regarded as a civic-minded and outstanding citizen in Santa Barbara—until his admission about his sex life made him a controversial figure, says:

"It seems ironic to me that those who have served in the military and have served well fighting to protect the constitution are not protected by the constitution.

He believes the armed services will eventually have to give up their system of "using one's sexual orientation as a stigmatizing device for discharging people."

"I don't believe the military itself will change," he said.

Display Highlights Nutrition Week

In spite of the good public relations' proper nutrition has enjoyed in the last few years, nutritionist Teri Velus says there are people around who have never heard of the Canada Food Guide.

Making matters worse, she says, is the fact that inflation has caused most people to try to extend their food dollar.

"What happens is that they end up 'cutting nutrition,'," she says.

Mrs. Velus, and fellow Belleville General Hospital dietary worker Donna Jung have been active in the last few weeks trying to combat lack of knowledge with a special activities week designed to spread information about good eating habits.

The week, which ends November 8, is co-sponsored by community nutritionists through out the province and the Ontario Dietetic Association.

In Belleville, the week is being marked by a display at the Quinte Mall November 6, Thursday, and November 7, Friday from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The display will include a weight check and an ethnic food display and the distribution of pamphlets on good nutrition. In addition, winners from the county-wide Nutrition Posters contest will be displayed. School children in four age groups contributed to the competition.

Corby Library is participating in Nutrition Week with a display of related books.

Donna Jung and Teri Velus discuss plans for Nutrition Week.

Charms Aid Church Fund

Selling gold and silver charms is the newest fund-raising project of the members of St. Thomas Anglican Church.

The suggestion for the church-charm project came from jeweler Gerry O'Connor and was accepted by members of the finance committee. Sheila Smith and Elizabeth Black are in charge of the project.

The idea has proved to be a popular one, although it has never been tried in Belleville before. Already 300 charms have been sold, by picture only. However, the actual charms will be placed on sale at the St. Thomas Bazaar on November 8.

The first charm belongs now to Julia Tett, daughter of Canon Peter Tett, presented to her by Mr. O'Connor on Monday in front of the church now being rebuilt.

The charms are suitable for bracelets or can be made into lapel pins, cuff links, pendants or dress pins.

Gerry O'Connor places the first silver charm representing St. Thomas Anglican Church on the bracelet of Julia Tett, who is accompanied by her father Peter Tett. They stand on the steps of the church presently under renovation, for which funds are being raised by the sale of silver and gold charms, on display at the St. Thomas Bazaar Wednesday morning.

Today's Child

By Helen Allen

SCOTT

Scott is taller than the average six-year-old. He's sturdy and handsome too with his big blue eyes, light-brown hair and fair skin. His background is Anglo-Saxon.

It would be an understatement to say that Scott has a problem. He has a catalogue of them.

Though he attended a regular kindergarten last year and made good progress there, it has now been decided he cannot handle normal academic classes and he has been enrolled in a school for retarded children. He likes school, looking forward to going every day. His speech is not clear and he has been having speech therapy.

Scott has epilepsy, well controlled by medication. He also has some deformities of fingers and toes. The middle and ring fingers on both hands are bent and he can't straighten them. Because surgery tried on one finger was not a success, doctors are reluctant to attempt anything further since he has good use of his hands as they are.

Despite all this Scott is a loveable, affectionate child. He gets on well with classmates and with other children in his foster home. He loves the outdoors and riding his bike. This young fellow may be a 'mountaineer' some day — he loves to climb. When he was younger his foster mother was startled to find him perched on top of the refrigerator. Now it is more likely to be the roof of the house.

Though Scott is not going to be a scholar it is felt he can be independent and self-supporting as an adult. He needs parents with lots of energy to keep up with him and time to spend with him. They will need to understand his problems and help him surmount them as much as possible. Older brothers and sisters will be an asset in Scott's adoption home.

To inquire about adopting Scott, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H1. In your letter tell something of your present family and your way of life.

Wedlock Deadlock

SOUTH WIGSTON, England (CP) — A young couple's wedding was held up in this Leicestershire town, although it was not the usual case of the missing bride and bridegroom. The bride arrived on time was the parish register, locked in a jammed safe. The couple, Sue Ellard and Paul Lunn, couldn't marry until a locksmith finally was fetched to open it.

Bowled Over

LONDON (CP) — When Mrs. Dorothy Alderman bought a "brubber little bowl" at a rummage sale her by her daughter's girl guide troop for less than a £1 (£2.10), she had no idea it would bring her a tidy sum. A French dealer later paid £9,000 (£18,900) at an auction for the Louis XIV silver gilt, two-handled bowl.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Walton

Walton — Dixon

Lorraine Isabel Dixon and Douglas Terrance Walton were united in marriage by Rev. Abel Parsons in Emmanuel United Chrch in a recent ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Dixon of RR 4, Stirling, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Walton of RR 3, Newcastle.

Given in marriage by her mother and father, the bride wore a floor-length princess-style gown highlighted with lace flower appique, with a sheer bodice and sleevys. The matching train fell from the back of the waist, and her two-tier finger-tip veil was trimmed with lace to match her headpiece. She carried a bouquet of white roses and baby's breath.

Maid of honar Carole Dixon, sister of the bride, wore a gown of gold and brown sheer over a gold underlay. Her flowers were rust-colored chrysanthemums and yellow shasta daisies.

Bridesmaids were Barbara Dixon, sister of bride, and Janice Salatzki, who wore gowns of pale green sheer and carried bouquets of yellow and rust-colored chrysanthemums.

Tim Walton, the groom's brother was his best man. His cousins Ted Walton and Tom Hockin were ushers. - -

A buffet and dance at the Elk's Lodge followed the ceremony.

After a trip to Lake Placid and Niagara Falls, Mr. and Mrs. Walton have made their home at 511 Canonberry St., Oshawa.

Ann Landers

These Suggestions May Save Your Life Some Day

Dear Ann Landers: How I would you like to save some lives today?

Millions of people read your column. Please print these suggestions on what to do in case of fire. Ask your readers to post them somewhere in the house for all to see. Urging them to the refrigerator is a good idea.

I read these suggestions in Look magazine in 1971. I then had them retyped when the article became too ragged to read. Now I'd like to clip it from Ann Landers's column and post it again. How about it?—Faithful Fan

Dear Fan: Here it is: Start clipping. And thank you on behalf of those whose lives may be saved because you took the time and trouble to write:

1. When a fire breaks out in your home or office, get out immediately. A fire can spread faster than you can run. Even if you smell smoke, GET OUT.

2. If you find smoke in an open stairway or hall, use another pre-planned way out.

3. If you escape through smoke stay near the floor where the air is better. Take short breaths. Breathe through your nose, and crawl to an exit.

4. Make sure your family knows the quickest and safest ways to escape from every room in the house. Keep a flashlight in all rooms to help escape at night. Make sure children can open doors, windows and screens to the escape routes. Teach small children how to use the phone to report a fire. And they should know where the alarm box is in the neighborhood.

5. Head for stairs—not the elevator. A bad fire can cut off the power to elevators. An elevator could also deliver you to the fire floor.

6. DON'T jump. Many people have jumped to their deaths in realizing rescue was only a few minutes away.

7. If you are trapped in a smoke-filled room, stay near the floor. Open all windows. If possible, sit by a window where you can call for help. Open it at the top and bottom. Heat and smoke will go out the top. You can breathe at the bottom.

8. Feel every door with your hand. If it's hot, don't open it. If it's cool, shake this law; open slowly and stay behind the door. If you feel heat or pressure coming through the open door, slam it shut.

9. If you can't get out, stay behind a closed door. Any door will serve as a shield.

10. If there is a panic for the main exit, get away from the mob. Try to find another way out. Once you are safely out DON'T go back. Call the fire department. Use alarm box or telephone. In the country, be sure you know the number of the nearest volunteer fire department. Never assume someone else has turned in the alarm.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband was first married when he and the girl we're both 17. It lasted seven months and was then annulled. That was 7 years ago.

The other night, on his 28th birthday, we were celebrating with a cocktail lounge with five other couples. Out of the blue my husband made this statement: "I have never loved any woman in all my life the way I loved the little chick I first married. If she walked in here this minute and asked me to go with her, I would do it."

I was so shaken ed by that remark I couldn't help but disclose into tears. My husband noticed and leaned toward me and said softly, "I love you very, but there is something about a first love that never can be duplicated."

He then added, "She is 2,300 miles away and I'll never see her again so please don't cry."

His brother's wife tried to make me feel better by saying, "Forget it. He's on an ego trip." What do you think, Ann?—Glad She's In Texas

Dear Glad: Your husband's remark under any circumstances was brutal. After how many martinis did he come up with that beast? I suggest lemonade for your next anniversary celebration.

Wage Discrimination Is Still a 'Major Issue'

LONDON (CP) — The director of the women's bureau of the Ontario labor ministry says job and wage discrimination against women still exists in the province.

On the average, women are paid 43-per-cent less than men in Canada because a number of women occupy low-paying, dead-end jobs, Marnie Clarke said Saturday at a workshop on law and women at the University of Western Ontario.

Mrs. Clarke said she expects an increasing number of women will become members of Parliament and work for legislative reforms to stop such discrimination.

The onus is on women to know their rights and discover the myths about women in the work force, she said.

One myth is that women work for frills and often take jobs away from men, she said. Many surveys show that 36.8 per cent of working women are single, widowed or divorced and must work to support themselves.

Mrs. Clarke said most women said they work for personal fulfilment and well-being and these are "rights that shouldn't be denied them in our democratic society."

The major challenge facing women is to move into broader career areas, she said. Although women are willing and qualified to advance, few companies have made sincere efforts to review and upgrade their positions, she said.

Church of Deaf Serves 40 People

VANCOUVER (CP) — It's a church where a latecomer can slip in at the back and not have heads swivel around as the pew creaks, and where the choir sings without making a sound.

Sunday morning services at the chapel of Cheer United Church are not ordinary services because the congregation is not an ordinary congregation. Its members are deaf.

The Vancouver Church of the Deaf (cd) was organized in 1967 as an interdenominational ministry serving deaf persons living in the Vancouver area. Members are small, 30 to 40 most Sunday mornings, twice that during social events. But Rev. James Simmons, minister since 1973, says the congregation numbers 150.

The VCD grew out of a once a month social group. Some churches were offering joint services at which an interpreter was present but a core of the fellowship's members wanted to worship on a regular basis without being bound to any denomination.

Four denominations, Anglican, Baptist Union, Presbyterian and United, originally supported the VCD idea and continue to finance the operations through grants amounting to 40 per cent of the $18,000 budget.

Mr. Simmons, a Southern Baptist Church pastor with 23 years experience in the ministry, moved here from Kansas. Although this is the first time he has done religious work with the deaf, he supported his family while he attended seminary by teaching night classes at the California School for the Deaf in Berkeley.

"I took couple of sign-language courses at seminary during the day and practised on my students at night," he explained.

Pre-service chatter is unrestrained and enthusiastic—but silent. Heads nod, hands gesture at a terrific pace.

A great deal of the signing is easy to understand. Mr. Simmons basically signs word for word, or, rather, sign-for-sign spelling, which is used sparingly during the service, usually for place names or biblical reference.

The first hymn is announced and half a dozen or so members of the congregation walk to the front and range themselves facing Sharon Lee, the choir director, who has severely impaired hearing but can follow the tempo from a recording.

Sign singing has been likened to dance and there is, perhaps, a sense of Oriental or Hawaiian movement about it, as graceful hands follow sure movements

Sometimes the congregation is visited by a special guest like Carter Beardon, an evangelist from Georgia who has been called "the Billy Graham of the Deaf."

Mr. Beardon, on a four-day visit, demonstrated that preaching in sign language does not limit his style.

Facing the chancel area as though it were a stage, signing in dramatic arms-wide gestures, he made his body part of the visual language.

His entire frame dropped to show dejection and sadness; he jumped around waggling great grins to show joy. To the outsider it was like watching inspired charades.

The VDC has other programs, including campouts for families and a weekend church retreat. For five years it has taken part in a program which integrates deaf children into a regular United Church summer camp with one interpreter and one deaf counselor.

Mr. Simmons is involved in related work with deaf people: visiting shut-ins, corresponding with the deaf in isolated areas and with deaf prisoners who are doubly isolated because of their disability. He also serves as an interpreter for the deaf in court or with social-service agencies and helps with religious education classes at deaf schools.

There are obvious inconveniences—when planning to visit a parishioner there is no use phoning ahead and, if the person is in, it's sometimes difficult to get his attention.

Many deaf have light switches rather than door bells which are connected to one or more lights placed strategically about the house. The same technique of flicking light switches is used at VCD social gatherings to attract group attention.

The most tragic individuals he's seen are those who had a gradual loss of hearing, refused to accept deafness as inevitable and did not learn lip-reading or signing.

Business Dreams May Be Profitable

TORONTO (CP) — Businessmen fresh out of ideas might try keeping a note pad or tape-recorder on their night tables.

Transcribing dreamland data might be a step on the road to daytime success, says Dr. Dermi Barrett of Management Concepts Ltd., who has been giving two-day seminars on creativity to executives.

He calls this new horizon of inspiration creative dreaming.

The idea centres on the function of the brain, which is divided vertically.

The right side is the "creative" part of the brain, providing the mind with images and speculative thought. The left side, says the doctor, is the one performing the logical, computer-type operations.

During sleep the creative half is the most active, he says, and creative people have simply learned to use the innovative powers of their right brain-half during waking hours.

The main problem for most people, though, is they can't remember their dreams.

Dr. Barrett advises not to open your eyes immediately upon awakening, but to let your mind drift along the shores of sleep, trying to recall your dreams. Then jot down the scenario on a pad or dictate into your recorder.

"Most ideas generated by the right side of the brain are impractical, foolish, even immoral," he warns. "The important thing to remember is that some are brilliant, inspired and practical."

Dr. Barrett recently was host at a seminar for 30 executives, where he cited the works of Robert Louis Stevenson as a classic example of the theory.

"Everything Stevenson wrote was produced by creative dreaming," said the doctor. "If he didn't like a chapter, he would deliberately re-dream it.

"You won't be able to decode all those signals from the unconscious, but making use of some is still better than ignoring all of them, he claims.

"Even the wildest pieces of a nocturnal brainstorm, Dr. Barrett says, concentrate on a problem in which you have a strong personal interest. Study it for days. Then pick a time when you can completely relax. Simply go to sleep thinking about the problem. As soon as you wake up, make mental, then permanent, notes on your dream.

Finally, don't ignore solutions that seem overcomplicated. "A lot of creative solutions to come in dreams are self-evident."

One executive who tried the technique, Fred Ayre, managing director of Bowring Ltd. dreamed up two plans for decorating his boardroom and chose the one now in his home.

An executive with Northern Electric, Hans Van Welzer, had another problem. He dreamed of flying telephones, and is still trying to decipher the message.

Old Crow Only Store in Arctic

OLD CROW, Y.T. (CP)—The Old Crow Co-op is the only business in this Indian community north of the Arctic Circle.

It is the community's store, bank, fur-buying agent, weather station, contractor, grubstaker, postal agent, sawmill operator, builder, fuel supplier, sewage disposal contractor, main employer and hotel.

The Co-op did more than $250,000 worth of business last year and the people of Old Crow made money on it.

Two years ago, the Indian affairs department told Old Crow residents they'd have to run the Co-op themselves.

The only way Indian affairs could contracts, now, outsiding Co-op manager Ed Isaac got in an interview.

Weather observation is contracted to the Co-op by the atmospheric environment service. Agnes Charlie and Ruth Kendi monitor and send weather data to Whitehorse for daily reports.

Annie Issie is the postmaster. With postal services handled by the Co-op under contract from the federal post office.

The Co-op rents space to Canadian National Telecommunications for a telephone exchange, handles all the fuel and supplies all the groceries, dry goods and hardware.

The Co-op, with 115 shareholders, paid $17,700 in dividends last year — the smallest 22 cents and the largest $985.16.

"I really think it's important," Mr. Isaac said. "Now they're using responsibility in, actually have control of their economy, in a sense . . . local economy."

"It's really something. In Indian communities per se, with a whole population, natives have no say in an economic sense, wherever here they do."

He said Old Crow residents now believe that the Co-op is their store.

"The kids no longer say 'It's Ed's store,' and that can be a pretty good example of what a community thinks."

Army of 5,000 After Mosquitoes

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — There are more than 5,000 people in North America working to control mosquitoes.

One is Dr. J. A. (Joe) Shemanchuk, an entomologist at the federal agriculture research station here.

"We're interested in all blood-sucking flies, but our research has been centred on the mosquito," Dr. Shemanchuk said. "We have to come up with a method of control which is effective and environmentally acceptable."

Dr. Shemanchuk's research unit is forecasting out data on the life-style of the mosquito, with emphasis on how the insects spend their winters.

"The 60-odd species of mosquitoes in Alberta are divided into two groups. One group spends the winter in the egg stage, the other spends the winter as adults.

"The female of the group, which overwinters as an adult, mates near the end of the summer and then finds a sheltered place to spend the winter.

"They go into badger burrows — any protected place with high humidity — and hang like bats from the ceiling. In the spring they emerge and lay their eggs on the surface of a pond. The eggs hatch soon after they're laid.

Only the female sucks the blood of man and animal — she needs it for her eggs. The male sucks nourishment from plants.

The other type of mosquito in Alberta lays its eggs in moist sod around pools in the fall. When the pools flood in the spring, the eggs hatch.

"These are more difficult to control, ..."

"Each female can lay up to 300 eggs. We've found some with as many as 8,000 eggs per square foot. Most of the eggs won't hatch until they've gone through several periods of drying and thawing.

"Even after this, not all the eggs hatch on the first flooding. Some remain dormant for several years."

Dr. Shemanchuk said the reason scientists are trying to understand the winter habits of mosquitoes is that it gives more time to develop control measures.

"Once the ponds flood we have only 10 days to kill the eggs. If we can use the winter period to get at them we have much more time."

Research now is being directed to specific methods of control.

"We're trying to determine if we can burn the vegetation around ponds, cultivate the ground surrounding ponds, simply apply certain chemicals to the soil, or develop a combination of these three techniques."

Alberta didn't always have a mosquito problem. There were mosquitoes, but not enough to seriously bother anyone.

Alberta is dry, especially in the south. To make farming more viable, early Albertans turned to irrigation. By 1964, half a million acres were being watered through irrigation and the mosquitoes multiplied.

With the increasing mosquito population came western encephalitis — or sleeping sickness, a disease that affects horse and man. It is caused by a virus transmitted by mosquitoes.

Outbreaks of this disease in horses are known to have occurred at irregular intervals in Alberta as far back as 1929, Dr. Shemanchuk said.

The number of reported cases in the past decade has been on the increase, with the most serious epidemic occurring in 1963 when 320 cases were clinically diagnosed. Human and horses infected by the bites of mosquitoes become ill and sometimes die.

Dr. Shemanchuk said Alberta well probably never be entirely free of mosquitoes.

"I don't think we'll ever get to the point where we have complete eradication, but we'll certainly be able to improve our control measures significantly."

Was Wrong Drink

TORONTO (CP) — When two men entered the India House Tavern here for a drink, one asked the waitress: "Do you have any exotic Indian drinks?" The waitress replied: "We do have India Pale Ale."

Sets New Record

TORONTO (CP) — Tom Rogers, a 15-year-old high school student, recently shattered the world's record for non-stop crawling. He crawled around his school's running track 29 times, thus exceeding the world mark of seven miles.

Study Volcanoes

EDMONTON (CP) — Albertans interested in geology will have a chance to study volcanic geology in Hawaii next March. The University of Alberta's extension department is offering a 12-day field trip during which the volcanic geology of two islands, Hawaii and Oahu, will be studied.

Couple Trades City Life For Wood Stove and Privy

FLESHERTON, Ont. (CP) — Edith and Frank Holman have traded the hustle and bustle of city life for a 50-acre farm nestled in nearby Beaver Valley. The river in the valley and the cliffs beyond remind them of their native Austria.

Part of the attraction when they purchased the farm was the old wood stove in the kitchen and the outdoor privy. For two winters the couple lived like pioneers with only a tunnel through the snow to take them from the house to the outdoor facilities.

The Holmans adopted a policy that what they didn't grow they didn't eat. They have a huge garden, grow berries and have had their own pigs cattle, sheep.

"We couldn't even kill a goose now, our freezer is so full," said Mr. Holman.

In the yard the Holmans have goats which they milk twice a day, guinea fowl, chucks (wild birds), chickens, geese and two ducks, one part-collie and the other a bird-hunting poodle pointer.

Times have changed since they purchased the farm as a weekend retreat some eight years ago.

Mrs. Holman assumes the responsibility of milking the goats although both enjoy drinking the milk.

After stripping the woodwork in the farmhouse in reveal beautiful oak doors, frames and bannisters and furnishing their home in keeping with the period, including a Franklin stove in the kitchen, the couple began looking for things to do to keep us winter evenings.

Tired of mass production is manufacturing, the idea of individually crafted candle holders sparked Mr. Holman's interest.

What was slated to be a garage become a fully-equipped work room which even boasts an enameling department. Here Mr. Holman makes wood carriers recycled from old rakes, candle holders, enamelled pendants, crosses and wall decorations made from 200-year-old barn nails from horseshoe nails imported from Sweden.

Mr. Holman, whose hands are crippled with arthritis, makes copper bracelets and he says when he wears them, the dizziness causes him no pain or discomfort.

Until last February, Mrs. Holman ran a fabric business in Owen Sound, 20 miles northwest of Flesherton, but was after she sold the business that she was able to devote more time to spinning and weaving.

"I was always intrigued with looms. I did a little research on my forbears and they were all cloth makers and dyers. I had always fiddled around. Before I had a loom it was an obsession."

OPP Change Chesterville

CHESTERVILLE, Ont. (CP) — This little community 30 miles south of Ottawa used to be a good place to get into trance, burn some tire rubber, start a rumble or bug the village's only cop.

But last spring the Ontario Provincial Police (OPP) became responsible for law and order here and things haven't been the same since for the local young bucks and others.

Last Halloween, before officially taking over policing duties, the OPP at the request of the council put on a "show of force" because Halloween hijinks in the past here have reached near-riot proportions.

"It was the quietest Halloween in 25 years," said OPP Sgt.-Maj. Ed Legge, who on another Halloween night in the village was hit on the head by a brick tossed by someone in an unruly crowd.

Before the OP Fistepped in, 20-year-old Constable Leonard Shaner was the sole peace officer and some times was fed up enough at the end of a 16-hour day to ignore some of the shenanigans in Chesterville's two hotels and three halls.

"Our decision to bring in the OPP wasn't a reflection on Constable Shaner's abilities," Reeve Keith Graham said. "We just couldn't afford to expand our own force."

Constable Shaner has joined the OPP and is stationed at Thunder Bay, At Chesterville he was earning $11,000 a year with no overtime provision and on 44 hours a day.

"Policing Chesterville is now no more difficult than any other part of our eastern Ontario jurisdiction," said a young OPP constable parked in one of the police cruisers that have become practically a permanent fixture here.

The province supplies OPP service to the village without charge as it does for most other Ontario communities of similar size and tax assessment.

Corke to Seek Meeting with Kerr on Hillcrest Sewer Costs

By HARRY MULHALL

Mayor Ben Corke is persisting in his bid to prod the Ontario government to positive reaction in the Hillcrest sewers-cost controversy.

The mayor now is seeking a personal hearing from Environmental Minister George Kerr, he told city council Monday.

As a result, council postponed discussing a possible meeting with Hillcrest residents on costs of completing the area's sewer network.

Late last week, the ministry rejected financial support to ease Hillcrest tax burdens.

Mayor Corke revealed his latest move as council was to consider a petition from Hillcrest residents whose streets are still to be serviced. The petition two weeks ago asked for a meeting with council to define estimated costs of local improvement charged to property owners involved in the early sewers involved in the second — second and last — extension phase of the sewer program.

The ministry's negative response arrived in the mail Friday — a reply to a suggestion that the ministry apply the same payment formula to Hillcrest that it plans for its installations in neighboring Thurlow Township. Charging ratepayers no more than $130 a year for installation. However, the Thurlow project is a ministry undertaking while the Hillcrest program is a municipal scheme with Belleville footing the bill on local improvement charges.

When the petition for the meeting between council and Hillcrest homeowners was placed on council's Monday agenda city hall "was still not sure what was going to happen," about the cost-casting proposal, said the mayor.

"I would like to think we still aren't sure what is to happen to that request," he added.

He told council he had sent his letter Monday seeking the appointment with Mr. Kerr.

As a result, he said, it might "make sense" to deal with the petition request for a meeting at the next council meeting in two weeks.

Meantime, council had before it a report from city manager Wilbur Purcell documenting the procedure followed before progressing with the second phase of the sewer program — serving Hillcrest south from Byron St. to East College St.

Bylaws covering the projects already have been approved following formal publication.

Engineering estimates for sewers south from Byron were reckoned at $25.65 a foot frontage and $25.67 along East College. The first phase — for which tax bills came in this year and accrued the controversy — cost $17.25 a foot.

Mr. Purcell's report, thus took issue with several statements made in the petition. Those included "no prior consultation with any of the residents, particularly in regard to price" and city council acting to install services "when it has suddenly become expedient to do so" because of the northeast industrial park neighboring Hillcrest.

In both cases these statements are erroneous," said the city manager's report.

Local Unions Adding To CLC 'War Chest'

By COLIN BRUCE

The three international unions whose chief Canadian officers work in the Belleville area will be financially supporting the Canadian Labor Congress in its fight against the federal government's price and wage restraint program.

The three internationals are The Boot and Shoe Workers Union, Jewelry Workers Union and the United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers — collectively representing nearly 8,000 Canadian workers.

Representatives of the trio, Ian Reilly, Reginald Leader and Don Burshaw, all attended a meeting with the federal government last Thursday.

Mr. Reilly, representing the Boot and Shoe workers, and Mr. Leader of the jewelry workers both said their international executives had sent the contributions along and both men were "certain" that Mr. Burshaw of the cement lime and gypsum workers was following suit.

Mr. Burshaw left for the western provinces on union business Monday and could not be contacted.

In an attempt to defeat the government's anti-inflation program, the Canada Labor Congress (CLC) intends raising $500,000 from its members to finance the legal battle.

"We'll all be giving our fair share," said Mr. Reilly.

Both union leaders criticized the government's program for lack of explanation of how it would be implemented and their belief that prices wouldn't be controlled as closely as wages.

"If we don't defeat it, we'll at least have the government thinking and they'll be in for getting something better," said Mr. Leader. "At the moment, it appears to me control of prices would be of limited effect if they work at all."

"If there was some sure way of freezing prices, we wouldn't be having to defeat at all," he said.

During the meeting Thursday, the CLC offered the proposal which would freeze price and wage controls more acceptable to the labor movement.

Mr. Leader outlined the highlights of the 10 points as "tax credits for those workers with no bargaining power and who fall into low income brackets; positive evidence that professional fees will be controlled; increase in old age pensions and an active program to control land speculation.

Asked if the CLC would gain the support of the 112 top labor leaders in the country, Mr. Loader said "I didn't see a single objection to the request for contributions."

Workers Reject Offer

Brown Shoe Co of Canada Ltd. workers have turned down a 10-per-cent wage offer and will apply for an Ontario conciliator's hearing, a union representative said Monday night.

The 100-member local of the Boot and Shoe Workers Union met Monday night in Stirling to vote on the offer.

Ian Reilly, chief Canadian union officer for the boot and shoe workers, said the workers have had completed a two-year contract.

John Fuller, plant manager, said his company is one of the designated companies that will fall under the federal government's wage restraint guidelines — explaining the 10 per cent offer.

The union refusal of the restraint guidelines during contract negotiations, marks the first such opposition in the area.

Because all workers in the plant produce only one shoe, on a piece-work basis, it is impossible to approximate an average salary earned at the Stirling firm.

The formula which is used to multiply wages against production has a base rate. The union in its wage demand has asked that this base rate be increased by $1.

The company countered the demand saying the formula would remain the same, but the pay packet would be increased by 10 per cent.

Clean Up

Employment Opportunity Centre worker Judith Callacher (left) and project co-ordinator Inga Wicks tie a rag around a paint roller in order to reach upper sections of walls in office they opened in the Belleville Plaza Monday. They are one of 17 Local Initiative Program grants recently approved in Hastings riding.

Seventeen Hastings Projects Share $314,000 in Federal LIP Funding

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Employment Opportunity Centre co-ordinator Inga Wicks says she isn't waiting any time establishing an office from which to assist potential employees under $18,810 in funding under the Local Initiatives Program.

Already, shortly after Manpower and Immigration Minister Robert Andras announced the federal recipients, the co-ordinator has set up offices in the eastend Belleville Plaza.

The project's other three workers now are painting walls and "scrounging" for furniture," she said Monday.

Her project is one of 17 approved for funding in the federal riding of Hastings. Over 80 now-unemployed people will be paid from $314,000 allotted by the ministry, more than double the $140,000 spent in Hastings last year.

Projects are spread throughout the riding, five are in Belleville, proportionately the same number this year (1975-76) as the three projects of 39 approved in the riding in 1974-75.

Next in line are Coe Hill and Bancroft with three LIP projects each while Deseronto received two.

In Belleville, said Mrs. Wicks, the centre will work closely with Canada Manpower and the county social welfare and family services departments, to help chronic unemployables retain jobs.

Many people get jobs, but either can't, or find it hard to keep them, she said. "We'll find out what they really like to do, find them a job if possible, and make sure they get them."

Mrs. Wicks' project is one of the first in begin operation. Others will start in the next few weeks and all must end by late June, 1976.

In the city, recipients of grants are Take One Meyers Creek, dealing with historical research ($11,279); the Employment Opportunity Centre ($18,750); and Belleville Services for Handicapped and Senior Citizens ($27,660).

County projects approved are North Hastings Playgrounds, dealing with construction of creative playground equipment ($13,985); Manor Park, Bancroft ($27,600); and Bancroft municipal building ($20,000). In Coe Hill, projects are Concerned Citizens ($24,750); Community Centre Development ($9,450) and bruch clean up ($12,000).

Council Briefs

Pay Schedule Passes

City council Monday night approved a bylaw which means their employees civic service will now come once a month.

It authorizes a decision taken two weeks ago to change the pay schedule for council members — to now paid every three months. City councillers currently receive $4,000 a year and the mayor $6,000.

Land Transfer Complete

The lengthy, legal process of transferring land to Belleville General Hospital for its long-awaited new parking lot, ended in city council Monday night.

By council's property parcel needed for the facility, BCH negotiated conveying a section of Bay Dr. and a neighboring portion of parkland from the city.

Council approved a bylaw authorizing the land conveyance to BCH board of governors. The price: $3,500.

Club Gets Showers

City council Monday night accepted a $1,385 tender for a shower installation at the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club.

The Tender — from G and T Plumbing. Carrying Place — was the lowest of two submitted, and calls for supply and installation of four shower stalls.

Week Set Aside

Business women are to have their week.

Monday night city council agreed to declare Nov. 17-23 as Business Women's Week.

The request came from the Belleville business and professional Women's Club on behalf of its national federation.

Sandbar Days Numbered

Federal navigation authorities will move to solve a problem which bit several small-craft owners last summer near Belleville harbor.

More than 50 small craft had their grounding on a sandbar off the southeast up of East Zwick's in the mouth of Moira River.

Monday council was told by a letter from D.P. Burley, that Belleville Bar Commission chairman that the problem will be corrected for the season of the 1978 navigation season.

Surplus Projected

Belleville may expect a small surplus in its city treasury by the end of the year.

One reason: Revenue is up a bit more than the budget.

That was indicated Monday night by city treasurer Frank Morrell.

"Our revenues are running a little ahead of budget and it's anticipated there'll be a small surplus at the end of the year," Mr. Mogrell told council.

Last year, his department ended in annual deficit operations with a big $200,000 surplus.

A 'Tremendous Clamor' For City Road Work

There is a "tremendous clamour" for roads maintaining Belleville's streets, city council was told Monday.

The caution was evoked as council approved a proposal to join in a program of road needs studies initiated by the provincial government.

The debate had its roots in a proposal earlier this year that Belleville — among 120 other "larger-spending" Ontario municipalities participate in a new method of distributing provincial funds for road renewal programs.

The system — suggested by transportation and communications ministry — has been in vogue in unorganized townships forms of government.

A core requirement is a study to update the road needs of municipalities — and keep needs information current. A maintenance management study also was part of the program.

But, said city engineer Joe Angelo after meeting with ministry officials it was his impression the management study did not now have the same priority.

But he recommended the roads need study by done now — if so it could be ready for implementation by 1977, indication from other municipalities that such a study will cost about $20,000 — of which the ministry pays 75 per cent.

But, warned Ald. Jack Ireland, "we're getting a tremendous clamor for road renewal.

"So if we're going to be able to go to the ministry and ask for more money and better allowances we have to be only one that will consider it with a study," said the councillor who is chairman of city hall's traffic committee.

Bylaw Under Fire

Sections of Belleville's proposed minimum standards maintenance bylaw came in for caustic comment by a number of downtown property owners at a public meeting Monday night.

Ald. Clarence Young, before council as a one-man delegation.

Mr. Young questioned whether parts of the suggested ordinance which place an onus on landlords for accommodation maintenance may conflict with provincial government law. One section of the provincial regulations say the tenant is responsible for cleanliness and any damage caused by the tenant.

He warned that the working of the bylaw could leave a landlord victim of a tenant who departs "in a fit of pique." Such a tenant has only to report his landlord to enforcement authorities who must meet all the regulations before being permitted to rent again.

When the two sides settled the current one-year contract — which expires Dec. 31 — the union won a 21.5-per-cent wage increase that gave mechanics roughly 20 cents an hour more than the $5.40 drivers received.

Local President Mr. Kerr said some details of union proposals might be forthcoming at two public meetings this week. The meetings are set Nov. 25-26.

Forecast Is Dismal

Elizabeth Finkle, a native of Belleville, adjusts one of her paintings for her first public art display at Corby Public Library. Mrs. Finkle has been painting for more than 40 years. The exhibition, which continues until November 17, also includes works of some of her students.

Labor Leaders Ignoring Guidelines in Talks

If the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) cannot defeat the government's wage and price freeze program on legal grounds, "strikes may be the last recourse organized labor has," says Ian Reilly, Canadian representative of the Boot and Shoe Workers Union.

In the meantime before the government passes the wage and price controls Mr. Reilly says he is not considering restraint on wage demands.

"We (my members locally) are going to negotiate for all we can . . . as much as possible," said Mr. Reilly. He said he is currently negotiating and the proposed wage restraints are not being considered.

"If the contract settlement is above the guidelines (10 per cent approximately) it can go to be heard for review," he said. "If the board refuses, then there'll be a strike as workers fight to keep up with prices."

At the same rate, "there'll be strikes all over the country," said Mr. Reilly.

"I won't take the course of a general strike but as lukewarm as the cost of living they'll strike," he said.

Reginald Leader, top executive for the jewelry workers in Canada, said he too is in current negotiations and his union local is going for more than the guidelines would permit.

"I'm quite sure my local will not settle within the guidelines," said Mr. Loader.

Final Hook-up

Workmen this week are preparing a trench as is first step in burying all overhead wires in the downtown area. The trench will carry both communication and power lines — a project accelerated with the construction of the $5 million Century Place project.

Talks Continue Behind Closed Doors

Both sides in contract talks between the Belleville Transit Commission and the union representing 23 mechanics and bus drivers have refused to reveal the substance of three hours of initial negotiations Monday.

Hugh Kerr, Local 138 president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, refused comment today, saying "we don't want to negotiate through the media."

The president said "nothing too much came up" Monday.

Commission chairman Marylea Burtt termed talks productive: "We got a lot of things ironed out."

She said the union and the commission agreed at the bargaining table that no details of their talks would be revealed to the press.

"We just think that we can negotiate a lot faster and more meaningfully if we do it privately," Mrs. Burtt said.

Earlier, the chairman indicated the union is asking for more than a 16-per-cent wage increase in a two-year contract.

Release of any information by the press results in public pressure on both the commission and the union, she indicated.

Sabres Shaded By Canadiens

MONTREAL (CP) — Yvon Lambert got a couple of handy deflections in the final four minutes for two quick goals that gave Montreal Canadiens a 3-2 victory over Buffalo Sabres in the only National Hockey League game Monday night.

Sabres goaltender Gerry Desjardins turned in an outstanding performance that had Buffalo in a 3-1 lead when, at 16:44 of the third period, Lambert fired from a sharp angle. The puck struck the stick of Buffalo defenceman Jerry Korab, glancing into the net.

"When I got the tying goal, I said, gee, some nights you're really lucky—I had a lot of chances," Lambert said. "On that one, I tried to pass it in front and it hit Korab's stick and it went in.

"I saw the top corner well," said Lambert of the winning goal 73 seconds later. "I tried to keep cool. Desjardins played a very, very good game tonight. He really impressed me.

"On the second goal, I think the puck hit Desjardins' stick. I just shot it right away because I knew I had that side."

Desjardins was still wondering after the game exactly how the puck got by him. "It had something across the net. Those things happen."

Gilbert Perreault gave the Sabres a 1-0 lead at 5:36 of the first period and Jacques Richard doubled the advantage at 18:47 of the second with a drive off the pads of Montreal goaltender Ken Dryden.

But the Canadiens came back but 39 seconds later as Bobby Roberts took a goalmouth pass from Pete Mahovlich and banged the puck home from 15 feet out.

YVON LAMBERT

The Canadiens, who outshot the Sabres 35-24 over the game, scored standing for the third period and bombarded Desjardins with eight shots in the first 5½ minutes.

But Desjardins, who robbed Jacques Lemaire in the first minute of the game and again in the 10th minute of the second period, was up to the task, foiling Doug Risebrough, Terry Cournoyer and Lambert as they slammed his net.

Lambert's goals gave him nine in his last five games and 10 for the season. He had 32 last year after a six-goal rookie season with Buffalo.

Lambert attributed his scoring streak to added confidence.

Wider Field Appeals To Newest Argonaut

TORONTO (CP) — Anthony Davis thinks Canadian football is made to order for a running back with his particular ability.

Davis, whose million-dollar contract with Toronto Argonauts was announced Monday, got his first look at the Canadian game a little more than two weeks ago.

He and his agent took in a game between the Argos and Hamilton Tiger-Cats during their first visit on talk contract.

"I liked the rules, you know, no yard between the defensive line, the blocking, the wider field," Davis said at a news conference called by the Argos to announce his signing.

"I really think it is suited to a player like myself, in the Canadian game can be real exciting."

Davis, at five-feet-nine and 180 pounds, is small by National Football League standards but his speed and outside running ability puts him in the World Football League's outstanding offensive player category, the league folded this month.

He had scored 18 touchdowns for Southern California San. including six in his first professional game, and led the WFL in scoring and in rushing, with 1,309 yards.

The Sun outbid New York Jets of the NFL for Davis, who had a glittering college career with University of Southern California Trojans.

He holds the university's career records for scoring and rushing, topping the record of O. J. Simpson, now an NFL star with Buffalo Ellis.

He scored 33 touchdowns and rushed for more than 100 yards in 17 games.

The Argos began talking to him shortly after the WFL folded last month and kept him till his contract with the Sun was legally breached by his club's failure to play two scheduled games in a row.

Had the Argos qualified for the Eastern Conference playoffs, he would have been in on his own next weekend's semi-final game against Montreal Alouettes. Instead, the Trials will play Montreal.

The Jets made Davis their No. 1 draft pick, but couldn't approach him when the WFL folded because of communication. Pete Rozelle's order to NFL teams not to sign WFL players until draft day of the season.

After Davis's visit to Toronto, managing director John Barrow and director of player personnel J. J. Albrecht travelled to California last week to continue their efforts to sign Davis.

Barrow said Monday he'd have nine other WFL players on their negotiation list, including quarterback Daniel White of Memphis Southmen.

"I don't know if we have signed Anthony, we're going to get him when right away and we'll wait until they've talked to the National Football League," said Barrow.

Argos has a personal-service contract with Southmen owner John F. Bassett, who is seeking an NFL franchise for Memphis. Barrow said Bassett, a former Argo director, has promised to help the Argos acquire White if the NFL franchise bid fails.

Davis's contract is one of the richest ever offered by a Canadian sports team. Montreal's Johnny Rodgers is reported to be playing under a seven-year agreement worth $1-million.

Daley Setting Hot Pace

TORONTO (CP) — Joe Daley is bringing a twinge of pride to Ben Hatskin.

The veteran Winnipeg Jets goaltender is setting the early-season pace in the hunt for the Ben Hatskin Trophy, awarded to the World Hockey Assn.'s most valuable player. Daley, who allowed the fewest goals during the season.

Hatskin, before his appointment as chief executive officer of the WHA, was a founding member and former president of the Jets.

And Daley, who has staked a solid claim to the silverware, is set a WHA mark en route to his 1.38 goals-against average by blanking the opposition for 225 minutes and 19 seconds, surpassing two shutouts between goals by Don Borgesse of Denver Spurs and Steve Sutherland of Quebec Nordiques.

Team-mate Ulf Nilsson continues to set the early pace in the scoring race with 19 points as Canadian Division shooters dominate the top nine placings. Nilsson has a one-point lead on Chris Bordeleau of Quebec with centre Norm Ferguson, last year National Hockey League veteran, between them in WHA's Edmonton Oilers this season's surprise team.

That trio is followed by Quebec's Marc Tardif, Winnipeg's Ron Ellis, Bobby Hull, Winnipeg's Anders Hedberg, Winnipeg's Real Cloutier and Serger Bernier of Quebec with 13 points each.

Rams Earn Respect

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Eagles showed Los Angeles Rams quarterback James Harris and the entire National Football League no respect Monday night and it cost the Eagles dearly.

Harris explained it after the Rams dumped the Eagles 45-3 in National Football League game before 64,801 booing home fans.

"We thought they weren't respecting Pat (Jackson)," Harris said. "They were just squatting on him, letting him run.

"We tried to earn a little respect by going long."

Before Harris stopped his rambling, he had thrown three touchdown passes, 34 and 30 yards to Jackson and 42 yards to Jack Snow. He completed 10 of 20 for 307 yards.

It was the sixth consecutive win for the Rams since losing their opener to Dallas Cowboys. Los Angeles, a pre-season favorite to reach the Super Bowl, have leads the National Conference West by four games with only half the season yet to play.

Eagles' quarterback Mike McCormack, whose job may be in jeopardy, said the Rams controlled post game interviewers:

"Gentlemen, this is going to be short and sweet. We got our butts kicked by a very good football team. I didn't expect to do anything right. We expected Jackson to play. He was a total collapse."

Eagles' former first-round Tex Schramm said the game, "must be viewed in relative words during a halftime interview on radio.

"In seven years we haven't made any progress at all in my opinion," Vince said. "Now and we're headed for 1-6, and that doesn't make me happy. We've slipped a lot."

Return to Chicago ? Answer Is 'No' — Hull

WINNIPEG (CP) — Bobby Hull said Monday he is getting tired of being asked whether he plans to return to Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

"Yes, unequivocally no, I'm not going back to Chicago! OK?"

That was Hull's reply when asked to comment on a report that he might leave Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association.

Hull, 36, said he gets calls every day or three months with the same question.

The Toronto Star said Monday the left-winger planned negotiations with WHA officials on a possible return to Chicago. Hull joined Winnipeg three years ago for a million signing bonus and $200,000-a-year over 10 years.

KILOWATT HOURS

Save most where you use most

Most families use as much electricity in a month to dry the laundry as they do in two years vacuuming the rugs. Or in seven years of electric shaving.

That kind of comparison makes it easy to identify the main targets of an effective energy conservation campaign. You can spot them from the list on the right which shows the average use of electrical appliances in kilowatt-hours per month.

A kilowatt-hour is one thousand watts, used for one hour. For example, ten 100-watt bulbs burning for an hour.

Waste is costly. Try to involve the whole family in your campaign for the wise use of electricity, particularly in the areas of heaviest use.

The figures are taken from the Hydro conservation booklet "How you use the electricity you use".

When Help Was Needed It Came in a Hurry

Don't tell the Belangers of Belleville that people don't care!

They've had proof which debunks that popular theory.

Eight-year-old Jason, struck in the face by a puck shortly after the Friday night Metro Junior B Hockey League game got under way at Memorial Arena, was soon being attended and comforted by spectators who came quickly to the aid of the injured youngster and his mother.

Says Mrs. Belanger (Anita): "Within seconds, Jason was carried to a small office and treated by a team of men who worked efficiently to stem the flow of blood and give much encouragement while comforting me.

"To these unnamed gentlemen, Dr. Williamson and the ambulance attendants, we offer our sincere and grateful thanks."

Jason has seven stitches. But so far, no injury to the eye or the cheekbone has been discovered.

Mrs. Belanger says she would have been at a loss without the speedy assistance offered at the time of the accident.

And she is also appreciative of the many calls concerning Jason's condition.

Ernie Belanger says his son was more upset about missing the hockey game than he was over the injury.

Some of the pain was taken out of the injury by some more people with their hearts in the right place.

Belleville Bobcats' general manager Jim (Snipe) Malthews and two members of the team paid a visit to Jason and delivered what Mrs. Belanger calls "the prize puck that hit him".

Bobcats have themselves a dedicated fan here.

But Jason may be watching future games from behind the glass.

There's just so much a supporter can give for his team.

Bayside Team Turns It On

Bayside Secondary School's senior girls' team put in an exceptional effort in the Ontario Federation of Secondary Schools cross country meet on the Blue Mountain ski slopes at Collingwood on the weekend.

Thirty-four teams competed in the event with the Bayside girls capturing second place in their division. Carrie Richards placed ninth in the field of 200 runners. Other members of the Bayside team are Jeanne Pelletier, Lynn Richards, Cindy Sutton and Mia Flegin.

It is the second straight year Bayside has received an excellent showing from its senior girls. In 1974, the team placed third.

Bayside's midget girls, second in the Central Ontario Secondary Schools meet, was 36th at the Ontario competition.

East Northumberland Secondary School's Dave Pelham won the senior boys' four and one-half mile race. John Farrell, Belleville Collegiate Institute midget runner, put in a commendable showing, placing 24th in the large field in his event.

The Blue Mountain layout presented a stiff challenge for the runners. Each race began at the foot of a ski slope with the entrants climbing a 30-degree incline for 250 yards.

With help from the crossbar, Trenton High School goalie Mike Day keeps ball out during Bay of Quinte senior soccer final, Monday, at Trenton. Moira Secondary School captured the honors with 3-1 win and will represent the area in the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association competition, Saturday, in Oshawa.

Trojans Take Championship

TRENTON — Thirty-two minutes into the second half, Moira Secondary School Trojan's Bob Crawford, taking a free kick from outside the penalty area, floated a high ball over Trenton High School's defence and the Belleville school had its first Bay of Quinte senior soccer title since 1971.

Trenton goalkeeper Mike Day, pressured by onrushing Moira attackers, could only hang on to the ball and it wound up over the goal line to snap a 1-1 deadlock and decide the hard fought final.

Moira, coached by Bill Jacobs, will represent the Bay of Quinte in Central Ontario Secondary School Association competition, Saturday, in Oshawa.

The junior representative will be decided today when Belleville Collegiate Institute Rest Grobe meet Nicholson Catholic College for the Bay of Quinte championship.

Trojans took the lead early here, Monday.

Tom Britton beat Day on a breakaway.

Trenton equalized on a penalty shot. Oscar Nespoli, brought down by a Moira defender, made no mistake from the penalty spot. Goalkeeper Gerry O'Connell, with no chance to save, could only wave at the ball.

Shortly after, Moira came close to regaining the lead off a corner kick. Taken by Ross MacLeod, Trojans pushed the ball to the goal line but Day, gained control in time to prevent the visitors from moving in front.

End to end action featured the last five minutes of the first half. Moira slammed the ball off the crossbar on a free kick. Trenton came close when the ball was crossed into the goal mouth but with goalie O'Connell looking out of position, Ken Wootton covered up to erase the scoring chance.

Before Crawford's winner, the Moira team twice came close to taking the lead in the second half's early going.

Crawford sent a perfect cross from right wing. Fired hard and low, the ball eluded Trenton defenders but no Moira player could convert the setup.

Later, Moira failed on a well taken corner kick.

After Crawford made it 2-1, Trenton fought back and with four minutes to play, Nespoli cut loose off a free kick but O'Connell made the save with a leaping grab.

Both teams had their chances in the late stages.

Britton had an excellent chance to sap Moira's lead after Crawford was brought down in the penalty area. Britton found the crossbar with his shot from the penalty spot. Given another chance because the goalie moved prematurely on his first try, Britton got the final scoring opportunity of the game but Day made the save as time ran out.

Centurions Roll to Final

Defence was the name of the game as Barry Fryer's Centre Hastings Secondary School Centurions advanced to the Bay of Quinte senior football final, Monday with a 9-3 win over Quinte Secondary School Saints.

Defenders on both sides repeatedly came up with big plays to thwart drives by opposing offensive units.

But it was a defensive miscue which enabled Centurions to count the game's only touchdown.

Quarterback Scott Simpson teamed up with his favorite target Joe Brooks to get the six points on the board, in the first quarter. A Quinte defender appeared to have a shot at knocking the ball down but went for the interception instead and missed.

Brooks and halfback Harley Williamson were constant threats for Centurions who upped their lead to 9-0 on a safety touch and a single off a punt by V. J. Singh.

Saints' solid defence refused to give up anything after that but Centurions didn't need any more the way their own defence was operating.

Several times, Saints were in good field position, thanks to their stout defence but Quinte could not launch a sustained drive against the determined effort turned in by Centre Hastings.

Quinte quarterback Rick Cubitt had no luck in the passing department. Alert covering by Centurions produced interceptions and spiked the aerial attack.

Saints rounded out the scoring in the game when they connected for three points on a 30-yard field goal by Al Rutherford.

Centurions now meet Moira Secondary School Trojans for the senior title and the right to host the Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association final which is tentatively scheduled for November 11.

The Bay of Quinte final goes Thursday, in Madoc, at 3 p.m. It's the second straight year Centre Hastings has advanced to the final. In 1974, the team lost to Trenton High School Tigers.

Centre Hastings' Joe Brooks is off and running on touchdown dash as Quinte Saints defender makes desperate attempt to bring Centuries down. For the second year in a row, coach Barry Fryer's Centre Hastings seniors have advanced to the Bay of Quinte final. Monday win over Quinte by 9-3 score in semi-final matches Centurions against Moira Secondary School Trojans in title game, Thursday, at Madoc.

Working to Get Message Across

For the past four years Canadians have been saturated by earlier Bills and Hon. Walk, Jog, it's get Canada Moving Again.

The messages seem to greet us at every turn of the street. The point is to promote fitness. The obvious intents it to get Canadians, of all ages, whipped into some semblance of physical fitness.

The group behind this movement, Participaction, is headed by Montreal marketing researcher, Keith McKerracher. For that matter, it was this Montrealer who planned the entire program.

Wednesday, McKerracher will be explaining various aspects of the movement to area residents. In the morning he is the scheduled guest on CJBQ open line program. In the evening, from 7:30, he will be lecturing and answering questions for any interested parties at Centennial Secondary School.

"Canadians really fill themselves," says McKerracher, "they believe they are the strong of the nation."

"In reality, Canadians are among the most flaccid sleeveld groups in the world when it comes to keeping fit," he declares.

That's where Participaction comes in. McKerracher and the Participaction program as a whole are geared to motivating the public. Once the country is moving it will carry itself.

In his lecture in Belleville, McKerracher will be presenting some of the methods used in making the program such a success. For instance, he describes how Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, was swept up in the fitness fad and today is rated the most physically active city in Canada.

CHRYSLER CANADA LTD.

Dodge brings logic to luxury.

'76 Charger Special Edition
This is the personal luxury car that's taming Canada on.

Here's the proof.

Pride of ownership. Today it's almost a forgotten value. Dodge Monaco and Dodge Charger Special Edition give you plenty to be proud of. And you also get some other very logical reasons for owning them. Reasons like big car comfort, quiet and ride.

Dodge engineering: these days it makes the big difference.

The story behind these two handsome cars is one of solid engineering logic. Both give you rugged Unibody construction to keep them tight, and solid. Both receive a special seven-stage rustproofing treatment to help keep them looking new for years.

Monaco and Charger Special Edition both feature newly designed braking systems for more peace of mind. And both are packed with abundant quantities of sound-absorbing material for peace and quiet.

You ride on the famed Torsion bar suspension—smooth, yet stable. And when it comes to standard equipment, both are loaded. For instance, V8 power, Torquelite automatic, power steering, power front disc brakes and many other touches are all standard.

So what's the difference between Dodge Monaco and Charger Special Edition? It all depends on how you like your luxury.

Compare our miles per gallon... we're competitive

'76 Dodge Monaco
The full-size Dodge with a full measure of comfort, luxury and value.

Charger Special Edition—personal luxury car.

On looks alone, Dodge Charger Special Edition has become one of Canada's most popular personal luxury cars.

All vinyl bucket seats are standard, as is the colour-keyed shag carpeting. If you'd like even more luxury, there's a special Brougham package that gives you a reclining 60/40 bench seat of velour and vinyl with a folding armrest on the driver's side, special hood and rear deck tape stripes, trunk carpet, deluxe 3 spoke steering wheel, plus lots more.

For a sporting look, there's also a "Daytona" option to make your Charger Special Edition even more special.

Dodge Monaco. Big Dodge. Big value. Big luxury.

Choose from three Monaco series—Monaco, Royal Monaco and Royal Monaco Brougham. Each combine Dodge engineering logic with Dodge luxury and value. And these days, that's a winning combination.

Inside Monaco there's big family room. These are full-size cars with a full measure of comfort. You ride on a long 122-inch wheelbase (124" for station wagons). And that translates into a very smooth ride. Just choose the level of Monaco luxury that's right for you. From there on Dodge delivers as only Dodge can.

Lancers Tie Warriors 4-4

LINDSAY, Ont. (CP) — Lindsay Lancers and Whitby Warriors battled to a 4-4 tie before 350 spectators in the only Ontario Hockey Association Senior A game Monday.

The teams were tied 2-2 at the end of the first period and 3-3 at the end of the second.

Paul Grille and Rick Purdy scored for Lindsay early in the first period. Doug Tate and Doug Keeler replied for Whitby later. Peter Vipood's goal gave the Warriors a 3-2 lead at 4:37 of the second period but George Cornell scored for the Lancers less than a minute later.

In the third period, Ed Pinpot put the Warriors ahead 4-3 at 12:34. A goal by Dave Barra tied the game at 17:38.

The Lancers received three penalties and the Warriors four.

Frank's Remarks Draw Fire

TORONTO (CP) — Columnist Christie Blatchford of The Globe and Mail says Frank Mahovlich of Toronto Toros has been fined for remarks he made in her last week.

Miss Blatchford says assistant general manager Gilles Leger of the World Hockey Association team "does not deny the $2,000 figure that is rumored" to be the amount of Mahovlich's fine.

THE INTELLIGENCER, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1975

Mahovlich was called off ice during a practice, told of the fine and reprimanded after a column last Tuesday in which Miss Blatchford reports his criticism of the Toros.

The veteran centre, who switched to the Toros from the National Hockey League last season, said he found it difficult, as a professional, playing in front of home crowds that included large numbers of fans with giveaway tickets.

"Hockey has lost a lot of the class it had in the Conn Smythe era," said Mahovlich. "It's really different. Even the NHL."

Miss Blatchford reports that reasoned that Mahovlich's remarks amounted to a breach of contract.

Baritone Soloist To Preform Wednesday

Bass — baritone soloist James Bechtel will stage another performance in Belleville Wednesday at 8:30 p.m. at Belleville Collegiate Institute as the guest of Belleville Choral Society.

Mr. Bechtel, a native of Waterford, appeared previously at Bridge Street Church in the role of Elijah in Mendelssohn's oratorio.

He has an impressive background in music. He was a member of the Montreal Bach Choir and is a frequent soloist with the Bach-Elgs Choir in Hamilton.

As well as solo tours, he often appears with symphonies in Atlantic city, Oshawa, Kitchener-Waterloo, and St. Catherine's and choral societies in Kingston and Ottawa.

Collision Brings Charge

MADOC — A Madoc man has been charged with following too closely following a rear-end collision Saturday on Highway 62, one half mile south of the Ridge Rd.

Thomas Weatherell, 63, of RR 3, Madoc was charged after his car was in collision with the rear end of a car driven by Jack Morton, 48, of New Brunswick. Total damage was estimated by police at $600.

Woodhouse Improving

Capt. George Woodhouse of Belleville Fire Department, a 19-year firefighting veteran, is progressing favorably at Toronto General Hospital while undergoing coronary care.

Chief Lee Culhane said doctors are pleased with the captain's response to treatment.

Capt. Woodhouse suffered a heart attack Oct. 17 during an apartment block fire at 90-92 Victoria Ave.

Hospital Officials To Appeal Funding

A contingent composed of Belleville General Hospital (BGH) Board of Governors, B G H administration and medical staff representatives will journey to Queen's Park in Toronto Nov. 12 to discuss money matters, the board was told Friday.

Philip Rickard, BGH executive director, said an appeal will be launched to the provincial ministry of health against the ministry's refusal to allow expansion of the BGH Department of Nuclear Medicine.

Dr. Bruce Morgan of the board noted recent statistics which reveal an increase from 2,000 to 4,200 persons using the department in one year.

Mr. Rickard said the group will also attempt to arrange with the ministry the funding of the proposed BGH Family Medicine Centre which will open in 1977 in conjunction with Queen's University in Kingston.

Carl Bateman, board chairman, pointed out a centre budget has been accepted in principle by the BGH — Queen's centre liaison committee and will be submitted to the ministry.

Dr. Peter Gordon, in a provincial government survey of Hastings County health needs released in late 1974, recommended the unit, a former East Dundas St. motel be phased out. It began as a government project in 1971 and its lease runs out within a year.

He said the unit should be repaced with a smaller centre in BGH's Cavell Block.

However, in early July, Frank Miller, provincial minister of health, indicated to BGH officials he will support an extension of the unit's lease.

He has also performed with the Tu Tesom Singers, Toronto Orpheus Choir, CBC Radio and the Hamilton Philharmonic Orchestra.

Described as a voice with nobel, dramatic lyrical and lastrinsic qualities by music critics, Mr. Bectel was chosen as soloist for the world premiere of Charles Wilson's compositions seven years ago at the Guelph Spring Festival.

Tickets for the performance are $2 adults, $1 for students and senior citizens.

Cow, Car Collide

PICTON — Prince Edward County Agriculture Representative Larry Matheson, 32, of Philip St. escaped injury Sunday afternoon when his car collided with a cow on County Rd. 1, 1½ miles west of the junction of County Rd. 2.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said damage to the Matheson car was estimated at $300.

The cow, owned by A. White, was destroyed at the accident scene.

U.S. Driver Charged

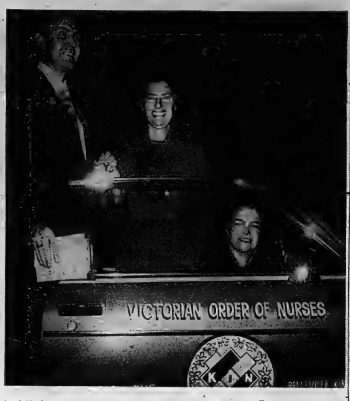
A 60-year-old Massachusetts man, Chesley G. Seliers of East Malich, has been charged by city police with unsafe lane change in connection with a two-car collision Saturday in front of 605 East Dundas St.

Chief Douglas Crosbie said today Brian Brawley, 23, of 7 McEwan Dr. in Middleton Park at Trenton, a passenger in a car driven by Donald T. Hammell, 19, of RR 3, Belleville, was treated and released from hospital for bruises.

Police said total damage was estimated at $900.

Rent A Glass

BROCKENHURST, England (CP) — Mike Hobson, 43, was refused a licence to sell liquor at this Hampshire railway station, where he rented space from British Rail. But he found a way round the law by giving away drinks and charging a rental for the glasses. Nevertheless, he was charged with selling liquor without a licence and exhibiting liquor for sale. He was fined $100 ($210).



Set of Wheels for VON

Gary Honey, president of the Belleville Kinsmen Club, presents the keys to a 1975 blue Astro to Anna Moloney of the Belleville Victorian Order of Nurses and Son Menish-ordinator of Quinte Von. The $3,300 car donated by the Kinsmen to this United Community Services organization will replace a car used by Belleville nurses. Jack Stewart, member of the insmen 60 Club painted the logo on the side door.

Performance Returns

TORONTO (CP) — Performance, the CBC-TV Sunday night drama series that won growing audiences last season and created a stir in Parliament, returns to the air next Sunday with a homelife drama set against the background of the 1919 Winnipeg general strike.

Lolu Street, first performed at the Manitoba Theatre Centre in 1967, was written by Ann Henry of Winnipeg, daughter of one of the strike leaders.

In the play, she dwells not so much on the political issues of the strike, as on what the strike meant to the families of strike leaders and others affected by it.

The TV version features James Blendick as Matthew, a Scottish clergyman torn between paternal love for his daughter, Elly, and his passion for social justice.

Elly is played by Helen Burns, who created the role first for performances of Lolu Street at Festival Lennoxville in 1972, when it was directed by John Hirsch, now head of CBC TV drama.

With the television camera's ability to wander away from a fixed set which limits a stage performance, the TV version takes some of the action of the play outdoors. But Lolu Street doesn't get into the thick of strike action. Only distant shots of crowd scenes are shown.

Jobless Actors Perform

OLYMPIA, Wash (AP)—A theatre of the Unemployed is working for free in front of the unemployment building; with unemployed actors using lampoons to spear bureaucracy for the shocking audience of unemployment bureaucrats.

The loose-knit and non-professional cast opened its latest production one recent afternoon. It's called The Mis-Adventures of Betty Lou Toughluck.

Hundreds of bureaucrats from top levels of government in the sunny plaza. They laughed when they, the politics of unemployment and bureaucracy in general, were satirized, sometimes none too gently.

The rough and ready acts are built on the kinnials near the new highways administration building and, ironically, since the skit is about red tape and indignities heaped on the jobless, the employment security building forms a backdrop.

But perhaps most remarkably, the group is apparently completely spontaneous and not supported by any organization, governmental, church or private, of hat-passing at the end of the performance netted more than $60 in contributions.

The play itself will probably never win any theatrical awards. But what the scripts lack in sophistication is made up by the verve of the cast and a generous sprinkling of music written by Carl Spaethe and played by Don Martin, Bill Knowles and Spaeth on clarinet, tuba and trombone. Martin also doubles as an unctuous and cigar-chewing secretary of labor when he isn't busy with the skit.

There are plenty of jibes at bureaucrats and politicians both high and low and what the group obviously perceives as tyranny and oppression in dealing with the unemployed.

A high point is a rollicking and irreverent version of We're in the Money, sung and danced by the whole cast, in "movie" is passed down from on high out of federal largesse.

And since all the youthful cast has been unemployed recently, the bureaucratic runarounds are portrayed with knowing cynicism.

But the favorite hits for the audience, made up mostly of brown-bagging style employees, sprinkled with middle-echelon bureaucrats, were clearly the job description largest and windbag legalese they deal with daily.

Every time a bureaucrat read long-suffering Betty Lou Toughluck a double-talk directive, it is passed down from on high drew applause and laughter.

A movie for everyone who has ever dreamed of a second chance.

Ming Tombs Destroyed

PEKING (AFP) — Some of the 13 tombs of the 15th-century Ming dynasty, ranking among the most beautiful vestiges of the old Chinese civilization, are being partly demolished.

The majority of these tombs still are closed and abandoned in the same way as some 700 piles of Angkor Wat in Cambodia, which are completely covered under the jungle.

But two of the Ming tombs have already been explored and have yielded invaluable treasures which now are known all over the world.

The area where the tombs are located about 40 miles from Peking is a favorite weekend picnic spot for foreigners living in the capital.

During the past weeks, they have noticed that the outer walls of at least three of the Ming tombs are being broken down by local workers who presumably want to use the blended colored stones for building.

Unprotected as they are, the tombs have always been a target for vandalism but the breaches in the walls around some of them are becoming wider and wider as the weeks pass.

It is not known whether this slow demolition is part of an official policy.

Parts of the old Peking fortifications were similarly demolished and the stones were used in modern buildings.

There is the natural erosion but the Ming tombs have also been defaced by the drawing and carving of rude names and dates on the walls.

Influenza Vaccine Can Relieve Colds

By G. C. Thosteson, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Help! Is anyone doing anything about finding an effective cure for the common cold? I get the flu about two or three times a year, leaving me unable to stand, sit, eat, or sleep comfortably for two weeks.

Can you tell me anything that will end further misery? — J.O.S.

If I could answer you satisfactorily, I would be a candidate for the Nobel prize in medicine — and most likely independently wealthy into the bargain.

As to influenza, there is an effective vaccine. You don't mention having ever had it, but November is a good time to get those shots. I do hear complaints every year from people who claim the flu shot "didn't help." I suspect they did though. While a 70-80 percent guarantee against contracting the flu bug is not offered, make an attack less severe than it would have been.

Other than this, I suggest you get adequate rest, eat regularly and stay on a well-balanced diet. "Flu season" is not the best time to experiment with one of the fancy diets. Your defense against infection depends on an adequate protein intake.

All of the above applies as much to colds as it does to influenza. So forms of the "flu" closely resemble the common cold.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor told me I have a tendency to my prostate gland. I am 58-years-old. Should I see a specialist for a gland examination? — W.R.T.

I don't know whether you are convinced that your doctor did not make any recommendation. I find that difficult to believe. Or are you looking for him to some sort of verification of what he told you he did?

Yes, certainly you should pursue the matter of the nodule. And, yes, the rectal discomfort when you mention your bowels could be related to that condition.

Prostate problems are quite prevalent among males at about 60. In fact, about 15 per cent of all men 50 and older will develop cancer of that gland at some time, according to statistics. But statistics also offer a brighter side of that picture, in that prostate cancer can be treated with a high degree of success.

So, if that prospect is what is bothering you, it is best for you to get the matter settled soon. I am sure this is pretty much what your doctor has told you.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can working in an office with ceiling lights affect or cause floaters in the eyes? Can anything be done with medication to eliminate them? Can any person at any age get them? — C.S.

Floaters are a problem of older persons. They represent the presence of bits of insoluble material in the fluid of the eye. They are more evident when one looks at a bright light, as a pure ceiling light, but the lighting system does not "cause" them.

Minor complaints should be investigated by an eye doctor. If any real illness is found, then you can also worry about it. Floaters are just one of life's little nuisances which must be endured. There is no way to eliminate them.

Preventing Crime

AMERSHAM England (CP) — Photographs of badly injured mugging victims are to be shown to students aged 11 as part of a new juvenile crime prevention campaign. The students will also act crime prevention plays and will be divided into detectives and magistrates to decide who should be arrested and what their punishment should be.

Opening lead — A ♥

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

If you played to the spring charity game, got to five clubs and made it, you should have had a warm feeling of having bid and played this hand very well. If you had six clubs and went down, you could always complain that you would have made it if the club finesse had worked.

If you bid three notrump either after an opening notrump with 17 high-card points and a six-card club suit (it is not recommended by either us or any other writers) or after a jump redid in notrump (again, not recommended but not really a bad call) your score would depend on the opening lead.

A prosaic fourth-best diamond lead against notrump would hold declarer to seven tricks; against any other call lead he would make at least three notrump and might well make four or five for a really good, but rather unobserved score.

All in all, this shows that there is plenty of luck in duplicate play.

Ask the Jacobys

A Texas reader wants to know why all bridge columnists are prejudiced against East and West and in favor of North and South.

It is a sort of unwritten law. In order to make it easy for student readers to follow the play, the bottom hand is always declarer. Since it is easier to write about winning hands than losing hands the majority of the cards go to the declaring side.

Christian Riders Formed at St. Kitts

ST CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — A Christian group booked on Christianity rather than alcohol or drugs. Such a group does exist and the members are endeavoring to shatter the stereotype that traditionally bike gangs are associated with drug parties and outlaw activities.

The Christian Riders begin their meetings with a prayer, spend several nights a week at church and help motorists in trouble.

The club operates out of Central Gospel Temple and the 11 members have all just recently been converted to Christianity.

"The reason we started Christian Riders," said Ed, president and founding member of the club, "was to reach other people."

The idea for the club came out of a Christian convention Ed attended in Washington two years ago. It was here he met members from the Philadelphia - based motorcycle club Christian Wheels.

He returned to St. Catharines, eager to set up a club.

He approached churches and put up notices around the city asking interested young people to get in touch with him.

At the beginning, there were three members, but by the spring of this year, membership had grown to 11.

Ross, a member for two years, said he had been praying a club of this sort would start up.

"I wanted to hang around with guys who had the same interests. You can imagine how everyone used to laugh at me. They used to call me Mr. Clean."

On weekends the Christian Riders have their own bike or other club. But these runs often take them to schools and churches where they preach to and others about their conversion.

Most of the members had serious drug or alcohol problems before they joined the club.

Ray, a prospective member, dumped 13 bottles of liquor down the drain after his conversion. Before this he had been a hardened alcoholic.

"I went to jail three times for drunk driving. The last time, I was in an accident and drove my girl-friend went through the windshield."

When Clyde became Christian, he had $3,000 worth of Christmas gewgaw in his basement. He threw it out.

Ed, formerly a member of another club was heavily involved in drugs and alcohol.

"I used to get up every morning stoned out of my mind, grasping for a bottle of wine to clear my head," he said.

Brian said that before he became a Christian one of his favorite pastimes was making fun of them.

"I used to hate Christians," he said. "We used to get really stoned, sit around and cut them down. I spent a lot of time doing this."

All the members say when they were converted the desire for intoxicants disappeared and they suffered no pains of withdrawal.

Spain's Army on Alert While Talks Continue

MADRID (AP) — Spain put its army in the Spanish Sahara on full alert today to avoid armed conflict with Morocco by negotiating in Madrid, not there.

More skirmishes were reported between Moroccan troops and desert tribesmen opposing Morocco's claim to the phosphate-rich territory on her southern border.

News reports from the Spanish Sahara said the army has been confined to quarters on full alert and that the territory was under martial law. A dusk-to-dawn curfew has been in force since last week.

Moroccan Premier Ahmed Osman, sent to Madrid Monday by his brother-in-law, King Hassan II, put off his return to Morocco to allow for a second day of talks today.

Osman met for more than five hours Monday with the acting chief of state, Prince Juan Carlos, and with Premier Carlos Arias Navarro and Foreign Minister Pedro Cortina Mauri. There was no indication of whether they made any progress toward agreement, but the Moroccan's decision to stay overnight was considered a hopeful sign.

Hassan also sent Hadj Mohamed Boucetta, a member of Osman's cabinet, to Algeria with a message for President Houari Boumedienne. Algeria opposes Morocco's claim to the northern part of the Spanish Sahara and has threatened military action if Hassan goes ahead with his plan to lead 350,000 unarmed Moroccan civilians on a march Thursday to El Aaiun, the capital of the disputed territory.

Spanish reports from the Sahara said there were skirmishes late Monday in the northeastern part of the territory, near the Algerian border, between Moroccan troops and tribesmen believed to be members of the Polisario Front. The front opposed to Morocco's territorial claims and is backed by Algeria.

There were no reports of casualties in the skirmishes and Morocco has denied reports that some of its troops crossed the border but said pro-Moroccan Sahara tribesmen might have occupied posts recently abandoned by the Spanish army.

Spain told the UN Security Council Sunday that its army would take military action if necessary to block the Moroccan march into the territory. The council called on all three countries—and Mauritania, which claims the southern part of the Spanish Sahara—to take no action, and Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim sent a special representative to Morocco with an appeal to the king to call off the march.

But Hassan has said that unless there is progress in negotiations, the "March of Destiny" will go on. More than 350,000 civilians are waiting impatiently in tent cities north of the border, and Moroccan troops, "prepared for all eventualities," are concentrated along the border with the Spanish territory and Algeria.

Spain and Algeria oppose the territorial claims of Morocco and Mauritania and support the Security Council's call for self-determination for the people of the territory to have the right of self-determination. Spain, which has held the territory since 1884, has announced a referendum under UN supervision next spring, probably in March.

Spain apparently has an estimated 15,000 police and troops in the Sahara. Morocco is believed to have about 15,000 troops on the side of the border, and Algeria is reported to have several thousand massed on its 18-mile frontier with the Sahara.

Franco Undergoes Operation But Still in Grave Condition

MADRID (AP) — Generalissimo Francisco Franco's doctors announced early today that a three-hour operation during the night halted the abdominal bleeding that had been putting added strain on the 83-year-old dictator's damaged heart.

The doctors said they removed three stomach ulcers and repaired a perforated abdominal artery. They reported that both Franco's pulse and heart beat were normal as the anesthetic began wearing off two hours after the operation.

However, the medical bulletin said Franco's condition was still "very grave."

The doctors reported that 18½ quarts of blood were given Franco in transfusions during the operation. That was an indication of the huge amount of blood lost as the human body normally holds only about 10 quarts.

Prince Juan Carlos, the acting chief of state, and his wife, Princess Sophia, were called to the generalissimo's Pardo Palace late Monday afternoon when the doctors decided an operation would be necessary to check the hemorrhaging from which Franco had been suffering for a week.

The old man was brought down from his second-floor bedroom on a stretcher table, put into an ambulance and driven 200 yards to the headquarters of the palace guard where an operating room had been improvised.

It was the first time Franco had left the palace since he became ill with influenza 18 days ago.

As the operation began, the generalissimo's wife, Carmen Polo de Franco, prayed in the palace chapel.

Dr. Hidalgo Huerta, one of Spain's leading surgeons, performed the operation with the assistance of two other surgeons, heart specialists and anesthetists.

The operation began at 9:30 p.m. and finished three hours later. No medical bulletin was issued, however, until two hours after that, when the anesthetic began wearing off.

The national television network stayed on the air for three hours after its usual closing hour to broadcast the bulletin simultaneously with the national radio service.

Alberta Allocates People

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government is ready to help people realize their potential by putting them in touch with the small town or city that needs their services.

Opportunity Alberta, a program which matches people with places, was created by the government's business development department 2½ years ago.

Ken Broadfoot, executive director of the department's regional development branch, said in an interview that the program is meant to create growth in rural Alberta.

The project also looks into the commercial possibilities of rural communities. "We had a feeling it was important to attract young people to rural towns," Mr. Broadfoot said, and Opportunity Alberta was born.

By examining vital statistics such as average age and incomes in certain Alberta communities, the department was able to do some "interpretative guessing" at the buying power of those communities and what possible services might be welcomed.

"Six businesses have actually been started," Mr. Broadfoot said. He said they include a motel in Milk River, a plumber in St. Paul and an accountant in Vermilion.

"There are 76 others under development and I expect there will be another 60 or so before it is finished. On a whole, the quality of applicants was high."

Mr. Broadfoot said the government offers expert advice and puts applicants in touch with town governments and finance organizations such as banks.

"The communities have become really involved—students and housewives have been doing the survey work."

Oil Rich Iran Now Industrializing

MONTREAL (CP) — The industrialization of oil-rich Middle East countries will witness growth of a petrochemical industry capable of supplying one-quarter of the world's needs, Fazollah Reza, Iranian ambassador to Canada, said Monday.

Establishment of a petrochemical industry is essential for these Middle East countries to diversify their economies and emerge as developed nations, Mr. Reza told the 25th annual Canadian Chemical Engineering Conference.

Another speaker, Ragael El Mallakh, economics professor at the University of Colorado, said that for too long, Middle East countries have been the supplier of only raw materials.

Such a situation had resulted in the political and economic colonization of those countries, he said.

"With this recent background only two or three decades past and still a first-hand experience for much of the region's population, we should look at the single most critical raw material in the Middle East today—crude oil," Dr. El Mallakh said.

A third speaker, J. A. Armstrong, president of Imperial Oil Ltd., Toronto, cautioned the Middle East countries against over-expansion in the petrochemical sector. It would not be difficult to satisfy the world petrochemical market.

Backbench Liberals Criticize New Unemployment Insurance Act

OTTAWA (CP) — Backbench Liberals joined the chorus of opposition criticism Tuesday as the Commons completed its fifth day of debate on amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Two proposed changes already roundly condemned by many opposition MPs also drew fire from Liberals Herb Breau (Gloucester) and Charles Caccia (Toronto-Davenport). They said the provisions would hurt the aged and the poor.

The controversial amendments would block persons 65 and older from unemployment benefits and would reduce the special benefit rate paid to claimants with dependents to 80 per cent from 75 per cent of insurable earnings.

On Monday another Liberal, Serge Joyal (Montreal-Maisonneuve-Rosemont), said persons 65 and over should be given the option to participate in the program.

The backbench criticism Tuesday was more explicit. Mr. Breau, who represents a high-unemployment New Brunswick riding, said he would fight for changes in parliamentary committee. If the changes were not forthcoming, he said, he would find it very difficult to support the bill on final reading.

Mr. Breau said cuts in unemployment insurance programs would have the greatest impact in poorer parts of the country.

Raising the retirement age and pensions, the reason Mr. Andras gave for making the jobless-benefit cuts, was not enough, he added.

Social assistance programs are expected to cost about $12 billion this year while the jobless benefit total may reach $4 billion.

Mr. Caccia said he opposed the provisions respecting the aged and dependents and also said he had misgivings about a move to double the three-week disqualification period for workers fired for misconduct.

"Who is going to define the word misconduct?" Mr. Caccia said.

Remaining Survivors Rescued Today

FROBISHER BAY, N.W.T. (CP) — The remaining 29 persons on board a DC-3 aircraft that made a forced landing 50 miles north of here were scheduled to be rescued early today by a Canadian Forces Labrador helicopter from Summerside, P.E.I.

A Twin Otter aircraft managed to ferry six passengers to safety in this Baffin Island community around noon Tuesday, but the pilot said rough terrain and weather conditions made further rescue attempts by plane impossible.

The DC-3, owned by Kenting Atlas Aviation of Toronto, made an emergency landing about 9:30 p.m. EST Monday during a 270-mile flight from Pond Inlet to Frobisher Bay.

The DC-3 had been chartered by the Inuit Tapirisat of Canada, a national Eskimo organization, and was bringing delegates to a week-long land claims conference at Pond Inlet back to their home settlements.

An RCMP source said the landing may have been forced by a lack of fuel, as inclement weather prevented the plane from making scheduled landings in Pangnirtung and Broughton Island.

Dave McNair, pilot of a Canadian Forces Hercules aircraft, said his plane manoeuvred through inclement fog late Tuesday to drop flares, food, clothing, fuel and another radio in the 12 stranded passengers and three crew members.

The pilot of the downed aircraft told Capt. McNair on the radio that "everyone here is comfortable and okay."

Power Lines Down

Sections of Belleville's downtown and residential district near church and Campbell Streets were without power late Tuesday afternoon after a car slammed into a power pole in front of Belleville Collegiate Institute. Driver of the car, Beverly Church, 18, was treated and released at Belleville General Hospital for minor injuries. Power was resumed within 15 minutes.

Mail Talks Now At Crucial Stage

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey says the postal negotiations have only two ways to go today.

Union and post office negotiators were to meet at 2 p.m. EST to attempt a final resolution to the national strike that now has tied up the national postal service for 14 days.

"I would say without any hesitation that by supper time Wednesday we will either have an agreement or a break-off of negotiations. At least for the time being," Mr. Mackasey told reporters following adjournment of the talks shortly after 10 p.m. Tuesday.

The adjournment followed a one-hour evening session, during which the post office again tabled its wage proposals and the union asked for time to study the offer.

Mr. Mackasey said the government was willing to accept at least six or seven of the union's counter-proposals on wages.

Jean-Claude Parrot, chief negotiator for the 22,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), was not in the mood for making predictions though he did express guarded optimism.

"We still have serious priorities to be achieved ... including the reduction of the work week, but I'm optimistic about a settlement," he said.

The evening talks followed 4½ hours of afternoon negotiations during which the post office studied union counter-proposals on wages, the single remaining obstacle to a settlement.

If a settlement were reached today, the mail could begin moving during the weekend, although it would require several days to clear up the backlog.

Negotiators are bargaining a package proposals rather than item by item in an attempt to speed the process on the 9a-maining 20 or so wage clauses.

The wage counters include the amount of increase in hourly pay, shift differentials, overtime, long-service pay, vacation bonuses and a cost-of-living clause.

Mr. Mackasey has said repeatedly the post office will not offer more than $1.70 an hour increase in a 30-month contract, the same amount the letter carriers settled for last April.

"It's a realistic package. We've made no effort not to go to the limit of our mandate. We sincerely hope that between now and tomorrow the union might consider our package to be acceptable," he said Tuesday.

The increase would bring the average hourly wage for the inside workers, who sort mail and man postal wickets, to $6.28 or about $13,000 annually by late 1976.

The union has demanded a 51 per cent increase or about $3.73 hourly over 27 months. Workers now earn an average $4.36.

The strike is costing the CUPW members about $30 a day in back pay.

Loyalist Site Confirmed

Finding Centre Funds Next Step for Consultants

By CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

Professional fund raisers will help Belleville Centennial Centre in January to determine how much money is available to pay for a cultural centre on a Loyalist College site, president of a cultural consulting company said Tuesday.

Bob Bailey of Dixon, Bailey Associates Ltd., of Toronto told members of the Belleville Kiwanis Club the Loyalist College site they have recommended is the Quinte Arts Centre Committee's new definite.

"It makes real sense to have this facility aligned with the college," said Mr. Bailey.

The centre for performing arts will be a multi-use area to serve the region.

"Any one city in the region doesn't have sufficient population," he said.

Cost of a theatre with about 1,000 to 1,200 seats and exhibit area of about 1,000 to 2,000 square feet built on a serviced lot on Loyalist land is estimated at cost about $3.5 million. To build on non-serviced land, he said, would probably cost an additional $1 million.

Before grant applications for capital and operating costs can be made to provincial and federal governments initial plans for the facility will be prepared early next year. Operating costs would be about $60,000 a year, Mr. Bailey said.

The committee has accepted the consultant's report, said Mr. Bailey.

The committee, made up of members of Quinte Arts Council, Loyalist College and government representatives is to be expanded to include more regional representatives.

The consulting company also plans the cultural survey of the Belleville region about a year ago.

Mr. Bailey said they discovered active cultural participation by persons in the area to match the national average of about one percent.

About 145,000 persons are included in the regional market area studied. The population for the four-county study area, said Mr. Bailey is expected to be about 225,000 by 2,000.

He said about 40,000 persons in the area attend at least one formal cultural performance a year. About another 80,000 to 120,000 annually attend performances where attendance is not taken.

"We identify a real need for such a facility," said Mr. Bailey.

Danson Proposes More Aid for Home Buyers

OTTAWA (CP) — The possibility of more government aid for buyers of existing houses was raised in the Commons by Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson Tuesday.

However, Mr. Danson said outside the Commons such plans are "further down the road." Current programs deal only with new homes.

In the Commons, Mr. Danson told Stanley Darling (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka) talks he had with private lenders Tuesday gave him the impression they will have no difficulty in meeting the federal goal of pulling $720 million more into private mortgages next year.

Mr. Danson said in announcing the government's new housing plans Monday the government is requiring private lenders to provide about 14 per cent more in mortgage money next year for low-and moderately-priced housing.

Banks, trust companies and other lenders would have to channel mortgage money where low down payments are involved into this type of housing. A government committee would monitor their performance.

On rent controls, Mr. Danson said in the House the federal government has not taken a firm position yet in discussions with the provinces.

The issue was still being discussed and would be reviewed again at another meeting with provincial housing ministers in another 10 days to two weeks.

News Briefs

PCs Push New Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau Tuesday defended Conservative spending practices while opposition critics predicted the country is headed for a record $7 billion deficit this year. Progressive Conservative finance critic Sinclair Stevens, in a prepared statement, said that in order to get public co-operation for its anti-inflation program, the government should bring in a new budget.

Ceasefire Now in Effect

BEIRUT (AP) — War-weary Lebanese emerged from empty streets today to take advantage of a "psychedue truce" in Beirut's Moslem Christian street war. Traffic built up downtown. Security forces joined gunmen of both sides in tearing down road blocks and supervising the withdrawal of mortars and artillery fire. The calm, few expected the ceasefire — now in its third day — to last.

Spain Resists March

EL AAIUN (AP) — The Spanish army increased border patrols today as Moroccan officials vowed to go ahead with the march of 350,000 unarmed civilians into the Spanish Sahara following the breakdown of negotiations in Madrid. Most of the troops stationed in the territorial capital have been sent north toward the Moroccan border to repel the Moroccan marchers gathered in Tarfaya, 18 miles north of the border.

Demands Resignation

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — President Isabel Peron appeared today to be on the way out as demands for her resignation increased, and she was reported to have lost the backing of the Argentine labor movement, her last power base.

Fire Destroys Block

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Twenty five persons are homeless today after fire Tuesday night destroyed a business block containing 12 apartments in this community, about 50 miles southwest of Ottawa. The fire department estimated damages at $750,000. The blaze destroyed a jewelry store, a paint store, a shoe store, several smaller shops and the apartments. Six firemen were treated for smoke inhalation, but no occupants of the building were reported injured.

Man Shot by Police In Extortion Attempt

MONTREAL (CP) — One man was shot and killed by police early today after four men tried unsuccessfully to extort $100,000 from a 31-year-old boy hostage in Montreal's Rosemont district, police said. Three other men were arrested.

The men, armed with pistols, entered the house of Ronald Ayoub, owner of a women's clothing company, Tuesday night.

Mr. Ayoub's wife, his three sons and three friends of the sons and three friends of the family—a girl and two boys—were tied up with bandages while the men searched the house unsuccessfully for money, police said.

The men decided to take Mr. Ayoub's son Alain hostage, put him in the trunk of Mr. Ayoub's car and then drove away.

They telephoned Mr. Ayoub and asked for a ransom of $100,000, but finally agreed to accept between $15,000 and $20,000 in cash.

Police arrested three suspects last night after Alain had been exchanged for the money at a street corner.

Potter Admits He's Glad To Be Away from Politics

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

TORONTO — The ex-soldier Richard Potter — for several years on the firing line as one of Ontario's most provocative politicians in pursuit of innovation — finally admitted it last night:

He's now glad he's out of provincial politics.

But the confession had its limits. Never — mostly because of the environment in which he made the admission.

It came at a banquet in his honor given by men and women to whom he was mostly recently their political boss — senior staff of Ontario's correctional services ministry, many people who supervise the province's prison system.

The event — at the city's Four Seasons — Sheraton Hotel — turned into an obviously honest sentimental tribute from civil servants for a man they felt sympathized with — and backed — their attempts at service.

The fact even seemed to override the wit and humor of the occasion, failing to disguise the fact that this likely was the last major Potter contact with senior government officials.

When he said his decision to retire — announced in July and ending an eight-year political career that included three ministries — had evoked a sign of relief from his family, a member of the audience retorted:

"But apart from your ministry."

"That's very kind of you," piloted Dr. Potter," I hailed like hell to get out of the (correctional services) ministry. But I wouldn't be happier to get out of politics."

The Potter political career went like this:

First elected in 1967 for Quinte riding, he made his mark as a reactionary backbencher — often critical of his own party. In 1971 he was named minister without portfolio, then health minister in 1972 — at a stage when Ontario's medicare programs were still being shaped in February 1974 he became correctional services minister.

Looking back on his often-controversial political progress — touched by public wonder — Dr. Potter had this candid summation:

"I wouldn't have missed it. But I'd hate like hell to go through it again."

A World War II medic and former Belleville mayor his political permanence peaked during his health ministry years. The attendant pressures when he took over correctional services.

Yet, the jubilee dinner was told, this was no indication that Dan Lindsay, deputy minister of justice secretary, said it would be "palpable nonsense" to consider Dr. Potter as one more in a string of ministers.

Not only was he among the most memorable — he considered a "lighter" for — and by — those delegated to the system's most recent master of the personnel who man the cell blocks.

The common touch was also emphasized as the event inevitably recalled a Potter trait — blunt — talking in seeking political solutions.

The banquet was told Dr. Potter's present preoccupation is completing a home for himself and his wife Enid on the once-assagaa road — from which he had come to the dinner.

Olympic Buildings May Not Be Completed

MONTREAL (CP) — La Presse says a Quebec government committee charged with the organizing committee for the 1976 Summer Olympics that in its view it is almost impossible for construction of the main stadium and swim hall to be completed in time for the July 17 opening of the Games.

The committee, headed by Solicitor-general Fernand Lalonde, held an urgent meeting with members of the organizing committee Monday, the newspaper said. The organizers had been recommended to start looking for alternate solutions for track-and-field and swimming events.

The government watchdog committee was established in August, 1972, when it became apparent the original $310-million budget for the Games had become unrealistic because of spiralling construction costs.

Some Faults Missed In New Home Checks

TRENTON — Poor inspection procedures and a lack of co-operation from onsite construction supervisors are responsible for the numerous structural faults being discovered at the Burtidale Heights subdivision, municipal and provincial Tuesday.

Final inspections built by Rollins Construction Co., Belleville, of the 74-unit Home Ownership Made Easy (HOME) subdivision have not been completed by either the provincial inspectors from the Ontario Housing Corporation (OHC) or municipal building inspector NORM Mallory, who said he has completed only half of the final checks.

"I have to assume some responsibility for not making the final inspections because I depended on the OHC inspectors, but they never did the job," said Mr. Mallory.

Mr. Mallory said that part of the problem was the limitations of being the town's only building inspector (now there are two), and the fact that people were moving into the units before the final inspections were made.

"We have never had this problem with any OHC subdivision before and I have never had these kinds of problems with a builder before," Mr. Mallory said, "just because we missed some things it does not mean that Rollins Construction is not responsible for the problems," he said.

There are five homes in the subdivision that have basement walls that are bowing from outside pressure or have cracks in them and there are two others that have faulty roofs, say members of the homeowners committee, spokesmen for the residents.

All of the repairs on the homes are covered under an agreement made between the homeowners and Maurice Rollins, builder.

"We are not trying to abscond our responsibility," said George Wiggens, a spokesman for the construction company.

Mr. Wiggens said the company intends to correct any conditions covered by the July agreement between Mr. Rollins and the homeowners.

"We are waiting for Bob Smith, (senior inspector for OHC) to come to Trenton on Nov. 10, and when our structural engineer will meet and discuss what remedial action must be taken to correct the faults," Mr. Wiggens said.

Mr. Smith, speaking in a telephone interview from Toronto said it was possible his inspectors had missed the structural faults, but said that they were only in the sight once a week to make inspections.

Building standards say "a house with a basement backfilled more than four feet must have 10 inch blocks used in the foundation of all of the homes that have cracked or bowing walls have only eight-inch cement blocks.

Structural engineers have been consulted by some homeowners who say they have been told the only solution to the problem is to remove the earth along the inside of the basements to relieve the strain of the outside earth pushing in.

Michael Patrick, a new homeowner in the Burtidale Heights subdivision is shown measuring the eight-inch cement blocks used to build his foundation. According to the residential Building Standards Code for Canada, 10-inch blocks should have been used in the basement which has a proper backfill than four feet, he said.

Education Centre to Expand With Aid of LIP Grant

BY MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

BLOOMFIELD — A $27,000 education centre and museum will be completed at the Prince Edward County board of education offices here through a Local Initiatives Program (LIP) grant.

Business administrator for the board Ernest Shortt said Tuesday approval of the project was received this week and construction of the "Educentre" is now in progress.

The building measuring 40 by 40 feet will adjoin the existing board offices.

Mr. Shortt said that the Educentre will serve a twofold purpose. Centrally located in Bloomfield, the new building will provide a meeting place for county education groups and other organizations. It will also provide space for an educational museum.

Many requests for use of county schools for meetings are received but groups must be charged because of custodial costs.

The Educentre will provide a free meeting place and all education groups will be encouraged to meet at the new facility.

Mr. Shortt added that old school bells, yearbooks and photographs will be collected and other memorabilia for an educational museum. He said tourists will be invited to tour the Educentre to study old records and other items of interest.

"We hope it will become the central education focus of the county," said Mr. Shortt.

Controls Tightened

TRENTON — Builders working in town will be subject to a more rigid inspection procedure devised as a result of problems arising from the construction of Burtidale Heights subdivision, said Norm Mallory, municipal building inspector.

Currently, a form is given to the builders with notations made by the inspector and it is his responsibility to call the municipal offices when the problems are corrected.

Mr. Mallory said in the future a new format will be followed.

"If either myself, or my assistant find any violations we will issue a list and there will be a time limit imposed for correction of the problem(s) and a follow-up investigation made," he said.

Mr. Mallory said the new stricter procedure and the addition of another inspector will greatly reduce the chances of problems, like those incurred at the Burtidale subdivision occurring.

An Open Letter to Separate School Supporters

Dear Parents:

During the Spring of 1975, the Chairman and Director of the Hastings-Prince Edward County Roman Catholic Separate School Board, visited the staff of each school under the jurisdiction of the Board, to discuss with the teachers ways and means of improving the education that is offered to our children. Many suggestions were made and noted, and some have already been acted upon.

At the Professional Activity Day held on September 25th, all of the teachers and Principals of our Board met in Belleville to analyze our educational system in greater depth. They were also asked to hold staff meetings on September 26th, and, as a result of these staff meetings, to forward formal resolutions to the Board concerning recommendations and suggestions for improvement.

Following this involvement of staff, the Trustees of our Board have asked that the parents of each child in your system, and each supporter, be invited to express to the Board any criticism, commendations, or recommendations that they wish to make.

We ask your assistance in finding ways to provide a better education for your child. If you wish to accept this invitation, please address your letter to the Board at 158 George Street, Belleville, or in the case of a prolonged postal strike, please send the letter to the nearest separate school for forwarding to our office.

Thank you for your co-operation in this matter.

Yours sincerely,

Austin Scott, Chairman

Secretary-treasurer Arther McCormack told a directors' meeting last week that 1974 gate receipts totalled $14,427 in comparison with $18,657 this year.

Total receipts for the year were $44,000 and expenditures $32,729 leaving a balance of $11,271.

Council Approves Use Of Band Equipment

PICTON — Students in the music program at Queen Elizabeth School are equipped to strike up the band following a town council decision this week.

Instruments once purchased for the now defunct Picton Junior band have been transferred to QE school musicians with council's approval.

Picton reeve Larry Richardson observed that the instruments have been "gathering dust" for about three years and if the elementary school pupils were permitted to use them it would improve their program.

He added that the only way to establish a solid musical program among young persons is by starting it in the schools. There are music classes available at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute but by supplying instruments of Queen Elizabeth School pupils will get a much earlier start.

Ottawa Snubs Taiwan Politically But Unofficially We're Doing Business There

By JOHN D. HARBRON

Foreign Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

About a year or more ago the department of external affairs telephoned the Ontario ministry of industry and tourism asking it, in effect, to cancel a provincial trade mission to Taiwan.

Ontario complied in what could be considered an intrusion of the federal government into provincial affairs. Then, about Oct. 13, 1970, when Canada and the People's Republic of China commenced diplomatic recognition, the Trudeau government has clearly wished that "the other China," namely Taiwan or Nationalist China, would simply go away.

Other federal pressures have been put on Canadian private and public institutions eager to do business with a booming Taiwan, even if we don't officially recognize it's there any more.

The Toronto Dominion Bank opened a branch in Taipei, doing it very quietly at the start, yet wanting to participate in a boom area for international banks. And other private companies lifted to visit Taiwan are dissuaded in a quiet but firm way by Ottawa's Chinese experts to not do business with the island nation.

In spite of all this, much business is still done with Taiwan. Taiwan a few years ago was our fifth largest customer, even if there was no Canadian diplomatic or trade presence in Taipeh.

And a Canadian parliamentary delegation also visited the island, the last of many which have done so since the late Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek fled to the island after his mainland military defeat by the Chinese communists in 1949.

Indeed this pattern of quickly dwindling diplomatic representation is counterbalanced by the country's booming economy and unexpected self-confidence with the all-powerful Chiang Kai-shek no longer on the scene.

His son and successor, Premier Chiang Ching-kuo, has turned out to be the island boss of one of Chinese history's most influential leaders, but as an aggressive and competent ruler in his own right.

Taiwan's show of strength is not only in her growing economy which is an all-city nation to come through the world's money tether well, but in her self-contained military infrastructure.

On Nationalist China's 44th National Day the Taiwanese armed forces, equipped with American-style F-5E jet fighters, Huey helicopters of the kind used in Vietnam and M-16 rifles, were displaying equipment now manufactured entirely in Taiwan under U.S. licences.

Cheap electronics, clothing, food products and toys of the kind associated with Japan, are made at even cheaper prices in Taiwan, with the emphasis being as in Japan on quality as well as low price.

And even if Ottawa no longer accepts this fact of life out there, Canadian textile manufacturers know it is with their constant and essential vigilance against the dumping of its much cheaper products on the Canadian market.

And if external affairs won't negotiate, industry, trade and commerce must do so on behalf of hard-pressed Canadian businessmen, one suspects very much sub rosa.

But the Taiwanese are getting used to this isolation and they do business there still widely accepted at the business and trade one.

Recent visitors say there is very little trade in the island nation which clearly remains a force in South East Asia.

World Pressure Spots

Remember Vietnam?

Something of a non-subject now, is it not, since the Communists swept down from the north, and the Americans left?

Barely a mention now in those sections of the media which by their ill-concealed sympathy with Hanoi helped the process along.

So there is peace, and from what little has been heard since, order of sorts. From Cambodia, even less is heard of life under the Communist regime there, and the scant reports that there have been are perhaps less encouraging from the standpoint of the freedom of the populace.

Where is the emphasis then, now that Vietnam has become a news yold? Well, the right-wing military government in Chile has been getting a bad press — editorial blasts from The Globe and Mail on the one hand, and nasty reports of life there from The New York Times.

The Globe recently quoted a United Nations report which drew attention to alleged torture and other barbaric practices inflicted on political dissidents. It makes unpleasant reading, but The Globe has since received a rebuttal from the Chilean ambassador in Ottawa, Horacio Arce.

Mr. Arce claims "these alleged facts and conclusions, taken from 83 cases, are based mainly upon hearsay testimony from political enemies of the Chilean government who have long been absent from the country. . ." He terms it a "partial" report only, and that his government will answer it, "since the statements are made by people whose ideological obsession would not prevent them from making such statements if the slightest benefit were to be derived for the furtherance of their doctrine." The ambassador also alludes to their skill in attracting the attention of the media with sensationalism and intrigue.

Just where the truth lies is elusive. Evidence of such practices against political dissidents in Latin America would not come as any surprise, but then neither would diversions from the truth, or slanting of evidence even at the UN level. What is abundantly clear is that a campaign is now afoot to discredit the Chilean government which came to power two years ago in a coup against the Communist government of Dr. Salvador Allende.

The Stress Factor

To hear all the talk about stress, as it applies to this day and age, is to be given the impression it is something new and unusual.

Certainly our fast-paced age makes for increased stress in the human condition, but the answer to it, while recognizing the fact that it is a normal function of the psyche, is not so much pills but adequate relaxation and exercise. A change of scene helps too. As investigations in the United States are proving, the climate induced by manufacturers of patent remedies, to the effect that artificial sedatives are essential for sleep, not to mention happy, balanced living, is being questioned more and more.

A lot of people in business in the big cities are taking the change-of- scene route. They are leaving Toronto for instance, often after many years of tension-producing business life, and settling in smaller communities such as our own, or as often is the case, finding homes in the countryside and working here or in other communities in the area.

Folks such as Jim Stafford, who quit a demanding job in merchandising in Toronto to take over a clothing and dry goods store in Tweed, the Van Dusens of Wellington, and Bill Elsasser, who is in advertising here and lives off the country near Roslin after 30 years in Toronto.

This is the intelligent way of handling the familiar penchant for getting-away-from-it-all. Not quitting altogether, for that, in the prime of life, can be even more demoralizing than the situation that brought the kind of intelligent decisions implicit in the moves many people have made to communities combining just the right degree of bigness, tranquility and opportunity.

As for stress, as such, sociologist Dr. Joyce Brothers has said: "No one is totally relaxed — not Perry Como, nor Dean Martin — and if it wasn't for the worried, anxious and concerned sensitive people, civilization would have got nowhere. We'd all be living in caves. . ."

A Pressure - cooker Legislature

By DON O'HEARN

Queen's Park Bureau

Thomson News Service

TORONTO — There are a number of people at this session of the provincial legislature who are faced with exceptionally tough jobs.

The party leaders will have to keep their wits about them to an extraordinary degree. They will have to be constantly alert that their arms aren't being twisted into a position which will react against them. They will also have to try and keep looking to the future so that they can prepare policies which could lead to scoring marks with the public.

Some of the members of the three parties who are most involved with strategy also will have to be constantly thinking, and over a number-of-days backbencher will have to be careful that he doesn't make a slip that could hurt his party.

But probably nobody will be under more constant pressure at Mr. Speaker, Russell Rowe, and his Tory, NDP'er Jack Stokes.

The Speaker always has had a rough time in recent years in the Ontario house.

Some have let it developed into a habit of disorder and this has constantly grown.

To the point that the Camp commission, in its recent report, accused it of "boyish rowdiness."

And this summation actually was mild. It could have been much more severe.

For the conduct in the house really is beyond imagination. It has to be seen. And even then at times can hardly be believed.

Mr. Rowe, a relatively mild man who was Speaker of the last house is hopeful that this new one will be better.

He notes that the leaders of the three parties have pledged themselves to approach the minority legislature with responsibility. And he hopes that this may rub off on the members.

But he is not overly confident this is wishful thinking. The house has grown into a rut. And you can see it getting out of this quickly. Particularly under the present situation where tensions will be unnaturally high most of the time.

The minority situation has caused the Mr. Rowes, an opposition member, of course, is the deputy speaker.

Car Imports from U.S. $1.6 Billion More Than our Exports

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Some U.S. politicians and union leaders have a peculiar view of the North American auto market.

"We'll make 'em," they tell Canada, "buy less."

That's the way it was up until the signing of the 1965 Canada-U.S. auto pact, a limited free-trade agreement.

And that's the way it is again by 1975, after three years 75% to 95% in which auto trade between the two countries was slightly in Canada's favour.

American politicians and unionists, who had loudly proclaimed their displeasure when the scales were tipped temporarily against them, are silent again.

Nearly—but not quite—silent, too, is the Canadian side. There has been some stirring in Donald Jamieson's Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce, and a joint Canada-U.S. special committee may be established to review the auto pact.

The present situation amounts to a political stalemate between the two countries, in the opinion of economist Carl Beigie of the C. D. Howe Research Institute in Montreal.

Canada's imports of cars, trucks and auto parts from the U.S. this year are expected to be about 1.6 billion more than our exports of similar goods to the U.S.

That will be the biggest Canadian deficit on the auto pact gap—and about $400-million greater than last year's auto trade deficit.

Canada's weakest spot in the two-way trade is in auto parts. We have never achieved a significant trade surplus in this section of the industry, even at the beginning of the 1970s when the flow of completed cars and trucks was, for once, in Canada's favour.

Later this month, the Automotive Parts Manufacturers Association (Canada) will appear before the U.S. International Trade Commission to argue for a bigger Canadian share in the production of original equipment used in the manufacture of cars and trucks.

But any such move would across strong political opposition in the United States, which would almost certainly be riding high in a presidential election year.

On balance, a decade of limited free trade in vehicles and parts has left the Canadian market in this position:

—Canada-made cars have gained a slightly larger share of the Canadian market at the expense of U.S. made cars.

—A car made, say, in Oakville, Ont., costs more in that city than it does just across the border in Buffalo, N.Y. Canadian consumers expected the pact to lead to price parity, but auto executives say that's impossible because of our smaller market. They add that the average retail price, excluding tax, is six per cent higher in Canada today vs. an 18 per cent premium before 1965.

—The Canadian car-making industry is more efficient today than before the pact, because the variety of models being assembled has been curtailed.

—Canadian auto workers' wages have moved up sharply to parity with the U.S. auto industry, or nearly. Other Canadian unions have demanded parity with Canadian auto workers, forcing labor costs much higher since 1965, or no gain in productivity.

Perhaps for years to come short a period in which to judge a long-term agreement. Whatever its shortcomings, the auto pact has at least improved upon the sorry record of the years up to 1965.

Two Boys Instrumental In Capture of Prisoners

Oshawa Times

Canada could use, at least, should be given to the two Rosetown, Sask., boys who combined ingenuity with courage in the capture of two dangerous escaped prisoners.

The boys, both 12, were in a restaurant in Rosetown when they overheard a truck driver complain about a vehicle that had nearly forced him off the road. Police had been searching the area for five men who had escaped from the maximum security section of the Fort Saskatchewan prison and when they were alerted, began a more intensive search of Rosetown.

One of the two boys had already formed a plan to recapture the escaped convicts when the two came upon them, hitch-hiking. The boys picked them up and, at the request of the cops, stopped at a gun dealer's house to pick up weapons. One boy was able then to disarm the men, and hold them until police arrived.

Newspaper readers often complain that the only news about the youth of today involves drug arrests, thefts or some other depredation. But there are other stories about the teenagers and here's one of them.

The boys were well aware they were dealing with desperadoes and they have given the rest of us a refreshing lesson in citizenship. And they didn't do it out of some sense of publicity. They won't allow their names to be published.

Mercury Poisoning Issue

Editor,
The Intelligencer;

Ontario Health Minister Frank Miller laments the audacity of people complaining about inept way the Ontario Government has handled the issue of mercury poisoning facing the Indian people in Northwestern Ontario.

Mercury poisoning can affect the nervous system, cause blindness, brain damage, cause intense mood changes, paranoia, aggression, the increased number of violent deaths in the Kenora region, among the Indian people a result of eating mercury contaminated fish for several years?

Then Mr. Miller, in an attempt to deny the problem confronting the Indian people, on the CBC Narvers and Whitehead reserves draws a red herring across the path by comparing people who do not use seat belts, continue smoking and the fact people have been eating these fish for a thousand years.

People who do not use seat belts, smoke, have a choice that they are aware of the risk they are taking. But the Indian people have had no choice: it was either to become poisoned fish or slowly starve to death. It was only recently that freezers were supplied for the Indian people, to keep fish that were not contaminated with mercury.

Lands and Forests officials, in 1970, posted signs in various locations in Ontario saying "Fish for Fun, for the protection of your health. Fish from these waters should not be eaten, because of mercury contamination."

But the following year the signs disappeared and the concerns expressed in 1970, soon evaporated like hot air.

Then Japanese experts came to Ontario, confirming what the "complainers" suspected: that there were definite signs of mercury poisoning among the people of the reserves.

Since 1970 the Ontario government has failed to find an effective solution to feed the the Indians.

This failure by the Ontario government to heed the warning signals about mercury poisoning may have sentenced the Indian people to a slow painful death and possibly many tourists who have been eating these poisoned fish.

If the Indian people are expendable, then they will be so tomorrow? Have we no conscience left?

Costs More to Park

Editor,
The Intelligencer;

Many years are shed by the downtown business clique about the deterioration of the core of town core. We are frequently told by one prominent businessman that the downtown core is the "heart" of the community. If this is so there appears to be a concerted effort to cut off the life blood of the downtown.

The latest tourniquet that has been applied to the heart is the increase of the downtown in the action of the Parking authority.

Not only have they shortened the time one can park for a dime without replenishing the meter, they have raised the cost of parking at meters by 100%.

Why anyone in their right mind wants to go through the torture of paying more to park for less time has been beyond me.

If the downtown people are so interested in any claim in restoring life to a dying core let a concerted effort be made about this latest piece of bastardry.

For me, it's easier, more convenient and more profitable to shop the shopping centres than to waste my time composed of financing the parking authority. No doubt many others are of the same mind.

Hunters Advised to Tag Hounds To Speed Recovery of Lost Dogs

George Mills, president of the East Central Ontario Association of Sportsmens Clubs, advises hunters to put marks of identification on their dogs to facilitate uniting lost hounds with their owners.

He says his association is again this year sponsoring bird hound holding areas during the deer hunting season from Nov. 3-15 and the areas will remain open for three days following the season's closure "so that more hounds may be kept out of the bush."

Mr. Mills urges that a hunter should mark his dog with the owner's name, address and telephone number, "on plastic band (Tag This Band) may be picked up at most sports stores in Belleville and Madoc or at the holding areas for the above purpose at no charge," he says.

He says the provincial ministry of environment will make pictures at season's end and unclaimed dogs will be taken to the Ontario Humane Society (Quinte branch) animal shelter at Belleville "where owners have a second chance to claim them before the dogs are put up for adoption."

Mr. Mills relates that last year, about 80 dogs were channeled through the holding stations with 19 dogs unclaimed and returned to Belleville for adoption. The association's cost for the 1974 operation was about $300, he adds.

"If all hunters would make a point of dropping stray hounds off at the nearest holding station and reclaiming their own lost dogs, we could eliminate a lot of the fuss and worry about dogs running at large after the hunting season ends," he comments.

This year's holding stations are Doug Donaldson at RR 1, Eldorado (473-2741); Gerry Trumble at RR 1, Gilmour (474-2214); John McLean at Delior (333-3471); and Bill Scott's store at RR 1, Denbigh (333-2815).

The association consists of representatives from Belleville District Fish and Game Club Inc., Lower Trent Valley Fish and Game Protective Association., Madoc Hunters and Anglers Club, Bancroft Fish and Game Club and a special donor — Limerick Hunting and Fishing Clubs.

BGH Library Gets Facelift Due to Group of Volunteers

The Belleville General Hospital (BGH) medical library has received "immediate and outstanding" improvement in the past two months due to the efforts of a team of volunteers, says Dr. Reg Anderson, BGH medical director.

Dr. Anderson told the BGH Board of Governors recently the volunteers, headed by a professional librarian, were recruited after the summer and commenced work in mid-September with the assistance of the BGH auxiliary.

"The improvement in the physical appearance of the library was immediate and outstanding and proper library services became available to staff physicians and students," he commented.

"Arrangements were made for a meeting with the head librarian of the Health Sciences Library in Kingston, Virginia Parker and the volunteer team," he said. Miss Parker was most helpful with her advice and has made it possible for our physicians and students to have access to the services of the medical library at Queen's."

Dr. Anderson related that the BGH library "has long been a source of concern."

"It has been singled out by Hospital Accreditation Survey teams on every occasion the hospital has been surveyed, as being incapable of fulfilling its role in a hospital of this size and complexity and this inadequacy has become increasingly more evident as the number of attending physicians and, especially, medical students have increased," he commented.

"He funds have been available to hire personnel to staff the library and efforts to find suitable volunteer workers were not successful."

Bill MacKay Gets Nod For District Head Bid

A former president of Belleville Rotary Club, W.R. (Bill) MacKay, has been chosen by District 707 nominating committee as a nominee for District governor in 1977-78.

The district, which includes 2,000 Rotarians in 53 clubs, extends from Belleville and Picton to Port Credit and north to Shelburne.

Only once before, in the club's 53-year history, has there been a district governor from Belleville. That was in 1939-40 when Owen Herity held the position.

Two members from Trenton have also been district governor; Ed Simmons in 1966-69 and Wilf Wilkinson in 1971-72.

Mr. MacKay's nomination will come before the district conference next May. As president of the club in 1970-71, Mr. MacKay initiated the student exchange program which so far has brought students to Belleville from South Africa, Australia and Finland.

Ann Landers

Sex-Letters Boring Says 'Neutered by Time' Oldster

Dear Ann Landers: Many of your readers in their 60s and 70s have been neutered by time. We tend to look back at the gyrations of sex with mild amazement. As the Bible says, "There's a season for everything," and certainly there's a season for the flesh. When we were young and busty who would have had it otherwise?

But your column seems to deal too frequently with sex problems that no longer have meaning to us.

Please, Ann, give us older fans a respite from the domestic satyrs, the impotent, the gays the truck-drivers who wear panty girdles and the Funny Uncles. I promise you won't lose a reader.

Want to open a wasp's nest? As a suggested topic, why not ask how many professional men who were put through college by their wives, supported through their doctorates by a woman laboring at a boring job, kept THEIR promise to let HER go back to college when their education was completed so that she might have her turn.

I know many physicians, dentists, lawyers, professors and engineers whose wives put them through school and now they don't seem to fit into their husband's lives! They are too old—don't speak the same language, etc. How about it, Ann?—Grumpy-Sick.

Dear Grump: First, sorry you've been "neutered by time." If you hadn't skipped over those letters on sex, you'd know that time needn't "neuter" anybody. But that's another subject.

OK, I'll ask the question you want answered. How many women who put their husbands through professional school now feel left behind socially and intellectually? Are you sorry you made the sacrifice? Let's hear from those who did it.

Dear Ann Landers: The other day in your column there was letter from S. L. P., whose neighbor "owned a gay" and told her 16-year-old daughter she was adopted, now all the kid does is mope around. The adopted girl is depressed. She feels her adoptive parents did a terrible thing by not telling her.

I agree they should have told her. But what's done is done. Maybe I, also an adopted child, can help cheer that girl up.

Being adopted is a beautiful thing. You've got a family that cares. You have a chance to get a good education. You were chosen and didn't just "happen." If you are still upset because your mom didn't tell you you were adopted, why not, instead of being mad, talk to her and ask her why she kept it from you? Moping around and being miserable won't help.

I'm 15 and have many friends who were adopted. Not one of us is complaining. So get with it. We are the lucky ones.—Val

Dear V.: Bravo girl! Thanks for sitting in my chair today!

Dear Ann Landers: You've probably had it here with arguments both pro and con from housewives who think they've earned the title "Domestic Engineer." I hope you can find room for one more letter, Ann.

The Greeks had a word for it and Mr. Webster HAS a word for it. The word is serene, dignified and aristocratic. It's "Oikologist." Definition: "housekeeper or housewife."

No foolin' Ann, Look in one of the big dictionaries and you'll find it.—Savannah Sleuth

Dear Savvy: How big does the dictionary have to be? I looked in two enormous, unabridged tomes and was unable to find the word. I have a bunch your "big" dictionary came from a bookstore in Athens.

'Women's Studies Create Ghetto'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Women are being ghettoized by the latest cultural kick: women's studies, says Canadian writer Eileen Morris.

"Why isn't the entire academic galaxy, if their interest in furthering the position of women is genuine, pointing out to each and every woman student that she will benefit far more from, say, an engineering degree than from cozy seminars with 'the girls,'" she asked during an interview.

Miss Morris quoted Cornell historian L. Pearce Williams as saying that women's studies are "silly, worthless, and out to indoctrinate rather than illuminate."

Dr. Pauline Jewett, president of Simon Fraser University, doesn't see it that way.

Women's studies serve to fill an enormous neglected area of experience," she said.

"Traditionally, our academic curricula have pretty well been determined on the basis of men's experience. History, sociology, psychology, literature—all these have been interpreted by men, the minorities aren't very well represented in these traditional interpretations," she said.

Simon Fraser University approved introduction of a women's studies program in July, after a long campaign by students, faculty and staff, who had been plumping for regular credit courses dealing with women's issues.

Squash Is the Versatile Winter Vegetable You Can Use in Many Ways

The most confusing family of Ontario vegetables is the squash. The pumpkin you used for Halloween's Jack-o-Lantern is a member of the squash family for example.

Food specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food, have listed the other common winter squash varieties grown in Ontario.

Acorn or Pepper has a globular shape with deep ribs. It has a dark green, smooth skin with occasional orange splashes. The flesh is light orange in color. It ranges in size from four to six inches in diameter and is available until February.

Buttercup—is also globular with a two to three inch turban shaped cap at the blossom end. It is dark green in color with yellow dots and stripes. The flesh is a bright yellow-orange and is very dry. Available until December 1. It is four to five inches long and about six to eight inches in diameter.

Butternut is cylindrical with an enlarged base. It has a smooth, creamy, yellow skin with a bright orange flesh. It is about nine to twelve inches long, has a diameter of three to five inches at the base and is available until February.

Hubbard is globular but with a thick tapered neck. It has a very hard skin that appears ridged and warted. The skin can be dark bronze-green, blue-gray or orange-red in color. The flesh is yellow-orange. It is ten to sixteen inches in diameter and nine to twelve inches at its widest part. It stores well and is available until March 15.

Most winter squash, including pumpkin, keep well if stored in a cool, dry, dark spot. But squash can be frozen with little effort for use in late winter, according to food specialists at the Ontario Food Council, Ministry of Agriculture and Food. However, they recommend baking, boiling or steaming before-hand.

Select well-matured squash. Wash, cut in half and remove seeds and connective tissue. Then either bake halves at 350 degrees F. for 40 to 60 minutes, and remove flesh or peel; or peel, dice and boil for 15 to 20 minutes or steam for 30 to 40 minutes. Cool in refrigerator before packaging in freezer containers. Allow ½ inch headspace for expansion in the container during freezing.

Pumpkin pie filling without eggs may be prepared and frozen. Add extra spice, as strength is lost during storage.

To thaw frozen winter squash, thaw completely in the unopened package in the refrigerator. Use immediately for pies or as a vegetable.

Acorn Squash a la George

1 small acorn or pepper squash, halved
3 tbsp melted butter
2 tsp brown sugar
½ tsp salt
⅛ tsp pepper
2 tbsp sour cream

two-thirds cup cooked peas

Place squash in baking pan. Combine melted butter, brown sugar, salt and pepper. Brush mixture over flesh of squash. Bake in 350 degree F oven, brushing occasionally with butter mixture until it is tender (50 to 60 minutes).

Meanwhile, mix together peas, sour cream, dried dill, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Remove squash from oven, and divide pea mixture into each squash cavity. Return squash to oven for 10 to 15 minutes, then with a fork gently incorporate the flesh of the squash with the peas and sour cream. Serves two.

(To serve four, use two squash and double the ingredients.)

Turn into one quart casserole. Combine one tbsp each butter, brown sugar, light corn syrup and drizzle over squash. Sprinkle with pecans. Bake 25 minutes at 350 degrees F.

Pumpkin Soup

three cups warm milk
one tsp sugar
three tbsp butter white pepper
nutmeg

Warm pumpkin and seasonings over low heat in a large sauce-pan.

Cook 10 minutes. Gradually add milk. Heat to simmering. Sprinkle with white pepper and nutmeg to taste and serve hot as hearty first course.

Onion and Walnut Squash

two cups drained, cooked small onions ⅔ cup broken walnuts
one-third cup butter
one-third cup light molasses
¼ tsp cinnamon
¼ tsp salt

Halve acorn squash and bake cut side down until cooked. Turn cut side up and fill cavities with a mixture of onions and walnuts. Melt butter, add molasses, salt and cinnamon. Spoon over filling and bake 15 minutes at 350 degrees. Serves six.

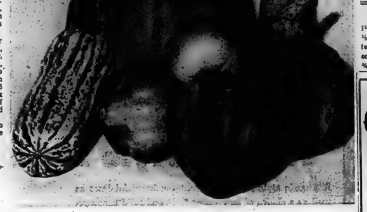
Squash Scallop

four cups butternut squash slices
¼ cup chopped onion
one minced clove garlic
one tbsp oil
¼ cup grated cheese
¼ cup cracker crumbs
¼ cup chopped parsley
Cook squash in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Saute onion and garlic in oil. Place half of onions in a greased one quart casserole. Top with half of a mixture of cracker, cheese and parsley. Add all the squash, then remaining onion and cheese mixture. Beat eggs, blend in milk, salt and pepper. Pour over squash. Place casserole in a pan of hot water and bake at 325 degrees for about one hour or until set. Serves four.

Squash Muffins

1¼ cups flour
⅓ cup sugar
two tsp baking powder
one egg
¾ cup milk
¼ cup cooked, mashed squash
one tbsp melted butter

Sift together flour, sugar and baking powder. Beat egg and stir in milk, squash, butter. Stir into dry ingredients with a few quick strokes. Pour into well-greased muffin tin and bake at 425 for 20 to 30 minutes.



Squash comes in many shapes.

Wells Backs Controls

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial Education Minister Thomas Wells told Metropolitan Toronto separate school teachers Tuesday that Ontario does not intend to freeze prices, rents or energy costs.

The teachers met at Queen's Park to ask the province to take a stand on how federal selective wage and price controls will affect contract negotiations by Ontario's civil servants.

A spokesman for the teachers said public employees are under the jurisdiction of the province and cannot come under federal controls unless the province passes enabling legislation.

Mr. Wells said that while Ontario has decided its public employees, including teachers, will come under the federal anti-inflation program, the controls should apply equally to the public and private sectors.

Mr. Wells said teachers should continue to bargain under Bill 100, passed by the province earlier this year to outline procedures for teacher-school board negotiations. He said the legislation will not be changed because of the controls.

The 4,000 teachers want the school board to honor the 22.5-per-cent salary increase agreed on in a tentative settlement Aug. 28. The agreement was ratified just after the government announced Oct. 13 that salary increases should be limited to 10 per cent.

The minister later met with negotiators for the teachers to discuss the status of the August agreement. The spokesman said Mr. Wells promised the teachers a definite answer within one week on whether the agreement may be exempted from the controls.

Growth Predicted

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California table wine shipments were up 9.1 per cent and dessert wine sales up 6.6 per cent in the first half of 1975, the California Wine Institute announced recently. The institute also predicted that the California wine industry will increase to 250 million gallons a year by 1980.

Postal Strike Hampers UCS Campaign

The October United Way campaign is still 62 per cent short of the $168,000 objective and director Gord Mullin is blaming the slow results on the postal strike.

To date, $84,000 has been raised by 300 volunteers through industry and door-to-door canvassing.

This figure is based on cash received Mr. Mullin said.

He said dropoff spots for donations have been established in all chartered banks in Belleville to make up for the disruption of postal services.

The United Way campaign raises funds for 41 community orientated agencies.

Last year 87 per cent of the $40,000 goal was raised breaking a five-year downward trend of poor results, said Mr. Mullin.

He added this year's figure compared to November, 1974, is approximately five per cent ahead.

The 1974 campaign ended mid-December.

Inmate Art On Display

"These limbs will grow again, these eyes will see again, these ears will hear again, this soul will climb again . . . ." Above is an excerpt from Mandatory Release — a poem written by an inmate for Words From Inside — a publication by the Prison Arts Foundation.

The Art Foundation has also organized an art tour with oil and watercolor paintings, computer pictures, wood sculptures, crafts, pen and ink sketches and graphics.

The display, at the Quinte Mall until tonight, is the work of inmates from 19 countries. The display will tour cities and prisons in Canada until spring next year.

The Prison Arts Foundation also launched Catalyst — a writer's monthly publication for inmates to exchange ideas.

Smaller Builders Won't Gain from Housing Plan

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

A federal policy statement and housing subsidy program announced Monday won't be of much help to most of the Quinte area's smaller builders who will have difficulty meeting the program guidelines, says Bob Marcotte, president of the Quinte Home Builders Association.

The program — announced by federal Urban Affairs Minister Barney Danson in an attempt to stimulate the housing industry — will only benefit builders whose homes sell below prescribed ceilings.

The limit for what the government terms "moderately-priced housing" ranges from a low in small towns of $28,000 to a national high of $43,000 in Toronto and Vancouver.

The ceiling in Belleville is $31,000 — a limit difficult for "most small builders to stay within," said Mr. Marcotte. For a buyer to qualify for federal grants on home purchase, the new home must not exceed ed ceiling.

"In general terms, the program is good and will serve to stimulate the Canadian housing industry — one of the largest employers in the country," said Mr. Marcotte.

"On the other hand, because of the ceilings here, the federal program will have a reduced effect."

Mr. Marcotte said he and his association intend researching the ceiling price and may lodge an official request that the ceiling be raised.

He said an appropriate price for the Belleville area would be in the $25 000 range.

Locally, he said, small builders cannot buy materials in bulk thus escalating the price of the finished product.

The Quinte housing industry, however, needs stimulating he said.

"Last year was bad and this year isn't as good as it should be."

Mr. Marcotte could not provide statistical analysis of the area housing industry but guessed it is 25 per cent behind the target set by the government for new units.

In the federal program lending institutions would be required to provide 14 per cent more mortgage money for housing within five years within the "moderately-priced" category.

Program highlights include a subsidy program that guards against mortgage payments consuming more than 25 per cent of the family's income and subsidies which would bring mortgage rates close to eight per cent from the current rate of 10. This would be done through five-year, interest-free loans.

Urban Affairs Minister Danson said he expects the program to produce 235,000 units, a big starts next year compared with 210,000 this year.

Roof Raising

Jack Wilson of Wilson Automotive Ltd., 25 Harriet Street, says he expects the 18,000 square-foot addition to existing quarters to be completed by November 28. Construction began late September includes a two-floor building plus a third floor addition to the existing 23,000 square foot building.

Tractor, Car Collision Kills Stirling Farmer

STIRLING — An 80-year-old Stirling man died early Tuesday in the Belleville General Hospital (BGH) emergency unit shortly after the farm tractor he was driving collided with a car on Highway 14 at the south limits in this village.

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville identified the man as Percy Wrathall of 156 Mill St. A BGH spokesman said a post mortem revealed the man died of multiple injuries.

Police said the tractor, which sustained negligible damage, was southbound on the west shoulder of the highway when it turned left to proceed into a sideroad and was struck by a following car driven by Brian Neal, 19, of R.R. 6 Marmora.

Police said the tractor overturned and Wrathall was partially pinned beneath the front wheel. Neal suffered minor injuries but did not require hospital treatment.

Available Larry Davis estimated $500 damage to the Neal vehicle in the 8 a.m. mishap. The investigation continues.

Wilson Firm Expands

Jack Wilson of Wilson Automotive Ltd., first invested in Belleville 25 years ago. Today he's confident the city will continue growth.

That's why he's investing about $300,000 in a 18,000 square foot addition to already revamped quarters at 25 Harriett St.

Mr. Wilson started in business in Belleville in 1950 after making a survey of Canadian cities. He was a native of Toronto in Stratford and decided that city would not grow enough. He thought Belleville would be his best bet and started the business in a frame building with a brother and another in-law.

The 23,000 square foot building now houses the wholesale automotive parts division, the industrial division with industrial equipment and the mill division providing parts for mills throughout Eastern Ontario.

The addition comprises two floors of 7,000 square feet plus a third floor warehouse of 4,000 square feet to be added on top of the original building.

Installation of footings for the two-floor expansion began Sept. 25. The building is expected to be closed in by Nov. 15 and the project will be completed by Nov. 28.

Parade Outlined

The Santa Claus Parade Committee is organizing a spectacular for police and present trophies for floats, the best antique vehicle, best band, and inspection at the Nov. 29 parade.

The parade will begin at 10 a.m. moving from the corner of West Moira St. and Walbridge Cres. down Moira, to East Hoyle St., and to the Upper Bridge to Front St.; then along Front St. to Market St. via Market to Pinnacle and north on Pinnacle finish at the corner of Station St.

Three Groups Trying To Re-activate Band

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Belleville Yardmen Benefit Fund secretary Ernie Belanger says this city will definitely have a drum and bugle corps but it is unlikely it will be operating in time for area Christmas parades.

His statement came Tuesday amid moves by three separate groups to mobilize a board of directors that will be acceptable to the Trillium to bring about a release of $60,000 in band equipment.

Yardmen officials seized instruments from the Yardmen Drum and Bugle Corps in early September over what they said were irregularities in band operation.

Mr. Belanger said Tuesday Yardmen will soon be screening three separate groups for an eventual decision to make a "straight donation of band instruments to the group."

"But they'll have to show proof of good faith," he said. Once equipment has been donated, the Yardmen will have nothing to do with them directly.

"Belleville is going to have a drum and bugle corps, but who is going to run it isn't known," said the secretary, emphasizing that the group would have to be incorporated.

Pushing for an immediate, initial meeting with Yardmen officials is a group whose spokesmen say has been endorsed by the 24 active members of the former drum and bugle corps.

Jerry Wilson, father of three band members and elected as chairman of the provisional executive board of directors, said Tuesday his group has been seeking a meeting with Yardmen for several weeks without success.

"The corps members are getting anxious," said Mr. Wilson. The former Yardmen corps had commitments for various Santa Claus parades that will be unfulfilled if sufficient band practice is not done by mid-November.

The Wilson group is composed of interested citizens as well as parents of children who played in the now-defunct corps. A second group consists of citizens former members of the old board of directors.

A third group, said Mr. Belanger, consists of various members of the Yardmen community.

Mr. Wilson said his group has delivered to Yardmen a proposal that includes details of an instructional and operational program for a new band.

A number of the 24 active members of the former band, which once had 64 members, now go to Kingston to practice with the Kingston Grenadiers. Earlier this year, the Yardmen band underwent a trial amalgamation with the 80-member Kingston band.

Cyclist Injured

BLOOMFIELD — A Bloomfield area boy was admitted to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital Tuesday afternoon with injuries received when his bicycle collided with a truck on Bloomfield Road 1 near the junction of County Road 2.

Taylor Johnston, 12, of RR 1 Bloomfield.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the OPP said the boy was cycling along County Road 1 at about 3:30 p.m. when he was in collision with a truck driven by Clifton Walsh, 50, of Consecon.

To Investigate Money Pot

Bob Bailey, president of a Toronto cultural consulting firm, told Belleville Kiwanis Club Tuesday professional fund raisers will survey the Belleville region in January to determine how much money could be raised to establish a cultural centre at Loyalist College. He is with Friedel Belistedt of the Quinte Arts Centre Committee and Dick Lumbers, club president.

Fears of Prison Riots Exaggerated Says Potter

TORONTO — Ontario's correctional services system needs more help from the provincial government than it's now getting says Dr. Richard Potter.

In fact, he told former ministry colleagues here Tuesday night he had been less than successful in pressing for more help from the Ontario cabinet when he was responsible for the province's prison system as correctional minister as minister — a political position that ended several months ago when he retired from provincial politics.

As a retired politician his remarks came from the sidelines of public affairs — at a private dinner in his honor by ministry staff.

Dr. Potter's comments followed recent newspaper reports that the province's prison system may be facing major riots.

Among his listeners was his successor, John Smith, recently-appointed correctional services minister.

Dr. Potter said he did not agree with such news reports, which "once again" demonstrated the attitude of the press in reporting such issues.

But the ministry needs help with problems for which he and his officials had unsuccessfully sought solutions from the Cabinet before he retired, said Dr. Potter.

"And I think the best I can say is you, John," he told the new minister, "is to wish you well and hope you will be more successful than I in trying to convince our colleagues in the cabinet that there is indeed a crisis situation in correctional services."

Dr. Potter said he would be the last to suggest the province's prisons institutions face riots but nonetheless, such publicity may have the effect of tension to ministry problems with the cabinet, said Dr. Potter.

Barrier Delay Explained

There's one reason for traffic tie-ups at the Canadian National Railways Cannifton Road level crossing — even when trains aren't passing.

Such delays last about two minutes.

Mayor Bea Corke told city council this week he had received the following explanation from J.R. Burns, CN's Kalcca Area general manager:

CN has trains approaching the crossing at speeds up to 60 miles an hour so that the level-crossing gates have to be tripped from some distance. If a train approaches at a slower speed or is halted at the nearby station, the gates are still activated.

If the train is stopped away from the crossing the signal mechanism keeps the protective barriers lowered for 120 seconds.

At such main-line crossings there are no manual signals.

Car Centre Fire Scene

Most of the damage during a one-hour fire at Wilton Car Centre on Front St. early today was restricted to that from smoke, said a fire department official.

Some "service books", and a case of oil were burnt in the boiler room where the fire started. Damage amounted to less than $2,000 said the department spokesman.

Prison Officer Faces Charges

By RACHAEL SPENCER
Staff Correspondent

MARMORA — A 29-year-old correctional officer employed at Wrkworth institution faces six charges, including one of assaulting a police officer, following an Ontario Provincial Police manhunt late Tuesday in this village located 30 miles north of Belleville.

Madoc OPP identified the man today as Peter John Runions of 178 Kent St. in Campbellford. He has also been charged with assault causing bodily harm, resisting arrest, escaping lawful and impaired driving and failing to supply a sample of his breath.

Runions is in custody at the Belleville OPP district headquarters and will appear in provincial court at Madoc Nov. 18.

Constable Constable Clifton Fowler stopped a pickup truck at the intersection of Wyatte and Main Sts. at 8:30 p.m. and was assaulted, in the presence of several bystanders who did not assist, when he attempted to arrest the driver.

The driver escaped and was arrested about a half hour later in the village by Constable Wallace Brown after other OPP officers were summoned to assist in the search.

Constable Fowler was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital

Prisoners Portray Feelings

Many shoppers at Quinte Mall Tuesday rated the Prison Arts Foundation exhibition as excellent. Lucille Pelow of Belleville shopping with her grandson, Derek Burke, found the display eye-catching. The art will be on display until tonight.

Historical Importance of Meyers Mill Unknown to Many

At the turn of the 18th century, Meyer's Mill on Station St. was the business enterprise that formed the fabric of the community which became present day Belleville.

The stone and mortar building, which stretches three floors above the waters of the Moira River, in recent years has been stripped of its earlier importance. Its yard cluttered with scrap iron — the building stood dormant and decaying until it was purchased last spring by the Moira River Conservation Authority.

It wasn't the idea of restoration that prompted the purchase of the grist mill the city.

"John Johnston, resources manager of the authority said during an interview Tuesday, the conservation group intended using the site as a parking lot to serve as lee control dam that will be built by the fall.

Five first time, local historians have been quick to point out the significance of the mill and now the authority is willing to lease the building back to the city — that is if the city wants it.

"We have other financial commitments at the time," said Mr. Johnston. "We're not against restoration but we don't have the funds."

Belleville Mayor, Ben Corke said he only had become aware of the building's historical significance and the matter of taking over the building, has been referred to the city's Centennial committee.

"It will definitely be considered as a centennial project," said Mayor Corke. "It has very interesting possibilities."

Few buildings in Belleville can boast the heritage that Meyer's Mill has, claim is.

Tests of local history show Capt. John Meyers, owner of the mill, as the possible founder of Belleville. The mill was the first to be built in the area and drew settlers from several miles around.

In later years, the grist mill was converted to a lumber mill which provided the first sawn lumber for a bridge to cross the Moira River at a site near present day Bridge Street.

By the mid 1800s, the mill was purchased by a Montreal firm and became the first hydro-electric power plant and served several local businesses with electricity until a Trenton power firm proved too stiff competition.

Th enabling was later purchased by the Safe family who sold it finally to the conservation authority this past spring.

Study Recommends Hospital Ambulance Dispatch Centre

Ambulance dispatch and control will soon be housed in a central location at Belleville General Hospital (BGH) to eliminate such service at Picton and Trenton.

The proposal follows an operational review of ambulance services at Belleville, Madoc, Napanee, Picton and Trenton conducted last spring by the ambulance services branch of the provincial ministry of health at Ottawa.

In a report on the review to the BGH Board of Governors, J. S. Bahr, regional coordinator for eastern Ontario, says the branch "would like" board approval to have dispatch facilities relocated to the nurses' residence (Edith Cavell Block) and for the hospital to assume dispatch responsibilities for Trenton and Picton ambulance services.

He says the switch from both towns in the Belleville Dispatch and Control Centre was a significant recommendation due to the fact that "dispatch centres are being duplicated in the area when, in fact, one well-planned communications system suffices."

"Secondly, a more efficient degree of vehicle and crew power utilization can be achieved through one central centre," Mr. Bahr explains. "Considerable cost-effectiveness in the area of dispatch staffing will be realized."

"This centralization will free employees at Trenton and Picton for other duties," he adds.

Mr. Bahr points out it is estimated the additional workload of about 8.3 calls per day can easily be absorbed by the Belleville staff for a total average of about 22 calls per day.

He states the branch will provide funds for relocation of the dispatch centre to larger quarters at BGH and "we are also agreeable to negotiate a reasonable rental fee for such offices."

Mr. Bahr commends the dispatch staff in his report, "During my review of the area, I found that they are generally highly regarded for their objectivity and efficiency in assigning and controlling ambulance calls," he comments.

During board discussion on approval of the proposal, Belleville Ald. Stu Meeks of the board has requested his interest be noted due to his involvement with La Salle Ambulance.

Parents Taking Turn in Classroom

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

A new concept in parent involvement in education at Queen Victoria Public School in Belleville has apparently survived its first test and promises to be a success in the future.

CHILD, (Citizens Helping Individual Learning Development), was conceived by Cherrie and Art Liddle in an effort to break away from the traditional home and school association. The couple said they feel these associations had run their course and "some new format is needed."

They started with a handful of dissatisfied parents one month ago and now the group has grown to about 35 active parents with the support of many other people, whose children attend this school.

CHILD was basically designed to encourage parents to take an active role in their children's education. This meant more than help with homework in the evenings.

Instead, at least 35 parents have joined a volunteer list at the school whereby at the call of the teachers they become teaching assistants. Mrs. Liddle said Tuesday the school administration can't keep up with the requests from teachers for parent volunteers.

Mrs. Liddle also said CHILD is launching a type of training program for parents.

She said these training programs will involve bringing in educators and experts in other fields to deal with many of the problems facing students, parents and teacher.

For example many students at Queen Victoria come from single-parent families. Educators are becoming increasingly alarmed about the number of the students from single-parent families.

Mrs. Liddle said most of the parents were contacted by a telephone survey and she said there was good response from most parents. Two staff teachers, as well as principal Claire Hopcroft, also serve on CHILD's executive.

Mrs. Liddle said there is a growing list of volunteers who will work at least one-half day a week in the classroom. The idea is that the volunteer frees teachers from routine chores in order to deal with more serious education and learning problems.

CHILD is currently participating in a two-day program at the school which will emphasize the importance of nutrition. This will act as a supplement to the regular nutrition courses.

MacBeth Explains Sunday Laws

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Solicitor-General John MacBeth said Tuesday there is little chance that conscientious objectors will be exempted from the province's proposed law to close stores on Sunday.

Mr. MacBeth said in an interview that some areas of the United States allow exceptions from Sunday closings for persons who are prohibited by religious convictions from working on other days of the week.

However, deciding eligibility for exemptions would be difficult and cumbersome, he said.

Phil Givens, Liberal member of the legislature for the Toronto riding of Armourdale, proposed such an exemption earlier this week because he said some of his constituents will go out of business if forced to close on Sundays.

Mr. MacBeth said he is open to all suggestions because he is "sympathetic to any sincerely religious people."

But he said while he can appreciate the plight of the minority, he feels the majority have a right to a day of common pause.

Find Speed

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Cpl. Howard Curry, an RCMP narcotics investigator, testified Tuesday that large quantities of methamphitamine speed were found in a cottage 75 miles north of here about 1½ years ago. Cpl. Curry told a county court jury that about 65,000 grams of the drug in liquid and powdered form were found. Charged with conspiracy to traffic in the drug are William C. Medlister, 32, and Clarence M. Lansdowne, 33, both of Toronto, and Donald W. Harvey, 28, of Ottawa. The trial continues.

Subsidies Reduced

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal subsidies for the dairy industry are to be reduced next year as part of a program to get dairymen to cut production.

Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, in a prepared statement Tuesday, said the subsidies will be cut to $383 million in 1976-77 from $575 million this year.

Wagner Acknowledges

OTTAWA (CP) — Claude Wagner, expected to be a major candidate for the national Progressive Conservative leadership, acknowledged Tuesday that he has accepted money from private donors since 1972 in supplement of his parliamentary income.

Reserves Rise

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's international reserves rose by $84.1 million during October, the finance department said Tuesday.

The total of reserves at Oct. 31 was $5.301 billion, up from $5.218 billion at the end of September. Reserves reached $5 billion at the end of February.

Giquere Admits

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Louis de G. Giguere (L—Quebec) admitted Tuesday night making $60,000 on a $5,000 investment in a company that was negotiating for a federal airport concession. But he denied that any conflict of interest was involved.

Files Application

OTTAWA (CP)—The Carleton University Support Staff Association (CUSSA) filed an application Tuesday with the Ontario Labor Relations Board for certification as the bargaining agent for 800 university employees.

CUSSA said in a statement it has signed more than 55 per cent of its potential bargaining unit which includes clerks technicians, secretaries and administrators on campus.

Stations Deny

OTTAWA (CP) — A denial that Buffalo, N.Y., TV stations are trying to lure more Canadian advertisers was made Tuesday by Phil Welch, vice-president and manager of the Buffalo ABC affiliate, WKBW-TV.

Gas Reserves

OTTAWA (CP) — Three multinational oil companies say their natural gas reserves in the Mackenzie River delta total 25 trillion cubic feet.

The estimates provided in briefs to the National Energy Board show the oil companies' totals differ sharply with estimates provided by one of two applicants for a northern pipeline on the amount of gas available.

Enters Race

OTTAWA (CP) — J. Patrick Nowlan, veteran Progressive Conservative MP for the Nova Scotia riding of Annapolis Valley, said Tuesday night he will enter the federal party leadership race today.

Crombie Spends $800 A Month for Pleasure

TORONTO (CP) — Mayor David Crombie's office is spending about $800 a month on food and drink at some Toronto's most expensive restaurants, information released Tuesday reveals.

The information was released by lawyers for the city after discussions with Mr. Crombie. The lawyers had argued that, because the accounts were held by the city treasurer and not by the city clerk, they were confidential.

"Yes, I talked to them," Mr. Crombie said Tuesday. "I told them to put it all out there. Frankly, I think it should be a matter of public record."

The mayor receives a salary of $40,000 a year, which includes $14,000 for expenses. In addition, his office has spent $7,227 during the first nine months of this year entertaining guests at restaurants.

Mr. Crombie said his office has a budget of $10,000 for meals and entertainment, and as long as that is not exceeded, he does not worry.

The accounts prepared by the city offer no information about the purpose of the meals. However, William Marshall, executive assistant to Mr. Crombie, said a "system of checks and balances" in the mayor's office ensures that all meals paid by the public involve the city's business.

OFL Meets

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Labor (OFL) hardened its stand Tuesday against new federal wage guides by calling for a minimum wage of $4 an hour.

Judges May Be Given Power To Take Licences Away for Life

TORONTO (CP) — Ottawa has been asked to amend the Criminal Code to give provincial judges the power to suspend licences of drinking drivers for life, Ontario Attorney-General Roy McMurtry said Tuesday.

In an interview outside the legislature, Mr. McMurtry said he had written to federal officials asking for the amendment but stressed it would apply only in exceptional cases.

"Such an amendment would involve certain cases, especially ones which involve repeated offenders," he said. At present, a judge has the power to suspend a licence for three years.

Mr. McMurtry suggested if such an amendment is introduced, it probably would give some right of appeal for the driver after a certain number of years.

The attorney-general said he strongly opposes a proposed Criminal Code amendment which would remove the powers of prohibition which provincial judges now have under the Highway Traffic Act.

In the house, he told Veron Singer (L—Wilson Heights) that the government intends to make suggestions soon that would reduce the incidence of drinking drivers.

Mr. McMurtry told Mr. Singer he agrees that punitive measures alone will not solve the problem and that the government intends to embark on an educational program.

Outside the house Mr. McMurtry said he had asked provincial Crown attorneys to see what jail sentences had been handed out during recent months for offences involving drinking drivers.

"I would suspect," he said "that there have been very few."

The attorney-general said he will suggest a more aggressive prosecution of drivers charged and hopes that judges will impose longer jail terms. He also said he felt the right of judges to impose intermittent sentences has been abused.

Most of the wartime escape stories so far told have been concerned with the exploits of officer prisoners of war in camps like Colditz and Stalag Luft 111. Less well known are those of the Royal Air Force N.C.O. Observers and Gunners who fell into German hands. A famous N.C.O. Camp was Heydekrug on the Baltic Coast. Here Warrant Officer George Grimson succeeded in establishing an escape route within Nazi Germany itself. The story is told by John Dominy who was a P.O.W. and in this latest book he describes various courtroom scenes in which Voicepainting has been a decisive factor in vindicating the innocent as well as convicting the guilty.

Go Watch T.V.! What -and How Much Should Children Really Watch? — Nai Rutstein.

Voice Printing: How the Law Can Read the Voice of Crime — Eugene Block.

No two human voices are identical, which has led to one of sciences newest weapons against crime - voiceprinting. There are controversies about the value of this technique, but it is playing an increasingly important role and there are thirteen States which accept it as evidence in their Courts. Eugene Block is a popular writer on crime and criminals and an eye-witness to the events he describes.

Mr. Rutstein has worked in television journalism for fifteen years. He served as communications consultant to the White House Conference on Children and has taught university students. In "Go Watch T.V." he presents evidence on the extent to which T.V. has come to dominate home life and the degree to which young children come to identify with and believe T.V. characters. His thesis is that while television is a great teaching medium, uncontrolled viewing also teaches violence, racism, sexism and contempt for individual rights. The language is clear and straightforward and Mr. Rutstein names shows which he considers beneficial or harmful.

Born to Obey — Valerie and Colin Salt.

Here is an engrossing story, in word and picture, of the superbly trained Alsatians who work with the New Zealand Police Force. The special school is described where men and dogs learn their jobs of working as a team and many instances are given of the dogs in action. The 120 photographs show the dogs in training and in action.

Andrew Allan. A Self-Portrait — Andrew Allan.

When Andrew Allan died in January 1974, Canada lost one of the most respected broadcasters. His childhood was spent in Australia and the United States and finally Peterborough, Ontario. His first job during the depression was with CFRB in Toronto, as announcer, floorsweeper and night-watchman. Thus his career in broadcasting was begun. He was responsible for the "Stage" series of radio plays during the forties and fifties which brought radio drama to a high point of excellence. The first part of this book is autobiographical and was read by the author in segments over the radio. The second part contains a collection of essays, satirical and serious, many of which have also been read on the program "This Country in the Morning".

Justice Means Exposing Injustices in Society

By LORRAINE GIRHAULT
The Canadian Press

"Before there can be justice in any society, the injustices within it must be brought forward," says Stan Daniels, former Metis Association of Alberta president, in his introduction to The White Man's Laws.

Co-project of the association, The White Man's Law§, by Christine Daniels and Nan Christiansen, is a book about justice—the white man's system of justice.

While the book carries a tinge of the bitterness felt by many native people, it is by no means dominated by that feeling. It is a guide to the sections of Canadian law that most often affect Indian and Metis citizens but is easily understood by any layman.

The White Man's Laws is the story of Eddy, an Indian boy who has just spent a disgusting year in jail and he and his grandfather, who tries to explain why his people must accept and abide by the law.

Eddy's grandfather listens carefully as the boy spills out his disappointments in city life.

"In school the teacher told us that everyone is equal," Eddy says. "Yet, I can see that this is not so. I do not understand the white man's ways and laws. He says one thing and does another."

The old man admits that he, too, cannot fathom the ways of the white man—the way he destroys his environment, the way he neglects the poor and elderly, his lack of trust, his obsession with signing papers and his numerous laws.

"He even has laws for dogs," the grandfather exclaims.

Before he discusses the laws Eddy will have to live with, his grandfather tells him the history of the Indian people before the white man's arrival. He tells of the efforts of men like Louis Riel, Chief Crowfoot and Chief Poundmaker to gain freedom for the Indians. He tells of the old tribal law that taught each person to think of his people before himself.

"Gone is the freedom to live, hunt and fish where one wants," laments the old man, "and my people suffer because of the white people's desire for money and land."

He tells Eddy of the corporations that want to exploit Canada's northern resources.

"We have to know how all the law thing works and how they use the laws when they want something. We must all learn this and speak with one voice. For if we do not, we can only blame ourselves if we are never involved in anything."

Laws governing liquor, theft, violence, prostitution, marriage, welfare and the courts are discussed in a simple, direct manner which makes The White Man's Laws a comprehensive handbook.

The text is complemented on every other page with color illustrations by Mr. Christiansen, who employs traditional heavy outlines and shadows of native art.

The White Man's Law§, Christine Daniels and Nan Christiansen, $8.95 — 128 pages: Hurtig Publishers, Edmonton.

Undertaker Supplies May Help Save Lives

DORSET, Ont. (CP) — Silk socks and gloves bought from an undertaker supplier will help keep you alive if you happen to be a woman flier and come down in the bush in cold weather.

This is one of the tips handed out by Berndt Berglund a survival expert who ran a course in this Haliburton County area for 30 women fliers who took a two-day wilderness survival course.

The women, all licensed pilots, are members of Ninety-Nines Inc., an international association of women pilots. The survival course was sponsored by the Canadian chapter of the association.

Mr. Berglund started off years ago as a survival expert with the Swedish air force. After coming to Canada, he served as a survival advisor with the RCAF auxiliary forces before going into business for himself.

Aware of the hazards of flying in the Canadian wilderness, Mr. Berglund says he aims not to give formal, rigid training but to make his pupils aware of what might happen and also aware that something can be done about it if they get into trouble.

His lectures and discussions to the women in this bushland area covered such topics as the psychology of survival, such as not panicking; geography; how to make distress signals; and how to outfit a plane before taking off.

He also instructed the fliers on how to be dressed for the air. Don't take off in high-heeled shoes and nylons.

This is where the black socks and gloves come in. Mr. Berglund advised his pupils that the best things to have on the hands and legs are pure silk, because they are warmest in winter and most comfortable in all seasons.

They are best obtained, Mr. Berglund said, at an undertaker's supply place.

When one of life's greatest pleasures, eating, becomes a matter of "two minutes on the tips and two weeks on the hips", then it's time to become actively involved in Nutrition Week. November 2 to 8 has been proclaimed Nutrition Week throughout Ontario in an effort to get citizens to balance eating with exercise. Since being averted and under-nourished is a major health problem in Canada, it's important to choose the kinds of foods which give us the highest nutritional value with as few calories as possible and to taste off those calories with some action.

Join in the celebration of Nutrition Week by shopping more selectively. Remember that supermarkets stock all the items which customers want to buy and the range of nutritional quality is wide. However, there are many items within a food store which provide the valuable nutrients necessary for good health. If you're confused about where to start, why not go back to basics and see the food groups as a guide. I.e., milk and milk products, fruits, vegetables, meat and alternates, breads and cereals. For a colorful booklet which gives more details on food groups and eating well, write to me at the address below.

It's simply a matter of choice. Be choosey!

Mrs. Albany will be talking with shoppers November 8th, at Kipling Food City, Kipling & The Queensway, from 1:30 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. Please feel free to come in and ask questions relating to food shopping. Mrs. Albany is available to speak to groups. Write her at 125 The Queensway, Toronto, Ontario M8Y 1H7, or call (416) 259-6433.

Warning for Team Officials

Coaches or other team officials who encourage their players to commit violence during sporting events can be liable for conspiracy, says Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie.

Chief Crosbie, a vice-president of the Ontario Association of Chiefs of Police, commented on the recently announced crackdown on violence in sport by Ontario Attorney-General Irvin Tuesday.

Chief Crosbie said he is concerned that in minor league sports, there may be those urging these young players on, who will not incur the penalty.

Mr. McMurtry has said he anticipates the charges most frequently laid will be assault causing bodily harm which is an indictable offence under the Criminal Code.

Chief Crosbie pointed out that the Criminal Code states, "Everyone who conspires with anyone to effect an unlawful purpose or to effect a lawful purpose by unlawful means is guilty of an indictable offence and is liable to imprisonment for two years."

"I would suppose if a coach said to the biggest man on his team, 'go out and put another man out of commission', it would be conspiracy," he said.

However, he said conspiracy would be difficult to prove unless there were excellent corroborating witnesses.

Chief Crosbie explained in bodily-contact sports, it is difficult to prove intent for an offence. He said these must be witnesses who observed preceding events prior to the offence and the question of provocation also arises.

In addition, young people have "a great disrespect for the law" when they see no action taken on an offence committed during a game and then watch charges laid for similar offence committed on a street corner, he said.

Chief Crosbie said that in the past his department "has done the same as the rest of the country. We've left it (violence) up to the leagues themselves."

But the police have not closed their eyes to all sporting violence, he emphasized. "There never have been any exceptions where a charge can be laid."

Bobcats' Grant Goegan, caught up in Whitby goalie Joe Pillegi's legs, wheels to follow puck during Tuesday night's 6-2 Metro Junior B Hockey League win. Whitby defenceman (2) is John V. Turner. Goegan picked up a pair of assists as Cats stretched unbeaten string to nine in league play.

Junior Tigers Are Champions

TRENTON — Exploding for 21 points in the third quarter, Trenton High School Tigers blasted the Bay of Quinte High School Football junior final around here Tuesday and romped to the championship with a 34-6 victory over Moira Secondary School Trojans.

Tigers will not meet the Kawartha District representative in the Central Ontario Secondary School Association showdown, Joe Dicresce, coach of the championship team, is still awaiting word on who Tigers will play and when. The game will be played on the turf field of the Kawartha team.

"It could be Cobourg East, a Peterborough team or Lindsay," offered Dicresce, who obviously was more interested in savoring the victory which brought Dan Team the group title, than looking ahead to COSSA.

The Trenton team brought its record to 9-0 in seven league games and two playoff games with the Tuesday win.

Moira, definitely in contention until that third quarter burst by Tigers, never stopped trying even when there was no doubt of the final outcome. Trojans gave it a solid effort all the way through and were close to adding to their point total during a scoreless fourth quarter.

It was a tight 13-6 game at the half. And Trojans had given every indication that they were capable of upsetting the Tigers.

As was the case in Trenton's 19-0 semi-final win over Centre Hastings Secondary School, some rank errors by post receiver men Mark Scuccato and Wayne Sturgeon turned into the game's big play.

Early in the third quarter, Murphy fielded a Moira punt in the Trojans' 39-yard line and handed off to Scuccato on a reverse. The fleet Trenton flanker had a clear field in advance for the major and when quarterback Brian Hansen cracked over for a two-point conversion, Tigers were on their way.

Halfback Dave Pelican looked after another Trenton touchdown, dashing 20 yards for the major after he had set the play up by gathering in a Moira pass.

Scuccato added the coverl and it was 27-6. And it was Scuccato who broke loose for the game's final touchdown. He turned on the speed to outrace the defenders on a 55-yard jaunt.

Trojans got plenty of mileage from fullback Dave Bennett in this one. Relinquishing his quarterback duties to Peter Anglin, Bennett lugged the ball for plenty of yardage up the middle and counted Moira's lone touchdown.

The Moira scoring play came early in the second quarter and trimmed Tigers' lead to 7-6. Tigers' defence held on a third down gamble by Moira but an offside call on Trenton gave the visitors another crack at it and Bennett bulled his way over from the five-yard line.

Trenton opened the scoring in the game with a single off Moira's punting specialist from 25 yards out. Later, two field goals by Dicresce were wiped out by Trenton offsides.

A perfect pass from Hansen to flanker John Webb upped the Tigers' lead to 7-0. Webb beat the Moira defenders and gathered in the strike to complete a 45-yard pass and run play for the major.

After Bennett and company made it close, Tigers capped a long drive spearheaded by fullback Henry Peterson's crushing when halfback Chris Walsh crashed over the goal line from five yards out, and it was 13-6.

Trojans very nearly put the brat back on Tigers on the last play of the half when the always dangerous Jeff Runciman broke outside and beat everyone except Murphy who brought the speedster down on the 39-yard line.

Some Couldn't Care Less But Executive Elected

The Bay of Quinte Soccer Association may have to take drastic measures to drum up interest for its meetings.

Perhaps election of officers for the following season could be held during half time of the Bay-Co game in any given year. At least then, organizers would have some players to gather around presidings.

The final shoulder charge had barely been shrugged off the referee's back and it was time to elect an executive for next year's soccer season. Out of the association's nine 1975 clubs, were represented.

The apparent apathy did not keep those in attendance from getting things organized for next year. Wonder of wonders, the BCSA already has its executive elected.

Taking over as president at the Monday meeting, was Cobourg's Jim Robertson. He takes the reins from Peter Crowle of Trenton. Crowle 8-nally got his wish. He no longer holds an executive position.

Vendetti could prove to be an excellent league head. He's done it before. He's coach and manager of the Cobourg Tony's for the past few years and he appears to be a dedicated soccer man.

Trenton's Ron Cannons, an executive member for the past few years, returns this time as first vice-president. Second vice-president is Peter Kakmiris, also of Trenton.

Belleville put three men on the executive. Fred Jones is the secretary; Gus Christopher, treasurer, and John O'Neill, match secretary.

Acceptance of these positions means an end to active participation in the game for Cannons, Kakouris and O'Neill.

A rule passed Monday prohibits any registered player from serving on the executive.

Bruins No Match for Bobcats

MARKHAM — When the Belleville Bobcats and the Whitby Young Bruins met for the third time this season Tuesday night here, both clubs knew what to expect. Belleville would have to watch out for the aggressive tactics of the Bruins and the home club would have to try and stop the accurate Bellevile shooters.

The game was almost an exact replay of the first two encounters as the Cats outclassed the Bruins 6-2 in Metro Junior B action. It took Cats only the first period to establish their supremacy as they outscored Whitby to the tune of 3-1.

The win extended Cats' unbeaten streak to nine games in league play. Belleville has eight wins and a tie on the season. In pre-season games, the club chalked up six victories as en many starts.

Whitby's usual aggressive style of play did not fit in with the close game called by the referee and as a result, the home club gave up three short handed goals. Cats also banded out their share of hard checks and were forced to sit out a total of 24 minutes in penalties, all minors.

Whitby was assessed 21 minutes in penalties which included a major for cross checking and a game misconduct to Greg Wallace for being the third man into a fight.

Paul Tilley got back on the scoring track for Belleville, picking up a pair of goals and adding an assist. Bruce Leedham, also very effective, collected a pair of goals. Singles to Rob Chase and Tony Meagher rounded out the Cats' scoring.

Chase opened the scoring for Belleville a little over seven minutes into the first period. Whitby came back and tied the game up, but two quick shorthanded goals late in the period gave the Belleville team a lead it never surrendered.

The most obvious reason for the low score, especially in the second and third periods was the performance of Cats' netminder Bob Moore. Moore looked extremely shaky throughout the game blocking many close in tries by the opposition.

Belleville's defence played a strong game and made use of the Bruins kept their heads up.

Whitby appeared to control the play for the better part of the third period, but only managed to get one shot on net. The puck deflected in off Moore's skate. Belleville added two goals in the third period, both by Tilley.

The Cats will have a one day rest one before travelling to Kingston Thursday with a match against the Kingston Township Voyageurs and then will return home for a 9 p.m. Friday encounter with the Oshawa Legionaires.

Bob's Turns It On

Bob's Sports, after suffering their first setback of the season last week, made up for it Wednesday night in Bay of Quinte House Hockey League action Tuesday night as they whipped Bay Ridge Esso 4-2.

The win, the most lopsided of the year in Ghlffi action to date, gave Bob's second place in the Eastern Conference leading Chuckwagons.

In the other two games Tuesday, Bel-Con Engineering edged Jim's Electric 5-4 and Rollin's Lumber battled to a 2-2 deadlock with Bi-Temp Air Conditioning.

Three players were tipping their hats following last night's whitewash, Ray Summers, Robb Harrington and Russ Harrington each fired hat tricks. Summers and Robb former Harrington also had two assists apiece. The Russ Harrington drew a pair of helpers.

Steve Storms was the top pointer-getter of the contest with four goals and six assists. Other two goal scorers were Jeff Lloyd, Dave Middleton and Mike Coerblin. Charlie Bondhabaru, Wayne Sturgeon and Bob Wladyka rounded out the scoring parade with one goal each.

For Bob goaltender Vern Wilson had his third shutout in five starts.

Bel-Con Engineering evened their record on the scores at two apiece. Dave Middleton and Dale Brocklesone, Bob Foster and Bob Holway each scored singles for the victors. Brocklesone and Bob Spencer replied for Jim's.

An ever improving Bi-Temp crew earned a share of third place and extended their unbeaten streak to four games with Tuesday's tie. After dropping their opening game of the season the fledgling Gas House club has gone undefeated.

Tony Lenzini and Ken Jessup counted a goal each to give Bi-Temp the edge. Don Dunn provided all the firepower for Rollin's.

BCI Red Grubs Capture Title

By TOM GAVEY
Sports Staff

The Belleville Collegiate Institute Red Grubs are Bay of Quinte High School Soccer League junior champions as a result of some fine play in a 3-0 win over Nicholson Catholic College Tuesday.

Winning the toss at the beginning of the game turned out to be one of the major factors in the BCI win, as they chose to go with the wind. This resulted in all three of their goals coming in the opening half.

For the first 30 minutes play was extremely close, as both goalies were tough do score on ball goal scorers.

A defensive lapse by the NCC team resulted in BCI's first, and winning, goal. Forward Ward Morris passed to teammate Doug Campbell, who simply tapped the ball towards the NCC net. No Nicholson defenders, including the goalie, moved toward the ball, which came to rest on the goal line, and Steve Pz a gave it one more kick for the goal.

Another miscue by the Nicholson team, resulted in goal #2 when a communication occurred between the Nicks' Mark Crawford and BCI's Dwight Perry. Perry may have won the fight, but BCI won the war, as a penalty shot resulted. Steve Parz, shooting for Perry, made good use of the opportunity, making the score 2-0.

Ten minutes later Morris was back again to worry Nicholson, this time scoring himself.

Pat Hurley and Frank Skel of the Nicks had several good scoring chances, but couldn't capitalize.

Mark Clare played the full 90 minutes in goal for BCI, racking up another shutout.

Referee Dave Handley described the game as one of the best he had seen all year.

"Any other year and Nicholson would have won, but BCI had a super team this year," he said.

BCI ended the season with a 7-0 record. They were accepted into last once in 338 minutes of league play.

The win moves BCI journey to Central Ontario Secondary School's Association competition this weekend at the Oshawa Civic Centre. Moira Secondary School will represent Bay of Quinte in the senior division.

Lions Have the Answer For Kingston Midgets

Belleville Lions Midgets continued their supremacy over Kingston Cataract Midget Midgets in AAA Ontario Minor Hockey Association with a convincing 9-5 victory Tuesday night in the Limestone City.

Belleville's Bob Cruwelyck came up with his highest scoring night of the 1975-76 campaign counting three goals and three assists. It was Paul Hipkin, though, that shone throughout. Hipkin, assisted, has played top notch hockey, skating both ways well, helping to protect goalie Bruce Hamilton. Hipkin was not to be denied on the scoresheet as he popped a pair into the Kingston net and drew two helpers.

Hamilton, once again, was not to impossible to beat between the Lions posts. Though the Voyageurs got five past him, they had to fire 53 shots his way to do it.

Jim Johnston also helped the Belleville attack with a pair.

Trenton Tigers' defender tries for firm hold on Moira Trojans' elusive running back Jeff Runciman in Bay of Quinte Junior Football final at Trenton Tigers' ability to keep the speedy Runciman in check played a big part in Trenton team's 34-6 win.

Parise Heeds Advice

By THE CAANDIAN PRESS

All it took was a lecture from young goalie Glenn Resch to get veteran J. P. Parise introduced Tuesday night.

Parise, dissatisfied with his early season performance, scored three goals for New York Islanders as they downed California Seals 5-3 in a National Hockey League game. It was his first three-goal game in an eight-year NHL career.

"I started talking to J. P. before the game," Resch said. "I told him I had been watching him in practice and that he's been aiming the puck, instead of lining it.

"I told him to stop aiming it and just shoot it."

In Tuesday's other NHL game, New York Rangers defeated Vancouver Canucks 4-2.

Resch also made a scoring play of his own, drawing a rare assist on a goal by Islander defenseman Denis Potvin.

Parise said the chat with Resch caused the big turnaround in his play.

"Before the game I looked at the record and said I'm not making any contribution to this club at all," Parise said. "It really got me down."

Parise's first contribution was a goal at 13:38 of the first period that tied the score 1-1. He tipped in Jean Potvin's blast from the right point and coach Al Arbour said that "first goal seemed to give him a lift."

Parise then made it 2-1 about four minutes later to give the Islanders a lead they never lost. He scored his eighth goal of the season in the second period.

The slumping Rangers broke a 1-1 tie at Vancouver with a pair of third-period goals.

The Rangers got goals from Pete Stemkowski, Steve Vickow, Bill Fairbairn and Pat Hickey and solid netminding from Dave Wilson, called up from Providence of the American Hockey League.

Tonight's schedule has Detroit, Red Wings at Toronto Maple Leafs, Montreal Canadiens at Atlanta Flames, Boston Bruins at Buffalo Sabres, the Islanders at Pittsburgh Penguins, Philadelphia Flyers at Chicago Black Hawks, Los Angeles Kings at Washington Capitals, St. Louis Blues at Minnesota North Stars and California at Kansas City Scouts.

Two Unlikely Heroes Connect

By JOHN SHORT
The Canadian Press

Players more renowned for stopping goals than for scoring them produced winning tallies for the top two Canadian Division teams Tuesday night in the World Hockey Association.

Defenceman Mike Ford fired a 55-foot slap shot 3:39 into death overtime for his third goal of the season as Winnipeg Jets nipped New England Whalers 5-4 and forward Tom Sestras, normally a penalty killer, scored an unusual goal with one minute remaining as Quebec Nordiques nipped Edmonton Oilers 4-3.

The victories left Quebec and Winnipeg tied for first place in the Canadian Division with Edmonton third. Calgary Cowboys remained fourth by gaining a 4-4 tie with San Diego Mariners while Toronto Toros dropped a 4-3 decision to Indianapolis Racers. In the only game not involving a Canadian team, Mark Lemenda scored in the third period to spark Denver Sputs to a 5-2 tie with Cleveland Crusaders at Denver.

Serbin got credit for Quebec's winning goal after firing it from his side of centre. It ricocheted from the corner into the Edmonton goal crease, where it spun toward the net. Goaltender Chris Worthy and defenceman Kerry Ketter, confused over who should play the puck, watched it trickle over the line as Wardly took a lazy swipe at it and missed.

Many Teams

Many Teams scored two goals for the Nordiques and came close on several other occasions. The other Quebec goal was scored by Real Cloutier. The line of Norm Ullman, Rusty Patenaude and Ken Baird continued to spark Edmonton, with Patenaude scoring two goals and Ullman one.

Bobby Hull, robbed by New Abrahamsson scored for the England netminder Christer Whalers, who trailed 3-0 after Abrahamsson moments before the first period and rallied in Fard scored, scored one Winni- the third.

New Owner

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association have a new principal owner who says he is trying to reorganize the club to keep it alive and in St. Paul. Wayne Belisle, a lawyer and the team's president since a reorganization 18 months ago, said Tuesday the franchise is free of debt and is meeting its payroll. Belisle said his businessmen relinquished their 80 per cent of the four-year-old WHA club to him about a month ago.

Two Hurdles to Clear If Hull Plans Return

TORONTO (CP) — If Bobby Hull could clear two legal hurdles, there would be nothing to stop him from returning to the National Hockey League, NHL president Clarence Campbell said Tuesday.

Campbell said that if Hull does move back to the NHL from Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association, he would be property of Chicago Black Hawks.

"First of all, the NHL is under a decree from a Philadelphia court that we may not interfere with any player under contract to the World Hockey Association," Campbell said.

"If he did get out of his contract with Winnipeg, he would then have to be waived out of the WHA."

"Should both those conditions be met, there would be no reason he could not return. None at all."

There have been recurring reports that Hull, who started a one-game sitdown over violence in the WHA earlier this season, is eager to return to the Black Hawks.

The Black Hawks have refused comment on the reports.

Campbell said the NHL as such doesn't have much interest in his return.

"As a league, the NHL doesn't care much one way or the other," he said. "However, some individual clubs, I'm sure, would like his services."

Five WHA Teams Are on Thin Ice

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the teams in the World Hockey Association may cease to exist by next summer.

The newspaper says San Diego Mariners could fold by Christmas. It says Mariners owner Joseph Schwartz has not been able to obtain the additional financing he needs.

The story names Denver Spurs, Calgary Cowboys, Cleveland Crusaders and Minnesota Fighting Saints as other WHA teams in financial trouble.

Flavor agents Alan Eagleson of Toronto and Steve Heller of Montreal agree some of their players may be out of work by the end of the season.

President Wayne Belisle of the Saints, who announced Tuesday he had taken over as principal owner of the team, cited Denver, Cleveland and San Diego as particular problem areas.

Bud Poile, director of hockey operation for the WHA, said Tuesday he doesn't believe the league has any acute problems, but said attendance hasn't improved this year over the corresponding period last year.

Belisle, who said Monday his team would need additional capital to finish the season, announced Tuesday that the franchise is free of debt and meeting its payroll.

On Tuesday he questioned the ability of Schwartz to operate the Mariners from his San Diego home base.

"I don't think Denver realized what they were getting into when they joined the league," he said. "As for Cleveland, I wish them all the best.

"I just can't see them supported with a club 30 miles outside the city."

Players Looking To Move?

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Agents representing three players from Minnesota Fighting Saints of the World Hockey Association have contacted Minneapolis North Stars to learn if the National Hockey League club has any interest in the players, a Minneapolis newspaper reported today.

The Tribune says the three players are Henry Boucha, who jumped from the North Stars to the Saints this year, Highwing centre Mike Walton and goalie John Garrett.

Jack Gordon, North Stars general manager, said the calls made Tuesday were from Brian Smith of Detroit, who represents Boucha, and Bill Watters, a member of Alan Eagleson's staff in Toronto, who represents Walton and Garrett.

"Smith told me he has a letter of credit on some money for Boucha that hasn't been paid," said Gordon, "I told Smith that as far as I knew Boucha was under contract to the Saints and we weren't interested in him.

"Garrett is the property of the Chicago Black Hawks in only league where Walton's rights are owned by Vancouver."

The newspaper says the calls apparently were triggered by recent financial shuffling by the Fighting Saints, who are struggling to keep a football in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area.

Rochester Downs Baltimore

BALTIMORE (AP)—Jim Jones and Ron Garwasiuk each scored first-period goals Tuesday night and goalie Rosi Brooks shut out Baltimore Clippers for the last two periods, giving Rochester Americans a 3-1 American Hockey League victory.

Baltimore's only threatening posture came midway through the first period when Dennis Ginnaldi scored his fourth goal of the season, pulling Baltimore to within one.

Rochester's Rene Drolet put the Americans ahead 3-1 with 7:13 in the second period and then Brooks took care of the Clippers for the remainder of the game. Brooks finished the game with 27 saves.

The win completed a successful three-game road swing for Rochester which saw them pick up a tie Saturday in Hershey, a win Sunday in Richmond and the victory Tuesday over Baltimore in the only scheduled AHL game.

It was Baltimore's third loss in a row and the fifth in their last six games.

JIM PALMER

Second Cy Young Award For Palmer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Palmer of Baltimore Orioles, who helps overcame arm problems that threatened his baseball career, was named winner of the Cy Young Award Tuesday as the top pitcher in the American League.

It was the second Cy Young trophy for Palmer, who lost out Jim (Catfish) Hunter of New York Yankees in voting by 24 members of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Palmer said: "I felt I was going o win it all the time. Of course, when you're against an athlete from New York, you never know what will happen.

"The way I th this year, I felt I could win 20 games if the club had hit behind me. But when you win 23 games, you ought to be satisfied."

Palmer finished with a total of 98 points, including 15 first-place votes. He was the only pitcher named on all 24 ballots. Hunter, who won the Cy Young award with Oakland A's last year, finished with 75 points, including seven first-place votes. The Yankee pitcher who named on 22 of the ballots.

Belle Fingers of Oakland was third with 25 points.

Palmer logged a 23-11 record for the Orioles in a big comeback after slipping to 7-12 in 1974 when he was troubled by a pinched nerve in his elbow.

The lean right-hander kept the Orioles in the American League East Division race almost single-handedly before Boston pulled away in the final weeks of the season. He led the major leagues with 10 shutouts and a 2.09 earned-run average.

Knights Tie Fincups 3-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two third-period goals by Jim MacRae enabled London Knights to tie Hamilton Fincups 3-3 in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A action Tuesday. The result left the Fincups atop the Emms division, one point ahead of London.

In other games, Sudbury Wolves and Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds also battled to a 3-3 draw, Ottawa 67s downed visiting Kingston Canadians 7-3 and Oshawa Generals won their fourth straight game, defeating Peterborough Petes 5-3.

At Hamilton, Vern Stenlund scored the other London goal to give the Knights a 1-0 lead early in the first period. But Willy Huber and Archie King both scored later in the period to put the Fincups ahead.

Hamilton's Mike Keating scored the only goal of the second period.

Greyhounds 3 Wolves 3

A power-play goal by John Tavella with less than six minutes left in the game salvaged the tie for Sault Ste. Marie before a Sault record crowd of 4,918.

Mike Hordy and Tim Coulis scored the other Greyhound goals. Mike Kaszycki assisted on all three scoring plays.

Mike Fallgoo, Randy Pierce and Dave Farrish scored for the Wolves.

In an earlier match, Alan Minter decisioned former British and European champion Kevin Finnegan to take the vacant British middleweight title.

of Ottawa. Hedges drew a minor penalty.

Trailing 4-3 in the second period, the Canadiens made it 4-4 early in the third before the 'Sos skated away from them before 2,300 fans in the 9,500-seat Civic Centre.

Doug Wilson scored two of the Oshawa goals. Peter Lee, Steve Maringere, Bob Smith, Bruce Baker and Shane Pearsall had one apiece.

Larry Murphy, Barry Scully and Jim Davidson scored for Kingston, outshot 40-31 on the game.

It was Lee's 22nd goal of the season and his 126th in OHA play, three short of the league record established by Dennis Maruk formerly of London Knights.

Generals 5 Petes 3

At Oshawa, two third-period goals by Glenn Kirkham lifted the Generals to victory.

After a scoreless opening period, the teams battled to a 2-2 deadlock in the second before Kirkham scored the winning and insurance goals in the final 30 minutes.

Greg Malone, Geoff Shaw and Paul Gardner also scored for Oshawa.

Rick Vasko, Tony Cassolato and Keith Acton replied for the Petes.

It was the fourth consecutive victory for the Generals who notched the Petes 43-30 before 1,720 fans.

Rookie Powers Phoenix

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rookie centre Alvan Adams, dominating both backboards and making six steals, scored 15 points in the second half Tuesday night to lead Phoenix Suns to a 96-90 win over Chicago Bulls in a National Basketball Association game.

Afterward, Bulls' coach Dick Motta admitted he had underestimated the Suns, especially their fledgling centre, who grabbed 12 rebounds in the final half.

"I was surprised tonight by Adams," he said. "Not because I thought he wasn't good, but I didn't think a rookie could handle us the way he did."

New Awards for Top Players

TORONTO (CP) — Eastern Conference nominees for the Canadian Football League top player awards will receive added recognition this year in the form of four new awards.

The Eastern Football Conference said Tuesday four new awards presentations will be announced at a luncheon in Ottawa on Friday, Nov. 14, eve of the EFC championship game.

The recipients will be the East's representatives in the Schenley Awards, to be announced the following week during Grey Cup celebrations in Calgary.

Dick Shatto, manager of marketing, media and public relations for Toronto Argonauts, said recipients of the inaugural awards for the EFC's outstanding rookie, Canadian, offensive and defensive player will receive a suitably-inscribed plaque.

In addition, the winner of the Jeff Russel Trophy, which goes to the Eastern Conference's most valuable player, also will be presented.

The individual EFC awards recognize four conference backers whose names were selected by general managers of the four EFC clubs.

The rookie award is named after Frank Gibson, a Hamilton native associated with the Tiger-Cats most of his life and a founding member of the Ticats in 1950.

The Canadian award is named after Lew Hayman, long-time president and a former coach and general manager of the Argos.

The offensive lineman award is named after Leo Dandurand, popular Montreal sportsman and part-owner of the Alouettes when they won their first Grey Cup in 1949.

The defensive lineman award is named after James F. McCarthy, for more than 40 years a dominant figure in the Ottawa Rough Rider organization.

On the basis of earlier voting to select the EFC's nomination for national awards, recipients of this year's inaugural conference awards will be Tom Clements, Ottawa quarterback, rookie; Jim Foley, Ottawa running back, Canadian; Dave Scaggins, Montreal guard, offensive lineman, and Jim Corrigall, Toronto, defensive lineman.

CFL Attendance Records Fall

TORONTO (CP) — Ottawa, Edmonton and Toronto shattered marks three times during the season to lead an assault on Canadian Football League attendance records.

Seventy-two league games drew 2,826,092 fans to the nine league stadiums and 18 pre-season contests drew another 254,961 for a total live audience of 2,180,923 in 1978.

The over-all support compares with 1,968,033 who turned up for games last year and 1,545,822 more than the previous high of 1,026,188 set in 1975.

Record home crowds were turned in three times each by Ottawa Rough Riders, Edmonton Eskimos and Toronto Argonauts and Saskatchewan Roughriders broke their home attendance mark once.

In addition, Calgary Stampeders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers each reported three record-equalling turnouts.

Ottawa, with an additional 8,000 seats in 1978, joined Toronto, Hamilton Tiger-Cats and British Columbia Lions among the 5-seated group to play before a home crowds of 30,000-plus.

Toronto started the record-breaking on the second day of the regular schedule by drawing 36,913 paying customers and Ottawa closed out the year Sunday with a record home paid attendance of 38,242.

The crowd of 36,913 who turned out for Toronto's first home game was the largest ever to watch a regular season CFL game. The figure was broken on two subsequent occasions at CNE Stadium—37,000 came out for their second game and an all-time CFL crowd of 48,474 turned up at the third game.

The previous high for any CFL contest was 39,417 at the 1955 Grey Cup Game at Vancouver's Empire Stadium. The most ever to see a regular season game prior to Toronto's record season—which averaged 27,500 a game—was 26,794 in 1965 at a Grey Cup game in Vancouver.

The Eskimos played their first record-breaking game against Saskatchewan Roughriders in early September in front of 25,501. The figure rose to 30,139 against Montreal and later, against Saskatchewan, hit a high of 36,308. Saskatchewan's best-ever crowd—32,288—turned out for an Oct. 16 game against Edmonton.

Bolton Gains Share of First

LONDON (Reuter) — Bolton beat Portsmouth 4-1 in their soccer match at Bolton Tuesday night and joined Sunderland at the top of the English League's Second Division.

With 28 minutes left, the home team cut loose for three goals in 16 minutes. Gary Jones scored twice and Neil Whalmore once.

In a Third Division game, Crystal Palace striker Peter Taylor was ordered off with Swindon's David Moss after a fanning 22 minutes from the end.

Moss had put Swindon ahead but second half goals from Dave Swindlehurst preserved Palace's unbeaten record sway from home and extended its lead in the standings to four points.

Councillor Rejects Bid For Restoration Funds

A city councillor this week turned aside a suggestion that city hall could donate to a church restoration fund any funds marked for a civic centennial year project.

Ald. Stu Meeks' comment was a sequel to remarks in city council two weeks ago about plans to annually budget for a total $300,000 for a civic project to mark the city's 1978 centennial.

Mayor Ben Corke raised the possibility a project might not be found for such a fund.

His remarks prompted Mrs. Marjorie Acerra to write city hall that if the money was to "sit idle," a "few hundred" or "few thousand" could be allocated to St. Thomas Anglican church — now being restored following a fire earlier this year.

All Bellevillians, she wrote, are "very much behind" restoration of "this beautiful church"—one of the city's historic buildings.

Ald. Meeks said the $300,000 being aimed for in annual city capital budgets, was for a "civic project."

"As far as I'm concerned, personally, that is going into a centennial project," he said.

The councillor said he failed to see how city hall could spend taxpayers money on one church and not on all churches in the city.

One School Defends Student Sale of Candy

At least one school system in Hastings County supports the sale of candy bars for fund-raising purposes - if not for altruistic reasons certainly for economic survival.

The Belleville Christian District School recently sponsored a candy bar sale which netted it $800 for the school's educational budget, which is not supplimented by provincial grants or tax money.

Some controversy on the subject was raised two months ago when the Hastings County Board of Education all but banned the sale of candy bars in its school's for fund raising purposes. The board felt it could not morally support these sales based on nutritional and dental opinions.

Hank Schaly, principal of the Christian school which has 74 students, explained that for them it is a more an issue of necessity. He said all fund-raising drives taken on by the students are designed to supplement the school's budget which basically derives from private tuitions.

Mr. Schaly said that selling candy bars is only one small facet of the total fund-raising program. He said the students take part in several events each year. He added that for obvious reason some items are more marketable than others.

He said that nutritional and dental concerns are not jo be taken lightly by anyone but for the Belleville District Christian School it still is a matter of economic survival.

BABY SITTING BUREAU

Is now open. Call for an experienced sitter, 962-6221 until further notice. (Mature sitters still needed).

Bridge Nears

City council this week moved closer to a start on one of the city's major traffic projects — the bridge that will extend Pinnacle St. across the Moira River.

Meantime, city engineer Joe Angelo said all preliminary engineering on the project has been completed and now being awaited is the conclusion of property acquisitions.

But to get the bridge — projected east of the present Upper Bridge across the river, council approved one more formality: Application to the province's natural resources ministry for a water lot license of occupation.

The licence costs $100.

But the application gave Ald. Stu Meeks an opportunity to query city priorities about construction of its major traffic arteries.

He asked whether council was being premature in going ahead with the Pinnacle St. broadening and extension before the traffic-flow effects of a second main project, still in the works, are known. The second project is the Camilton Road overpass at the Canadian National main line.

Appraiser Gets Top Position

Belleville appraiser Lloyd Sheppard has been elected as chairman of the Kingston chapter of the Appraisal Institute of Canada.

The Kingston chapter includes 110 members drawn from a region bounded by Brockville and Cobourg. The appraisal institute is the recognized professional body of real estate appraisers with its head office in Winnipeg.

Other local members elected to the Kingston executive are Bob Rose of Belleville, Stan Reid of Corbyville (both as directors) and Chal Jevons of Belleville, who will be the chapter's representative to the Ontario Association.

New Lot Under Way

A new, expanded parking lot to accommodate Belleville General Hospital (BGH) employees at the east side of BGH "will be ready for full occupancy for the winter months," Gerry Joyce of the BGH Board of Governors said recently.

Mr. Joyce, chairman of the board's planning and property committee, told the board the contractor has assured that gravel surfacing will be complete by Dec. 4.

The board in September accepted a tender of $54,350 for site clearance and preparation for parking on three former residential lots along the west side of First St. and at the west end of Bay Dr.

Mr. Joyce said asphalt surfacing and line painting will begin next spring. It could not be completed this year due to the cold weather.

Mr. Joyce's committee was informed in early October that the city has accepted a price of $2 for the west end of Bay Dr. and $3,500 for the portion of parkland south of Bay Dr..

Crosbie Reports:

Charge Parents for Cyclist Infractions Says Council

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The traffic section of the Canada Safety Council wants parents charged if juveniles break the law while riding bicycles, says Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie.

Chief Crosbie attended recently the seventh annual safety council conference at Vancouver, B.C. from Oct. 19-22 while on vacation.

He is official representative to the safety council from the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police.

Chief Crosbie said in a recent interview the council endorsed a recommendation for uniform legislation "where a juvenile is operating a bicycle or a play vehicle and breaks the law, the parent or guardian is the person charged."

He said the law, if enacted, would place the onus on parents or guardians to make their children responsible, ensure that they obey rules and see that their children's bicycles have the proper safety features.

Chief Crosbie is chairman of a section committee studying bicycles and motor-assisted bicycles (mopeds) and have been working on uniform legislation nationally which it hopes to have ready for presentation to a section meeting at Montreal on Jan. 27.

Part of that involves bicycle standards currently under consideration by the Canadian Standards Association (CSA).

Chief Crosbie said the federal government will be asked to make it mandatory that all bicycles manufactured in or imported into Canada achieve to new standards set by the CSA.

He noted that one of the important areas is reflectors on sides of bicycles "so they can be easily seen when crossing your path."

The section has also recommended that there be no special legislation for mopeds which are causing a problem in Ontario and Quebec where they are most prominent, he said.

Chief Crosbie said the association feels mopeds should be dealt with in the same manner as motorcycles.

Few charges have been laid in Belleville against moped operators who contravene new provincial legislation passed in July, he added.

It is not that most operators are obeying the law — but that it is difficult for police to apprehend them, he pointed out.

Further proposed legislation, not passed yet, will see mopeds requiring licences and registration with the provincial government, operators with drivers' licences and mandatory helmets. A study is currently under way to determine the proper safety helmet for moped drivers.

Drinking Age Questioned

The traffic section of the Canada Safety Council has suggested the maximum amount of alcohol allowable in the bloodstream under a breathalyzer test should be lowered, says Belleville Police Chief Douglas Crosbie.

Chief Crosbie recently attended the seventh annual safety council conference at Vancouver, B.C. from Oct. 19-22 while on vacation.

He is on the council as the representative of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police.

The law currently allows a maximum of 80 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood but some council members feel it should be lowered to 40 or 50 milligrams as has been done in one European country, Chief Crosbie related.

"Some people are advocating a return to the minimum age of 21 (for consumption of alcoholic beverages)," he added. "They expressed an opinion that there seems to be an increase in impaired drivers under 21."

UCS Guides Programs

The United Community Service organization is the backbone behind 15 community agencies sponsored by the United Way campaign.

Its main goal is to evaluate special services in the community and to find and fill the need of other services.

Executive director Gord Mullin at UCS headquarters at 346 William St. handles dozens of calls a day providing referral information for people in the community.

Social planning and activity co-ordinating is also handled by the service.

Committees have been organized to determine the need for marital and family counselling and a service for adolescents in Belleville, Mr. Mullin said.

Nursery Work Complete

Belleville General Hospital (BGH) received value for its money in recent renovations of its nursery, even though the final cost was $9,435 more than the original estimates, says Gerry Joyce, chairman of the planning and property committee of the BGH Board of Governors.

"To achieve what we had to achieve, more work had to be done," he told the board recently. "We got value for our money."

Mr. Joyce explained the increased cost to a total of $64,920 was necessary because the work was done in an old section of BGH and problems were inherent.

Philip Rickard, BGH executive director, added that there were no architectural plans available for the 1956 wing where the nursery is located and many eventualities could not be foreseen.

Accountants Graduate

Seven local people have been named as graduate accountants.

They are Reginald Angus of Revenue Canada, Lucia Chester of the Unemployment Insurance Commission, Paul Masse of the ministry of revenue of Ontario, John Odile of the UIC, Glynn Thomas of Revenue Canada, Chris Theokalas (self-employed) and William Wright of the UIC.

Each will be formally awarded their certificates of graduation Nov. 8 at convocation exercises in Windsor.

VEAL'S A GOOD BUY - ENJOY IT NOW

Veal has been unusually thrifty lately, and will be for some weeks to come. So enjoy it in some of the recipes that make it a top favorite with so many new Canadians, and a pleasant meal-time memory for those who have travelled on the continent.

Remember that because it is low in fat, you can use smaller amounts of veal than of some other meats. For instance, 1/4 pound of veal cutlet is a very satisfying serving no matter how it's prepared. One of the most delicately flavored and fine textured of meats, veal is wonderful for everything from Schnitzel and Cordon Bleu to stews and casseroles. A squeeze of lemon juice is a delicious serving-time accent.

In Memoriam

McKIBOY — In loving memory of a dear wife, Rosie McIlroy, who passed away October 27th, 1971.
A silent thought, a secret tear,
A memory we hold dear.
—Always remembered by her husband George and family.

CHAMPAGNE — In loving memory of our dear dad and grandfather, Clifford Champagne who passed away on November 3, 1971.
You left behind an aching heart,
A memory we hold dear.
We never did, never will,
Forget you, father dear.
—Remembered by daughter Beatrice and Everett Reid and grandchildren.

CHAMPAGNE — In sad and loving remembrance of my dear husband and father, Charles Champagne who passed away suddenly and unexpectedly on November 3, 1971.
What we would give if we could say, "Hello Dad" in the same old way.
To hear your voice and see your smile.
To sit with Wu and talk awhile,
We want not there to get goodbyes.
Perhaps it was just as well.
We could not have said good-bye.
To a dad we loved so well.
We mourn for you in silence.
No eyes can see the pain.
But many a silent tear is shed,
Since you went away.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by daughter Marjorie, Bill, Debbie, Charles and Robert.

WIGGINS — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Fred Wiggins who passed away three years ago, Nov. 1972.
Dad, on this special word,
A word that I have always said.
A lady warm smile, a helping hand,
A wave of kindness,
Devotion to all family.
Dad, you were always there.
To lend a hand to the world,
Because it stands for you.
—Dearly remembered by Thelma, Carl and grandchildren.

CHAMPAGNE, Charles — In loving memory of our dear husband and father who passed away November 3, 1971.
Since our great sorrow fell,
The grief that we received that day,
Our hearts are filled with pain,
God grew so lonely to meet it,
And courage to bear the blow,
But what it left behind you,
No one will ever know.
We miss you more than we say farewell.
We miss that smile and cheerful face,
You were gone before we knew it,
And only God knows why.
—Lovingly remembered by wife Frances, daughter Doris, sons-in-law Sanders and son Gerald.

LAMAY — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Raymond Harold V. Lamay who passed away two years ago, Nov. 8, 1970.
God's gates are open wide
Two years ago today,
And through those gates a husband,
Was lifted up to stay.
We suffered much in silence,
Your spirit knows it well,
You faced your pain with courage,
Your heart was brave.
You fought so hard to stay with us,
But your fighting was in vain.
God took you to an loving home,
And freed you from all pain.
We miss you more than before you did.
These are the words you would have us say,
You life for one is truly past,
You all to the very last.
Keep not for me sad sourrows take
And love one another for my sake.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by wife Dorothy, daughter Sandra, sons-in-law and all the grandchildren.

Peach Trees Get Injections

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Antibiotic injections for peach trees, much like penicillin shots for humans, are proving an effective control of diseases eating away at Connecticut's peach crop.

Scientists at the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station report that periodic oxytetracycline injections give 95-per-cent protection against a bacterial affliction called X disease.

Tests of effective against bacterial leaf spot, another previously untreatable peach-tree malady which kills or severely weakens trees.

The injection studies were started in 1970 using apparatus and methods borrowed from medicine equipment to feed a tetracycline solution intravenously into scientists David C. Sands and Gerald F. Hartman.

Although the technique had been used in California to treat western X disease, a related peach ailment, it proved slow and cumbersome in experiments here.

In current studies the oxytetracycline is mixed with a citric acid solution and injected directly into a hole bored in the tree's trunk 6 inch from the ground.

Although treated peach trees remain weaker than healthy ones in the following spring, they produce more foliage and fruit, and the peaches are 30 per cent larger than in the previous year.

The scientists now are trying to learn how often to give the injections and whether they have any effect on the fruit crop, that is determined, the injection treatment may not be registered for commercial use.

X disease appeared in North Carolina about 40 years ago and has decimated orchards in Carolina, New England, New York, Michigan, Utah, California and Oregon state said.

Since then the total acreage Connecticut peach orchards has decreased by about 80 per cent, from about 1,500 acres to 300 acres, though cold winters have had some effect, X disease has not been blamed for the decline.

Spring experiments at the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station's Shennington orchard traces of naturally produced antibiotics in healthy peach trees and on apples where the stem joins the fruit. Scientists believe the life-protecting substances are produced by bacteria which are carried through the tree by normal water flow.

Artist, 83, Claims Painters Should Paint

MONTREAL (CP) — "A painter should paint subjects," said Headley Holgate, at age 83 the Montreal artist can look back on a long career and be doing just that.

Mr. Holgate is perhaps best known for his brief membership in the Toronto-based Group of Seven, those painters who in the 1920s shocked Canadian art lovers by refusing to imitate European schools of painting.

Today Mr. Holgate and Alfred J. Casson, another late-comer to the group are still painting and living members.

Like Holgate, Mr. Holgate shared the group's dedication to the realistic school of painting, art. theories have always interested him, he says, more than practice.

Sitting in his modern apartment, surrounded by his landscapes and still-lifes, the small, erect, still-lively, white-haired artist recalled sketching in the classroom during his apprenticeship at the late-century Montreal.

His family wanted by an engineer father, always supported his vocation and at age 19 he began part-time study at the Art Association of Montreal under William Brymner, a Scottish-trained painter and teacher who influenced several noted artists of the period.

The Holgate family also included a brother, Edwin, who painted both before and after the First World War.

"Almost everyone in Paris was painting, and painting money," he said. "In those days it was like sending your child to a doctor — tried very cheaply."

When the war broke out in 1914, Mr. Holgate was visiting friends in Paris. He stayed on him almost a year to get back to London, travelling by train through Russia, and he shows visitors some of the watercolors of peasants he saw waiting for word of wounded soldiers in the front line of battle.

After serving in the Canadian army as a "mule-skinner — wagon driver," he explained — Mr. Holgate married his longtime sweetheart. Frances Rilkinson Holgate is also an artist — always takes an active interest in her husband's work and keeps track of old photographs and memorabilia.

"I don't know myself," she said, smiling. "It's too modest."

The two returned to France in 1920 and Mr. Holgate resumed his studies.

The Group of Seven was formed while he was still in Paris. Mr. Holgate recalled. On his return to Montreal he and the artist first became a member of the Group of Seven, known for its portraits and figure paintings.

He did not join the Group of Seven until after it had become ill disbanded, and only exhibited with the group twice as a formal member.

Mr. Holgate said he joined the group only because of its close friendship with A. Y. Jackson the only original member from Montreal.

Actually, his most famous paintings — portraits and renditions of country scenes and landscape settings — differ in many ways from the group's landscapes produced by the original group members.

"Everyone does his own thing," he said of the group. "That was the idea."

As for his own artistic goals, he wanted to reflect harmony in his surroundings," he said.

Another favorite theme in his such paintings as The Bathers and Nude Reclining, do seem to reflect the strength of their widely derogatory setting.

"They're not boudoir nudes," Mr. Holgate commented.

Ideas for the backgrounds came from expeditions all over Canada, trips which also inspired several works with Indian themes.

"We weren't boy scouts — it was camping," he said, recalling sketching trips with A. Y. Jackson, some in the dead of winter.

Many of Mr. Holgate's paintings have subjects against natural backgrounds. However, he is not a friend of abstract traits. Ladovine, portrays the daughter of a Labrador fisherman seated indoors.

Talking about Ladovine, the artist declined to comment on one newspaper article said the painting depicted an Eskimo girl.

Ladovine is one of about 40 Holgate paintings currently touring Canada in a retrospective exhibition organized by the National Gallery.

Mr. Holgate, for many years, at French-and English-speaking schools in Montreal and in private classes in Morin Heights, a Laurentian Mountain village where he lived from 1931 until he moved to Montreal's Westmount district a couple of years ago.

Time has dulled him down somewhat.

"My eyes are beginning to give out," he said, pointing to the thick glasses he wears.

But he keeps his easel and palette ready in a small room in his apartment.

"I'll stop only when I'm dead," he said, "always learning."

Nuclear Plant Core Meltdown Could Leave Thousands Dead

OTTAWA (CP) — Two years ago, nuclear-physicist Gordon Edwards attended a lecture at University of British Columbia by nuclear physicist George Griffiths.

That elusive encounter may lead to a federal inquiry into the use of nuclear energy in Canada as more and more questions are raised about this strange new industry. At least, that is his hope.

Dr. Edwards listened as Dr. Griffiths emphasized that there had never been a serious accident at a nuclear power plant, then he asked: "What would happen if a plane crashed into a plant?"

The young mathematician said in an interview later the reaction from nuclear physicists in the audience was hostile. An argument led to a public debate between Dr. Edwards and Dr. Griffiths.

Now living in Montreal and a major voice in a campaign for greater control of nuclear development, Dr. Edwards answered his own question and many others.

In preparing for the Griffiths debate, he went to the main university library, where he found an array of books and pamphlets that said little about nuclear risk.

He then went to the science library, where another world of almost unimaginable danger was described in studies rarely seen by laymen.

Although a nuclear power plant has never had a serious accident so far, "core meltdowns" have occurred in power reactors, with human error a key factor.

A core meltdown occurs when the cooling system in a reactor fails and decaying radioactive materials heat up, melting their way to the outside.

The United States Atomic Energy Commission predicted the worst result of such an accident within 30 miles of a major city in these terms: a direct loss of tens of thousands of lives, a later loss of thousands more through cancer and other diseases; property damage of $7 billion. Genetic effects on human animals, birds and insects were not estimated.

Ontario Hydro's Pickering nuclear power plant, one of the world's largest, is less than 20 miles from Toronto and its reactors are larger than those involved in the U.S. study. Dr. Edwards said that if a major airport is built at Pickering, there will be an additional risk.

A meltdown at the Fermi experimental reactor in Michigan was blamed on faulty welding. A piece of metal blocked the coolant to two fuel channels, creating a situation in which core meltdown was briefly considered evacuating Detroit.

Human error accelerated a meltdown at Chalk River, Ont., in 1952, when grave fears were pushed accidentally and the core temperature zoomed. Dr. Edwards said hydrogen gas explosions threw the fuel-ton door four feet into the roof.

"That reactor meltdown occurred in Wales, where Windscale fizzled," a radioactive release of heat from graphite rods was discovered. A fire blazed in the reactor for 2½ days before it was noticed.

Four hundred square miles of land and a portion of the Irish Sea were contaminated by radiation that escaped from the isolated plant.

"Nobody knows what the probability of a nuclear accident is," Dr. Edwards said, dismissing as "scientific speculation" the assurances of the nuclear industry.

Parliament passed a nuclear insurance bill in 1970 but the government has not proclaimed it because, after five years of negotiation, it cannot get a consortium of private companies to insure nuclear plants.

These companies include as a standard clause in homeowner's or auto insurance policies an exception for nuclear accidents. They are not covered.

"There is no such thing as a safe dose of radiation," said Dr. Edwards.

The Atomic Energy Control Board bases its maximum safe exposure standards on the amount of radiation humans absorb from natural sources in the earth and atmosphere. But even that exposure lures its toll in cancer, some scientists think.

"What the emission standards say is that it is permissible to have twice as many people die from radiation-induced cancer and genetic damage," he said.

The effect of constant low-level exposure to radiation isn't known but some scientists fear the worst.

Dr. Edwards is a founding member of the Coalition for Nuclear Responsibility. In the 1980s it might have been regarded as a "radical" group. In the 1970s it includes not only the ban-the-bomb advocates of the last decade but an array of worried civilians that numbers Nova Scotia fishermen, British Columbia beaux fearful of blast-induced earthquakes and Manitoban worried about storing radioactive waste.

Environment Minister Jeanne Sauvé recently gave Dr. Edwards a hearing on his appeal for a public inquiry into the nuclear energy problem.

"I find the fact that consultation under the program is called on this subject appalling," said Dr. Edwards. "I'm just an amateur."

He said this illustrates the need for a broad inquiry before Canada becomes committed to huge expenditures on nuclear-generated energy.

Dr. Edwards left UBC after the Griffiths debate generated what he describes as a hostile atmosphere in which one scientist threatened to throw him out of a hall bodily.

The hall was filled with students from the nuclear industry, and he was distributing a paper outlining the risks.

He worked on a mathematics project for the Science Council of Canada and now teaches at Vanier College in Montreal and edits Survival, a private journal with subscribers in a dozen countries.

Manitoba Land Leasing Deal Comes Under Farmer Fire

WINNIPEG (CP) — When the first snowfall settled over the farmlands of Manitoba this fall, as likely as not the farmer watching the late-autumn ritual from his kitchen window shed more unwelcomed flecks in his hair.

The average farmer in Manitoba is about 50 years old.

Prairie farmers traditionally have prided themselves on their independence, prizing a self-sufficiency that is found in few other lines of work. It was a feeling that kept a man going despite drought, crop failures, erratic prices for farm products, hail, frost and heartbreaks.

Beneath it all, the farmer could feel that regardless of debts to finance companies or banks or tractor dealerships or grocery stores, the land was his. He may have been heavily in debt, but he was still a proprietor.

That's the way it used to be, and for most that's how it still is. But some farmers, who have not inherited big enough holdings or who simply cannot raise the capital to buy their own land, are turning to lease arrangements.

The provincial government this fall held 100,000 acres of farm land, 98 per cent of which was leased to farmers for an annual fee of between $1,000 and $1,700 per farm. The leasing program started two years ago.

To qualify, a farmer must have net assets of no more than $90,000 and an annual net income of no more than $7,500. Prior to this fall the limit were $60,000 in net assets and $5,000 in net income averaged over three years.

"That still means three-quarters of the farmers in Manitoba are eligible," said Max Hosford, chairman and general manager of the Manitoba Agricultural Credit Corp., a Crown agency handling the farm leasing program.

"We certainly haven't acquired all the land in Manitoba," Mr. Hosford said, replying to charges made in the legislature and at a series of public hearings that the NDP government of Premier Ed Schreyer is trying to regiment farmers.

At the hearings, many farmers were highly critical of the scheme, expressing move concern about the spectre of state control of farm land than about the leasing ownership issue cited in a working paper issued by the government.

A Manitoba department of agriculture study released in January said foreigners, mostly Americans and West Germans, owned one per cent of Manitoba's 19 million acres of farmland in July, 1974.

Non-residents, a category that includes foreigners and covers all those who do not actually live in the province, control 7.2 per cent. More than half of the non-residents live in Brandon or Winnipeg.

"I don't think foreign ownership is a problem on the one hand, the other," Peter Friesen, representing a group of eastern Manitoba farmers, told a hearing in Winnipeg.

"But then the government uses my money and the rest of the taxpayers' money to buy me out, I object to it."

The lease-brakes have the option of buying the land from the Crown after five years. The cabinet, which must approval for the purchase of individual land plots, must also approve the sales.

Manitoba, at latest count, has a million population of 121,000, slightly more than one-eighth of the provincial population. For as long as anyone can remember, farms have been getting bigger and the number of farmers has been diminishing. Now the average farm is 483 acres.

The typical farmer leasing land under the program is about 30 years old and leases 400 acres. Some use the land to supplement operations on relatively small land holdings that they already own.

The leases are in effect until the farmer reaches the age of 65. If the farmer chooses to buy the land after five or more years, he must repay the interest subsidy that has accrued, in addition to the purchase price.

Critics contend that, in effect, this price would be too high for most farmers and a form of permanent tenancy would be almost inevitable result.

A perhaps typical reaction came from Henry Van Dorsten, a farmer in the Austin district of southwestern Manitoba who appeared before the committee in Brandon on behalf of the Manitoba Association of Cow-Calf Producers.

He said: "I'm against foreign ownership and even more strongly opposed to government ownership. And government doesn't have to fight foreign ownership by becoming the main controller of land. The government is not so interested in getting young farmers established as it is in controlling them.

Mr. Van Dorsten said if he had to lease land, he would not work as hard or as efficiently, because he would not feel the same pride and incentive that he has on his own farm.

One farmer who expressed support for the lease proposals was Will Carter, a 33-year-old farmer in Morris. He told a hearing in Morden he'd prefer to own land himself, but leasing from the government might be the least of two evils.

"When you rent land, there is less security of tenure, and there may even be extra capital if you don't buy.

"For the first time is a policy which gives a young man an opportunity to take over his father's business, but he turns it down because he doesn't want to be known as 'the man who owns it,'" said Mr. Carter. "How can you understand someone like that?"

Dog Helps to Evaluate Penitentiary Programs

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. researchers did a vocabulary count on Takaya 19 January, it worked out to about 120 words but he guessed it has since grown closer to 200.

In many situations, dogs react in much the same way as people do, said Mr. Murphy.

"If you were to take the inmates out of the B.C. Penitentiary and stick a bunch of dogs in the same situation—psychology and conventional sociology tend to make a great deal of the difference," he said in an interview, "but there is increasing evidence that dogs and some of the other higher mammals are in fact very close to man in their intellectual capacities and in their emotional reactions."

It is in the field of research-ing behavioral variables that Takaya shines as a subject.

"Takaya has been very helpful to me, particularly in distinguishing between failure to learn and failure to have sufficient motivation to do a particular thing," said Mr. Murphy.

"Takaya very often plays a little game that says essentially, 'I'm just a dumb dog and I don't understand. And I try not to let him get away with that . . . because—for the most part I know when he knows something and I insist that he's going to do it."

Mr. Murphy said that he talks to Takaya in conversational style rather than single-word commands.

"Most of the things we teach him are straight functional kinds of things like—get in the car, get in the front seat, get in the back seat, move to the right side of the canoe — things like that," he explained.

Mr. Murphy said that when inmates become more criminal inside prison.

The alternative—except for those who are extremely dangerous to public safety—is to undertake training under very extensive parole-style supervision on the street with perhaps also auxiliary surveillance.

"In short, we're going to have to start investing more of our money into human supervision and analytic software and less of it into massive hardware to keep people locked up—and we are in fact moving in that direction."

Sobering Costs

LONDON (CP) — British police are facing a sobering problem with the declining purchasing power of the pound sterling. This threat to the forces' basic requirements is caused by the soaring cost of German made breath-analysis kits.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You have a tendency today to blurt things out thoughtlessly. Guard against this, for someone could be badly hurt.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Usually you have your wits about you in the commercial arena. Today you could be hoodwinked because you seek something for nothing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) It's not a good day to make important decisions on family or financial matters. Your judgment is too clouded by emotion.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Frustrating opposition will cause you to look for a scapegoat today. It will be far better in the long run for you to take the blame.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're all too willing to pay for something you want done today, rather than do it yourself. You'll regret this. You could have done it better—and cheaper.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22) If you want to stay on good terms with your budget today, watch two items closely—what you spend for the home and for entertainment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Normally you're tactful. Today you'll have to be careful to avoid disasters through what you say, or how you act in a crowd.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Avoid serious-type discussions with friends today. Keep it light. If you get that chip on your shoulder somebody will surely knock it off.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be careful today. That small surplus you've accumulated may burn a hole in your pocket. You could blow the whole bundle quickly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 20) Treat your mate with kid gloves today. Something you did recently triggered an unpleasant reaction. It won't take much to bring it to the surface.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't be too cozy today. Little matters you overlook as frivolous gestures could be taken seriously, much to your dismay.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Avoid extravagances today. You're in a mood where you need attention and you're relegated to a lesser role you may be considerably upset.

House Built In Day

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Imagine coming home from a two-week vacation and finding a house standing on that vacant lot next door?

Impossible, you say?

Not if Eric Macdonald has his way. Mr. Macdonald, president of Rampe Solar Systems Ltd., is working on a modular home which may be assembled on the building site in less than a day.

The three-bedroom home will sell for $34,000 and feature a large living-dining room and kitchen with custom-made cabinets, a four-piece bath, a full basement, carpeting and electric heat.

It will be 22 feet wide, 50 feet long and contain approximately 1,000 square feet of living space.

Mr. Macdonald said the idea behind the homes is to have as little on-site work as possible. They are built in two 11-foot halves at a local factory and then trucked to the site and assembled.

He said he got the idea from the fact that new homes are by solar energy.

falling out of the reach of the average buyer and he thought he could provide housing "a lot cheaper."

"You can't beat the rising price of land as the place to save is on labor," he said. "And you can do this in a factory."

Mr. Macdonald said the initial demand for width needed to erect one of his prefab homes is 50 feet and eventually he wants to design about six different types of homes, including one heated by solar energy.

Urine Splashing Is Not Uncommon

By G. C. Thosicson, MD

Dear Dr. Thosicson: My son, 16, has a problem of directing urine. It occurs almost daily. The stream is straight at times, though. One doctor has compared it to a garden sprinkler urethra. Another said surgery would be needed to enlarge the opening of the penis. A third said such surgery probably might not alleviate the problem.

I realize that doctors are individuals with different opinions, but I am quite confused. I do not believe in unnecessary surgery, no matter how minor.

My younger son had his tonsils removed several years ago. Now, I've discovered that his type of surgery is no longer accepted by some of the medical profession.

Will you comment? Mrs. S.M.B.

The splashing is not unusual in and of itself. Some of that that produces mucus could cause the outlet to be excess oxidation. Only there could be some minor defect at the opening. This can be corrected surgically. It is not clear from your letter whether you refer to the urethra proper being narrow, or merely to the external opening of it. Nor do you indicate what procedures were used to determine this.

If there were any discomfort associated with the splashing—burning, etc. — then the situation should be investigated promptly to determine if there is infection present.

Yes, doctors do have differing opinions, and those differences are often part of the process of arriving at the best possible diagnosis. After all, the human body is a bit more complex than is an automobile engine.

Which brings me to your comment about tonsilectomies. It is true that fewer such operations are being performed today. But this does not mean that there are no indications for them in particular cases. Such as obstruction, chronic cough and recurring infection are some that come to mind.

The antiseptic surgery suggested is minor and usually helpful when undertaken by a doctor up to you and your doctors to decide whether or not it is necessary in your case. Don't make this distance I CANNOT HELP YOU IN MAKING a decision.

Dear Dr. Thosicson: I have been taking kelp-containing diet pills for a few days. I have diabetes and kelp is a source of iodine. I have had goiter surgery and wondered if my thyroid could handle the iodine safely. The doctor does not have me on thyroid medication.

I had tests done and they showed I didn't need them. Should I continue taking the diet pills? — F.M.

Kelp has a large amount of potassium iodine. A recent report in the Journal of the American Medical Association states that the amount of iodine in kelp can depress thyroid function in persons who are sensitive to iodine.

Your system is apparently functioning satisfactorily whatever thyroid tissue you have remaining since your surgery. You haven't been taking kelp long enough to experience any depressant effect. However, I don't think you need it, and I suggest you stop taking it, or at least consult your doctor before you do. Of course, is a major constituent of thyroxine, a hormone produced by the thyroid gland. One must always be careful about introducing such substances into the body without sufficient reason and supervision.

Dear Dr. Thosicson: Is water taken from a clean sulphur spring harmful or beneficial to drink? I drink it because I like it, and have been drinking it for about five years with no bad effects. — C.B.

You answered your own question. You use it without harm, as you say. And I know of no particular benefit from it. Some can't stand the taste.

If Patrick Henry had been a bridge player, he might well have said, "Give me spades or give me death."

The late Patrick Henry had held today's East hand from the spring charity game, he would have passed on second seal; passed a second time after North rebidded one notrump to South's one-heart opening bid, backed into a spade and South's two-heart rebid was passed for North.

A two-spade call would be dangerous. However, if you aren't willing to take chances you shouldn't play bridge.

If East does back in with two spades he will get a shock. West will take him right to four spades. The shock will be only temporary. One look at dummy and East will smile happily and go about the business of making his game with one or two overtricks.

We don't show East bidding the two spades, but East in the two spades. One of the many players who let South play at two hearts. South would have no trouble at that contract. He would be sure of eight tricks and probably come home with nine, because at most NATs West would win the first two tricks with the king and queen of clubs. East would go to bed with his ace and South make an overtrick.

Ask the Jacobys

A Missouri reader wants to know why most American experts like to use two-clubs as their only forcing bid.

The answer to that one is that you don't get a hand of game or near game strength very often and therefore, it is a great waste to use your opening bids (five if you add three notrump) to cover such hands. Use two clubs as your only force and you can put the other two bids to work.

Kite Builder Still Busy

TORONTO (CP) — "Go fly a kite" is probably the best advice Lewis can give a friend.

Not surprising since Mr. Lewis, 44, has been the president of Kite of Canada by the American Kitefliers Association. In a recent periodical, the association's president has as one of the world's finest kite building and one of the most comprehensive collections.

The collection encompasses more than 1,000 kites of various sizes and designs accumulated over the years. It also includes five exclusive kites he designed within last year by the government of China "in national recognition and tribute."

Mr. Lewis, who recently retired after 18 years as a nursing assistant at an Ontario psychiatric hospital, is moving to Pompano Beach, Fla., this month where he will build and maintain kites as an advertising gimmick for a restaurant chain.

The gimmick isn't new. He once made a kite for Pierre Elliott Trudeau's son when the Canadian Prime Minister was in opposition and flying for a restaurant chain.

He also has built kites for weather stations and pollution studies.

Mr. Lewis recalls becoming hooked on the sport as an eight-year-old when he asked his widowed mother for the money to buy his first kite. She replied: "Your grandfather designed fa-

Judge Has No Regrets Leaving Political Life

REGINA (CP) — Saskatchewan's chief justice, Edward Milton Culliton, has no regrets about the political life he gave up 24 years ago to sit on the provincial Court of Appeal.

"I've enjoyed both my political life and judicial life and I think the experience I gained in my political life has been a real asset to me in my judicial life," he says, adding laughingly "getting kicked around in political life does a lot to keep you from being egotistical."

It also helps, he agrees, to have worked as a railway section hand, insurance salesman, waiter and small-town Depression lawyer.

At 69, he thinks nothing of continuing to work seven days a week and still finds time for the outside activities that characterized his lengthy Saskatchewan career.

Beside being active in judicial organizations, the 69-year-old judge is one of three Canadian trustees for the Canadian Men's Curling Championship, board chairman of a home for unwed mothers and provincial chairman for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

His extensive participation in the Roman Catholic Church was recognized in 1962 when Pope John XXIII made him Knight Commander of the Order of St. Gregory.

His Christianity seemed to be an ever-present undercurrent as he discussed in an interview the principles he brings to his work, saying of criminal law "you've got to apply it with a spirit of charity and understanding because in criminal law you're dealing with the liberty and freedom of people."

Even when dealing with people who have had records, he said, a judge must sometimes take "a calculated risk" in sentencing when "a little boost then might help put him on the right path."

In some cases, leniency will prove unjustified but when that happens and the person is in court again, "he's going to pay for it." The next judge will impose a sentence with full knowledge that the male-factor did not respond to lenient treatment.

The courts, he said, must maintain public respect and confidence.

"There's no question that in certain types of crime the court must give substantial weight to the deterrence factor or to the protection of the public in cases of violence."

His court also takes a firm line concerning its jurisdiction, asserting its right to "free and unfettered discretion" to alter any lower-court sentences or judgments that come to it.

Other appeal courts might limit themselves to changes only in cases who a legal error by another judge is demonstrated, but the chief justice said that in the Saskatchewan appeal court most appellants appear in person and can be asked about the reasons for their actions, their home life and other personal factors.

"The human aspect is one of the most important factors in the determination of appropriate sentences," he said.

The court has also had its share of constitutional cases, with one pending case involving the Saskatchewan government's appeal from a lower-court judgment declaring its potash proritioning system unconstitutional and ordering it to pay $1.5 million to a potash company.

Among the court's judgments breaking new legal ground has been the first full Canadian judgment dealing with aftercontainism as a legal defence, in which the accused is said to have performed acts in a zombie-like state.

Maritimers Worst Drivers

HALIFAX (CP) — Motorists in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia rank Nos. 1 and 2 as the worst in the nation, claim statistics provided by Facility, the Insurance Bureau of Canada's pooling plan for insuring accident-prone motorists.

In 1974 New Brunswick reported an over-all loss ratio of 103.5 per cent to pass Nova Scotia which as the 1973 "leader" at 101.3 per cent ratio.

Loss ratio measures the difference between claims incurred and premiums collected by an insurance company. For example, a 90-per-cent ratio means the company paid 90 cents in claim payments for each $1 premium.

Donald Tutt, head of the bureau's Atlantic region, says use of seat belts and driver education courses could improve the situation.

"I'd like to see driver education compulsory before getting a drivers licence," he said.

Two years ago the Nova Scotia loss ratio was 99.3 per cent compared with New Brunswick's 97 per cent.

Mr. Tutt said as many as 40 per cent of all accidents where liability is claimed occur to drivers between the ages of 16 and 20 years. For collision it is 24.4 per cent.

Between the ages of 20 and 24 the figures for liability and collision claims drop to 21.6 per cent and 24.6 per cent respectively.

In the first quarter of 1975 Nova Scotians reported 5,142 highway accidents—a jump of about 20 per cent in the past 12 months.

Heroin Addicts Elite Group

WINNIPEG (CP) — When the St. Boniface drug rehabilitation program centre was opened in 1972, heroin addicts treated with methadone were considered part of an elite group. Now, hospital officials are questioning the effectiveness of methadone treatment as a means of reducing the pain of heroin withdrawal.

"It was sort of the in thing to be on a methadone program," recalls clinic supervisor Leona Holms. "Now they know methadone is as bad as heroin."

As many as 68 addicts were enrolled in the methadone withdrawal program when it was first introduced. The total has since dropped to 26.

Although withdrawal from methadone can take longer than heroin withdrawal, the effects are usually not as severe, Mrs. Holms said. And because methadone produces a less intense high, an addict can gradually adjust to life without drugs while counselling prepares him for the ordeal of withdrawal.

In place of methadone, some doctors are urging the use of carefully-prescribed amounts of pure heroin for withdrawal purposes.

Dr. John Matas, head of the St. Boniface program, supports a recommendation from the Le-Dain commission that heroin be used as a last resort in withdrawal programs. He says it could be used successfully in place of methadone—a synthetic heroin substitute.

Mrs. Holms says heroin may be a less dangerous drug than alcohol or tobacco in terms of strictly physical effects.

"Heroin, if pure and given with proper care, produces few side-effects. The chemical itself is not that dangerous."

Post Office Rejects Union Proposal, Talks Break Off

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal negotiations broke off this morning as the post office rejected the Union Union proposal.

The national strike by 22,000 inside workers entered its 17th day today with only wages an obstacle to agreement.

Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey said following Wednesday's adjournment that the government placed its final offer on the table during a 3½-hour session and, that the union could accept or reject the offer.

He said the deadline is not an ultimatum and there is no finality between the two sides.

"We don't say to people talks it or leave it. We say this is all we can offer. It's a realistic position."

Jean-Claude Parrot, chief negotiator for the striking Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), earlier had indicated the union was not prepared to accept the offer.

"We'll see if the government will have another look at our counter-proposals. If they say no, no, we're going to have to do something. We can't stay at the bargaining table all our lives," Mr. Parrot said.

He said Mr. Mackasey's offer called for the 18-mile border between Algeria and the Spanish Sahara to back up his opposition to the Moroccan claim to the northern part of the territory.

In El Aaiun, the capital of the Spanish Sahara, the military commander said Spain is determined to defend the territory "to the very last consequences."

Lt.-Gen. Federico Gomez Salazar would not tell reporters, however, if Spanish troops were given orders to open fire on the marchers.

The 105,000-square-mile Spanish Sahara has a population estimated at 80,000, most of them nomadic herders. But the phosphate deposits in the northern part of the territory are among the largest in the world. With them, Morocco already the world's largest exporter, would control about 80 per cent of the world phosphate trade.

Spain has said it is ready to end its 91 years of colonial rule in the Sahara and provided that the UN hold a self-determination referendum next spring for the population. Algeria backs the referendum idea, because it believes the choice would be independence and the pro-Algerian Polisario would get control of the new nation, giving Algeria to hold a railway across the territory from its iron ore deposits in southwest Algeria to the Atlantic.

Spain Warns...

Mine Field Set To Repel March

TARFAYA, Morocco (AP) — Morocco's army of unarmed civilians had reached from King Hassan II to begin marching into the Spanish Sahara today, despite threats by Spain and Algeria of military action and a warning from the Spanish that a mine field was up to eight miles inside the border of the disputed territory.

Officials here at the starting line north of the frontier said Wednesday they did not know what time the march would start or what form it would take.

There were unconfirmed reports that 10,000 to 40,000 of the 230,000 volunteers would form the first group and go only as far as the border, 15 miles south of here. Tens of thousands of marchers were apparently being held at camps stretching for 150 miles north of the border, and there was no indication when they would be brought south.

Hassan, 46, who previously had said he would lead the march personally, said in his broadcast Wednesday night that he would remain at his field headquarters in Agadir, 300 miles north of the frontier, because "the duty of a chief is to remain at the command post of the nation."

He said Premier Ahmed Osman, Foreign Minister Ahmed Laraki and other high-ranking officials would be among the marchers.

"Great every Spaniard you meet on your way and ask them to enter your tent and share your coffee," Hassan told the marchers in a broadcast Wednesday night.

"Greet Spaniards, whether they are civilians or military and if they do not want any blood to flow, if they fire on you, advance peacefully. The defense will be positive."

He also said the Moroccan army and air force would be on hand to protect the marchers against attack from foreign-based dissident elements or the Algerian troops which President Houari Boumediene sent to the 18-mile border.

OFL Demands Minimum Wage for Hospital Staff

KITCHENER (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Labor (OFL) ended its annual convention Wednesday with a defiant stand against the federal anti-inflation program, a demand for a $4-an-hour minimum wage and a pledge to assist Ontario hospital workers in their battle for the right to strike.

More than 11,000 delegates to the convention unanimously endorsed the resolution supporting the right of Ontario hospital workers and civil servants to strike. They now must remain on the job while contract disputes are settled by compulsory arbitration.

A delegate from the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) said if hospital workers do not get what they want in coming province-wide negotiations with government, "strikes will take place in Ontario—legal or otherwise."

In a motion Thursday, the federation took another step in its defiance of federal selective wage and price controls by calling for a minimum rate of $4 an hour with annual adjustment to reflect increases in the cost of living. The OFL also called for a 35-hour work week and said overtime should be worked on a voluntary basis.

The demand for an increase in the minimum rate came one day after the federation officially joined the national Canadian Labor Congress (CLC) campaign to have the anti-inflation bill withdrawn from Parliament.

The federal program generally limits more than four million workers to a basic pay increase of 10 per cent in the first year of a contract. But Finance Minister Donald Macdonald announced last week that workers will be allowed to earn up to $2,500 an hour before the controls apply.

The delegates backed the stand taken by OFL president David Archer that the program is unacceptable, even with amendments, and that it will not adequately control prices.

"In the meantime," the convention passed a resolution urging OFL affiliate unions "to ignore the controls by continuing to negotiate as if they don't exist."

The convention approved a resolution Wednesday calling for a massive home-building program, despite objections from some delegates that the OFL is not taking a strong enough stand.

Bangladesh Power Struggle Now Over

NEW DELHI (AP) — The chief justice of the Supreme Court became president of Bangladesh today, and it appeared that a power struggle in the poverty-stricken new country was over.

The official Bangladesh news agency reported that Abu Mohammed Syem was sworn in after President Khondakar Mushtaque Ahmed resigned. The resignation followed the flight from the country of a group of junior army officers who killed President Mujibur Rahman last Aug. 15 and made Mushtaque Ahmed president.

There was no indication of how much power Syem will have or whether he will be more than an interim president. Western diplomatic sources said there is a possibility that the officers who gained control of the army this week will set up a ruling council with the president as the nominal head.

Reports from Dacca also gave no indication what will happen to Mushtaque Ahmed.

Commercial communications between Dacca and some Asian capitals was restored, and domestic air service was to resume today. However, there was no word when Dacca airport would reopen to international flights.

Syem, 59, has had a long career as a jurist and has remained aloof from politics. He was the senior judge of the East Pakistan High Court when India won independence for the eastern province in the 1971 war with Pakistan, and he became the first chief justice of Bangladesh when the supreme court was established.

The governments upheaval apparently began Monday with the murder of four close associates of Sheik Mujib who had been prisoners in the Dacca jail since the coup in August. Commercial communication lines to and from Dacca were cut and the airport was closed.

Tuesday, Bangladesh announced the dismissal of the army chief of staff, Maj.-Gen. Ziaur Rahman.

Fromme Wants Removal Of Two Hunting Jurors

— Lynette Fromme, accused of trying to kill President Ford, made her bid Wednesday to have two hunters removed from a list of possible jurors. She also failed to persuade the presiding judge to change the way he says her name.

U.S. District Court Judge Thomas MacBride allowed a Thurber—refused to dismiss the hunters—Wednesday, despite Miss Fromme's argument that they might be prejudiced against her because of their hunting views.

Miss Fromme also sent MacBride a note saying that he was "misinformed" about her name and it should be said in two syllables—Sara-ann-one. MacBride said he would go on pronouncing her name in one syllable because "it's too late to change now."

Miss Fromme, 27, a follower of convicted mass-murderer Charles Manson, is acting as her own lawyer in the charge she was attempting to kill Ford Sept. 5. Secret Service agents said they took a pistol with her pistol from her after she pointed it at Ford as he walked to the state Capitol in Sacramento.

MacBride allowed the hunters Wednesday to remain on the list of possible jurors after they said they would not consider Miss Fromme's anti-hunting views in judging her case.

Miss Fromme still may oust the hunters from the jury by using two of her peremptory challenges. She may dismiss Mr. Jo Ivers and the prosecution may dismiss six without stating a cause.

Jury selection was expected to last at least until Friday.

Miss Fromme answered full questions Wednesday after the first her second court appearance Monday. John Virga.

She agreed, however, to allow Virga to stand by and advise her on technical questions and making motions and arguments.

If it is Fromme dismissed Virga after he agreed with MacBride and U.S. Attorney Dwayne Keyes when they refused to allow her to change her innocent plea to no contest, which accepts a conviction and sentence without formally admitting guilt.

If Miss Fromme is convicted, it faces a maximum penalty of life in prison.

Jury selection was to continue today.

Secret Agreement Reports Confirmed

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says Louis Lapointe, former president of Quebec Export Ltd., has confirmed reports that the firm had a secret agreement with the Quebec Liquor Board (QLB) since 1968 giving the company a 20-year monopoly on airport duty-free sales.

Mr. Lapointe revealed the agreement to Marc Lalonde, then an aide to Prime Minister Trudeau, during Sky Shops' attempt to get a lease renewal at Dorval Airport in 1970, the newspaper says in a Sunday story.

Mr. Lapointe asked Mr. Lalonde in writing to get the department of transport to issue the renewal, which was granted through civil servants had proved fruitless.

Board Now Handles 90 Per Cent Of Its Own Printing Requirements

By RON CARSON
Staff Reporter

The Hastings County Board of Education now does about 90 per cent of its own printing — a step some view not as a huge budget saver but one that has benefitted communication in the educational community.

Prior to the county board system in 1969 school printing chores were spread in four different locations in Hastings. A great deal of the printing was done by secretaries who had to be taken away from their own duties.

The Hastings County Board of Education now operates a single printing department located on the first floor of the Ann St. Education Centre that is nearly accommodating the board's entire in-service printing needs.

Bob Wylie, co-ordinator of instructional media for the board and supervises the printing department, is the first one to say the printing department should not become a huge empire. He said some other boards of education in Ontario have let their printing get out of hand due to expansion.

Mr. Wylie, who joined the board in September, 1968, said the influx of educational assistants, hydro and school psychologists and in-training personnel has brought a great demand on the printing department.

Currently the department operates a semi-automatic off-set press and a variety of other copying and printing machines. Mr. Wylie said the board will be getting a second off-set press in January. Apparently, the machine has been leased to the board.

The department basically handles a vast variety of curriculum material to be used by teachers in their schools or for professional development purposes.

In the conservation line the department has started this fall to print some material on both sides of the paper.

Mr. Wylie said that among many advantages the department has freed secretaries and educators from the chore of printing and allowing them to perform professional-related duties.

Mr. Wylie said the department does little printing for individual schools. "It's basically to serve personnel at the Education Centre and trustees," he added.

"Quite often our printing jobs are on short notice and it helps the general education atmosphere if the job can be done immediately," he added.

Murray Postpones Arena Decision

WOOLER — Murray Township council has postponed a decision on whether to join Brighton village and township in a new arena project until after the mail strike, an overflow crowd of more than 75 residents jamming the municipal offices were told, Wednesday night.

The residents, most of whom were apparently against the $600,000 arena project which would increase taxes, complained because of the distance from the north end of the township to the proposed arena site in Brighton village.

A mail poll of all the ratepayers in the township had begun before the national postal strike and only about 30 per cent of the ballots have been returned to the municipal office.

Council discussed the proposed arena plan in an open meeting two months ago but decided to poll the township before a decision was made.

Reeve Harry Lafferty told the meeting, council would make the final decision bearing in mind the vote outcome but that the final decision would not rest entirely on balloting, when asked by members of the audience how the decision would be reached.

Some members of the group asked that council call a regular vote of the township but council rejected the idea saying it would cost more than $5,000.

The village and township have been waiting for Murray's decision for more than a month and the situation for residents who will use the proposed arena has become more urgent because the Ministry of Labor has closed the existing Brighton arena because it is unsafe.

Village and township officials are holding a meeting in Brighton, tonight, to make an independent decision on the arena.

Construction May Proceed

BRIGHTON — Officials of Brighton Village and Township will hold a special meeting to discuss the proposed arena and will probably begin the project with or without the support of Murray Township, said councillor Bill Pettingill, Wednesday night.

"We will probably decide to proceed with the new arena whether or not Murray finally decides to join us and when and if they do want to come in we will probably work out a mutual agreement similar to the arrangement we had planned on," Mr. Pettingill said.

Mr. Pettingill said that a decision would have to be reached as soon as possible because of the enforced closing of the old arena by the ministry of labor two months ago. This has forced the cancellation of most of the municipality's programs and affected more than 2,000 residents. The minor hockey program was transferred to Colborne, the closest place with available ice time.

"I though Murray would have made a decision by this week but now we have to go ahead on our own as soon as possible," said Arnold Boss, Reeve of Brighton Township.

Mr. Boss said the village of Brighton and Brighton Township had counted on Murray to join the project but that a decision has to be reached to alleviate the problems caused by the arena closing.

Annual Church Market Attracts Opening Lineup

PICTON — A Christmas shoppers' spree opened at the Anglican Parish Hall Wednesday when red ribbons were snipped to admit dozens of patrons who lined the sidewalks for the annual Christmas market.

This annual event sponsored by the Anglican Church Women features hundreds of unusual gifts, most of them hand-crafted. In addition there is a bake sale and tea tables.

Among the most popular of this year's displays was a giant garden of dried flowers in shades of crimson, gold and rose. About 75 arrangements were prepared for sale with most of them purchased in the first half hour of the market.

A large collection of stuffed animals also sold swiftly as did a table of hand-knitted items.

All proceeds from the Christmas market are used to support church work.

The items offered for sale are made during the spring and summer months by members of the ACW.

Bluebirds Announce End of Fair Booth

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

CHERRY VALLEY — The Cherry Valley Bluebird Class flown the coop at the Prince Edward County fair after operating a concession there for 42 years.

Formed as a Sunday school class about 50 years ago the Bluebirds have earned a county-wide reputation for home cooking and remain in constant demand as caterers.

The group, affiliated with the Cherry Valley church, includes approximately 30 men and women who contribute their time in serving at church dinners, banquets, wedding receptions and other special events.

A past president, Mrs. Gordon Bell, recalled Wednesday that the Bluebirds first sold home cooking at the Prince Edward County fair 42 years ago when the town of Picton was swelled with soldiers billeted there during the Second World War.

The pioneers of this project arrived at the fairgrounds with a giant tent and served their specialties under the big top.

Mrs. Bell noted that coffee was brewed in a wash boiler and dozens of doughnuts were sold as swiftly as they could be fried and bagged. These tasty treats became a Bluebirds trademark at the fair and a special recipe was declared as the secret of their success.

The doughnuts were fried in chicken fat, a rationed commodity obtained by Mrs. Bell's late husband, Gordon.

Other popular specialities of the tent were home made French fries, sandwiches and pies.

The Bluebird tent soon became as familiar to fair goers as the Crystal Palace or the ferris wheel. When rainstorms or chilly weather threatened to spell good times on the grounds dozens of visitors would crowd into the tent for steaming cups of coffee and doughnuts.

Although the Bluebird Class does not expect to continue with its fair booth members still cater to community banquets, weddings and other events.

Nearly $200 Million Added to Payroll

Statistics Canada Reveals Almost 10,000 More People in Federal Employ

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — Seriously, it is too bad that Prime Minister Trudeau and the members of his cabinet sales team are finding the tapraying public a bit brittish on his wage-price-profits-fee-dividend controls.

They are running into some stiff sales resistance as they peddle their restraint wares across the worried land.

There is even plenty of openly expressed naked hostility.

Trouble is the credibility of the government has been put in question by the government's own statistical economic track record.

And Parliament itself has not been above suspicion.

You hear rumbles of it on the floor of the Commons.

A young Conservative MP Joe Clarke of Alberta's Rocky Mountain constituency — and one of his party's leadership candidates — warned in the House he other day, the taxpayers are working up a head of steam.

Time after time, he reported, when he makes his constituency calls, people are asking him, in angry tones by of you going in Ottawa realize how serious things are?

So here they all are under the Peace Tower, the Prime Minister, the cabinet and parliamentarians beating their gums about restraint and out across the country preaching the gospel of self-denial.

They even claim they are setting the pace, cutting back on government spending, and at last holding the line on the waistline of the ever-bulging public service.

But nothing goes right.

For out comes Statistics Canada — and who would ever question the credibility of the uncorruptible Statscan — with the bulletin that the "Federal Government has 425,811 employees, an increase of 9,418 from a year earlier."

So much for keeping the public service girdled in.

But what about government spending?

Statscan goes on in the same bulletin: "the total payroll rose by $183.6 million from a year earlier to 11.26 billion over a three month period."

So much for keeping the lock on the Treasury door.

As taxpayers see it to them-selves to know, public servants, with unmatched job security, much better than average salaries, pensions far superior to the rest of the working community, and in the case of the federal staff, almost complete protection against inflation.

To fee the richmellow public servant has got, Statscan's week before the Prime Minister enlisted all Canadians in the war on inflation, the government rushed through those $6,000 salary increases for its 300,000-a-year deputy ministers.

And those are just three of countless examples — public service staff increases, higher government payrolls, and thicker cash out for the bureaucratic fat cats — of how the administration is admonishing the taxpayers to do as it says but not do what it does.

Now about the parliamentarians.

They are talking restraint, too, just like the government.

And again what does Statscan do?

Does them dirt with the report that in the last five years, they led the pay parade with a top-of-the-list 27 per cent increase.

And all the bottom were family workers — they didn't gain anything — actually they lost 38-per cent.

For for parliamentarians runs $34,600. That is the figure. But it is deceptive. Because $10,000 of it, the top third where tax hurts, is exempt.

Comes the New Year and up it goes again by $2,472.

Ah, you say, but didn't Finance Minister Macdonald say Parliament would have to submit by the anti-inflation guidelines? Indeed he did.

So $22 will be cut off that $2,472, and they'll pick up "only" an additional $2,450.

It will bring them to $37,022.

Just to suggest they don't deserve it like many ever genuinely need it.

Just to say that after this year's enormous increase Governor-in-Council House Leader Mitchell Sharp first tried to get by per cent for them, led in the face of public outrage had to settle for a mere 13 per cent — it simply doesn't look right to go for more, even $2,400 more in the New Year.

The cosmetics are all wrong. And they know it.

Olympics Progress

Labor unrest and work stoppages . . . a general air of gloom and doom. Is this all the world has to offer these days? There might be some excuse for such sentiments, but of course there is another side to events.

Even the Montreal Olympics, immersed as they have been in some controversy and delays, are further ahead than may be appreciated. This is apparent from a progress report to a Belleville audience this week from Lorne A. Flower, director of hosting and special services, organizing committee for Olympic yachting events in Kingston.

Slides showed local Rotarians what has been accomplished to-date in Montreal and in preparation of facilities in surrounding communities, including Kingston which is the centre for the Olympic yachting events.

Mr. Flower, a leading Canadian water-skiing performer in recent years and a former "sports executive of the year" winner, sees the Olympics — in terms of amassing people — as probably the largest event in the world today, comparable only with the staging of a war.

Kingston of course has earned its place in the Olympic scene by reason of its experience in the staging over recent years of Olympic-calibre regattas. Recognized as one of the three largest in the world, and the largest in North America, this regatta made the city a natural choice. The facilities now being prepared subsequently will be turned over to the city.

The Olympics as ever represent one of mankind's best unifying efforts at the international level. No matter what has happened in the past, by way of attempts to disrupt it, or what may happen in future, it remains a symbol of the world's best accomplishments.

No better evidence of man's technical skill is to be found than the technical genius that will transmit the flame from Greece to this country. As Mr. Flower outlines it, it will involve lighting the flame by parabolic mirror on Mount Olympus, thence by runners to Athens. A sensory device developed by Bell Canada picks up photo electric particles of the flame and transmits the energy electronically to Ottawa where it is reconverted to a flame by a laser beam. From there the flame is carried by runners to Montreal. And similarly to Kingston.

Would that the preservation of peace in the world could be accomplished that easily. At least the Olympics present an opportunity for peaceful competition in a world that sees too much of hostility.

A Problem of Accommodation

The prospect of the Ontario Summer Games being held in Belleville during Centennial Year has been under discussion.

In fact the city is making a formal application to this end.

However, there remains the problem of accommodation. It is one of the anomalies of Belleville's otherwise record construction boom that no entrepreneurs have seen fit to invest in further hotel or motel facilities. Nor is Ald. Stu Meeks' suggestion that trailears might be obtained from the CN to house the athletes one that would enhance the city's growing reputation, let alone cater properly to the visitors' needs.

About the best that could be said for it would be that the athletes might enjoy an early morning jog after the fashion of former Governor-General Michener, amid spartan surroundings. But beyond that, the idea has little to recommend it in a community which is leading the way in so many other areas.

Games or no games, Belleville could do with more modern accommodation. It will have to be provided at some stage . . . the sooner the better.

Church Will Rise Again

Anyone who happened to see the glow in the sky — from a distance — or close-up, the devastating fire that swept through St. Thomas' Church some months ago will likely have the imprint of it on his mind.

There is renewed hope though as stone work continues on the shell of the building.

Already the prospects for a new St. Thomas seem much more real than they did in the days immediately following the blaze.

The building today — that part of it remaining and the structure of tomorrow — is testimony to the faith of the congregation and friends of the congregation who have stood by it in difficult days.

WHAT DO YOU MEAN THE DEER DON'T HAVE A CHANCE?

Canada Seen as a "Loner" And Not Pulling its Weight By Cold-shouldering Europe

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
& Thomson News Service

For what it's worth, Canada has been rebuffed as a participant in a major economic summit conference to be held in Paris shortly.

This is probably the first time such a thing has happened to Canada. The much-lauded middle power who knows its way around all those international conferences and is therefore an invaluable member as a result.

Not that it may be our recent diversion away from this role for questions of self-interest has caused it, a motive not unknown among European nations, but the summit itself has been included.

And it could be because we have presented this special interest, seeking associations for our mixed economic status as both a North American and International power which has upset the European members of the conference.

Other reasons given are, our poor performance economically during 1975 when our gross national product moved slowly upwards, perhaps a couple of percentage points but has hardly moved at all this year.

The annual trade deficit against Canada came from senior U.S. economist Paul Samuelson, until a few months ago a senior American adviser to international trade negotiations and now a senior working economist in Washington.

His main point was that our recent negotiations in international trade were given the impression of being a "loner" nation and that in our own hemisphere our basic economic differences with the United States were not being properly met or resolved by Ottawa.

There could be other reasons which no one in Ottawa is talking about. For example, suggest Prime Minister Trudeau's efforts could be seen as an eventually doing the same to us.

European Common Market (ECM) and Canada in effect, backfired.

The European member nations of the ECM have probably had second thoughts wondering in what way United Canada could be accommodated in other than traditional trade relationships.

And there could be a deeper reason, well known to the Ottawa mandarins and to the self-mannered External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen. The Europeans are unhappy about our contribution to NATO.

If Canada wants trade advantages in Europe, the Europeans say, Canada to be serious about NATO. And our anti-submarine patrol aircraft role has woefully ignored our armed forces are willing a recent closed NATO meeting in Paris, he said, that "I have no confidence in my military bureaucrats."

The Europeans are old pros in this game of give-and-take in diplomacy, what is called the quid-pro-quo. The prime minister is no mean operator in that field either, applying it constantly to such tricky domestic areas as federal-provincial matters, energy, taxation and health cost sharing.

But perhaps because he has had to spend so much time politicking in the world bandstand, he hasn't spent enough time making it effective in Ottawa.

And the Europeans want our diplomatic military role in NATO upgraded and soon, as part of the give-and-take trade deal which Canada wants in their common market.

It all sounds complex, but in a way it isn't. This is a tough, tough world of bargaining and counter-bargaining and we're not there yet.

So the French who are very keen at selling to the European common market allies in Europe are not selling to us, and currently doing the same to us.

A Plan For Bayside Accident Scene

LETTERS

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

We, the students of Bayside Secondary School, have a problem — accidents on the highway in front of our school's main entrance.

The problem has notified and discussed the problem with the Ministry of Transport of Ontario, the Reeve and Council of Sidney Township, and Staff Sergeant Clive of the Ontario Provincial Police.

We have tried to get them to put up a caution light at the main entrance, but they said it wasn't necessary. Then we discussed widening the road, but the answer was, "too much money." Which is worth more, a caution light or a teenager's life?

All of the accidents occurred when a student or staff member was slowing down to turn into the [illegible] on his in the [illegible] there have been eleven accidents in the past three years [illegible] and for the same reason — two accidents have occurred in the last two weeks of this month.

So the question goes around the school: Does a teenager have to be killed before the Reeve and Council and the Ministry of Transport realize the seriousness of our problems? After all, what is a teenager's life worth?

Program Sharing by Ottawa and Provinces is Advocated by York President

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

Canadians, more and more, look to government to give economic leadership, to provide an unprecedented era of social benefits, and to practise restraint in spending.

Few of them, though, carry around a copy of the British North America Act, the Magna Carta of Canadian federalism. People demand action from the first politician they meet, whether federal, provincial or municipal.

As a result, there has been a growing tendency for all levels of government to enter into fields that may not belong to them — whether or not they have the necessary financial resources or constitutional authority.

Responsibilities might have been spread more sensibly and efficiently if the 1867 constitutional review had borne fruit.

But federal-provincial conference of June, 1971, failed to reach agreement on the Victoria Charter as a means of establishing a new constitution for Canada.

That avenue of approach is dead now, and we are left with an even more confused and costly multi-level government (there are more than 50 federal-provincial cost-sharing programs, each with its own army of bureaucrats and an almost hopelessly overlapping array of spending programs.

A key factor in the current conflict between different levels of government is the state of the economy itself, says H. Peter Oberlander, an economist who was the top civil servant in the Ontario government before his 1974 appointment as president of York University, Toronto.

He claims that economic axioms that Canadians have clung to throughout the postwar period, which have led up to today's unhappy situation:

—We will be supported by a buoyant, growing economy.

—We are guaranteed an ever-increasing standard of living.

—We can work less and earn more.

—An ever-expanding fund of consumer credit will let us fulfill our rising expectations now, rather than later.

—The rest of the world will recognize the superiority of our economic system and reward us accordingly.

—The magic of Keynesian economics will correct any fluctuations in the business cycle system in the hands of governmental magicians.

—We are so productive that we can divert more and more of our gross national expenditure to the fulfillment of public needs, rather than private.

—Such Panglossian concepts are being destroyed by inflation, high unemployment side by side with unfilled jobs, and a collapse in the international competitiveness of Canadian industry.

But, in Dr. Macdonald's view, it still isn't too late to assess our economic situation coolly, and change it for the better.

"The present division of economic and financial powers leading to the conflict and confusion he views as unfair.

He offers no dogmatic solution, however, instead to the little recognized economic clout of the world's municipal authorities. Together they account for nearly two-thirds of total government expenditures and 40 per cent of public capital investment.

A start on the problem could best be made, he believes, through a rigorous agreement on the distribution of program-and powers.

That, he concludes, would encourage greater efficiency, and reduce the inescapable tendency for government spending to rise.

He would begin with an immediate economic conference of first ministers, to be followed by elaborate preparations, and federal-provincial conferences at ministerial level to eliminate duplication and overlap of spending programs.

That would be a refreshing change from the present, often wasteful inter-governmental rivalries of the past 30 years.

Ottawa Spending Cuts Will Hurt Interest Groups

OTTAWA (CP) — When the government carves out its own role in the anti-inflation program with spending cuts, the result will be dismay and damaged expectations for some groups, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald warned Wednesday.

He told the Commons projected spending cuts for the 1976-77 fiscal year will produce "considerable political impact." But he ruled out a new budget until after Christmas.

Mr. Macdonald gave no details, but said a spending reduction would affect social programs, research and development initiatives or the quality or quantity of government services.

There is little scope for spending cuts without affecting these areas, the government said when introducing its program of wage and price controls with guides Oct. 13. It said most government expenditures go to social programs such as welfare, family allowances and old age security payments.

"We have to be concerned with making as many significant cuts as we can," Mr. Macdonald told reporters.

"This could produce some dismay . . . Some expectations are bound to be hurt."

His statement in the Commons was in reply to a question from Howard Crosbie (PC—Bronte-Mississauga), who wanted to know what example the government set for its program. Mr. Macdonald said he hoped opposition members would support the cuts when they were announced.

Speaking to reporters later, Mr. Macdonald said spending estimates from various departments for the fiscal year starting April 1 would be studied by cabinet in the coming weeks. The estimates usually are presented to the Commons in February.

In its June 23 budget, the government announced it was trimming $1 billion from its proposed spending of $33.8 billion for the current fiscal year.

Announcement of the anti-inflation program brought a freeze on most civil servant hiring, which the government said would reduce the size of most departments next year.

Dismay at this aspect of the program surfaced in the Commons Wednesday when Andy Hogan (NDP—Cape Breton-East Richmond) called for a special debate on a complaint about staff reduction from the Halifax local of the national defence employees union. He failed to get the necessary unanimous approval for a debate.

Olympic Organizers Say Buildings Will Be Ready

QUEBEC (CP) — The 1976 Summer Olympic Games will be held in Montreal's Olympic stadium, with or without some "unnecessary trimmings," Quebec Solicitor-General Fernand Lalonde said Wednesday.

Contrary to published reports, alternate sites are not being considered, he told the national assembly.

Lalonde, head of a government-appointed committee established in August, 1972, to watch the Games, said that if construction problems arise it will be possible to concentrate on making facilities functional for the Games, forgoing construction of unessential buildings.

"The alternative is that the stadium will be completely published or it will be without some of the trimmings," the minister said.

La Presse reported Wednesday that a meeting Monday between Lalonde's group and the Olympic organizing committee considered alternate solutions should the stadium not be ready.

The newspaper said Roger Rousseau, president of the organizing committee, acknowledged that the meeting took place and confirmed that alternate solutions had been discussed.

Meanwhile, organizing committee officials in Montreal said Wednesday that talk of serious construction delays is mainly a political move aimed at increasing the budget for construction of facilities.

"The schedule is tight and there have been some delays but they aren't alarming," an official said.

"Souping the schedule alarm now is just to provide a backdrop for bad money news," he said.

Lalonde said he will receive a report on the cost of the Games "within a few days," and decide whether to call a special session of the national assembly's standing committee on municipal affairs.

"Stadium costs have suffered multiple pressures," he said.

He said the cost of other installations had increased by only five per cent, but that "in July, the stadium costs went up substantially."

An intensive work schedule, plus inflationary cost of materials, has more than doubled the original cost estimate for the 70,000-seat stadium.

The original estimate was $175-million, but the latest figures show the stadium will cost $380 million and the adjacent velodrome will cost $58 million.

The original over-all budget for the Games was set at $310 million, but it was estimated the cost now will reach the $750-million mark, and some observers have said it might top $1 billion.

Newsprint Stockpiling Keeps Paper Operating

By KEVIN DOUGHERTY
The Canadian Press

Stockpiling by newspapers in Canada and the United States has prevented newsprint shortages despite a strike which has halted much of Canada's newsprint production, industry sources indicate.

U.S. publishers reported an average 45-day supply of newsprint at the end of September, compared with a 21-day average newsprint strike.

In addition, several companies hit by walkouts have been able to continue production, at other mills where labor contracts have yet to expire. These companies are continuing to supply their clients, although quotas have been imposed in some cases.

Canadian mills supply about 40 per cent of the newsprint used in the U.S.

Abitibi-Price Sales Corp., of New York, a subsidiary of Abitibi Paper Co. Ltd., of Toronto, and Price Co. Ltd., of Quebec City, said that some customers known to have large stockpiles have been asked to defer taking delivery of new orders.

A spokesman for the parent Canadian companies said although all Abitibi's Canadian mills and two Price mills remain closed by the strike—which has cut eastern Canadian newsprint production by 63 per cent—none of its customers is in real trouble.

Negotiations between Abitibi and the Canadian Paperworkers Union aimed at getting 5,000 Abitibi workers in Ontario and Quebec back on the job began Tuesday.

Restraint Program Scuttles TV Coverage of Parliament

OTTAWA (CP) — The government restraint program likely has scuttled any immediate plans to provide live television coverage of Parliament, Senator Ray Perrault said Wednesday.

The government leader in the Senate said in an interview that the high cost of installations is one reason the project probably will be postponed.

"What with the restraints and all, I don't think it's very likely ... for some time, at least."

Nevertheless, the British Columbia Liberal senator remains "very enthusiastic" about TV and radio coverage of Parliament, especially of the Senate, which largely is ignored by the Parliamentary Press Gallery.

Senator Perrault envisages TV coverage as a part-time program that would concentrate on the major issues.

"I don't think the audience would take full coverage," he said with a laugh. "There are very arid periods in both Houses of Parliament."

Television could be a powerful publicity tool, however, at committee hearings, where Senate and Commons members sometimes sitting jointly—question witnesses.

One proposal considered by the government was provision of a special cable TV network that would carry live coverage across the country.

"But the cost would be enormous," Senator Perrault said, suggesting it was an unworkable idea. "There would be a few percentage of viewers, but that shouldn't be the criteria for Parliament."

He said the system used at the United Nations—the news works are supplies from a central studio run by the UN—would be the most feasible for Parliament.

Jobless Plan Gets Approval

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's controversial plan to overhaul the unemployment insurance system was given approval in principle by the Commons Wednesday over strong NDP objections.

The legislation, which would raise premiums for workers and employers, passed second reading and was sent to the House manpower committee for detailed study.

The vote was 105 to 86 with all opposition parties and lone Independent Lessard joining Conservative voting against the majority Liberal government.

Second-reading debate lasted six days and closed with a flurry of NDP demands for changes.

Max Saltsman (NDP—Waterloo-Cambridge) said unemployment insurance has become a welfare program and should be treated as such.

All financing should come from general government revenue through a special tax applying to all sectors of society. Workers should not have to carry the main share of the burden.

The legislation, if passed as expected without major changes, would boost worker premiums to about $1.70 a week for every $100 of earnings. The current rate is $1.40. Employer contributions would go up to $2.40 from $1.96.

Other changes would stop persons 65 and over from paying premiums or receiving benefits, double the existing three-week waiting period for persons who quit or are fired from jobs and reduce special benefit levels for claimants with dependents.

The proposed rules would raise the national unemployment rate at which the program ceases to be self-financing and begin dipping into the federal treasury to meet benefit demands.

The plan now pays for itself up to a national unemployment rate of four per cent. The bill would change this to a meeting eight-year unemployment average.

Opposition MPs say this will mean a level of between five per cent and six per cent if the changes go into effect as planned.

The unemployment rate for September was 7.2 per cent, with the yearly rate running at the highest level in 14 years.

Committee Must Face Hydro's Expansion

TORONTO (CP) — Cost of Ontario Hydro's expansion program will be an issue facing the Ontario legislature's select committee on proposed Hydro increases, committee chairman Donald MacDonald (NDP—Toronto York South) said Wednesday.

During a day-long meeting attended by four officials of Ontario Hydro, Mr. MacDonald said the committee would have to take a close look at the need for the sort of expansion outlined by Hydro.

"It is, I feel the gut issue involved," he said.

He said it was difficult to see how rate changes could be made in 1976 and told Hydro officials "you could save us time thinking nothing can be cut."

Following the meeting Mr. MacDonald said he felt costs could be pared by reducing future expenditures and spreading them out.

He suggested that by cutting expansion costs alone rates could be reduced four or five per cent from Hydro's proposed 20-per-cent increase.

He said he also would want to question Hydro officials on suggestions of waste and inefficiency in the operation of Ontario Hydro.

Facing questioning by the committee Wednesday were: D. B. McCarthy, manager of financial forecasting; Milne Nesbitt, vice-president, resources; H. J. Skinner, vice-president, distribution; and H. K. Wright, director of consumer services.

The committee was told that 129 Ontario communities are in limbo as far as their hydro rates are concerned because of the establishment of the committee.

Hydro men approve municipal increases and 118 out of the 129 municipalities buying power from Hydro have not yet submitted their rates. They now have been told that they will have to wait and see what the committee recommends, Mr. Skinner explained.

Supply Motion Will Test Legislature

TORONTO (CP) — The first real test of the legislature's confidence in Ontario's minority government likely will come on the supply motion, Robert Nixon, leader, said Wednesday.

The supply motion, expected to be introduced next week, takes place when the government asks the legislature to approve the estimates of the various ministries.

Mr. Nixon told a news conference that this motion is a "clear-cut confidence matter."

On Tuesday, Liberal Leader Robert Nixon moved an amendment to the throne speech which said his party regrets that the government failed to accept its responsibility to provide for the direct administration of Ontario's wage and price controls.

Mr. Nixon said the amendment constitutes a non-confidence motion and if passed the government must resign.

Opposition Leader Stephen Lewis said he agrees with the amendment and would support it but added that he does not believe the government must resign is it is approved in the legislature.

In the throne speech, which opened the current session of the legislature last week, the government said Ontario public employees would be subject to the rulings of the federal anti-inflation board.

Rent Reviews Will Not Be Permanent

TORONTO (CP) — Rent review board legislation to be introduced in the Ontario legislature today will not be permanent, Housing Minister John Rhodes said Wednesday.

He told a news conference that the legislation could be terminated in as few as two years. Last week, the Ontario government said it will opt into the federal wage-and price-control program for two years.

Mr. Rhodes said the legislation calls for rent increases to be kept in the neighborhood of 10 per cent. He said he believes it will be acceptable to the opposition parties.

Can Nail Nibbler Swear Off?

At first, all we noticed was that he was drinking his morning coffee in a very peculiar fashion — little finger crooked in the air, waving daintily as he held his cup.

We were in the office — seriously entertained the thought that he had become effeminate overnight, and we decided it was probably some passing phase.

But two days went by we were unable to ignore the coffee routine, for it had been combined with a number of other unusual gestures. Every time this young man felt our eyes upon him, he began doing things with his hands. Straightening his tie, rubbing his chin, brushing off his jacket lapels, scratching his forehead, stretching and wriggling his fingers like a weary pianist.

Good heavens! we thought. He's acting like a girl with a new engagement ring! We checked, but no new ring — in fact, no rings at all — adorned his fingers.

What then could be bringing on this odd behavior? We decided to ask.

"Say," we ventured, "is there some reason you want us to look at your hands?"

"You mean you haven't noticed?" he replied, crestfallen. "You haven't spotted the difference?" We continued to look blank, so that he had to push his fingers right up to our eyes.

"Nails," he said. "Look at them. Real nails! I've stopped biting my nails and they're growing in. I've never had nails this long before in my life!"

We looked, and sure enough, there were the bare beginnings of this rima of fingernails, still a little jagged but respectively evident.

"They may not look like much to you," he said, "but to me they seem like real claws. It's all I can do to stop myself trimming them back a bit with my teeth."

"Have you always bitten your nails?" we asked.

"As long as I can remember," he said ruefully. "Even when I was a kid I was trying to quit. They used to put that awful-tasting stuff on my fingers to get me to stop, but I just got used to the taste. Eventually, my parents just gave up and I kept on, more hooked on the habit each year. "I bite my nails right down to the quick," he added. "But even when my fingers were sore and bleeding I've never been able to stop."

"Why?" we wondered.

"What made you do it?"

"I just bid to," he said, with that pleased expression that only an addict can achieve. "It always made me feel better, I guess." And he looked at his hands a little longingly, as if he'd give anything for the end of a hangnail right then.

"Funny," we said, "we never noticed you biting your nails around here."

"That's because I got so good at it," he said. "I'd only do it when nobody was looking. I developed secretive techniques as a kid."

"I know what you mean," one of us suddenly blurted out. "I sucked my thumb till I was ix. But I gave it up when I started smoking."

"I had a blanket called Nana I used to chew the end of," offered another.

"Sissies!" said another. "I had a pacifier called Sea-Sod that I'd give anything for oh bad days around here."

"But nail biting is different," said our friend, a little annoyed at being cast in the sucky-baby category. "It's more a nervous habit."

"Well, how are you managing to be so strong-willed this time?" we asked.

"I just got so embarrassed at people's stares I'm my mouth," he said. "It seemed I spent half my life with my hands in my pockets so that people couldn't see my stubby little chewed-up nails.

"I've decided to take my fingers out of hiding, that's all. I'm entering a new era of maturity."

We told him we thought that was just great, and shook his hand as a gesture of confidence in his new resolve. He looked down at our hands.

"Um, I hope you don't mind me asking," he said, "but you've got a tempting little fingernail there I can hardly resist. Would you mind keeping your hands behind your back when I'm around?"

Who Would Marry a Criminal?

Dear Ann Landers: I must say you lit with statistics most convincingly. I refer to your answer on the relative happiness of married men as compared with bachelors. Of course bachelors are 22 more times likely to be in prison, Who wants to marry a felon?

Did it ever occur to you that the chronically ill, the alcoholics and the criminals might be unmarried for just those reasons and vice versa?

If, for one, resent the implication that without a wife I will immediately fall into a life of crime, drink and an early grave.

How about some fair comparisons of married and unmarried 25-year-old white-collar workers and 35-year-old professional men? Obviously if you lump all the world's unfortunates with the bachelors-by-choice, you're going to come up with a sorry-looking lot. (And P.S.—How about the financial advantages of not having to support a wife?)—A Happy Bachelor

Dear Bachelor: My multimast have a permit from drag-ging letters written by "Happy Bachelors"—highly indignant as the statistics quoted in this column recently.

Sorry if I offended so many of you, but those are official government figures. I didn't pull them out of my ear.

They did not state that all single men are alcoholics, criminals in poor health and destined to die young. Nor did they suggest that all married men are healthy, happy, dry and live-abiding. Those figures reflected the overall picture in which there are undoubtedly many exceptions—on both sides. So, please get off my back, fellas.

P.S.—Many bachelors spend a lot more money on their girlfriends than some husbands spend on their wives.

Dear Ann Landers: More and more people are recognizing that males have the competence, same as women. But doctors and psychiatrists discuss it only in terms of psychological manifestation. Feelings of disappointment, guilt, depression loss of hope for achievement and a diminishing interest in sex. The assumption seems to be that the physical symptoms are confined to women.

Maybe I'm some sort of nut but I get the darndest hot flashes and they drive one crazy.

I'm 57, in good health, normal blood pressure, EKG, bland and urinalysis fine. There seems to be no reason for these miserable occurrences.

Maybe they aren't hot flashes in the technical sense, but if they aren't, I'd like to know what in the Sam Hill they are. While they don't last very long, when they occur I feel as if I'm in a blast furnace. Any suggestions, Ann?—Hot And Bothered

Dear H and B: If you haven't discussed this with a doctor, you should. And if it's any comfort to you fella, your's is a common complaint, although not many men talk about it. (P.S.—Carry a fan. It can be a big help.)

CONFIDENTIAL to NEED A Helping Hand: Have you asked at the bottom of your sleeve? I recommend it.

Dear Ann Landers: I don't know how to tell you this because I don't want you to think we're a bunch of crazy kids, but seven of us (13 to 17 years of age) were sitting around last night comparing our belly buttons.

Four of the guys had belly buttons that were like recessed. One girl and two guys had belly buttons that stuck out. We all agreed the ones that stuck out were quite pretty. No one knew the reason for the difference and we were wondering if anything could be done to change a belly button once it was there. For example, the girl with the ugly one said she might want to be a belly dancer one day and considered her "imperfection" an occupational hazard.

Will you please give us some information on this subject? We looked in two dictionaries and could find out very little.—Students Of Anatomy

Dear Students: Things must be pretty dull in your crowd if you have to sit around comparing belly buttons. But people have been contemplating their navels for quite some time and since your questions sound like an honest search for information I will try to enlighten you.

The belly button is what is left of the cord that linked you to your mother before you were born.

The prettiest ones are neatly rounded and slightly sunken. The protruding kind somehow did not close deeply enough, but no harm was done.

It is possible to have a surgeon beautify a navel if a person wants to go through the expense, time and trouble, but it's hardly worth it—even for an aspiring belly dancer.

Pets Now Status

MOSCOW—(AP)— "My little girl saw the film Lassie and she said she couldn't live without a collie," the young Muscovite said with a laugh.

"So we got her one," he added as he showed an American around Moscow's thriving free-enterprise pet market—vivid evidence that pets have even status symbols, in many Soviet families.

Every weekend, hundreds gather at the open-air bazaar in a central residential district to sell puppies, kittens, rabbits, parrots, parakeets, fish, mice, chickens and hamsters.

The growing affluence of Soviet citizens and the easing of the ever-critical housing shortage new permit the luxury of owning a pet. During the Second World War pets all but disappeared from this country. Dogs and cats, in fact, were often by starving Leningraders during the 900-day German siege of that northern city.

Now, in their relative prosperity, Muscovites are willing to pay sometimes as much as 30 rubles ($63) for a puppy at the pet market.

The salesmen call out a variety of claims about their animals.

"He's already housebroken, a very happy little dog," said one old woman about the furry white puppy nestled under her coat.

Dog lovers who want a pedigreed canine must join one of two dog clubs and get on a waiting list after stating preferences for breed, color and sex.

"Dog fans are numerous, so at times one has to wait a long while for his choice," Tass, the official news agency, explained. "There is a soaring demand for collie puppies, explained by the impact of the American television film Lassie."

Pets are pampered creatures in Soviet society. Medical care is free, as it is for humans, and veterinarians even make house calls. Apartment houses do not outlaw pets, as is sometimes the case in Canada and the United States.

Prepared dog food does not exist, so dogs often get the same fare that their owners eat. Large dogs such as German shepherds and St. Bernards are considered status symbols. But their huge food bills can make a dent in the new worker's salary. One owner of a Great Dane said half his food budget goes toward feeding his dog.

Another Muscovite shares his two-room apartment with his wife, daughter, a large black dog larger than a St. Bernard, a cat and a hamster.

Dogs and cats, however, are not so privileged when it comes to Soviet leash laws.

Pets found wandering without their owners, even those with leashes, tags, collars and muzzles, are caught and killed, according to the law. Owners can not reclaim them.

The newspaper Literaturnaya Gazeta, professing the severity of the law declared to its dog owner-readers: "If you stop by a store to buy something and your well-trained dog sits and waits for you, it is subject to be caught.

"Neither its medals nor its breed will save it. It will be dragged with its medals on to a soap-making factory."

'Hoax' Cures Bedsores

TORONTO (CP)— A Toronto bioengineer says that while Canadians spend about $60 million a year on healing bedsores, he has proved that the simplest treatment is to turn the patient at regular intervals.

Dr. Geoffry Fernie, a research assistant at the University of Toronto, said in an interview that any sick person who lies in bed for three hours without turning over is in danger of developing bedsores.

He said the sores, often hard to heal, are not helped by expensive treatments such as creams, powders or waterbeds.

Dr. Fernie said he conducted an experiment using what he called a hoax machine on six patients whose bedsores failed to heal with other treatments.

Patients and nurses were told the machine gave off electromagnetic emissions which would cure the sores if directed toward the affected areas for one-half hour 12 times a day.

He said the machine had no curing properties but the patients took the weight off the sore areas when they turned toward it. All six patients were healed within 30 days.

Ontario School Classes Get Caribbean 'Twins'

TORONTO (CP) — Students in Ontario and several Caribbean countries will have a chance to learn more about each another's life-styles through a new twinning program launched by the Ontario ministry of education.

Posters and brochures outlining the program to link classrooms in Canada with those in the Caribbean, are scheduled to go out shortly to the more than 8,000 elementary and secondary schools in Ontario.

George Mason, co-ordinator of Project School-to-School, said: "With current developments in the Third World, Canadians need to be better informed about global problems—economic, social, political and ecological.

"One way to prepare young Canadians for this is through contact with peoples of different cultures."

The program will make this possible through the exchange of letters and educational materials paving the way for visits between Canadian and Caribbean students.

Success of the new program will depend initially on the teachers in Ontario who will be responsible for signing up classes for the twinning exercise, he explained.

But once contact is made with the twinned classrooms, individual students can develop individual relationships with those with whom they are twinned. The program is open to students up to Grade 10 level.

In an interview at his Queen's Park office, Mr. Mason described the new program as a "revitalization of a twinning program initiated in 1968 by Premier William Davis, then education minister in the province."

Seventeen countries in the Commonwealth Caribbean from the Bahamas through the chain of islands to Guyana and British Honduras (Belize) and Bermuda were included in the original program which lapsed because of "communication problems."

But Mason reported a fresh spark of enthusiasm for the program among educators in several Caribbean countries.

At a seminar held last July in the Eastern Caribbean island of St. Vincent, education officials from 10 countries in the region adopted a resolution calling for the promotion of Project School-to-School.

The countries that have agreed to participate are Anguilla, Bahamas, British Virgin Islands, Dominica, Grenada, Montserrat, St. Kitts, St. Lucia, St. Vincent and the Turks and Caicos Islands.

One of the problems with the former twinning exercise was the transportation of mail to schools in outlying districts in the islands, Mr. Mason said.

But local co-ordinators of the program in the various islands have accepted responsibility for ensuring that project materials reach the various schools.

"And the new program has the full blessings of the governments of the participating countries."

The Commonwealth Caribbean was chosen for this exercise because of Canada's special relationships with the region, Mason explained.

"Our trading ties with the Caribbean go back to early times in Canada's history. We also share the common experience of being colonized by Britain."

Mason also cited practical reasons.

"Canada and the Caribbean are both in the Western Hemisphere. Therefore exchange of materials and visits would take less time between Canada and the Caribbean than areas farther apart."

Kingston Among Cities With Sri Chinmay Body

TORONTO (CP) — They sit quietly, dressed in white, their women, gently, draped in cloth saris. The music reaches a crescendo and the meditation is announced as completed.

The group is meeting in a house here, to meditate together, under the inspiration of Guru Sri Chinmoy.

The real organization of the Toronto Sri Chinmoy centre came in 1971, although Shivaram, a devotee, conducted meditations at York University in 1970. Shivaram came to Canada in 1964 and knew Sri Chinmoy, when they both worked in the Indian consulate in New York.

The movement is part of an increasing devotion to eastern philosophy and practices among Canadians, and other westerners.

The guru's followers have grown from a handful in 1969 to about 300 in Canada.

There are centres in Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec City and Kingston, Ont. Other smaller groups exist in Halifax, Guelph, Ont., and Victoria. Under the auspices of the guru, a company, Divine Enterprises, runs restaurants — 4 in Toronto and other locations.

The guru's birthday, his 43rd, which he celebrated in New York at the end of August.

Disciples from around the world gathered for the event. A circus, dances, celebrations and a athletic meet were held.

"Athletic and mental skills go together," said Maharaj, adding that the guru is an avid athlete.

Sri Chinmoy's 14,000 paintings are constantly increasing, now housed in a permanent New York art gallery. A prolific writer, he has composed more than 3,000 poems; 17 plays and 21 stories introduced by his publishing company in a constant printing process.

He is also the official director of an international meditation group, promoting world peace by inner peace.

"Love is action," said Sri Chinmoy at one of the groups. "Devotion is practice. Surrender is experience. Love is the meaning of life. Devotion is the secret of life."

Susan Mitchell, 32, a disciple from Guelph, sat quietly at a regular meditation session at the centre. She said, as a former actress, her life was filled with hectic competition.

"I had tried everything, all the meditation groups," said Miss Mitchell, "I reached a ceiling I could no longer push. I was screaming inside to go higher."

When she joined the group as a disciple, Miss Mitchell said she felt it was time to leave commercial television and her Stratford theatre acting roles.

"I gave it up," she said, "since I came to the path, because I could not get rid of ego in theatre."

Alberta Brothers Begin New Life

NORDEGG, Alta. (CP) — With a minimum of experience and a maximum of vision, Ken and Jim Brown have built themselves a new life, block by block.

Ken, 42, was a fire salesman, Jim, 38, sold cosmetics. Four years ago, deciding they had had enough of working in Calgary, they broke ground and built the David Thompson Resort.

The resort, 120 miles east of Red Deer, stands along the David Thompson Highway. It is surrounded by mountains and 30-mile-long Lake Abraham is a few hundred yards away.

The Browns, with the help of their wives and two other relatives, had to build their 36-unit motel, a 125-stall campground, store, laundromat, restaurant and garage themselves. A contractor would have charged $700,000. All they had was the money from selling their homes in Calgary, a provincial loan of $200,000 and $50,000 from an oil company whose products they sell.

Asked about their ability to construct and operate a resort, Jim commented: "We both finished our own rec rooms."

The brothers and their wives put in 16-hour days, paying themselves the equivalent of $3 cents an hour per couple. They eat at the restaurant, live in trailers on the site and take no days off.

"We wanted to be on our own," Ken said. "We didn't want to work for someone else."

They began with the idea of opening a store and campground but to get a 25-year lease on the land from the government, they had to agree to put up a motel as well.

"We didn't know it was so massive when we started," Ken said.

If their salaries are not high, their net worth is at least respectable. The resort could not be bought for less than $1 million, even if someone could convince them to sell.

The brothers abound with stories of trying to persuade bank managers to provide interim financing and coping with the rigors of cutting trees, laying cement blocks and finding just the right kind of stone to set off the fireplace in the lodge.

They miss not having the free time for television and their children but couldn't face the idea of going back to plodding through life in a 9-to-5 job.

St. Thomas Tests Bus Warning

ST. THOMAS, Ont (CP) — The city of St. Thomas is testing a bus warning device, the first in Canada.

The gadget, if successful in tests, might be installed in senior citizen projects, apartment buildings, and public buildings to warn people of approaching buses.

Bill Lindsay, general services co-ordinator for the city, came up with the idea about a month ago. He realized the potential for such a device, which might be placed in public lobbies which are already heated so that the bus customers could wait inside.

He was well aware of complaints, especially from the elderly, of waiting for buses in cold weather.

So he approached Glendale Lis and Electronics to see what kind of electrical apparatus could be used as a bus warning system.

The resulting small box, nine by 12 inches, can easily be erected on a wall of a lobby. A garage-door operating transmitter placed in the buses causes the box to light up and a bell rings as well.

In tests, the range appeared to be about 800 feet.

This would provide ample warning to bus users to walk out to the bus stop.

The drivers would be trained to aid the service by waiting for them to cross the street if necessary.

Mr. Lindsay said the city could purchase five or six warning devices for the price of one bus shelter. He expected public response to be good, as bus riders would be much warmer waiting in a lobby of a building than in an unheated bus shelter.

Do a little insulating this weekend.

You'll see the results on your fuel bills.

The high cost of heating is not a "grin and bear it" situation. You can do something about it. Improve your insulation.

1 Insulation saves fuel–saves money. It's very simple, a house with adequate insulation costs less to heat, because you lose less. And at today's fuel prices, you can't afford to lose very much.

2 You need at least 6" of insulation in your attic. Even if your house is only 5 years old, you may not have enough insulation. The insulation standards that your builder followed are no longer valid.

Building codes are being changed and 6" of insulation in the attic will probably be the new minimum for all new construction.

You can bring your home's insulation up to current standards yourself, with a minimum investment of time and money. In the process you'll be saving money on your fuel bill and adding to the real value of your home.

3 What kind of insulation should you get? Fiberglas. It's easy to install, readily available and inexpensive. It's also extremely efficient, rot and mildew proof, fire retardant and recognized everywhere as the best form of insulation. If you already have some insulation in the attic you'll probably need Fiberglas friction fit batts. They install without so much as a nail. Just stuff them between the joists in the attic, right over the insulation you have.

Measure the insulation you have now, then get Fiberglas friction fit batts thick enough to make 6". Since you'll be adding to existing insulation, do not use insulation with a backing or a vapour barrier. (You could be creating condensation problems.)

All you need is plain, unbacked insulation–Fiberglas friction fit batts.

4 If you have no insulation at all? You need Fiberglas kraft faced batts with a built in vapour barrier. You'll need it 6" thick (that's called R-20) and you apply it the same way–laying it between the joists in the attic floor. The vapour barrier (the paper side) always goes next to the warm side. So in the attic, it's paper side down.

5 The Fiberglas booklet. It tells all. Your building supply dealer has a free copy of the Fiberglas booklet for you. It's called "HOW TO FIGHT THE RISING COST OF FUEL BY IMPROVING YOUR HOME'S INSULATION". Ask for it and read it. It'll tell you everything you need to know about insulating your attic, rec room, cottage and give you other tips on conserving energy.

To do the average house should take the weekend. But it's an investment that pays dividends on every fuel bill you'll ever receive.

Alcoholic's Family Could Be Last Resort

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—For those who can afford it, the family-oriented treatment at Palm Beach Institute is often a last resort after other cures for alcoholism have failed.

Rep. Wilbur Mills, an Arkansas Democrat, is perhaps the most visible success of the institute, where patients ranging in age from the teens to the late 60s try to kick their drinking problem.

"Wilbur has been doing exceptionally," the institute's director, Dr. Ronald J. Catanzaro, a psychiatrist, said of Mills. "We hope to keep in regular contact with him."

After a series of highly publicized misadventures and several failures with other rehabilitation techniques, Mills signed into the $360-a-week institute last March. About two months later, he returned to his seat in the House of Representatives.

The institute, very protective of its patients, has been a haven for public figures and influential business executives.

Its guiding theme is that a person's alcoholism may be indicative of a breakdown in his family. Other illnesses such as drug addiction and emotional problems are treated here, but most of the 30 patients under care at any one time are here for alcoholism.

"The treatment of the family is part of the cure of a patient's problem," said Catanzaro, 48. "It's the whole family's problem because it shows a poorly functioning family."

The "familization" treatment — a combination of group therapy, individual counseling, lectures, psychodrama and self-analysis generally lasts about eight weeks. The institute creates an extended family of patients, therapists and key members of the patient's real family to improve techniques of communication.

Generally, at least one of the patient's relatives enters the institute for the final two weeks of treatment, as did Mrs. Mills.

The total cost is $1,800, and about six in 10 who take the cure stay off alcohol, Catanzaro said.

He said the alcoholism suffered by his own mother was the spark that lit his interest in the disease.

He developed the family treatment technique and, he said, borrowed heavily from other disciplines for various therapy plans. On his staff are psychologists, social workers, several specially trained former alcoholic and six counselors. Upon admission, each patient is assigned a counselor who is responsible for the patient's progress through several phases of treatment.

McKerracher Finds Interest in Physical Fitness.

Ads Only Inspire

Fitness Individual's Responsibility

BY ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

The people of Belleville must take the initiative to do something about physical fitness, says the president of Participaction.

Keith B. Kent McKerracher told about 300 citizens at Centennial Secondary School Wednesday that no outside agency, including Participaction, can accomplish that purpose for them.

"Participaction is issuing a challenge to the people of Belleville," he commented. "An advertising campaign has stirred you up."

Mr. McKerracher explained Participaction attempts to run advertising designed to make viewers laugh and then once hooked on watching, they are hit with a message.

The advertisements have to be written so as not to turn people off, he added. "People have been exposed to so much advertising they blank out such things that aren't relevant to them."

In response to a question on a time limit for the Participaction program, Mr. McKerracher remarked, "as long as there are pressures in our society that invite people to be inactive they (the machine and I) will do such-and-such for you), then there must be inaction."

He suggested that the medical community must investigate the use of exercise more than it has. "I think it holds out great promise in disease prevention," he said.

Mr. McKerracher's appearance marked the eighth and final session in the Respiratory Care '75 program. The previous seven sessions were professionally credited to medical people involved in the treatment of respiratory disease.

Transport Tips, Lumber Blocks Township Road

Traffic north of Loyalist College on the Loyalist-Wallbridge Rd. was held up for several hours Wednesday after a transport-trailer failed to negotiate a turn and spilled a load of lumber across the roadway.

A provincial police spokesman said the brakes of the trailer failed and the truck upset against a fence at the intersection of Wallbridge-Loyalist Rd. and the second concession road of Sidney Township.

Damage to the cab of the vehicle, driven by Ross Clifford Evans, 30, of RR 4 Tottenham, was estimated by police at $10,000. The transport is owned by H.C. Slones and Sons Ltd., Toronto.

Union Head Says:

Bargaining Process Threatened

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The federal government's price and wage freeze has "effectively destroyed free collective bargaining," says Jack Thomas, union representative for more than 700 Belleville railroaders.

Mr. Thomas — the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers in conjunction with 16 other rail-related unions — is currently in negotiations with Canadian National Railway.

The cross-the-board-demand of the Association of Railway Unions of a $3-an-hour increase represents a potential per hike of 40 per cent for Mr. Thomas' local — 30 per cent above the government's prescribed wage increase ceiling.

"Of course it looks like labor isn't willing to co-operate with the price and wage program," said Mr. Thomas. "But you can't have collective bargaining if there are wage freezes."

Between Mr. Thomas' union and the other which make up the association, more than 35,000 Canadian workers are represented.

"I don't know if the government purposely destroyed the collective bargaining concept but that is what has happened," he said.

For the meantime, the rail workers are negotiating as if the guidelines don't exist, he said.

Following the lead of several other unions in current negotiations, Mr. Thomas said his union is ignoring the government guideline of 10-per-cent maximums.

Several unions and labor federations have already stated they are prepared to strike for more money than the government is willing to allow and further — the unions are prepared to strike if a wage review board attempts to roll back increases.

"We're in a hell of a position," said Mr. Thomas. "We don't know what to do."

"To get the increases, we don't know if we'll be striking against the company or the wage review board."

He said unions — including his own — are considering the current postal negotiations as a labor case.

"We're just sitting back and watching what happens with the post office now."

Meanwhile, his union will meet in Toronto Nov. 17 to determine a policy that will handle the possibility of the wage restraint legislation affecting their contract settlement.

Voice with Depth

Bass-baritone James Bechtel performed as soloist for the Belleville Choral Society Wednesday night. The singer attracted people from all age groups — even grades 4-8 classes from Cannifton-Corbyville Public School attended.

Choral Society Performs

By SUSAN McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

James Bechtel starred in a musical concert Wednesday night as the guest of Belleville Choral Society at Belleville Collegiate High School.

Mr. Bechtel, formerly with the Montreal Bach Choir and frequent soloist with the Bach-Elgar Choir of Hamilton, previously performed in Belleville as Elijah in Mendelssohn's oratorio at Bridge Street United Church.

In the first half concert presented by the choir, Mr. Bechtel, a bass baritone, followed the choral society presentation "Three Songs To Music" by Henry Willan.

A second number by the choir for the near-capacity audience was the haunting music of the Good We Wish For and The Glorious Deeds from Samson by G. F. Handel. Accompanied by pianist John Utley, assisted by A. Alec Gordon, Mr. Bechtel added the choral society's Five Mystical Songs — an exhaustive presentation based on poems arranged to music by Ralph Vaughan Williams after the Ladies Choir sang Simple Gifts by Aaron Copeland, Robust Skye Boat Song by A. Lees Laird and On The Moorrow by E. R. Galpin.

Highlight of the two-hour performance was a selection from Carousel.

The grand finale of this classical-contemporary music concert was The Rhodes Song by Ernest Gold performed enthusiastically by the choral society.

Cleaning Up

City employee Russell Covert rakes leaves and brush along Palmer Rd. Wednesday as the city public works department continues with its fall clean-up program. Over $30,000 is being spent by the city to clear debris from city roads and roadside ditches.

Stanley Structure Workers Reject Latest Company Offer

The 130-member local of the Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International, employed at Belleville's Stanley Structures Ltd. plant here, are prepared to strike Nov. 21 if wage demands are not met, a spokesman for the union said Thursday.

A final union vote was conducted Thursday night after receipt of a provincial conciliator's 30-board report.

Negotiations have been under way since September.

Union president Bob Miller said a strike vote was held two weeks ago and the union executive was granted a unanimous decision for a strike mandate.

Thursday's vote was to determine the union's position on the company's last wage offer which would have given workers a 13-percent increase (65 cents an hour) over a one-year contract. Mr. Miller said the union is holding out for a 20-percent increase over the 18-month duration. Workers, Thursday unanimously rejected the company's latest offer.

Mr. Miller said his union will be in a legal position to strike Nov. 21. His union represents all plant laborers.

Jim Clarke, executive vice-president of Stanley Structures, said today "we are specifically bound under the federal price and wage program."

"Our last offer is as high as we are permitted to go," he said, when asked if the company is considering increasing its offer. "We have gone to the maximum the federal government will allow."

"We feel the offer we have made is fair and acceptable," said Mr. Clarke. "Incidentally, the federal guidelines and our financial negotiations are quite close."

Both the union and company have agreed that they are prepared to continue discussions before the strike date is reached.

Stanley Structures, formerly known as Wilson Concrete, manufactures a wide variety of concrete products and is a major supplier to the area building industry.

Firemen Told Lives Must Take Priority Over Fighting Blaze

By CLIFF KENTON
Staff Reporter

Firefighters have a "specific duty" to put fire and accident victims to hospital alive, Dr. Bruce Morgan, co-director of Belleville General Hospital board of directors said Wednesday.

"I can imagine a situation where resuscitation of a victim would be more important than fighting a fire," Dr. Morgan told a meeting of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Mutual Fire Aid Association.

He said the hospital has a 95-per-cent chance of saving victims arriving alive but only losing 25 per cent because they do not arrive alive and they're not dead at the accident scene.

Dr. Morgan stressed the use of "cardio-pulmonary (heart-lung) resuscitation — a combination of artificial respiration and applying pressure to the chest to keep the heart pumping.

"I think every citizen, especially firefighters, should be confident in the use of cardio-pulmonary resuscitation," Dr. Morgan said.

"If you keep a man's heart going even artificially it will keep his brain alive."

Following Dr. Morgan's presentation at the Point Anne meeting, fire department officials questioned him on the legality of firefighters using such procedure on victims.

"To me it is intolerable that a man should be slandered for fear of a lawsuit."

He was also questioned on the legality of fire department vehicles being used to transport victims to the hospital.

Dr. Morgan suggested fire departments have better contact with ambulance dispatchers to determine if an equipped ambulance is available to the site.

"There's no sense in a man dying for want of transportation," he said. "We could take it in jeopardy anyone's ambulance with us."

Local amateur and professional artists are responsible for one of the best Belleville Art Association juried show yet.

The art will be on display at Corby Library following private viewing by members Friday night.

Barb Whelan, president of the association, said the nine-year-old show is one of the best yet. "We could take the art that was rejected by the judges and hang it in a separate room," she said.

Mrs. Whelan, also a painter, said this is the first year she had trouble deciding what selections the judges would make

More than 100 paintings were submitted and are on display. Top cash awards go to Florence Lemon for Country Day; Muriel Andrew, with Cloud Shadow and Margaret Rickaby with Dancing Daisies.

Mrs. Whelan said although a lot of controversy always follows the judges' decisions, it only adds to a show's success.

"If a painter's work is rejected this year you can be sure that next year's submission will be better," she added.

Eye-level Art Display

President of Belleville Art Association Barb Whelan makes sure the juried paintings for the 9th annual show are eye-level. Mrs. Whelan called this show the best yet.

Ellis Attacks Proposes UIC Amendments

From The Ottawa Bureau
Of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — Jack Ellis Conservative MP for — Hastings told the House of Commons during debate on amendments to the Unemployment Insurance Act that the present act discourages employment in the area of small business.

The Tory MP, one of a number of opposition and government members who have criticized handling of the scheme, said the small businessman is placed in the position of having to compete with unemployment insurance.

"I do not think I am unique," he told the Commons, and my files are full of such cases."

Mr. Ellis suggested that the government relate the length of the UIC benefit period to the work period.

The MP was also critical of the federal proposal to extend the waiting period for Benefits to six weeks.

"If you work for awhile and then get yourself laid off so as to get unemployment insurance benefits, the length of time you are off work before getting benefits really is not that important; he claimed,"

If you are going to milk the system, a couple of weeks one way or the other is not of much consequence.

(Mr. Ellis early last year was a persistent critic of the UIC both in and out of the Commons when he called repeatedly for an inquiry into its administration.)

He accused the department of Manpower and Immigration, which manages Unemployment insurance, of making gross errors amounting to $250 to $300-million in past calculations.

Those figures were never corrected, he contended, showing by arrogance and its disguised disregard for the people of Canada.

"Four years later we are facing the same problem, what are we doing about it?" Mr. Ellis asked "We are using band-aid where major surgery is required."

During the debate, he suggested the government is looking its own restraint guidelines by boosting employer and employee premiums.

"The government increases the rate by 30 per cent, yet preaches restraint at the same time," Ex stated. "Is it making management and labor to hold to the 10 per cent line and then forces both into the positions of paying an extra 30 per cent to the UIC.

He has no sympathy for either big corporation or big unions, he added, but worries about the small businessman, carpenters and tradesman who are employed by small companies.

Red Wings and Leafs Give Hockey Black Eye

By NEIL CAMPBELL
The Canadian Press

No more Mister Nice Guy for Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings.

The Wings and Leafs lived up to their sazy-guing reputations Wednesday night in the first period of their National Hockey League game.

But in the final two periods of Toronto's 7-3 victory, the two teams carried on in the best tradition of hockey's bad boys, Philadelphia Flyers.

By the time the game was over, there had been a series of fights, two Detroit players had drawn game misconducts, a Toronto player was in hospital and Ontario Attorney-General Roy McMurtry was promising a look into an incident involving Detroit's Dan Maloney.

In hospital overnight for observation with a concussion was Toronto defenceman Brian Glennie who left the game after an altercation with Maloney.

Maloney jumped Glennie from behind in the second period and appeared to punch him several times as he fell to the ice.

The Detroit player drew a major penalty as a result of the incident. Glennie, who had checked Detroit's Bryan Hextall just before the attack, was not penalized.

McMurtry said Wednesday night he will be instructing the Crown attorney's office first thing this morning to make "a fairly complete investigation and see whether charges should be laid."

Last month McMurtry ordered a crackdown on violence in professional hockey games played in Ontario and said the possibility of laying criminal charges would be closely investigated.

In Wednesday's other games, Buffalo Sabres blanked Boston Bruins 4-0, Philadelphia Flyers tied Chicago Black Hawks 4-4, Pittsburgh Penguins edged New York Islanders 7-6, St. Louis Blues trimmed Minnesota North Stars 4-1, Los Angeles Kings dropped Washington Capitals 5-3, Montreal Canadiens defeated Atlanta Flames 5-1 and Kansas City Scouts edged California Seals 3-2.

Last season both the Leafs and Wings were regarded as teams that could be intimidated.

Detroit acquired Maloney and defenceman Terry Harper from

DAN MALONEY

Los Angeles Kings in the Marcel Dionne trade in an effort to add muscle. Toronto president Harold Ballard has complained frequently that his team isn't tough enough.

In Wednesday's game, referee Bryan Lewis assessed 197 minutes in penalties, including game misconducts to Detroit's Mike Bloom and Phil Roberts for being the third man in fights as the game progressed.

Maloney said he wasn't trying to hurt Glennie. The Toronto defenceman kept falling and "we kept trying to pick him up, he said.

"There was no intention on my part to hurt him by picking him up and dropping him back on the ice," he said. "If he'd fought back it would have been a different story."

Toronto's Dave Williams fought with Maloney as they left the penalty box later in the period. There were more fights as the game progressed, one of them involving Toronto's Ingo Hammarstrom, who Ballard has accused of disdaining body contact.

The Leafs took command of the game with three goals while Maloney was serving his major. Williams, Hammarstrom, Don Ashby, Stan Weir, Blaine Stoughton, Jim McKenny and Greg Hotsek were the Toronto scorers.

Buffalo's Peter McNab scored two goals and assisted on a third while goalie Gerry Desjardins stopped all 16 Boston shots on goal. The shutout was Desjardin's first since joining the Sabres late last season.

Grant Mulvey's second goal in the third period with less than five minutes remaining against Philadelphia climaxed a Chicago comeback from a 4-1 deficit to the Flyers.

Two first-period goals by Lowell McDonald and another by Bob Kelly opened up the Islanders' defence allowing Pittsburgh to beat the New Yorkers in a high-scoring game.

Penguin defenceman Rod Stackhouse drew a game misconduct for making an obscene gesture to the crowd in the third period and also incurred the ire of club president Wren Blair.

Blair said the Penguins would match whatever fine the league may assess against Stackhouse and that Stackhouse, although not suspended, would be held back from tonight's trip to St. Louis.

In another move, Blair said defenceman Steve Durbano, who sat out the last two games for insubordination, would be reinstated for St. Louis.

It Was Scoring Bug That Bit Howe

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Houston Aeros team-mates are trying to find the spider that bit Mark Howe recently.

"Hey, where can we find that spider," they jested Wednesday night after Mark scored three first-period goals to lead the Aeros to a 9-4 win over Minnesota Fighting Saints in a World Hockey Association game.

It was Mark Howe's first action since missing five games and spending seven days in hospital because of the spider bite.

But he seemed to have lost little because of the absence, scoring his first goal after only nine seconds. He hit again at 6:54 and finished with a goal at 12:32 as the Aeros led 5-1 at the end of the period.

Calgary Cowboys topped Quebec Nordiques 6-3 in Wednesday's other game.

The Howe family, brothers Mark and Marty and father Gordie, combined for nine points as the defending league champions grabbed a share of the Western Division lead for the first time this year.

The Aeros, who lost four of their first six games, now have won three in a row. They have played two fewer games than Phoenix Roadrunners, with whom they share first place.

Mark had three goals and an assist, Gordie a goal and two assists and Marty two assists. Frank Hughes and Rich Preston were the other Houston scorers.

John McKenzie scored twice and Mike Antonovich and Paul Holmgren each had one for the Saints before a record Houston crowd of 12,002 at the Aeros' new home arena, the Summit.

Rick Seeley scored a pair of third-period goals to help Calgary move to within one point of third-place Edmonton Oilers in the Canadian.

Calgary broke it open with three goals in the third period after the second period had ended in a 1-1 tie. The opening period was scoreless.

Don Tannahill and Terry Caffery scored the other Calgary goals, while Jean LaClerc and Boris Bordelean counted for Quebec.

Tonight's schedule has the Nordiques at Denver Spurs and Cincinnati Stingers at New England Whalers.

Not Fair - MacNeil

TORONTO (CP) — Bernie Macneil of Cincinnati Stingers says the publicity he has received over two recent altercations with World Hockey Association opponents has not been fair.

Macneil said in a telephone interview with the Globe and Mail he was blamed for hitting Perry Miller of Winnipeg Jets in the face with a high stick, but insists that isn't true.

Miller suffered an eye injury in the incident, which provoked a one-game walkout by Winnipeg star Bobby Hull to protest hockey violence.

"That whole incident was no way as bad as it was made out to be," Macneil told the newspaper. "Miller definitely didn't get it from a stick. He didn't get it from my stick."

Macneil said an earlier incident with Ric Jordan of Quebec Nordiques also was misunderstood. He said Jordan had been jabbing at Macneil with his stick when the Cincinnati player retaliated by swinging his stick. The stick glanced off Jordan's stick and hit his forehead, cutting him.

"They said after I was trying to kill him and stuff like that," Macneil said. "I took only one vicious swing at him and it wasn't to his head.

"I was wrong for using my stick that way, but I don't think I did any more than he did. The only difference was that I drew blood."

Saints Get Apology

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — The president of Minnesota Fighting Saints said Wednesday he had received an apology from an agent who contacted the rival Minnesota North Stars about two of the World Hockey Association club's players.

Jack Gordon, general manager of the National Hockey League's North Stars, received calls from Brian Smith of Detroit, who represents Henry Boucha, and from Bill Watters, a member of Alan Eagleson's staff who represents Mike Walton and John Gerrard.

Reports Tuesday said the two agents contacted the NHL North Stars, asking if there was any interest in the three Saints.

"I have received an apology from Watters," said Saints' president Wayne Belisle. "He told me he had called the North Stars about some problem with one of their player's contracts.

"During the conversation he asked if the North Stars would be interested in Walton or Gerard if the Saints ever ceased to operate. It was sort of taken out of context. It was merely an inquiry and not a request."

Walton's NHL rights are owned by Vancouver Canucks while Gerrard is on Chicago Black Hawks' negotiation list. Gordon told Watters, The North Star general manager also said his club wasn't interested in Boucha, who jumped from the North Stars to the Saints last summer.

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — The chief organizer of West Germany's famed Nuerburgring Grand Prix threatened Wednesday to turn the 1976 race into a Formula II event because of "astronomical" starting fees demanded by Formula I teams. Herbert Grunsky, racing secretary of the Automobile Club of Germany, said: "We can't pay what the team directors are demanding." The Formula I Association wants $250,000 plus $1 for each paying customer next year. In 1975, the Formula I teams got $196,000 for each event.

MARV LEVY

MONTREAL (CP) — Coach Marv Levy of Montreal Alouettes has chosen to stress the positive for the Eastern Football Conference semi-final next Sunday.

The Alouettes were trounced 46-9 by Jim Reed's Riders in Ottawa last Sunday, losing first place in the EFC and a bye into the conference final. They meet Hamilton Tiger-Cats here Sunday in the semi-final, with the winner advancing against Ottawa.

Levy has not shown the Alouettes the film of the Ottawa game.

"I think they know how bad-

[illegible] performance it was and I think they know what they have to do Sunday—that now one chance to win it Sunday is to be more physical," Levy said.

"I don't want our players to walk around in shame, dwelling on the negative side of it. I want them to do something positive."

The Alouettes finished the regular season with a 9-7 won-lost record against a 5-10-1 mark for the Tiger-Cats, who won a playoff spot Saturday by a 30-10 win over Toronto Argonauts.

Levy said the Alouettes concentrated on defence in practice Wednesday, with special attention to Hamilton quarterback Jerry Keling.

"Keeling now has a full grasp of the Hamilton offence and is executing very well, especially with respect to the passing [illegible] line is capable of handling it.

The Boomers, who finished last in the league, threw a ball around offensive attack against Riders despite the injury to rookie running back Richard Crerar.

"We have the best rushing team in the CFL this season," Riley said. "We were about 100 yards better than anyone else in total offence.

"I was concerned about our passing game in mid-season but in the last few games it has come on well," he said, giving credit mainly to Brock's ability to utilize the team's wide variety of good receivers.

The Riders won all three games between the clubs this season, by scores of 20-13, 27-21 and 20-17. All the games were decided in the final few minutes and Riley said they could have gone either way.

While the Boomers' offence is basically healthy, the club is missing a key player on defence, safety Brian Heroian. Riley said the rookie was "like a second middle linebacker" and played extremely well in shutting off the running game.

"[illegible] against them, would prefer to [illegible] forget most of the season when they head for the semi-final.

"I think we have more momentum going for us at this [illegible] time than any other team," Hamilton players who has been during numerous roster a regular fixture at his position changes.

Sam Samples is one of the few [illegible] says. That defensive end Mike Samples. "We've got confidence now".

Riley Has Faith In Quarterback

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers coach Bud Riley isn't concerned about the pressure on his sophomore quarterback going into the Western Football Conference semi-final game Saturday against Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Quarterback Ralph Brock saw limited action last season, throwing only 37 passes, but earned the first-string job in mid-season this year from veteran Chuck Ealey. Brock is facing his first real test as a professional year that his backup, Harry Kulpit, has never played in a Canadian game.

But Riley said Wednesday Brock "has matured and done an excellent job."

"All our games lately have been pressure games and Ralph has done an outstanding job," Riley said. "I'm not concerned about the pressure on him but I am concerned about a few other people who might be a little nervous."

Riley admitted that the Riders, who finished second in the West this season behind Edmonton Eskimos, have an excellent pass rush but says his offensive

Ruling by Judge Permits Signings

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — A federal judge issued a temporary injunction Wednesday giving all former World Football League players until Nov. 26 to sign with National Football League teams if they are not under contract to the WFL.

U. S. District Judge Edward Devitt issued the order after three hours of arguments by lawyers for the NFL and lawyers for 17 former WFL players.

Devitt said he was expanding the ruling to a class action, taking in all players, because they were all similarly affected by an edict by NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Rozelle told NFL teams in late October that they could not sign players from the WFL, which folded two weeks ago, to play in the NFL during the remainder of the current season.

Devitt said there had been a "substantial showing they will suffer irreparable harm" if not allowed to compete for jobs in the NFL this season. He said the NFL teams had engaged in a "conspiracy" that had the effect of depriving the WFL players of their "rights to freedom of contract."

NFL Franchise On Bassett's Mind

NEW YORK (AP) — The Memphis Southmen organization has signed about 50 former World Football League players in preparing for a possible National Football League franchise, Southmen owner John Bassett of Toronto said Wednesday.

Bassett refused to announce the names of the players, but said they mainly came from the Philadelphia and Southern California franchises.

When told of a federal judge's ruling giving former WFL players until Nov. 26 to sign with the NFL, Bassett said he didn't believe the ruling would "mean a wholesale signing" of former WFL players.

Bassett said Memphis and Birmingham, which is also attempting to secure an NFL franchise, were the only former WFL teams who still had players employed.

Bassett and his lawyers worked on an application for an NFL franchise Sunday and Monday, but have not formally presented it to the NFL.

Grand National Is in Trouble

LIVERPOOL, England - (AP) four miles, 856 yards, with 30 — British horse racing officials were pessimistic Wednesday about saving the Grand National, the world's most famous steeplechase.

The government-backed Betting Levy Board, which had offered to buy the Aintree course near Liverpool and keep the race going, failed to reach agreement with Bill Davies, Aintree's owner.

Sir Desmond Plummer, chairman of the board, said: "The question now is whether Mr. Davies is prepared to let the National die."

The Grand National has always been a gamble ever since it was first run at Aintree 136 years ago. It was always a toss-up whether any horse would get round the fearsome course—

Davies, head of the Walton Property Co., doled in the gamble when he bought Aintree for $8.3 million in 1973. He said he was willing to keep the National going as part of Britain's sporting heritage.

But also Davies took over, he has struggled against rising costs. He told the board he was willing to sell Aintree for what he paid for it, or alternatively to lease it for $420,000 a year and keep the television revenue.

"Totally unrealistic," said Plummer. "We have studied the finances of the Aintree course and the Grand National in depth, and our findings completely rule out anything like the sums demanded by Mr. Davies."

Record Crowd Boosts the Jazz

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
All that great New Orleans Jazz these days is not being played on Bourbon Street or in Preservation Hall.

With a National Basketball Association record crowd of 26,401 cheering them on, the Pete Maravich-led Jazz won its sixth successive game Wednesday night by slipping Los Angeles Lakers 113-110.

"The crowd was just fantastic and I had a feeling that our team wanted to play well for this one," said Jazz coach Bill Breda Kolff. "But we didn't play as well as we can."

In other NBA games Wednesday, Boston Celtics defeated Buffalo Braves 105-85, Detroit Pistons toppled Seattle Supersonics 134-107 and Philadelphia 76ers crushed Chicago Bulls 115-82.

In American Basketball Association games, New York Nets trimmed Indiana Pacers 119-102, San Diego Sails stopped Virginia Squires 118-104, Denver Nuggets crushed the Spirits of St. Louis 134-111-96 and San Antonio Spurs defeated Utah Stars 121-117.

With Maravich pouring in 30 points, New Orleans ran its record to 6-1, best in the NBA. Otto Moore teamed with Mel Counts to hold Kareem Abdul-Jabbar to just 11 field goals in 22 attempts.

Rule Upsets Rough Riders

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian Football League officials can expect complaints from Frank Clair, Ottawa Rough Riders general manager, regarding Jackie Bruce Smith being declared Tuesday on waivers by Toronto Argonauts.

Clair and Rider coach George Brancato said Wednesday they are against the rule that allows the last-place Eastern Football Conference squad to grab Smith.

"It happens every year," Brancato said. "I've asked about it before. Teams that are still in the playoffs can't pick up a player on waivers unless they make a roster change.

"Teams that are out can put a bunch of guys on th.. 21-day injured list after their last game and keep spots open on CONFIN lyrdcccxzzzzzzz"

Smith came to the Riders in an off-season trade with Edmonton Eskimos. The defensive tackle was hurt in a pre-season game and leg troubles kept him on the injury reserve list all season.

He came off the list last Saturday and the Riders put him on waivers hoping to recall him when he was fit in the final season game Sunday, a 46-6 victory over Montreal Alouettes.

Montreal and Hamilton Tiger-Cats could not claim Smith because they were in the playoffs.

"We're all supposed to be on a 32-man roster but that really doesn't apply to a team out of the playoffs. They can get around it and I don't think it is right."

Hawks and Sagueneens Move Up on Draveurs

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS
Gord Stevens and Gil-Paul Lacouture Sagueneens moved within a point of first-place Trois-Rivieres Draveurs in the East Division of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League with victories Wednesday night.

The Hawks downed Shawinigan Remparts 5-1 while the Sagueneens edged Shawinigan Dynamos 6-5. Trois-Rivieres leads the division with 15 points while Hull, seven losses and three ties, while the Sagueneens are 9-4 and the Hawks 8-6.

Richard Dalpe scored the winning goal at 15:07 of the second period as the Hawks turned back the Remparts at Sorel.

Gilles Perreault had two goals and Lucien Deblois and Jocelain Gelinas one apiece for the Hawks, while Eddy Godin contributed Quebec's only goal.

Andre Boudreau scored twice to lead the Sagueneens to their victory over the Dynamos. Sylvain Locas, Marc Desforges, Mario Tremblay and Robert Charette had the winners' other goals, while Benoit Gosselin with two and Yvan Hamelin with one replied for the Dynamos, who dropped to 6th.

In games tonight, Laval Nationale visits Hull Festivals and Cornwall Royals entertain the Draveurs.

Halas Says Changes Made Success Story

NEW YORK (AP) — George Halas, one of the founders of the National Football League, said Wednesday he believed it was the willingness of the league's owners to change playing rules over the last 56 years that made the game the success it is now.

Halas, also the founder and former coach and now chairman of Chicago Bears, made the comment in testimony al the New York session of the National Labor Relations Board.

It came in connection with a charge against the NFL management council by the NFL Players Association that management illegally made new rule changes in 1974 without consulting the players' union.

Some people think all humidifiers are the same.

This ad will change their minds.

Outside all humidifiers look good. Inside it's a different story. And that's a big reason why Wait-Skuttle Drumatic wholehouse humidifiers outsell all their competitors combined.

When people shop for a humidifier, they're not always thinking clearly. They've been irritated by a parched uncomfortable feeling in their nose and throat. They're uptight from getting electrical shocks every time they touch a door knob. And they're frustrated by squeaking floors and furniture that's coming apart at the joints. No wonder they sometimes make a hasty decision.

When you're ready to buy a humidifier, take your time and compare to make sure you're getting the best value for your money.

the case
Some competitors use plastic (looks good, but can warp or melt in close heat) or painted metal (vulnerable to rust). The Drumatic case not only looks good, it keeps on looking good. Sturdy stainless steel can't corrode. It opens wide to give access to every part of the humidifier. Maintenance instructions are printed on the inside cover so you can't lose them, and all outside edges have been rolled and smoothed out to eliminate injuries.

the drum
Drumatic makes their drum from durable Noryl, a material specially formulated to withstand heat and has a slippery finish that resists mineral build-up. Its two-piece design snaps apart at the touch of a spring clip, so changing the pad is a lot easier than with the old one-piece wire drums. The Drumatic pad is specially coated to last longer and provide maximum humidification power.

the motor
The motor is the heart of a humidifier. The Drumatic motor is the only manufacturer who builds a clutch into every motor to prevent premature burnout if something accidentally stops the drum from turning. Plus it has a heavy duty gearbrain that assures longer life than most others.

the pan
The Drumatic pan is made from polyester reinforced with fibreglass. It's heat resistant, non-corroive and it won't warp.

the works
When you buy a Wait-Skuttle Drumatic wholehouse humidifier everything you need is included. Universal humidistat, by-pass pipe and collar, transformer, colour-keyed wiring, water tubing and connections, sheetmetal screws, self-adhesive templates and even staples for stapling the wires in place. Competitive models may require a by-pass pipe, water tubing, wires, and staples in addition to the cost of the humidifier itself. The Drumatic also comes with comprehensive instructions that show you step by step how to install your humidifier with only tinsnips, ¼" drill, a screwdriver, or small adjustable wrench, and a hammer.

Comparison shopping is easy, once you know what to look for. So remember this when you're buying a humidifier. They're not all the same. The extra quality that's built into every part of every Drumatic humidifier is the difference you'll be able to feel, year after year after year.

the float and valve
The Drumatic float is super hard polyurethane and the valve assembly is nylon. Because they're not made of metal, they can't corrode. The float can't sink and the valve won't leak.

Install a DRUMATIC® HUMIDIFIER your whole house will feel the difference

'The chart shows that Toyota Corolla 1200 gives you more standard equipment for less money than Pinto, Chevette or Datsun.

And that is something they wouldn't want you to find out about. Or maybe they think the extra standard equipment the Corolla offers isn't important.

Fact is, we think much of it is essential.

We look on our electric rear window defroster, our power front disc brakes and our heavy duty battery as safety features, not as luxury options.

And we don't think you should pay extra to get into a comfortable driving position and that's why we offer you adjustable, reclining bucket seats at no extra cost.

And finally, we don't think you should pay through the nose for a car these days. That's the reason Toyota Corolla is lower priced than Pinto, Chevette or Datsun.

WE BUILD AND TEST, AND TEST AND BUILD.

If you think we're fastidious about how we build our cars, you should see how we test them.

We put them through a water and drizzle test that totally drenches them for days on end.

We put them through a dust tunnel. And on a suspension monitor that would jiggle the daylights out of many a car. Then we hand them over to experienced test drivers who drive them crazy.

But in the final analysis, it's all worth it. Because nine out of ten Toyotas ever sold in Canada are still on the road.*

Perhaps that's why Toyota Corolla is the top selling automobile model in the world. And the number one import in Canada.

Bowlers Can Beat Strike With Help from Jim

The great postal ripoff has got us all in a bad mess days and one of those more concerned than some over the pain in the clavicle-like severing removal of service is casualty, is Jim Nicholls.

Jim, stationed at Canadian Forces Base, Trenton, is one resident of Belleville who is among those finding it especially difficult to carry out responsibilities these days.

During the summer months, Jim's game is softball. This time of year, much of his spare time is taken up by five-pin bowling, when he isn't toiling part in the Sunday recreational hockey program at Dick Ellis Rink.

But Nicholls is more than a participant when it comes to the five-pin pastime. He gets involved in a larger degree than most. And that is why he now finds himself in the present predicament.

Entries for the annual Carling-O'Keefe Pin-Up Rolloff are now being taken and since there is no movement of mail, interested bowling enthusiasts must find other ways to make their intentions known.

Nicholls is tournament director this year. He has arranged for an extension of the deadline for entries which will now be accepted up until the first rolloff date, November 30.

"Bowlers may file entry at their bowling centres and we'll pick them up," says Jim.

Those interested may also drop off their entry fee ($20) at Jim's home, 10 Cannes Ave.

Bowlers take part in a 30-game series. The first 10-game leg is scheduled for November 20 at Trenton's D and A Lanes.

December 7 the action shifts to Belleville Plaza Bowl and the final 10 games will be rolled at Belleville Bowl-O-Drome, December 14.

The $30 entry fee does not include lineage costs.

Nine women and 10 men will qualify for play in the Ontario finals set for Hamilton in February and from there, it's the National Tournament in Regina, Saskatchewan, Easter Weekend.

In spite of the difficulty making connections these days, there has been a good response to the call for entries, says Nicholls.

And this year, more women are taking advantage of the opportunity to test their skills in the competition.

So there you are, Swingers, there's still time to get your entries in. But don't put it off. Strike (if you'll pardon the pun) now.

Penalty Costly, Lions Bow Out of Wrigley

OSHAWA (Special) — Scoring three times while enjoying a man advantage for seven minutes in the third period, Oshawa tripped Belleville Lions 8-5 here, Wednesday to advance in third round Wrigley Midget Hockey Tournament action.

JOHN JIANOPOULOS

Oshawa took the best of three playoff in straight games. The team, scheduled to meet Orillia next, took the opener of the showdown with Lions, 10-5, Sunday.

It was a 6-5 game when Belleville fan into a costly five-minute major for high sticking. The sentence calls an automatic game misconduct when assessed in the third period and that carries over. It an additional two-minute minor.

"We had a very good game but they're an excellent team," offered Lions manager Jerry Murphy.

"Our guys had them in trouble until we ran into that penalty," he said.

The teams were on even terms after two periods. It was a 4-4 score heading for the third. Each team had scored twice in the opening period and duplicated that feat in the second.

Terry Thompson was in goal for Lions for the first period but gave way to Steve Hamilton. Thompson aggravated an arm injury picked up during the football season.

John Jianopoulos and Bob Bunton each fired a pair of goals for Lions. Bobby Crawford scored once and earned a pair of helpers.

Two-goal shooters for Oshawa were Peter Goodman and Jim Jackson. Checking in with one each were Bob Zazuyk, Chris Brandt, Darren Campbell, Rusty Lane and Brian McGill.

"Naturally we would have liked to go all the way in the Wrigley," said Murphy, "but now we can concentrate on Ontario Minor Hockey Association AAA play and we'll be busy with tournaments."

The Belleville team got by Kingston Guernsey Midgets in first round play, taking the series 9-1.

Busy Bobcats Keep Producing

The Belleville Bobcats are in the midst of another scheduling crunch. For the second time this season the Cats have had to drive whiskers first into a three over four days conglomeration of games.

The trio of contests began Tuesday night against Whitby, when the local Metro Junior B squad downed the Brutins 6-5. Wednesday night was practice night for the tabbies and tonight they roll into Kingston for the second regular season meeting of the two clubs. If that isn't tough enough, Friday they are right back at home against the Legionaires, from Oshawa.

With the season over one-quarter gone Belleville remains in the Metro Junior B limelight. They have yet to be defeated although they have, on several occasions, had to pull some hair-raising comebacks out of the hat to retain their record.

The last time Belleville was in Kingston the Voyageurs took a real crack at the Cats' undefeated mark. The final score was 6-5, but Belleville had to get a goal with less than two minutes remaining to win it.

Prior to that game Belleville had beaten the Voyageurs three times. Twice in pre-season action and a 9-3 win here in regular season.

However, the real test will come Friday night when the Cats are at the Memorial Arena against Oshawa. It was the Legionaires who broke Belleville's win streak. Against them, Belleville had to settle for a 6-6 tie.

Another match also ended in Oshawa. Belleville's Tony Meagher had scored in six straight regular season games until the one against the Legionaires. Oshawa not only kept him off the scoresheet, they kept the high flying rookie off the scoresheet. Not only did his goal streak end, but his assist streak, which had also run six consecutive games, was cut off.

That may go in Belleville favour as Meagher looks for a measure of revenge. He is currently the second highest scorer on the Bobcat roster with 13 goals and 11 assists.

The only player on the club with an extended points streak to watch out for is the number one point-getter, Grant Goegan. He has 11 goals and 16 assists in nine games. His goal streak ended at eight games as he was shutout Tuesday night in Markham, but he has drawn at least one assist in all nine of the Cats games this season.

Another player running hot is Trenton's Bruce Leedham. The left winger currently has stand third in the Cats scoring statistics, but has acquired most of his 13 points, including three goals, in the last three games.

Following Friday the locals don't play again for a week. That too is a home encounter; against Kingston.

Game time for Friday's contest with Oshawa is 9 p.m.

Lancers Aiming to Improve Record

Loyalist College Lancers breezed into the 1975-76 campaign with an overwhelming 46-16 over St. Lawrence, Cornwall last week. That win set a new record for the Lancers in Eastern Ontario College Athletic Association action.

However, the local community college men's basketball squad comes up against its first real test in EOCAA play over the course of the next two nights.

At 7 p.m., tonight the Lancers take on Kingston St. Lawrence and Big Blue. The Kingston city crew was the nemesis of of the Lancers in the early part of last season beating them by scores of 53-47 and 75-74. It was during that stretch that Loyalist dropped six of their first seven games. All but one of the losses were by marginal margins.

Big Blue rolled to the EOCAA pennant with 14 wins in 15 regular season starts. Loyalist, on the other hand, battled back after a disastrous first half to finish the year with a 6-9 mark.

Kingston then knocked Loyalist out of the playoffs in the semi-final and went on to win the East Division championship and a berth in the All-Ontario Tournament.

However, this year, for one of the few in their history, Kingston's Big Blue machine may live up to their name. For this years they are without their two top gunners of last season. Loyalist, though losing all but one of last year's starters, appears to have made up for the lack of stars with strong, almost intimidating team work.

Tonight's contest could be the start of a revenge trail for the Lancers. However, tonight's is just the half of it. The other half of the test takes place Friday night at Sir Sandford Fleming College, Peterborough.

Despite Peterborough's miserable 2-13 record of last season the Lancers never managed to score a decisive win over them. In three confrontations the greatest scoring margin between the two was seven points.

Sir Sandford, like Loyalist, has been fiercely attempting to establish some semblance of player development. While the Lancers may have finally broken the ice and gotten their feet on the ground as a well balanced club, Peterborough is due to have the same thing occur. And this could very well be their year for a respectable showing.

The only returning player, centre Dave Calmor, promises to be the stalwart of Loyalist's offence. In last week's lopsided victory he handily dumped in 23 points.

Meanwhile rookie teammates Ken Fairbrah, Jim Bellfall and Wilf Lecoiors were also hitting double figures. Fairbrah struck for 18.

Regardless of the results of the next two games, the Lancers have already improved on their record of last year with an opening season win.

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Friday, Nov. 7

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Though you're truly cognizant of the other fellow's interests in your joint endeavors today, it won't come off that way. You'll push too hard.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're going to be uncertain about your decisions today. Though you try to camouflage it, others will see that you have masquerade.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) To get what you want today you're going to have to work a lot harder than usual. Don't depend on someone else to pull your chestnuts out of the fire.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Family pressures on your mate have been extraordinary today. Alleviate the tension. Take her out for dinner and relaxation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) You could be upset because you feel that those on the home front don't appreciate what you're doing for them. Don't worry, they know and they'll repay you in hearts.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) You're in very good salesmanship today, so avoid selling friends on something you're not sure of. They'll take you seriously and could get burned.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) Let your generosity today be without thought of pity or reception. Virtue should be its own reward for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you're traveling today, keep a cool, sharp weather eye peeled for stoplights, speed traps and people behind you. In attention could lead to trouble.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You still must be wary regarding your finances today. You're likely to let someone off the hook by not keeping track of your good intentions.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Don't press friends for favors today, if they have to be untoward aid, it's because they can't at this time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Your chances of success are excellent today if you don't bring too many people into the act. Continue what you're doing to those directly involved.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You have a tendency to overstuff your purse today. Stop the habit with the attitude you get your first "yes."

LOCK HAVEN, Pa. (AP) — American skiers are flying longer and farther these days, with fewer accidents, reports Piper Aircraft Corp. Maple Sugar Industry Grows

HALIFAX (CP) — The maple sugar industry is sweet and growing in Nova Scotia.

New and improved methods of tree tapping are the main reason for increased production and "terrific potential," said an official of the province's agriculture department.

The average annual yield now is 80,000 gallons but there is potential for a million gallons, he said.

"Tapping individual trees with buckets has given way to line tapping—a plastic hose linking 25 to 75 trees leading to a downhill line and a storage tank.

Bronchial Asthma Can Be Treated

By G. C. Thielssen, MD

Dear Dr. Thielssen: My doctor said I have a mild case of bronchial asthma. Can this ever be cured?

Quite often my lungs feel like they can't expand like they should. The medication doesn't seem to help very much. Then my doctor said there is nothing else he can do to help me, because I'm allergic to a lot of medications. I am still smoking cigarettes.

I'm sending along the brand names of the two medicines I'm taking for it. What are these supposed to do for my bronchial tubes or lungs? — Mrs. P.K.

Besides your allergy to many medications, there are probably other factors in your environment — certain foods, dust, animal danders, etc. — that provoke your asthma. You might investigate.

Of the two medications you mention, one dilates your bronchial tubes to make breathing easier. The other, cromolyn, by itself is a relatively new preparation which may prevent attacks but has been slow not in progress. Its action in forestalling attacks is unknown, but it has been found quite effective.

Don't ask why your doctor tells you there is nothing else he can do to help you. Medicine lately is. Why don't you stop smoking cigarettes and end all of that "nothing else" stuff?

The treatment for asthma depends on control of the allergy, the underlying cause, whether allergic in origin or not, especially in the case of your smoking.

Dear Dr. Thielssen: I would like to understand nocturnal diarrhea. I have had it following my surgery two years ago. — J.B.

I would have to know much more about your case to give a very specific. The type of surgery you had could be involved. After some such operations, it is called the "dumping syndrome" occurs, especially if a straight portion of stomach has been removed. Surgical procedures refers to the sudden passage of food into the upper bowel.

Does your problem occur continually or only occasionally? If only occasionally, keep track of the food eaten for dinner before the diarrhea occurs.

The use of alcoholic beverages can be a factor, too.

A study of the intestinal tract by x-ray and proctoscope would be in order. In some cases, a lack of proper amounts of hydrochloric acid in the stomach can cause diarrhea, and you might be checked for that.

I trust you have discontinued the habit of cigarette smoking. Too many patients undergo surgery such as yours, then neglect to report post-operative symptoms to their doctors. There are to be expected, and the doctor can prescribe methods of allaying them.

Dear Dr. Thielssen: My 18-year-old daughter is concerned because her breasts have not developed, her right breast is considerably larger than the left. Being left-handed, it is possible that her active left arm tended to stimulate growth of the fatty tissue? — S.S.

A difference in breast size is not unusual, but the use of the left arm has nothing to do with it. The variance in size will become less noticeable with time.

Dear Dr. Thielssen: If one likes to sleep nude, will that dull the brain in any way? — N.M.P.

No harm.

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

Forty years ago Oswald Jacoby was one of a small group of experts who suggested that when your partner opened the bidding and you had only seven bust one bid, you should use this to raise your partner, if possible.

Today's hand from the spring charity games illustrates this. North's hand is worth just one bid. If he responds one spade he is going to have lots of future problems as South starts to take very strong action with his very fine hand.

If North but raises to two hearts, South will simply contract for the least game.

A seventh son of a seventh son ruling what can open the ace of diamonds and continue the suit. East will ruff and if he leads back a club the four-heart contract will be sunk without a trace. Against normal defence South will make four or five. Maybe, even six if a spade is opened and East makes the mistake of playing his high card after an honor as played from dummy.

Ask the Jacobys

A South Carolinian wrote to have what we do when we hold a no trump opening bid opposite an opening bid we intend to play. We recommend Stayman, which is as naturally as possible. Hence, we always respond 2♣ by bidding our longest suit.

Maritime Fish Catch Brings Higher Prices

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Since the summer cod-trap fishery ended, most Newfoundland fishermen have been receiving higher prices for their cod and other species.

The price paid for good quality cod ranges from 11 cents a pound at the start of the season in the north to 13½ cents on Conception Bay and 15 cents on Rose Blanche on the southwest coast.

Other prices range from 12 cents a gallon for cod livers to 24 cents a pound for shrimp and salmon and lobster at 82 and $1.19 respectively. However there is no fall lobster season in the province and the price applied to the spring and early summer catches.

Crab, which Newfoundlanders have been catching commercially only during the last few years, is worth 11 cents a pound to the producer landed in its natural state.

Two species that are bringing good returns to many fishermen this fall are mackerel and herring.

Hundreds of veteran fishermen say mackerel were never so plentiful in inshore waters. Herring were so abundant on St. Mary's Bay that thousands of pounds were harvested from single nets.

Both species only bring the fishermen four cents a pound at many processing plants but the fish are sold as taken from the water and no time is lost in cleaning and curing.

In addition to the price paid fishermen by processing plants, there is a federal subsidy program this year of 3½ cents a pound for fishermen.

Squid, a small cuttle fish, was the species bringing the smallest return to the fishermen at three cents a pound. Once a favorite with hook-and-line fishermen at Petty Harbor is no demand for this species among the crews of other fishing vessels using modern catching methods.

Squid returned to the inland waters in abundance this fall and the herring migrated in vast numbers. Thousands of pollack and other inshore species left the bait fish as clues to where that vast hoards of herring migrated, became stranded and perished. A federal government ban on commercial herring fishery from taking the animals for processing.

Handleman Attacks Labor

TORONTO (CP) — Sidney Handleman, Ontario minister of consumer and commercial relations, told labor, criticized business, labor and government Wednesday for what he called their pig-at-the-trough attitudes during the last several months.

Speaking at a meeting of the Federated Council of Sales Executives, he said the attitude has caused fear, jealousy and insecurity and has resulted in the federal wage and price controls.

The period since the CONTROLS were announced has been "incredible."

"Union leaders in responsible positions have said they will knowingly defy the law of the land," he said. "Government spokesmen contradict each other and fail to explain what their programs are.

"Business leaders, meanwhile, continue to display the same dismal apathy and defensive-mindedness that have decided them any serious participation in economic decision-making."

Mr. Handleman said society is witnessing the con-ed-ferral play of a country that has more promise than partnership and more shearing than sharing."

Labor leaders rage against the controls, calling for exemptions in the self-righteous rhetoric "that might have been writings for a British coal strike 50 years ago."

Business leaders agree with wage restraint, but criticize the "unpalatable details." When prices and profits skyrocketed in 1974, business was too busy cashing in to talk about restraint.

Mr. Handleman said provincial spending has mushrooned in recent years but in the last few months, Ontario has at least indicated it has the will and the ability to act.

He said more than 1,600 civil servant positions were cut in 1974 and another 1,600 will be dropped this year. Ontario also has announced that over-all increases in government spending will be limited to 10 per cent.

Text of the speech was released prior to delivery.

Zoo Recalls Employees

TORONTO (CP) — The Metropolitan Toronto Zoo has recalled more than half of the 49 employees it laid off last month P. J. O'Keefe, staff representative of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), said Wednesday.

The zoo laid off 39 permanent employees and 30 probationary employees Oct. 25 in an effort to reduce a $317,000 deficit. However, the union said the permanent employees $100 a week to continue working.

Mr. O'Keefe said 24 of the permanent workers were reinstated following an agreement Wednesday by zoo director Philip Ogilvie and Local 1005, CUPE. The remaining five permanent employees will likely return as jobs become vacant, he said.

Mr. O'Keefe said that under the agreement the union local will contribute $10,000 to the zoological fund and will assist in fund-raising activities.

Male Birth Pill Studied

TORONTO (CP) — About 30 young men are undergoing testing at Mount Sinai Hospital as part of research to find a birth control pill for men, a hospital spokesman says.

Dr. Jerald Bain, director of the reproductive biology unit, said researchers will study the effect of synthetic hormones—designed to lower normal secretion of sex hormones—on the men.

He said the synthetic hormones, in pill form, affect the pituitary gland, which releases body hormones responsible for sperm production.

During the first three months of the 15-month study, researchers will do routine monthly sperm counts, blood tests and physical examinations to eliminate unhealthy or abnormal subjects, he said.

In the next six months, volunteers will take the pill at least once a day and will undergo sperm counts every two weeks to see if sperm production is reduced.

Dr. Bain said some of the men, between 18 and 36, will take more than one pill because researchers want to test different doses.

The study is being paid by the World Health Organization's study on male fertility.

Labor View Not Supported

WINNIPEG (CP) — The president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association (CMA) said Wednesday that labor's view that the government's anti-inflation program favors business is not supported by facts.

"Labor, including salaries and wages, stands to gain under the program at the expense of business and business investment," Harold Corrigan said.

He told the Manitoba branch of the CMA that findings of government investigations into the profits of the steel and food processing industries demonstrate that profits cannot be blamed on rising prices.

"I am afraid that if labor adopts a posture of working against the anti-inflation program, regardless of how valid any specific complaint may be, it will bring about the very thing labor wants to avoid—a long period of thrusting concerns over collective bargaining."

A text of his speech was released prior to delivery.

Ontario Retains Top Credit Rating

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says executives of North America's two major credit-rating agencies have decided to maintain a top rating for Ontario following reviews by both companies.

The newspaper says a spokesman for Moody's Investors Service Inc. in New York City announced Wednesday that the company will continue to give the province a triple-A rating.

It quotes an executive of Standard and Poor's Corp. as saying his company will again give Ontario a double-A rating.

The ratings are used as indicators by investors and by finance interest rates the province will pay when offering bonds on the United States and Mall says executives of money market.

Ontario's standing was reviewed because it is entering the New York market next week with a $300-million bond issue.

The newspaper quotes the Standard and Poor's executive as saying his agency was concerned by Ontario's rising deficit which has been increasing by 50 per cent a year.

The deficit, which jumped to almost $3 billion this year from $923 million 18 years ago, is expected to remain at about $2 billion for another year.

Ontario will borrow about $1 billion on the international money market this year to finance the provincial government and Ontario Hydro. It will try to raise about $700 million of the money on the New York market, the newspaper says.

Inventors Perfect Two-stroke Engine

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 68-year-old Vancouver inventor and a British engine designer are working on a two-stroke gasoline engine which might provide better fuel economy for small boats and snowmobiles.

Richard James, who mortgaged his home to fund part of the project, won the services of the British expert when the Norton Killier Triumph motorcycle company folded.

With his helper, wife Jo, James would not identify, he is hoping to carry development to the point where his engine can be put into production, providing cash backing becomes available.

He says his design could offer lightweight power for small boats and snowmobiles. Its centre of gravity development spending to date at $200,000.

The engine comprises two wedge-shaped pistons working on a common, fixed shaft within a circular housing. The flat faces of the pistons move together and then spring apart, opening the angle of about 110 degrees. This action operates the crank, turning one set of geared drive shafts.

The opposed pistons exert no pressure on their surrounding housing—cum-combustion chamber and their arching travel permits the use of a straight-edge piston seal. In some rotary engines, with firing chambers of irregular shape, seals have to have a rounded profile, which sometimes leads to chatter and gas leak.

Mr. James says the engine offers favorable power-to-weight ratio, good fuel economy and is relatively pollution-free. He says he has been developing his engine for the last 10 years and now is working on a refinement which will further improve its fuel economy.

Canada Needs 100,000 Immigrants to Offset Low Birth Rate

OTTAWA (CP) — A special parliamentary committee today called for a report in the Commons Thursday saying Canada needs an annual 100,000 immigrants a year to offset a declining birth rate.

But the committee of nine Senate and 18 Commons members shied away from a definite ceiling on newcomers. That was a government decision, the committee said.

However a draft of the report, leaked to some reporters last month, had suggested a limit of about one per cent of the population or 225,000 a year at the current level.

The final report, to be discussed by Parliament, likely will form the backbone of new immigration policy.

The committee rejected the view in some of the 1,300 submissions it received since starting work last March that Canada should close its doors to immigrants. It also concluded that an open-door policy is not the answer.

"The committee's preference is for a policy of moderation between these two extremes."

A major recommendation is that any new policy should encourage immigrants to settle in areas away from the major cities. Those willing to sign a two-year contract along these lines would jump to the front of waiting lists.

This proposal, which would be implemented only after talks with the provinces, brought immediate criticism from one of the committee members—David MacDonald, a Tuttle Conservative who is the Progressive Conservative MP for the Prince Edward Island riding of Egmont.

Mr. MacDonald said the tone of the report is perverted in the way the committee quoted and agreed with the Newfoundland government's view that immigration "must be brought under control and rationally directed . . . to best serve the interests of Canadians."

He said the major thrust of the report clearly is short-term and selfish.

Hotel, Marina, Housing
Bayfront Slated For $35 Million

BY COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The Intelligencer has learned a $35 million urban development project now is being slated for Belleville's waterfront.

Mayor Ben Corke said the first stage of the development would include a "substantial hotel complex complete with a convention hall."

Second and third phases of the five-year scheme would include "housing of some magnitude" and a "boatie" — an overnight lodging for marine visitors.

Mayor Corke also said the project will also include "substantial docking and marina facilities as well as protective islands."

Plans call for shops and service units in the hotel and people-oriented use of the boardwalk and islands," his release stated.

Mayor Corke said the developmental would stretch easterly from south Front St. and centre in the area of South John St.

During a meeting of the Quinte Planning Board, city alderman Arthur Keegan blurted out several crucial details of the project which until Thursday had been a matter of strict confidentiality."

Ald. Keegan, explaining why Canada Pacific Rail lines had to be moved from the city's east end, told members of the board of a $35 million project but would cover a large portion of the old Foster Ward.

City Mayor Ben Corke refused making any comment until the lease has been signed.

Grasping an interview today Mayor Corke said he has received permission from the province to release certain facts.

Mayor Corke could not say precisely how much land the development would cover, only that it is government-owned land.

The developers will be taking on a 30-year lease on the property with an option to renew, he said.

Mayor Corke said he does not know of any government subsidies that will be made to the developers to offset capital costs.

He could not comment on the housing scheme and said he has never seen it in detail," when asked of the possibility of high-rise construction. "I suppose there will be but I'm not leasing."

Beyond that, Mayor Cork refused making any comment on the project until a formal announcement is made by the developer. He said he did not know the developer's name and that the city had been negotiating with consultants in Ottawa.

As a core sector of Belleville's waterfront area, one shoreline zone of Foster Ward already has been produced redevelopment proposals.

The Quinte Bay Front Study started a year ago — saw suggestions for a big marina development in the vicinity of but now is the federal government dock basin suggested in preliminary reports by consultants.

The final report — defining shoreline responsibilities — scheduled in the Point Anne — ayside area — has yet to be widely presented.

But its chief consultant Ralph C. Crysler of Toronto made no statement about development of ervices Oct. 31 at a meeting the Canada-Ontario-Ridesu-rent-Severn study committee (CORTS) in Belleville.

Government funding should not become involved if private enterprise can provide services, he said.

Price Index Rises Sharply

OTTAWA (CP) — Higher prices for housing and food helped push the consumer price index nine-tenths of one per cent higher during October, Statistics Canada reported today.

Higher costs for home ownership, partly because of an average rise of more than 13 per cent in residential property taxes, accounted for about half the monthly rise in living costs.

But in addition, food prices resumed an upward march after declining during September. Higher beef and pork prices, as well as increases for fresh vegetables, coffee, canned salmon and restaurant meals were aided by Statistics Canada.

The index is 10.8 per cent higher than it was in October, 1974. That is the same annual rate of inflation as in September.

The latest statistics come when the government is facing opposition from labor unions in its anti-inflation program because the unions say the program cannot control prices effectively.

Besides food and shelter, transportation rates were higher in Montreal; water rates in many municipalities went up and fees for some professional services, mainly dental care, were increased.

Higher domestic crude prices, plus the 10-cents-a-gallon federal excise tax on gasoline will eventually add between one and one half and two percentage points to the consumer price index, Statistics Canada estimates.

The consumer price index in October was at 161.8. Stated another way, this means a basket of consumer goods that could be bought for $100 in 1971 cost $161.80 last month. The same basket cost: $141.50 in September and $139.10 a year ago.

Mackasey Invites Strikers To Break Union's Stand

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian postal system remained at a near standstill for the fifth day of striking following the collapse of today federal conciliation efforts to construct negotiations Thursday.

During an evening and early morning meeting today of the executive council of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW), a spokesman would only say: "There will be no declaration until tomorrow."

Jean-Claude Parrot, the union's vice-president and chief negotiator, earlier said the executive would decide its next move at that meeting.

At noon Thursday Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey announced the breakdown and said talks had broken off indefinitely.

He said the 22,000 postal workers must accept the final government contract offer and turn to work or reject the offer and stay on strike.

He also invited the inside workers to defy the negotiating team and return to work, sorting mail and manning postal wickets, without a contract settlement.

Mr. Mackasey said he advised the union to present the government offer to its membership for a vote "to see whether or not what the employer has offered is fair and equitable."

The workers walked off their jobs when negotiators could not agree on which items should be settled first, monetary issues such as wages or such non-monetary issues as the use of casual, non-union labor.

In another development Thursday the Letter Carriers Union of Canada said the post office has illegally laid off 18,000 of its members.

Robert MacGarry, national union president, said in a news release that the union will take action through its legal counsel and its grievance procedure to have members paid for time lost under the layoff.

Mr. MacGarry said the post office has discriminated against the letter carriers by laying them off on the third day of the strike while leaving other postal employees on the job.

The government wags offer included a $1.50 an hour increase in a 30-month contract and a cost-of-living adjustment formula by the end of next-an hour on every 0.4 per cent increase in the consumer price index.

The union wants 31 per cent over its average $4.56 an hour for 24 months.

Mr. Mackasey repeatedly has said the CUPW will get an exact equivalent federal wage guides under a catch-up clause if they accept the offer, adding to that accepted by the letter carriers last spring.

Makeshift Mailman

Now that postal talks have broken off completely and the country plunges deeper into total mail disruption, Phil Parkes of the Belleville Public Utilities Commission and others like him may become commonplace. While mail is tied up, many firms will have to turn to their employees to hand deliver billing statements and other urgent pieces of mail.

Marchers May Bluff Mine Field Threat

KILOMETRE EIGHT (AP) — More than 100,000 Moroccans spent a cold night on the desert 25 miles from the Spanish army's front line of barbed wire and armored cars barring their way farther into the Spanish Sahara.

The Spanish army said it has planted 20,000 mines behind the barbed wire, but many Moroccan officials believe the Spanish are bluffing.

It was not known when or whether the march would resume.

Spain's representative at United Nations headquarters in New York told the Security Council the Moroccan information minister has warned the Spanish ambassador in Rabat that the march would continue at the risk of high casualties and a "situation of belligerency" unless Spain agrees immediately to negotiations to transfer the territory to Morocco.

But Moroccan Ambassador Driss Slaoui told the council his government informed him King Hassan II "solemnly affirms" his intention to avoid any incidents with Spain and seek a solution in the UN framework.

Postal Strike Hurts Christmas Card Sales in Quinte Stores

BY SUE McCONNELL
Staff Reporter

The postal strikes is already posting a damper on Christmas spirits and the traditional Christmas greetings may not be a part of this year's holiday season.

Managers of local card shops say they are having difficult time unloading huge quantities of Christmas cards and they are blaming the postal strike.

Previously the deadline for posting cards to Europe was Dec. 6 while cards heading the British Isles were sent by Dec. 15. In-town cards were posted almost until Dec. 25.

Most store managers purchase their Christmas card stock during the summer and, if the strike continues, will take a financial loss for their error.

The cards have been on display in most stores.

Ralph Hodgson, manager of Coles Book Store, said only one half of the usual supply of cards is on display. "There is no way we can compare sales to last year's," added Mr. Hodgson. He said the only cards selling were the ones children buy at school parties.

"If the postal strike ends before Christmas we'll put the rest of the cards out and hope for a mini stampede," he said.

Mr. Hodgson said book sales were also affected. "It's no only an inconvenience, but the mail strike is expensive."

Manager Steve Winkle, of Sears, said the postal strike was more than just an inconvenience. "It's bombed us completely," he said.

Sears has a large section in the centre of the store dedicated to Christmas greetings and wrapping paper.

Mr. Winter said only one quarter of the cards that were sold this year compared to last year's figures. "Assuming the postal strike ends in weeks time we'll probably put the cards on sale before Christmas," he said.

Ted Colbourne, manager of Reading and Greeting shops here and in Peterborough and Ottawa, said he hasn't sold hardly any Christmas cards, and in general, business was poor.

"The only thing I can do is write our member of parliament and ask him if he wants to buy all these cards."

Shopsite manager Betty Hunt said it was still too early for her to measure the impact of the strike on sales but cards in an early sale in August sold quickly.

Canada Will Cut Oil To U.S. by 30 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (CP) — Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie indicated strongly Thursday that Canada will cut its oil exports to the United States by about 30 per cent starting Jan. 1.

Gillespie, making a one-day visit to Washington, declined to assert flatly the reductions will take place.

However, in a conversation with reporters he said a recent Ottawa story by The Canadian Press had suggested a one-third reduction in oil exports being considered and added: "That was a very good guess."

He repeated the comment several times and left an impression the federal cabinet now accepts a still confidential National Energy Board report recommending exports be cut to 500,000 barrels a day in 1976 from an average of 700,000 barrels daily this year. Gillespie said the Energy Board's full report will be tabled in the Commons in 10 days or so.

Gillespie, who arrived Thursday night, meets U.S. Interior Secretary Thomas Kleppe, Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb and other top U.S. officials before returning to Ottawa later today.

Nutrition Worldwide

Nutrition is not only a concern for Canadian children but its value applies to youngsters around the world. The message is part of the public awareness display at the Quinte Mall Thursday and today. Fay Cottrell (left), 8, of 67 Lingham St. and Sherry Lynn Burrows, 8, of 196 Victoria Ave., both of Belleville, eye the display's symbolism of the worldwide concept — a group of dolls fronting a map representing countries all over the Earth. The display highlights Nutrition Week this week.

Millions of people have diabetes and do not know it. Here are some questions and answers, that will give you important information about this disease.
Question — Exactly what is diabetes?

Question - Can diabetes be cured?
Answer - No But fortunately it can be controlled.
Question - Who will usually get diabetes?
Answer - Although anyone can become diabetic, certain people have a better chance of developing it than others. Over 80% of those who get diabetes have a history of it in the family. It is most common in the middle and older ages and it has a special preference for women In most newly diagnosed cases the person is over weight.
Question - How can you tell if you have diabetes?
Answer - It is possible to have diabetes without symptoms. The only way is test by testing. The common signs are excessive urination, thirst and hunger, loss of weight, weakness, fatigue and fatigue.
Question - How Is Diabetes treated?
Answer - It can range anywhere from daily injections of insulin, oral medication or possibly just a careful watching of the diet. Most important though to follow directions of your doctor implicitly.

Brighton Township, Village To Proceed with New Arena

BY RON HUSER
Staff Reporter

BRIGHTON — Officials of Brighton Village and Township have decided to build a new arena in King Edward Park here. The decision was reached at a special meeting held Thursday night in Brighton.

Arnold Ross, reeve of Brighton Township, said the agreement will leave room for Murray Township to join in, if desired.

Murray Township council postponed a decision until a poll of its taxpayers was received by council. To date, only 35 per cent of the ballots have been received due to the postal strike.

"By proceedingalong, the price will go up and up," said Bill Pettingill, Brighton village councillor.

A resolution was passed to ask Hugh Murray (1976) Ltd., to draw up the specifications for the project. The specifications will be then taken to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval and once approved, opened for tender.

Cost of the arena is to be shared by the two councils. It was decided that Brighton Village will assume 57 per cent and the Township, 43 per cent of the $400,000 estimated cost. The township resolution stated the cost percentage would change if Murray Township entered the project.

The councils will also approach the Winston Fund for grants. Under the grant system, Shirley Patterson, village clerk and treasurer, said the village of Brighton could receive $114,000 and be township, $80,000.

The old arena was closed by the ministry of labor two weeks ago. This resulted in the cancellation of most of the municipality's programs affecting more than 2,000 residents.

Demolition of the arena will begin Monday by Rideau Demolition of Oshawa.

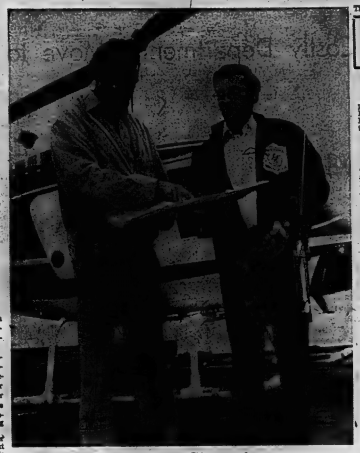
The demolition is expected to be completed within two weeks, said Mrs. Patterson.

By building around the old ice surface, it would save between $35 to $45,000 said Mr. Ross.

The present ice surface will be retained and used by the local leagues during the winter. The natural ice surface should be "good until the middle of March," said William Tonelli, deputy reeve of the township.

The dressing rooms and the canteen will also be retained and enclosed, said Mr. Ross. He also estimated the cost would be about $1,700 to $2,000 but a final estimate will be given once the rest of the arena is torn down.

Construction on the new arena is expected to begin next year.



Bill 100, Controls Complicate Talks

A mutual understanding of Bill 100 is the only way to ensure the continuation of amicable contract talks in this county, says Dale Denyes, manager of staff services for the Hastings County Board of Education.

Negotiations, expected to begin in January will be greatly affected by Bill 100 as school board officials are optimistic the new legislation will not hinder the normally trouble-free talks between teachers and the board.

Bill 100, designed to smooth over teacher-board relations, was whisked into law last spring after a stormy winter of contract disputes across the province, often ending in high salary settlements.

Mr. Denyes, who is directly involved in talks here, said he believes a common approach to the legislation by both teachers and the board will undoubtedly resolve potential conflicts.

However, clear definition of parts of the legislation is difficult and this is causing concern among teachers and trustees. The Hastings board hopes to meet with representatives of the federations prior to January to find a common ground.

Meanwhile, Mr. Denyes said the board and teachers can only watch the current situation in Toronto where the legislation is being applied.

The situation is further complicated by th federal economic restraints which restrict wage increases to 10 per cent. Education minister Thomas Wells has insisted the guidelines will apply to provincial employees, including teachers.

Both sides will be under considerable pressure next year in view of the ministry's use of fact-finders. If by Sept. 1, 1976, a settlement has not been reached the province's education relations commission can appoint a fact-finder to the talks.

The fact-finder, specially trained by the ministry, studies the two sides, makes a final report to the commission. The commission in turn gives the report to both sides.

If the parties do not reach an agreement within 15 days of tabling the report the commission then makes the report public.

Mr. Denyes explained that publicizing the fact-finds' report would undoubtedly cause some embarrassment to either side, or even both parties.

Checking Situation

With reports of forest fires coming into Tweed district natural resources office Thursday, forestry officials decided to make aerial survey of the situation and today to take off by helicopter are conservation officer Dave Atkinson (left) and Doug Mumford, district forest fire control supervisor.

Outbreak of Fires Blamed On Hunters, Dry Weather

By HARRY BULBALL
Staff Reporter

TWEED — Dove-hunting season is ending with an unexpectedly threatening touch in the Quinte district's northern bushland.

Hunters — and exceptional dry weather conditions — are being blamed for a small, but unseasonal, spate of brush fires.

As a result, the natural resources ministry's at Tweed Thursday night was planning to airlift firefighting crews into two trouble spots.

The outbreaks come at the end of a year which already is believed to have set a new record for forest fires — both in the Tweed district and the province.

Reports of the fires sent ministry forestry officials on a hurried helicopter flight out of Tweed over surrounding township bushland.

From a scattering of reports they pinpointed four outbreaks. Among the largest were fires in Lake Township in Hastings County and near Plevna — both burning across an estimated 25 acres.

Doug Mumford, Tweed district fire control supervisor, said firefighters would be sent to the Plevna-area blaze and another outbreak burning several five acres in nearby South Canonto Township.

The blaze in Lake Township and another in Sheffield Township — which had burned nine acres by Thursday afternoon — would not require firefighting, the supervisor believed.

When reports of fires started coming in Wednesday an aerial was dispatched to patrol the district as a precautionary measure.

— Hunters, settling up a deer watch in the early morning, light fires to keep off the chill. Later, after leaving the smoldering site for the day, the fires also are often left burning.

Given present conditions have been among the driest in years and the water table has sharply declined. District conservation officials say they can't recall when water levels have been so low.

The threat posed by the one-week hunting season which opened last Monday, came as the forest fire service here was wrapping up its busiest year of fighting on ministry records.

A long, hot summer resulted in 146 fires destroying 1,417 acres — compared with 43 fires and 210 acres last year.

Manpower and reinforcements were called in from other districts to help contain the fires — which saw some firefighters work steadily for more than a month without a break, said Mr. Mumford.

Public Enthusiastic To Latest Art Display

PICTON — The 47th annual East Central Ontario Art Association (ECOCAA) juried exhibition is opening its first week at the Prince Edward County Museum here.

The exhibition opened Saturday, Nov. 1 with a wine and cheese party and visitors were confined to tour the display throughout the week.

Local response to the exhibit has been enthusiastic says Pierre Lacelle, a student in museum technology from Algonquin College, who is employed at the museum here this fall.

The first ECOAA exhibition was held 30 years ago, although the association was not formally organized at that time. After several annual shows participants recognized the need for an association allowing artists from various parts of Ontario to meet, share ideas and generally improve the standard of painting in the entire area, she said.

The association is supported by the ministry of culture and recreation, formerly the community programs branch of the department of education.

Ottawa Plans Costly Departmental Move to Remote Gaspe in Quebec

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA —And speaking of restraint — it is supposed to be in high government fashion these days how is this for the feds leading the way to the land of hope (no inflation) and glory (jobs for everyone)?

Supply and Services Minister Jean-Pierre Goyer at the modest ex-shack-it-is-really-nothing cost of departmentally-estimated $12 million to $15 million, is moving a computer and 300 jobs to a remote corner of Quebec.

As an experiment in "taking the government to the people," which is the new federal buzz-phrase for decentralization, the entire chosen redemption central division of Supply and Services is being shut down here in the National Capital and started up again in Matane, a town of 12,000 or so only eight four-corners villages this side of the far tip of the Gaspe Peninsula.

There was no advance warning, either to the staff directly concerned, or the regional members of Parliament with any being held in account.

The news hit them in a press release from Jean-Pierre Goyer, that treasure of the treasury benches who previously made his mark with the observation, amid all the public servant-bashing crime, that the rehabilitation of criminals is more important than the protection of society.

But not to get too upset.

While a majority of the division's staff are unilingual English speaking employees, so said to dangle.

Part of the $15 million to $15 million cost of the strange dislocation will go to paying for their French lessons so that the new bilingual they pay transfer to Matane if they wish.

No pause for generous allowance that the new cheques redemption central division of Matane will be some-$80 miles east of the nearest branch of the Bank of Canada.

The fact that before it moves from Ottawa its division will be next-door-neighbor to the bank does not matter a D.T. Goyer.

Nor does he care that the only job the division head is the matching of government cheques cashed at branch banks against authorized lists compiled by the Treasury here in the Capital.

It will all be done now by remote control.

Moreover there are 12 million of them a month — public service pay cheques, baby bonus cheques, veterans' cheques, cheques to contractors, suppliers, consultants and — the rest of the great horde of Canadians that business, one way or another with the government — new pensioners will be tracked down down to Matane for redemption cancel purposes.

Recently, to determine, presumably to the last accounting cent, where the current $24 billion of spending goes, each cheque issued must be ticked off against the master list when cashed.

Get to keep the federal books straight, you know, if seldom balanced.

Nor, complicated job, what? Here in the Capital, a staff of 300 and a computer seem to have been handling it.

But now with the move to Matane, the staff will be more than doubled to 700, or so are the rumble within the division itself has it.

M. Goyer has decreed that in Matane the division will be composed to two of those new "working in French" units.

Which means the English-speaking employees, taking French lessons to qualify as necessarily those bilinguals, will have to reach a nearly impossible lingual level to make the move to Matane.

That is perhaps, of course, that anyone really wants to change an Ontario lifestyle to living as it is lived in deepest Gaspe.

Why all the extra staff? Not just the complications of conversion from English to French.

Maybe some of it can be charged to the "decentralization" that comes of decentralization.

But what's it niggle about paying $13 million to $15 million in the good government cause of bigger and better employment?

Un-restraint is the word for it.

Mrs. Burrows Retires

Mrs. Ruth Burrows, whose retirement as head of the Central Volunteer Bureau, has been announced, has embodied in her work a practical approach to the needs of people, along with personal charm and a compassionate nature.

Mrs. Burrows has given new meaning and motivation to the role of voluntary work in this city. She points out too that volunteer work, has moved away from the do-gooder image of working among the poor and into the realm of peer group work. It is activity that is supportive and enriching, she has proven told the Intelligencer's Sharon Airhart, rather than a threat.

For Mrs. Burrows' part though, even she feels a person can hang on too long in any job. But as she leaves the Volunteer Bureau she nevertheless will continue to work with the provincial and federal volunteer organizations.

She leaves behind a suggestion as to the needs of disenchanted youth. This is certainly a continuing problem, and Mrs. Burrows believes greater involvement is needed in this area, as well as with the problems of low income families.

Interesting in this connection was a suggestion put forward recently at the local level. During a discussion on delinquency it was mentioned that blue-jeaned "street workers" is better than police, would be more effective in reaching the young person in trouble.

It has a ring of the "bare-foot doctor" who serves the vast reaches of China — young people with basic medical training — and it is an idea that has merit.

There is a need at the ordinary human level for the exercise of interest and compassion where others are concerned. A need too for challenge and purpose in the lives of the young.

Mrs. Burrows meanwhile deserves the community's praise for a job well done.

Rec. Centres' Vital Role

Community recreation centres such as the one which has been officially opened in Deseronto are a distinct asset.

Another one of fairly recent vintage is located in Gananoque, on the side of the road facing drivers entering that community from the east.

The advantages of these structures go far beyond their rather sombre and utilitarian exteriors. Inside there can develop skills in a variety of activities in a sporting and recreational nature, along with a spirit of fellowship and belonging that are of incalculable benefit.

Their use too by people from around the communities concerned is of all the more significance in bringing people together, from a wide area and in filling any void that might have existed before in community life.

The Deseronto facility will bring new life to a community which has not been so fortunate of late where its industrial base is concerned. Let's hope there will be some movement in the latter regard too. Such a development would give the town that much more of a boost.

Focus on Nutrition

Rehabilitation Week, which commences at Belleville General Hospital November 10, has one subject among many of a medical nature which touches the lives of all of us more directly than most.

The topic is Nutrition which in one way or another affects the individual's wellbeing every day of his life.

The evidence of good and bad nutrition is often discernible to the lay eye — from obesity on the one hand to the poor diet of many a young person, such as chips and a soft drink, on the other.

Then there is the problem in some families, at a near-poverty level, having insufficient food. Not just an inadequate diet, but one which leaves youngsters actually hungry, with unfortunate consequences for their development.

It should be an illuminating session. The subject is an important one, as are the ones which follow during the week, on respiratory disease, headache, amputation, and the physically handicapped child.

TORONTO — The Ni... search organization has risen to an exalted position.

During the election campaign that research group played a very important part.

Rents and housing, particularly the former, were the key issues in the NDP campaign and much of its consequent success.

And the researchers came up with figures, particularly on rent gouging, which Stephen Lewis was able to use with strong impact.

Along the way Lewis several times praised his research team and an aura began to grow around them which was a bit out of this world.

The way they were accepted was just a bit too good to be true, almost beyond human frailty.

The result of this overplay was that a reporter naturally began to look for instances which showed them as a bit less than perfect, human after all.

And it seems we probably have been given such an instance in the party's position on rent controls.

At a press conference the leader issued a 15-point program on rents. And the key point was that it advocated a six per cent permissible increase in gross rents as the limit for which a control program should operate.

Why six per cent?

The leader said this had been arrived at after consultation with B.C., Quebec and Manitoba officials. Based on their experience with controls it seemed a likely figure.

Beyond this there was no further explanation.

Even when it was pointed out that British Columbia had had an allowable figure of more than 10 per cent and that this had just been reduced to eight per cent, still two per cent above the figure being proposed for Ontario, there was no explanation other than this was just a guide-line figure.

But how was it arrived at? And how reliable really is the vaunted party research team?

Not reliable. There is no taking away from that. Historically it has been just too little research done around here.

But it is not correct it also is harmful.

The just one example it has supplied the leader with figures on rent company operations and profits.

These figures will register with the public as fact. But to me they have the smell of leaks of bias. And if this is true they will simply further the already ready very muddy waters of the oil and gas problem.

If writing there hasn't been the chance of a fleeting one to Ottawa. But I will do this.

And right or wrong will report on later.

Lord only knows I don't want to be defending oil and gas companies. They should be able to do this themselves. But if they want to see the public preserved from snow Job, if any.

Red Tape, Lack of Capital Behind Shortage of Housing

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

If the new federal housing subsidies can increase the supply of houses and apartments, they should be all to the good.

The rate of new house-building has fallen far below 1973's peak, even though an estimated 230,000 Canadian families are still inadequately housed.

Bold new housing programs, tax incentives and task-force "studies" have been announced every now and then by federal and provincial governments.

Urban Affairs Minister Barnett Danson's latest scheme is a well-intentioned as the others in that it offers a $300 cash grant to first-time home-buyers, the abolished Home Ownership Savings Plan, the annual subsidies of up to $960 under the Assisted Home Ownership Plan, and so on.

The road appears to be littered with good intentions — but it doesn't always lead to enough housing.

Mr. Danson and his provincial counterparts might profitably turn their attention to some other factors that are curtailing the supply of new housing:

— A bureaucracy that requires endless approvals and years-long delays before any land assembly and housing construction can go ahead. Mr. Danson's latest program is designed to cut bureaucracy, as is it throughout from land to the provincial to municipal level.

—The high cost of new houses and mortgage rates, even after the grants and free interest are taken into account. Home-buyers are used to accept this, confident that capital appreciation would eventually offset the burden. Now it is clear that governments, such as Ontario's, have abandoned that policy and the speculative element out of the housing market, no buyer can count on a capital gain.

—The scarcity of capital. Canadian savers are just not prepared for the abundance of capital to be invested in the myriad projects that could use it. Mr. Danson will "require" lending institutions to invest an additional $750-million a year in low-priced housing, at a time when investment risk is high and other legitimate projects may be starved of capital.

Whatever its limitations, however, the federal government's initiative is more constructive than the tax-grab now practised by some provinces and municipalities.

In their understandable sympathy for the plight of tenants (and voters) in a time of apparent inflation, politicians have been freezing rents and telling apartment owners that they must not restrict their accommodation to adults.

Such actions may be popular and even helpful in the short term.

But in the long run, though, they are likely to lessen the accommodation for everybody, because they discourage new investment in that rental accommodation.

Canada's population trend points to above-average demand for all sorts of new dwellings. Unless governments broaden it provided, serious pressures could become grave by the middle and end of this century.

The first emphasis in any housing program should be on incentives to encourage the building of a long-overdue streamlining of the bureaucratic machinery.

Along with this, there must be a method to curb land prices.

That alone would restore a normal flow of mortgage funds from investors seeking a true return on their capital.

A Look Back at Hallowe'en

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

We have a lot of politicians sounding off about bums, and the beggars of Belleville this year we get our children off to a good start by allowing them loose on the streets to beg, accumulate candy and other trash from householders.

This is usually presented as good fun by the advertising industry and the children in business. We read, every year, of some unfortunate youngster that has been poisoned or gravely injured razor blades, etc., inserted in apples by some child in society. Then the incidences of vandalism rises at Halloween to the cost of individuals, businesses and extra police detailed for duty.

Most of us know that what the youngsters collect is junk and we would not feed our domestic pets — yet still parents allow their kids to be exposed to this every year.

Seems to me if we must suffer this sort of thing, that some effort should be made to collect for some worthwhile charity so that the young people learn something positive. As it is, all they are doing is securing the foundation for a future career of intimidation and begging.

I would wonder that in later years they believe all they have to do is accost a passing stranger and hold out their hands.

Question of Principle

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

I am one that is concerned about our Sabbath Day and its honor for the same. I am really

"in whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace." Ephesians 1:7

Never forget only Calvary made conversion possible. "Without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sins."

Let us pray: Father in Jesus' name forgive us for our sins and our backslidings, through your precious blood renew our faith and heal us in every area of our being. Amen.

Washington Shake-Up and Speculation About 1976

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The shifts and firings in the Ford administration lead to confusion and speculation—the former because he has replaced part and not all of the team he had. The latter because Mr. Ford wants to be elected president in his own right.

When he said to the press in Washington that he wanted these choices to be "my men," he merely let a sense of confusion as to what that mean.

Henry Kissinger remains Richard Nixon's secretary of state, remains in his present role. Elliot Richardson who the president has nominated as secretary of commerce, was briefly an attorney-general under Nixon and slightly involved in Watergate.

And the new face of George Bush as director of the Central Intelligence Agency doesn't represent any great change other than he is an old friend of the president's.

William Colby, as the CIA chief was fired presumably because its revelations were becoming clearly embarrassing to a conservative president who has always appeared to be wary of spy agencies and wants to run the office best.

During his press conference, Mr. Ford referred to himself as "Mr." except Donald Rumsfeld, his chief of staff. Rumsfeld becomes the new defence secretary after Schlesinger was fired and testy James Schlesinger.

All through that event it was "Don" who had the answers, but it will be "Don" who will do the same in his new cabinet role.

And then there is Vice-President Nelson Rockefeller. A spectacularly surprise announcement he will not be Mr. Ford's running mate in the 1976 presidential election.

Few are certain what that will mean, since if he is trying to appease the conservatives backing around Ronald Reagan, the campaign manager has already said he is not impressed.

Then perhaps, Rockefeller wants to have a crack at the presidency ad wants to be free to do so.

Both men serving as president and vice-president were not elected to their jobs, an unprecedented situation in U.S. political history. And because of this, both may hanker for elected office.

The cabinet development can only play into the hands of the Democrats who are getting all the teeth in another area from President Ford.

This is his refusal to shore up New York's disastrous financing and with it that vast city's administration which is Democratic.

This appears to be a particularly cruel kind of gamesmanship with Ford's assurance that New York will "probably" default won't have a wider effect on the U.S. economy.

But then a couple of years from now, the entire interlude could appear to be the movement of musical chairs by an interim president whose mark on events will appear minimal.

One constantly wonders why American administrations have so much trouble getting good people when the U.K. in the latest of the Wilson and Heath-Ford cold utilities.

The reason is that choices are made from those loyal to the president and with a Congressional record he likes, in Ford's case a political record supporting positions on the right.

The Ford shifts in Washington had as their goal that an American president who definitely wants to be president again is going to be in better shape in troubles politically and administratively.

Wales Called Land of Songs

CARDIFF, Wales (CP) — The little country that bugs part of Britain's coastline and combines breath-taking beauty with the scars of industry has maintained an enviable reputation for quality singing for many years.

Mention of Wales in conversation in most parts of the world brings a knowing look and the comment: "Oh yes, the land of song."

Welsh-born singers come in all ages and sizes, from toddlers singing nursery rhymes in kindergarten to performers at concerts for old-age pensioners, whose eyes and energy might have dimmed but whose vocal powers are still good enough to enable them to sing in harmony.

Far more than 100 years, the peak of choral entertainment in Wales has been the male-voice choir.

These choirs originated as small groups of working menmembers of steel workers, dockworkers, shopkeepers and clerks—who found pleasure in blending baritone and tenor and enjoyment in companionship and common interest.

They grew into organizations with as many as 120 members and reached such stages of near perfection that the introduction of competitive events was inevitable.

Today, Wales has about 30 male-voice choirs, some 19 of them in the top echelon and each with no fewer than 70 singing members. Others with between 40 and 70 voices are counted in the ranks and the smaller ones are uncountable.

Among the top performers, rubbing shoulders with giants of Welsh choral music such as Treorchy, Pontypridd, Rhondda Orpheus, Porcardulais and Morriston Male Voice Choirs is the one from Dowlais, Merthyr Tydfil, Wales, heading for Luxembourg.

With a membership of 130 and others waiting to join, Dowlais has achieved remarkable results in its 78 years' existence. The choir was started by a group of men working at the local ironworks and has no singings ever since. Membership is strictly by audition and the choir's chief prize at the Royal National Eisteddfod of Wales at Ruthin in 1973.

"We grew rapidly in membership, sang a number of the choirs' John Cannon, a company director.

Dowlais, like all the Welsh choirs, has members with a wide range of occupations.

Most of them are employed at the British Steel Corporation's local works. One is the assistant town clerk of Pontypridd. Others work in a large toy factory, one is the lawyer member, a machine factory at Merthyr Tydfil and there are plumbers, fitters and tradesmen. The choir's president, Dai Rowlands is minister of state at the Welsh office.

One of the things that pinpoint the loyalty and dedication of Welsh choirs generally is the enthusiasm with which they rehearse, often in schoolrooms, church or chapel vestries, on black winter nights when rain, and wind make it unpleasant to venture out in the Welsh valleys and mountain areas.

Rigid discipline and sense of loyalty have always been among the noticeable qualities of singing Welshmen and Welsh women. These qualities explain why one member of the Dowlais choir travels 30 miles to each of the twice-a-week rehearsals at the Gosel Een Social Club in Dowlais from his home beside the sea at Barry.

Treorchy, conducted by now-retired schoolmaster John Haydn Davies, has the distinction of so far being the only Welsh choir to be invited to sing at a concert at London's Albert Hall attended by members of the British Royal Family. In 1898, Treorchy's predecessor, the Rhondda Glee Singers, also made history when they appeared by royal command before Queen Victoria at Windsor Castle.

A report of that event, still treasured in many homes, says: "At exactly a quarter to nine p.m. the choir marched through Henry VIII's Gateway into Windsor Castle and after showing admission tickets, were conducted into the inner courtyard and corridor until they reached the precincts of St. George's Hall. . . .

"The moment the Queen appeared the choir rose as one man and the first note of God Bless the Queen in English showed that the boys were not only loyal but full of courage and that there was, at all events, not going to be any lack of nervousness in the singing."

The report adds that it appears the two famous Welsh songs—Land of My Fathers and Men of Harlech—made the deepest Impression on Queen Victoria.

"Both were sung to Welsh words," says the report, "and in its native garb the marvellous old air typical of the ancient Britons of Wales seemed to touch the depth of Victoria's heart."

Knowledge Explosion Causes Reading Problems

HALIFAX (CP) — If Johnny can't read well, it might be that he is caught up in the knowledge explosion.

Reading difficulties are not caused by a failure of educational methods to adapt to modern requirements, says Dr. Jean Robertson of the International Readers' Association (IRA).

She said schools now teach reading skills more effectively and reading instruction is generally better than it was years ago.

The current concern over reading and writing inadequacies is the result of three factors, she said.

First, the demands made on children have increased and educational methods have not kept pace. With the "explosion of knowledge" that has occurred, children now are faced with whole libraries of highly technical material which they are expected to learn.

She said students today are generally asked to perform tasks which are "incredible" by the educational standards of a generation ago.

Secondly, she said the educational system has developed to such an extent that children are kept in schools much longer than they used to be. As a result, people who cannot read adequately are now more noticeable.

Dr. Robertson said children are not all the same degree of support for reading at home that they were a generation ago. In today's families, both parents are working and so not have the time for reading.

She said children who are encouraged to read are more likely to do so if they see their parents pick up a book.

Dr. Robertson also disposed of another widely-held belief.

She said television is not the major factor in the decline of reading among children.

Television and books were complementary rather than exclusive, and children should be taught how to use television as a medium.

For example, if a child is interested by something he sees on television he should be encouraged to seek further information on the subject through books, she said.

12,000 Ton Church Moves to New Site

MOST, Czechoslovakia (Reuter) — "Hurry up now, or you'll be run over by the church," the guide said.

But there was no danger, as the 12th-century Gothic edifice—was advancing at a speed of 1½ inches a minute.

The entire church—12,000 tons of it—was moved on its piers on wheels to a new site half a mile away to make room for a coal mine. The journey took more than a month.

The Czech culture ministry spent about £25 million on one of the most ambitious engineering feats ever seen in this country.

With two other ancient buildings, the church will be all that is left of the ancient royal town of Most, which is to become a coal field.

A new town has already been built nearby and the church was moved to a site on the outskirts of New Most. As the old steel and concrete town is called.

Studies were made on how to move the precious edifice, including the "puzzle" technique of dismantling it piece by piece.

Building was found to be cheaper and quicker than the way the people was going out: putting the church on wheels and rolling it on a giant track through the old town, which is being steadily demolished.

It was a strange sight to see the huge piece of historical architecture on 53 specially built bogies.

The main problem of moving the church, however, was not planned, was not the transportation itself.

It was to make sure that no structural damage would occur to the church while it was jacked up and that the pillars, the vaults and pillars erected between 1313 and 1370 would collapse.

The engineers built a steel cradle inside and outside the church to strengthen every element of the building. Then they cast blocks of concrete under the walls, pillars and columns.

The control cabin at the front of the moving church looked like a spaceship, with all its clicking machines and glittering panels of control lights.

The seven or eight controllers in the cabin were all that was needed to "drive" the church.

The church was due to complete its odyssey at the end of last month.

Its journey was not rushed and its movement was almost imperceptible. People living in the area could see it had moved each morning when they left their homes.

The way to know the church was moving, Soviet guides explain, was to "put your finger against the carriage wheel, and wait."

Bracebridge Area Has Influx of Black Bears

BRACEBRIDGE, Ont. (CP) — This summer, resort area, very slow crop of berries, is experiencing a large influx of black bears wandering into towns and villages by Muskoka in search of food, says a conservation official for Ontario ministry of natural resources.

Gordon Carswell, wildlife management officer for the district, said the number of black bears venturing into the area has grown in the last year.

"It has been a good summer for the bears," he said. "The only reason I can see that more bears are getting into town is that there would be simply berries enough to support the bear population has grown."

Mr. Carswell said the bears were keeping mainly to a small bush area near a golf course and going out in the street in search of apples.

"It has been a fine growing year for apples and I guess that's what they're after," he said.

They have been seen at entrances to schools, apartment buildings and in the vicinity of the Bracebridge, Huntsville and Windermere.

A small bear cub was treed by dogs in Windermere recently but, despite the efforts of firemen to lure the animal down, it remained in the tree all day.

The animal concerned "nearly had a heart attack" when it hit a stick which was used to try and coax him down the tree.

Tourists have been visiting a garbage dump at Skeldon Lake, 15 miles north of Bracebridge at dusk to watch the antics of the black bears—two young ones and their mother—as they try to get into the garbage containers.

One resident said he had to free the two young bears when they fell into a container and were unable to get out.

Mr. Carswell said a cold summer last year might have led a number of bears into early or semi-hibernation thus making the animals scarce during hunting season.

His said a large number of bees hive have been destroyed throughout the Muskoka area because of the large number of bears.

When a bear becomes a nuisance in a town or village, "live trapping" is instigated. This involves spilling bees or honey into a section of a converted sewer culvert located on top of a flatbed truck.

Gives First Aid To Oil Drillers

CALGARY (CP) — Men who work on remote drilling sites in the High Arctic have special problems, including medical ones. It is Ken Mair's business to see that the medical problems don't get out of hand.

Mr. Mair, 30, runs Park Ambulance, which supplies first-aid personnel to companies operating in the Arctic and an ambulance service in southern Alberta.

The environment of the Arctic presents special problems, he said.

"The worst is that during the long winter the cold and dark we have people grouped together in small camps, which is just tremendous for communicable diseases.

"If someone has a cold, it very easily can go rampaging through the camp."

Mr. Mair, the son of a police officer, was introduced to first aid when he was in the naval reserve. He has worked for an ambulance company in Calgary and, at the age of 19, bought his own firm in Banff.

By that time he was back in Calgary and had signed his first contract with an oil company to provide industrial first aid, with attendants dealing as radio operators. Park Ambulance now has a field staff of 25 in seven locations in the North, working under the supervision of a doctor based in Calgary who keeps in touch by radiotelephone.

Mr. Mair spends his time in Calgary, keeping the business going.

His thing is organizing. Keeping them working. If there is an accident somewhere of any consequence, I'm involved in it through arranging transport and that sort of thing. . . .

"There's more to this business than just getting a man on location. It's the backup service in the city too. If that man quits, you have to hire another good one and he needs supplies and training, either from a doctor or company officer in terms of safety.

Park Ambulance owns no aircraft. It uses planes owned by the various companies drilling and mining in the North or charters them to carry first-aid personnel and equipment. Chartered planes are used to service accident victims in the south and transfer patients between centres.

Mr. Mair said his business is almost out of debt but is dependent on the oil industry. If that industry gets into trouble, he's out of work.

"There's no question that I'm in the business because I like it . . . there's nothing in the way of boredom.

By and large the Arctic medical problems are routine—colds, flu, cuts and other minor disorders which can keep a medical officer busy when attended. But Park has been called upon to help with emergencies from tallamputations and severe burns to multiple deaths.

Most of the people who work in the North, Mr. Mair said, have to be in good physical condition before they can get the jobs there.

"Anyone can we pinpoint a case where we actually save a life, where, if we hadn't been there, someone would right then the man was dead."

Medical services in the Arctic, he said, is as good as it can be. Most companies now expect a doctor to be stationed at each drilling site with only a self-equipped clinic. A trained first-aid officer is the next-best thing.

Special Classrooms For Angry Students

OTTAWA (CP) — Teen-agers, unable to cope with the rigors of the school system, would be given special classrooms where they can get angry and blow off steam without being expelled by overworked and irate teacher.

It is hoped that the classes to be located in two Ottawa-area secondary schools, will be ready by the end of November.

The classrooms are not intended to be a dumping ground for "problem teen-agers," said one of the project planners, Bill Rogberry of Ottawa's youth services bureau.

Instead they are part of a program helping teen-agers learn to play by the rules and stay in school.

Said Mr. Rowberry: "Some of these kids have been blowing it for three years. They have built up a pretty deserved reputation of being troublemakers and when the teachers' kick a kid out of class because there are still 30 other students to contend with.

"Most of these kids need a little encouragement and now they will be able to turn to the special classrooms and teacher and worker and blow off steam."

Teachers from the youth services bureau workers will be putting academic matters on the backburner and talking to the teen-agers about their problems. Mr. Rowberry calls it "teaching school survival skills."

The special program is funded partly by the provincial ministry of education and the bureau and is an attempt to help trouble-riders. Meanwhile they are away from the rigors of the bureau's two predecessors.

Cider Presses Now Disappearing

HARROW, Ont. (CP) — Only 15 years ago there were dozens of apple-cider presses in Essex County, each cider with its own taste and color.

Now you can count the number of cider presses in the county on the fingers of one hand.

It is a dying industry but has been disappeared completely as roadside stands still supply the drink to people who tour the countryside every autumn.

Joe Colisanta, who operates a fruit stand and cider press on Highway 18 near Kingsville, is only the real thing in good enough. He bought his cider press three years ago and began producing about 1,000 gallons a year.

The recipe is the most important factor in the making of good cider, Mr. Collisante said. Two kinds of apples must be used, one sweet and one tart, as the taste still balance in the end product.

Steve Murray, 36, of Harrow decided to try his hand in the production of apple cider when he bought a used apple press at Dashwood, Ont., about six miles east of Grand Bend. It had been owned by Mennonite farmers and had lain unused for 25 years.

Mr. Murray said he produced directly from whole apples but from apple sauce, Mr. Murray said. The apples are cleaned before being eaten fruit bites out.

They are then fed through a grinder which reduces them to pulpy mush. The pulp is placed on a press cloth which creates a cake, leaving the pulp behind.

The juice is then allowed to settle in storage tanks and the cider, when sold, is skimmed off the top.

And even though cider is a seasonal drink, it can become an expensive business, said Mr. Murray.

Cider will spoil about two months after it is made. Even freezes, it will keep only for six months.

Olympic Engineers Give Assurances

MONTREAL (CP) — Engineers and contractors working on facilities for the 1976 Summer Olympic Games have given assurances that all will be ready in time for the games, organizing committee president Lucien Saumier said Thursday.

Mr. Roussean was replying to statements made by Quebec Justice Minister Fernand Lalonde that some installations simply may not be ready until after the Games are over.

Meanwhile, the provincial government has indicated it will meet with officials here to discuss the high cost of the Games.

Among topics to be reviewed is the fee to be paid to Paris architect Roger Taillibert, who some observers have estimated to be as much as $40 million.

Mr. Rousseau said Thursday there is no question of any extraordinary sum. If the 70,000-seat, $360-million main stadium is not ready, the city will be blamed.

"We have definitely given up on alternatives," Mr. Rousseau said.

The organizing committee has also assured the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association in writing that the Olympic pool will be ready for the Games, but it promised to install the facilities immediately if there is "any further hitch".

Construction of the pool has yet to begin, and some reports have said it is "impossible" to complete it on time since stringent construction schedules would it would require at least 11 months to build.

In London, International Olympic Committee (IOC) president Lord Killanin said Thursday he knows and understands the situation faced by the Montreal committee.

"According to my latest information, everything in Montreal is going according to plan," he said.

The Montreal organizing committee originally saved with a budget of $310 million that budget of $310 million. That figure has officially increased to $720 million, and civic opposition parties have said the total costs of the Games could be higher than that.

Bangladesh Run By Martial Law

NEW DELHI (AP) — Bangladesh had another upheaval in its top government echelon today as the army staged its fourth coup in four days ago announced he is running the country as chief martial-law administrator.

Radio Dacca said thousands thronged the streets of Dhaka, the capital, to cheer the hero's comeback." of Maj.-Gen. Ziaur Rahman.

There was no mention of Abu Sadat Mohammed Sayem, the chief justice of the Supreme Court who was sworn in as president Thursday by predecessor Khondakar Mushtaque Ahmed, who became president when Sheik Mujibur Rahman was murdered last August, or of Maj.-Gen. Khalil Musharaf, who replaced Gen. Rahman as army chief of staff Monday.

Gen. Rahman himself went on the air and said:

"My dear countrymen, assalam alaikum (peace be with you). I am Maj.-Gen. Ziaur speaking. In the present situation, I have been requested by the people of Bangladesh, the army, the navy, the air force, the Bangladesh Rifles, police, the ansars and other services and officers to take over for the time being at the chief martial law administrator and chief of the armed forces.

He said government offices, including the chief justice's office, airports and factories would continue normal operations.

Radio communications with Dacca were still uncertain, and a full account of the events this week has not emerged.

The crisis began Monday when a commercial communications were cut and the Dacca airport was closed to traffic. Radio Bangladesh announced Gen. Rahman's replacement by Musharaf, his deputy, and diplomatic sources in New Delhi reported that Musharaf was resentful of the increasing authority of the group of junior officers who overthrew and killed Sheik Mujib in a coup Aug. 15.

Police Certain Earl Committed Suicide

LONDON (AP) — Dead or alive, where is the seventh Earl of Lucan, hunted around the world for the killing of his downstairs" guarder of his children's nanny?

It's been a year since the only peer of the realm ever charged with murder by a coroner's jury vanished in the early morning land fled.

Lucan disappeared after his estranged wife, bloodied from a head wound, ran into a Belgravia pub screaming "Murder! Murder! Help me! My husband's been a most decent!" and the battered body of governess Sandra Rivett, 29, was found stuffed in a mailbag in the basement of Lady Lucan's nearby home.

Chief Supt. Roy Ranson, head of Scotland Yard's murder squad, is convinced the 40-year-old barrister Richard John Bingham, is dead, that he "did the honorable thing" and committed suicide after bludgeoning the wrong victim.

His assistant, Detective Chief Inspector David Gerring, is equally certain that Lord Lucan is alive somewhere, perhaps shielded and supported by a circle of aristocratic friends who have closed ranks and organized silent to protect an "old boy" with faultless credentials: Eton, Coldstream Guards, Monte Carlo in summer, Gstaad in winter.

"There is no shortage of reported clues and sightings from almost everywhere in the world, Scotland Yard has amassed a mountain of files checking every bloated body washed up in the English Channel, digging up every grave and suspicious basements, investigating reports that he has been seen in Lisbon, in the roulette tables in Deauville, at a nightspot in a suburb of Mexico Mexico Marquis, Mozambique, waiting for a bus in Brighton.

Inspector Gerring believes Lucan escaped overseas, perhaps by power boat, even though a gale was blowing that night. The earl was an expert yachtsman, and the car he borrowed, together with bloodstained fibres similar to those wrapped around the blunt instrument murder weapon, a length of lead pipe, was found at a marina in Newhaven.

Descended from the brigadier Earl involved in the orders which led the Light Brigade to charge into the valley of Death at Balaclava, Lucan fron an extraordinary family. Before the pages of Burke's' Peerage to a murder secured by a coroner's jury.

Sportsman, golfer, member of the British national bobsled team and amateur ski jump champ, he inherited the title and half a million dollars from his socialist father. He gave up banking at the age of 29 to devote himself to politics.

The police say Lucan developed an almost pathological hate for his wife of 12 years, the

Sarnia Hit By Increases

SARNIA, Ont. (CP) — Sarnia Hydro customers can expect rate increases of between 30 and 40 per cent to cover a $1.4 million deficit in the local power commission's 1976 budget.

The commission approved the budget at a meeting Thursday and instructed hydro manager Bob Reynolds to come up with a rate increase proposal for consideration at its meeting Nov. 20.

Mr. Reynolds said he will base the proposal on a recent review of present commercial, household and industrial rates.

The budget deficit was calculated on an increase in the price Ontario Hydro charges the local commission for its power, he said.

Of about $1.4 million, the

Ontario Hydro rates were to have come into effect Jan. 1 until the provincial government placed a moratorium on the increase with a select legislative committee reviews justification for the increase.

Ottawa Asked to Trim Family Allowances in Good Faith

OTTAWA (CP) — The government should be prepared to trim its spending on social welfare programs—such as family allowances—to show it is serious about fighting inflation, Association' (CMA) said Thursday.

A 15-member delegation told the Commons finance committee the CMA supports the selected wage and price controls, but wants federal spending reduced.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald already has said some spending cutbacks are planned, but he refuses to say which programs would be affected.

"We're dismayed by government spokesmen who say this area or that is inviolate and cannot be touched," CMA past president W. R. Lawson told the committee.

He suggested, as one option, a slice from federal spending on all social welfare programs.

In another key area, the CMA said it opposes a government proposal to exempt all increases up to $2.30 hourly from the penalty-backed guides set up in the anti-inflation program.

W. H. Wightman, association industrial relations director, said this "will-put the pecking order out of whack" because it allows low-income earners to raise their incomes and narrow the wage difference between them and higher-income earners. It will give upward pressure on the whole wage structure.

Unlike unions, the CMA insists it supports the controls.

In fact, some smaller CMA members went to volunteer to come under the direct regulation of the guides. Only about 200 of its 4,300 member firms that have 500 or more employees will be directly controlled by the guides.

The rest are being asked to follow the guides voluntarily.

Earlier Thursday, Bank of Canada governor Gerald Bouey told the committee basic economic trouble.

He said the central bank feels there is a need for "greater steadiness" in the rate of increase in the money supply.

Moderate money supply and taxation policies, together with selected controls, offer the best chance of getting inflation under control over the next few years, he said.

He said the money supply has been brought under control by a recent rise in the central bank lending rate for chartered banks to nine per cent in September. This makes borrowing harder and puts interest rates higher.

He said the rate of growth for the money supply likely will continue over 15 per cent for some time, but he would be concerned if it reached 15 per cent. He refused to forecast the actual rate he expected.

Allmand Studies Proposed Prisoner Health Care

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Proposed new guidelines governing health-care services for federal penitentiary prisoners have been sent for study to Solicitor-General Warren Allmand following a special conference here, it was announced Thursday.

Preparation of the guidelines was the objective of a three-day conference this week on the legal and ethical aspects of health care in the Canadian penitentiary service, conference participants say.

The conference, which ended Wednesday, was attended by more than 50 leaders from a civil service.

number of professions in Canada with an interest in prisoner health care.

The guidelines centre on a number of concerns, including the confidentiality of prisoners' medical and psychiatric documents, the free and informed consent of prisoners and the range of services to be provided.

The more that 30 participants from across the country included representatives from government, the senate, medicine, law, the judiciary, criminology, philosophy, theology, social sciences, education and the

McMurty Proposes Indefinite Sentences

TORONTO (CP — Ontario Attorney-General Roy McMurty said Thursday the federal government should amend the Criminal Code to allow for possible indefinite sentences for dangerous criminals.

Such proposals generally was approved by other provincial attorneys-general when they recently met in Halifax and by federal Justice Minister Ronald Basford, Mr. McMurty told in an interview.

"I think we should be looking at legislation whereby when it's clearly demonstrated a driving licences of "drinking drivers.

Mining, Oil Firms Get Tax Break

OTTAWA (CP) — A series of 1974, the lowest 20 percent received only for per cent, Mr. Hogan said.

The tax system has to be changed by introducing a negative income tax for the poor or another type of payments, he said. The people are hit harder than wealthier people by regressive taxes, such as sales tax, excise tax, and unemployment insurance premiums.

The Commons continues debate today on a bill to provide equality for men and women in pension plans for federal civil servants, members of the RCMP and the armed forces and members of Parliament.

Juneau Appointed Advisor

OTTAWA (CP) — Rejected by the voters in a Montreal by-election three weeks ago and forced by the defeat to resign his cabinet portfolio as communications minister, Pierre Juneau moved into an influential new post Thursday as a policy adviser to Prime Minister Trudeau.

Mr. Juneau, 51, attended his first Exec block staff meeting Thursday morning after signing a one-year renewable contract to advise Mr. Trudeau on social policy matters.

Math a Waste

HAMILTON (CP) — Mathematics at the high school level is "a waste for 95 per cent of the students," Morris Kline, a New York University mathematician and author, has told 200 Hamilton-area teachers at a McMaster University lecture series. The professor suggested that students should receive more of a liberal arts education before endeavoring to specialize in a subject like mathematics.

Man Killed

PORT HOPE, Ont. (CP) — Robert Vandenbosche, 68, of Colborne, Ont., was killed Wednesday when his car was in collision with another and went down an embankment eight to 10 metres from the highway, police said.

Problem Found

PEMBROKE, Ont. (CP) — Pembroke city hall has a shortage in its water closet, and a stinky one at that. The municipal building is not connected to the city's pollution control system and raw sewage flows untreated into the Muskrat River, empties into the Ottawa River, then into the Ottawa River, councillors were informed. Council has found it will cost $32,000 to channel city hall sewage through channels acceptable to the Ontario environment ministry.

Abandon Search

PEMBROKE, Ont. (CP) — The search for a 30-year-old bush worker missing in Algonquin Park since Sunday was temporarily abandoned Thursday by provincial police for "lack of further leads." Ernest Hoffman was to appear in Pembroke provincial court Thursday on a charge of operating a disabled driving. His wrecked car was found abandoned Sunday on the Achray Road, 45 miles within the park boundary. OPP Staff Sgt. Tom Parker said there was no evidence of anyone being injured in the wreck.

Wells Urged To Intervene In Dispute

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition party leaders continued Thursday to ask Education Minister Thomas Wells to intervene personally in the dispute between Metropolitan Toronto teachers and school boards.

Mr. Wells told the legislature during question period that he is ready at any time to meet with the two sides.

In a vote Wednesday the 8,500 teachers were 89 per cent in favor of a strike. The teachers plan to go next Wednesday.

Mr. Wells told Opposition Leader Stephen Lewis that the appointment of mediator William Dickie did not come too late to help prevent the strike.

Earlier, the minister told the legislature that Mr. Dickie had been asked to help avert a strike.

Mr. Wells said he disagreed with Mr. Lewis who suggested it is too late for the efforts of a mediator.

Lang Wants Rail Rate Assurances

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Otto Lang said Thursday he will ask the Canadian Transport Commission for assurances that any changes in rail freight rates are within the government price guides.

The minister was replying in the Commons to Crawford Douglas (L—Bruce-Grey) who said the country's railways have proposed to increase freight rates for five cattle between 15 and 25 per cent.

If the increases are approved, it will mean freight rates for live cattle will have increased by 64 per cent for single-decked cars and 87 per cent for double-decked cars since Jan. 1, Mr. Douglas said.

Mr. Lang said a recent rate decision by the transport commission in regard to B.C. Telephone shows how the regulatory agencies can follow the guides.

The commission Monday decided to reduce by 29 per cent the company's request for an extra $31.7 million next year.

The commission will be asked to assure that any changes in freight rates are within the government's guides, the minister said.

Charges of Corruption Dropped Against Gandhi

NEW DELHI (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi won her battle in the courts today to avoid the conviction on charges of corrupt campaign practices which led her to resort to emergency rule in India four months ago.

After seven weeks of arguments and four weeks of deliberation, five members of the Supreme Court upheld the validity of retroactive amendments to the election law declaring that the offences of which Mrs. Gandhi was convicted last June 12 were no longer offences.

The court's ruling on a constitutional amendment making the prime minister's conviction null and void was to be announced later. But Mrs. Gandhi's opponents conceded that the verdict in favor of the election-law amendments automatically overturned her conviction and ended the legal case against her.

Hundreds of persons gathered outside the prime minister's residence to demonstrate their support. Carrying flags of her governing Congress party, they shouted over and over: "Indira Gandhi Zindabad (Long Live Indira Gandhi)!"

J. P. Goyal, one of the lawyers who helped guide the legal battle against Mrs. Gandhi, commented: "She won, but everyone now knows she won only with the help of retroactive laws passed for her benefit."

The prime minister was convicted in Allahabad, her home city, on two counts of illegally using government officials to aid her successful 1971 campaign for Parliament.

The guilty verdict carried a mandatory ban on Mrs. Gandhi's holding elective office for six years, requiring her to surrender the leadership of the government since the prime minister must be a member of Parliament.

Mrs. Gandhi appealed, and a Supreme Court justice on June 21 stayed the sentence but decided her the right to vote in Parliament until the appeal was decided. Her opponents announced plans for a civil-disobedience campaign to force her resignation, and two days later she declared a national emergency, jailed many of her opponents and suspended most civil liberties.

The Congress party's big majority in Parliament passed the amendments affecting Mrs. Gandhi's case in August, several days before the Supreme Court was to begin hearing arguments on her appeal against her conviction. The court then delayed the appeal hearing while it considered the validity of the legislation.

Cossit Wants Sky Shops Inquiry

OTTAWA (CP) — Another move for a judicial inquiry into the 1971 Sky Shops deal was made in the Commons Thursday by Tom Cossit (PC—Leeds) took aim at what happened to the $95,000 profit Senator Louis Giguere (L—Quebec) made on a $5,000 investment in Sky Shops stock.

However, Mr. Cossitt's motion did not receive the required unanimous consent.

Mr. Cossit based his motion on whether the profit went into the Liberal Party's 1973 federal election campaign fund. He said a judicial inquiry should examine all donations received by the Liberal party before and after the Oct. 30, 1972, election.

Shops learned in the spring of 1972 the lease for its duty-free shop at Montreal's Dorval airport would be extended to 1980.

Shortly after, company shareholders, who expected to make $20 a share later that year when the company was sold to P. Lawson Travel Agency, sold 8,000 shares to Senator Giguere at $1 apiece. Senator Giguere, a Liberal, made-about $20 a share in November for $20 each to the travel agency, making $93,000 on a $5,000 investment.

Elmer MacKay (PC—Central Nova), who has a petition before the Commons, said the inquiry on grounds of conflict of interest, raised several questions in a news release.

He said the senator's explanation that he and Sky Shops chairman Louis Lapointe made "good friends" did not make sense as the basis for a deal in which other shareholders also turned over stock to the senator for five per cent of the value they had set on it.

He also asked whether Senator Giguere had been expected to perform "services" for the company.

Quebec Inaugurates Industrial Park

BECANCOUR, Que. (CP) Quebec inaugurated its first provincially-owned industrial park Thursday on the 10th anniversary of the opening of Canada's first transcontinental railway.

Swinging a silver-plated sledge hammer, Marcel Masse broke down in the golden spike to mark the official opening of a $3.5-million spur line of the Canadian National Railways to the park, 10 miles northeast of Montreal.

Mr. Bergeron, standing in for Guy Saint-Pierre, Quebec industry minister, opened the spur which connects the park with CN's rail network.

Just as the first transcontinental rail link heralded economic growth for Canada, officials of the Central Quebec Industrial Park Corp. (CQIPC) hope industrial development will come to Becancour with the opening of the 18,5-mile spur.

The 1,500-acre site, on the south shore of St. Lawrence River, is the largest industrial park in Canada and perhaps the largest in North America, corporation director Edouard Lecompte said.

In addition to the rail line, the park has deep-water port facilities with access to the St. Lawrence seaway and to the Atlantic year-round.

The industrial park is also connected to the Montreal-Quebec City superhighway.

Gentilly, adjacent to the park, Hydro-Quebec's second Candu reactor and an Atomic Energy of Canada heavy-water plant are under construction.

CIGL is to extend the Becancour spur three miles to Gentilly.

The Quebec government had chosen Becancour for the site of a steel plant it proposed to build by 1980, but the now provincially-owned company has the existing Sidbec steel company in 1968, that plan was scrapped.

In view of what it considered the outstanding economic potential of the Becancour area, the Quebec government decided to create the CQIPC in 1968 and it has spent $17 million on developing the park.

GIL, with a plant producing chlorine gas and caustic soda, and Soton Dynamitage, making ready-mix cement, have already begun production on the site and several other industries are scheduled to begin operation soon.

Russian Minister Attacks Red China

MOSCOW (Reuter) — China's ambassador to the Soviet Union walked out today as the Soviet defence minister, Marshal Andrei Grechko, attacked Peking's policies in a speech to a Red Square parade honoring the 1917 Bolshevik revolution.

Lin Hsiu-chuan and an aide left the stand for honored visitors after hearing Grechko denounce Chinese policies as provocative.

It was Lin's second walkout in less than a day. Thursday night he also left a Kremlin party given at a similar attack on Peking.

Today's comments by the 72-year-old defence minister were his first public attack on China in a Revolution Day speech for at least five years, and reflected a growing Soviet ideological campaign against Chairman Mao Tse-tung's alleged betrayal of socialism.

Grechko said the Soviet Union will continue to strengthen its military might in the face of what he called the portion of the aggressive forces of imperialism and provocative Chinese policies.

He also said that international relations are nearing along the path of "the further development of detente."

Opposition Will Support Rent Control

TORONTO (CP) — The minority Conservative government has been assured support in the legislature for its New Democrats and Liberals for government rent control legislation to be introduced in the Ontario legislature Monday.

Apartment leases coming due between July 29, 1975, and Jan. 1, 1976, will be limited to a maximum increase of eight per cent of the rent paid in July. During this time the allowable increase would be appealed by either landlord or tenant.

Appeals will be allowed on real increases in lease costs commence after Jan. 1. Provision also is made to require the landlords to refund payments.

Legislation commencing between Dec. 31, 1975 and Aug. 1, 1976 will be subject to slightly higher increase while cabinet will set the increase allowable for the following year.

In an interview outside the legislature, NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said his party will seek changes in certain clauses of the new bill but said he was sure the NDP could vote for it.

Liberal Leader Robert Nixon said also that his party will support the bill in principle.

The bill, called the Residential Premises Rent Review Act, will not apply to buildings built after Nov. 1, 1975, or to luxury accommodation, defined as having rents of more than $750 a month. The limit appears to exclude houses which are rented.

Also exempted are buildings owned by federal or provincial governments, co-operatives and non-profit housing units.

New buildings, no part of which were occupied for residential purposes before Jan. 1, 1976, are also excluded.

Any rent disputes will first be heard by a rent review officer with a right to appeal to another party to the rent review board.

At a news conference Housing Minister John Rhodes said the makeup of the board has yet to be decided.

Civil War Rages In Angola

LUANDA (AP) — With independence only four days away, Angola's civil war raged around the capital city today and threatened to spread to the emerging nation's all-rich coastal enclave of Cabinda.

Heavy mortar and gun fire was heard from Quifangondo, about 12 miles from Luanda, where the Soviet-backed Popular Movement for the MPLA is battling to stop advancing columns from the National Front FNLA, which is supported by China and Zaire.

The left-nationalist group and a third known as UNITA are contending for control of the Portuguese colony which is due to get its freedom once Tuesday.

Officials in London said the Soviet Union is preparing to fly military and civilian supplies to the MPLA as reports increased of heavy fighting between the two groups.

Guerillas of the FNLA arrived in Kinshasa, the capital of Zaire, for an attack on Cabinda, now controlled by the MPLA.

Cabinda is separated from the rest of Angola by a 30-mile strip of Zaire that gives the former Belgian Congo its Atlantic port. Leaders say that The Congo, its neighbor across the Zaire River, has agreed to send troops to Cabinda to help the MPLA.

The Congo government of Marien Ngouabi said that The Congo is "not yet involved in the Angolan fighting."

The Uganda government said that reconnaissance aircraft were fighting Angolan movements have met in Lusaka, the Ugandan capital, and agreed in principle to form a temporary government of national unity to take over Tuesday. But a later broadcast indicated the rival factions are far from agreement on operational details.

The temporary government will be recommended by overseas fairers of a 15-nation committee of the Organization of African Unity which has been meeting since Saturday in Kampala.

Some say the violence in our media makes us--and our children--treat the world in a violent way.

If that's true, we're in trouble. There's been very little research in Canada, and none about all the media. The Royal Commission on Violence in the Communications Industry is trying to find an answer.

What does violence mean? Does it reflect the real world? Or can it create a different, more violent world in which we all live?

What is the Commission doing? We're reviewing the current research. Holding public hearings for everyone. And we'll be recommending appropriate action to all levels of government; to the industry and to the public.

What can you do? You can start by thinking about the effect that violence in the media has--good or bad--on your life. Your family. And that includes violence in radio, TV, comic books, newspapers, popular music, movies, books--even in concerts.

Then, tell us what you think. Send us your ideas. Come to the hearings. And when the time comes to make recommendations, there'll be things you can do. In your own home, your own neighbourhood. With your own children.

It's important for all of us to know more about media violence and how it affects us. We will, if you help.

Old Schoolhouse Comes to Life at Glanmore

Maude Harrison shows Tim Tuck how to play cat's cradle.

By ISABEL HUGGAN

What was school like 70 years ago?

A lot of fun, recalls Maude Harrison, and set out to prove her memories right to Grade 5 and 6 students from King George Public School touring Glanmore House this week.

Mrs. Harrison, a retired public school teacher, conducted a typical old-fashioned schoolroom in an upstairs room of the museum. Small groups of children joined her for a series of "classes", all of which began in the traditional way — with the singing of God Save the Queen, followed by a hymn. She provided musical accompaniment with an autoharp, an instrument as popular as the harmonica with turn-of-the-century teachers who had no piano or record players.

"We may not have had much, but we had a good time" Mrs. Harrison told the children, reminiscing about her early days when "all the kids went to school barefoot, though we always were shoes for Sunday School."

Mrs. Harrison reviewed some of the methods that were used to teach the basic ABCs, methods quite foreign to her young audience.

"We each had a slate," she explained, "and we'd learn one letter, and write it over and over until we had filled the slate. Then we'd show it to the teacher and she'd say 'very good', and tell us to rub it out, and do it over.

"And believe me, if you did something 40 times, you knew it when you were finished."

Seventy years ago, students would have only one textbook called a "reader" at a time", said Mrs. Harrison. But by the end of a term, they would have that book inside out and backwards, before going on to another one.

"They didn't spend a lot of time motivating us, they just told us what was what, and we learned it," she said.

Many of the lighter moments during school were provided by games like cat's cradle, played with ordinary, easily-obtainable things such as string, or slates using buttons and spools. Mrs. Harrison demonstrated the games, and some older children in the class who could play them with her.

One of the highlights of the old schoolroom was the musical scale made from bottles partly filled with water, upon which the teacher and her students were able to play tunes with a stick: Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star and Jesus Loves Me were two favorites.

Mrs. Harrison explained one of the reasons she believes that she, and others of her generation, had such a good time going to school.

"We weren't organized," she said. "They just organize people to death nowadays!"

Mary Gregg, removing newly-made candles.

Candle-making Demonstrated

One of the recent attractions for touring schoolchildren at Glanmore House was a demonstration of candle-making by Mary Gregg.

Students from Grades 3 and 8 at King George Public School were given instructions from Mrs. Gregg on Tuesday, as she showed them the old-fashioned methods used by pioneer families who made their own candles. She demonstrated both the hand-dipping system (in which wicks are dipped in hot wax and allowed to cool before being dipped again so that the wax eventually forms a candle) and the use of metal candle forms.

Mrs. Gregg cautioned the children about the danger that hot wax presents, but stressed that careful and correct methods make the process safe.

Candle-making is just one of the pioneer crafts being viewed by public school students this season at the museum. Others have included old-fashioned Kitchen techniques and the making of apple dolls.

STUDY GUILD

Olive Elson and Peg Kearney reviewed Hans Selye's book, Stress Without Distress at the meeting of the Women's Study Guild held at the home of Loreen Ellis, with Sadie Reynolds and Mary Jo Furlin as co-hostesses. Copies of a scale for measuring stress, which was developed by Dr. Thomas Holmes, were handed each member to fill in and reckon her own level of stress. Olive Elson started the topic by giving a brief biographical sketch of Hans Selye showing how his background, training and research made him an expert in his field of biological experimental medicine. Peg Kearney defined stress and gave examples to show that stress does not necessarily cause distress. Stress is the response of the body made to demands on it. If demands keep a person happy, safe and efficient, the stress gives one a feeling of well-being and is not to be avoided. Damaging or unpleasant stress leads to distress and can be the cause of ulcers, heart disease and many other ailments. She suggested that people should set goals in their lives and decide on the mode of conduct to achieve those goals.

Olive Elson pointed out that in early times the individual was motivated by the desire to keep alive and happy. People wanted shelter for survival. Now conditions have changed, and people must adapt to the new conditions for successful living. A new philosophy of life and code of conduct must be evolved. Indifference, apathy, hatred, distress result in doubt, fatigue and frustration and must be avoided. People need to develop a positive attitude towards life. Giving some guidelines for achieving aspirations, she suggested that in both work and leisure people should try to choose a work or activity that they like, and should try to achieve excellence in it without hurting anyone. "What is our aim in life?" asked Miss Elson. "It is mostly to maintain our identity, to fulfil our drives, and to try for self-expression. We should try for excellence, not perfection: we should strive for approval not censure."

Peg Kearney in summing up proposed that we adopt a new philosophy of life. Rather than "Love thy neighbour as thyself" which is perfection few can attain, we should so live that we may earn our neighbour's love.

Books By And About Women

ASK NO QUARTER

By Margaret Stewart

and Doris French

This biography of Agnes McPhail, the first woman to sit in Canada's Parliament, examines the public and private life of an extraordinary politician who devoted herself to reform on many fronts. Her most lasting contributions were in the area of penal reform, resulting in her founding of the Elizabeth Fry Society for the assistance of female prisoners.

Agnes McPhail was born in 1890 in Grey County, which runs south of Georgian Bay in Ontario. She came from sturdy Scottish pioneer stock, and inherited determined hard-working farmers for whom she always held the greatest respect and admiration.

Her political career began with the United Farmers of Ontario, and she eventually affiliated herself with the Progressive Party. She served five terms in the House of Commons, from 1921 to 1940 and during these years her voice was heard on every occasion arguing for social reform.

After her defeat she wrote a "Farm Betterment" column in the Globe and Mail until 1942, and in 1943 was asked to run for the CCF party as a candidate in the Ontario provincial election. She did so, and was elected to the legislature where she sat as a member until 1951.

Agnes McPhail was a devoted and tireless worker in both governments she served, a warm and witty person who never played on her womanhood in order to succeed. She led the way to the political arena where many women have now followed, their way made easier by her strength and integrity.

On her death in 1964, tributes poured in from members of all political parties and from admirers from all walks of life, whose welfare "Aggie" had always sought to better.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Caldwell, the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Alfred Reed.

Rev. H. McLeod, Sarnia, officiated.

The groom's father, J.A. Reed, was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a jersey gown with chapel length train and long sleeves. A gathered hood of the same material highlighted the gown and the bride carried a cascade of white daisies, coral roses and baby's breath.

Susan Abrams, Toronto, was maid of honor in a coral crepe dress with a hood. She carried yellow daisies with coral roses. Marilyn Heide, Gormley, and Susan Gaudio, Toronto, were attendants in similar attire. They carried wicker baskets of flowers.

Jon Reed, the groom's brother, was best man. Paul Reed, also the groom's brother, and Reed Sellwood were ushers.

A Thanksgiving dinner reception was held at the Maple Inn, Stonyfield.

After a wedding trip to points north, the couple took up residence in Scarborough.

Stripper Takes It Off For Pub-going Women

LONDON (Reuter) — The little, old lady shook a striped umbrella at the almost nude man on stage.

"Take it off," she demanded.

"Yes, take it off," echoed about 30 other women.

With a deft movement, the stripper, billed as Mark Anthony, flicked off his G-string before the band had drowned out the drummer he had covered his manhood again with a feather duster.

"Cheat," the little old lady mumbled, lowering her umbrella.

After a decade of women's lib and legalized pornography, the all-male strip show for women at the local pub has become, if not an institution, at least an almost accepted part of British life.

The so-called "hen parties" recently received an encouraging stamp of legality when a Bournemouth jury dismissed charges against two men of keeping a disorderly house where male strip shows took place.

Judge Ian Starforth Hill told the jury before it retired for five hours: "Unless you take a number of forms. No one has suggested or could suggest that all nudity is vulgar."

Under the flickering spotlights of a south London pub a few nights ago I watched as a male stripper went through his routine on a catwalk surrounded by women discussing his physical assets like cattle buyers on market day.

To the theme song from the film The Sting, he slipped out of a corduroy suit as nimbly as a girl doing the Dance of the Seven Veils. A spotlight played over his torso.

Fortified by liquor, the women watchers grew ribald:

"Get on with it then. . . Rip it off . . . Show us your muscles, love . . . Stop stalling."

Some of the women were discussing their home problems while the stripper peeled off his other garments. "Susan has got the measles, you know," said one. "Shame how the price of tomatoes has gone up, isn't it," said another.

There were bowls of derision when the stripper, "Mark Anthony," made a show of returning to shed his last piece of clothing. When he finally completed the striptease applauded and shouted approval.

Brian Jason, the star of the booming male strip trade says modestly: "I strip purely to amuse people. It's all meant to be funny."

On accusations that male strippers—once coy to reveal all—now are allowing customers to touch them Jason commented:

"I turn on only a few women out of the hundreds who watch, but when I go into my act the women are determined to see me naked."

"The granddaddy of Britain's male strippers is Andy Wade, who says he has his striped pantles around Birmingham for 39 years and is still going strong at the age of 63.

"When I get down to my striped underpants that's when the fun really starts. I've got frilly pants underneath with bows which the girls undo."

"It's all hilarious fun and there can't be anything less sexy," he says.

"The strip shows, however, have drawn protests across Britain from anti-pornography associations and civic leaders who fear that divorce and homeless children will follow the new liberties.

Aged Parents Tired of Supporting Addicted Son

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Our 25-year-old son is a drug addict. He lives at home and refuses to work. The rugs and furniture are full of cigarette holes and my father and I are afraid he'll burn the house down one of these nights—us with it.

This boy has been in and out methadone for several months and can't remember his own name. The doctors have given him prescriptions for Valium plus a lot of other stuff. The expense is breaking us. Our son has money—his pension had frees asking us to pay for everything.

My husband is sick and wants to retire. Where are the laws in the country anyway? Why must aged people be forced to keep a son who is in such terrible shape and make their life a living hell? Lord knows we deserve some peace in our old age. How can we get it?—Helpless And Miserable

Dear Friends: Let's start with the laws in this country. Nowhere does it say parents must keep a 27-year-old son in their home. You could have kicked him out legally six years ago. Why didn't you? Maybe that's where you made your first mistake.

There are many drug-abuse clinics in the U.S. and Canada and your son should be in one of them. I urge you to call the Mental Health Society and ask for specific instructions. You are only as "Helpless" as you want to be.

Dear Ann Landers: Brave for "It's Over Robert Redford." She's got my vote! It's high time the ladies were heard. Usually it's the women who cry for having an affair with a married man. Almost always SHE gets tossed aside after he's had his fling.

I'd like to tell you about the most attractive men I've ever met in all my life.

Six months ago my wife passed away suddenly, from all things that's final. Though we repeatedly decte ed his undying love for me, his phone calls became fewer and his "out-of-town" business trips more frequent.

I did not conceit my date but went to his home instead. Number Two and I got his blankets and sideways and poured salt between the sheets. We hung the pictures topsy-turvy and the potted plants looked splendid in his shower. We mismatched his socks, rolled them neatly as if properly paired and replaced them in his dresser drawers. Then we sprinkled itching powder in his shorts. I kept my one evening to conceal a date. To my utter surprise I learned that the female who answered his phone had been living with him for several months. He "loved" her, too, and SHE also thought he was "out of town." Obviously he had a third dame in the woodwork.!

I telephoned his home early date with him that evening and we had a lovely time. I said goodnight at my door.

Number Two moved out the following day and neither one of us has heard from him since.—Got Even In Chicago Park

Dear Get Even: Even though you live in Lake, you took Chicago Mayor Daley's advice: "Don't get mad—get even."

Health Food Co-op Opens

EDMONTON (CP) — "Raw food in the back—bring your own container," reads a sign at Edmonton's unique health food co-operative.

Next in it, a poster urges customers to serve themselves and "bring your own paper bags or be charged extra.25¢.

Tomatoes, green peppers, and lettuce are sprawled in hand-board boxes next to an old wooden counter, while two second hand coolers — bought $50 each—await installation.

Shelves bulge with brown rice, nuts, raisins figs, unsweetened juices and other health-food staples. More than 200 varieties of herbs and spices are featured in the herb room, while a newly established book section emphasizes quality paperbacks on natural foods and healing.

But the distinguishing feature of the High Level Natural Foods Co-op is the people.

Any day of the week, volunteers can be found throughout the store, hammering shelves together, ringing up cash, packaging, labelling and even doing electrical wor.

"What we are trying to do is to dissolve the boundaries between customers, grocers and workers," said David Davis, one of three paid employees at the store. "Roles are reversed, so that one day a person may be a customer and the next day a helper."

High Level, the only store front natural food co-operative in Western Canada, has 125 active members who volunteer to work in the store for six hours a month.

In return for their $1 membership fee and labor, they get 15-percent discount on all items in the store, which is also open to non-members, as well as a voice in its management.

"Participation has been good because [illegible] are very safely motivated by the desire to save money," Mr. Davis said. "It's natural that people would rather work with one other than against one other."

Many members are university students, although businessmen and housewives are included in the group. One of the big headaches of working at the store is the opportunity to meet people who share similar ideas, this whatever you like."

High Level, which averages a cash flow of $700 a day compared with $35 a day when it started two years ago, had its origin three years ago when Mr. Davis saw a similar operation in Arizona.

"I just thought it was such a beautiful idea, so many people working together," said Mr. Davis, who was having difficulty finding natural-food outlets in the city.

Starting with a group of a dozen friends, he borrowed $1,000, rented a store in the university area owned by Rainbow Co-op Ltd., and found news of the co-op spread quickly by word of mouth.

However, development of the co-operative presented difficulties because it involved learning an unfamiliar social ization process, said Mr. Davis, who had no formal training in retailing.

"Sometimes it was hard to get people to come to work and we had to get on the phone. Even now there is sometimes a lack of volunteer help, but things generally run smoothly."

The co-operative agreed to use assets for items agreed upon at general membership meetings and found it was able to stay in a low margin of profit by using many volunteer labor almost entirely. As well, expenditures are made only after careful shopping and many donations are received.

"If there's something that needs to be done, we usually find that we find a volunteer with the necessary skills," Mr. Davis said.

The co-operative, which says it generally undersells objectionable health food stores, even at non-member prices, is working hard to become a "one-stop shopping alternative" for city residents.

Expansion is under way to include a full-line of produces and bulk products, as well as bulk items such as shampoo.

Mr. Davis said he has had several inquiries from persons in other parts of the country interested in setting up a similar store.

Although there are several health food co-operatives in Canada which operate on a distributor basis, High Level is the only one in Western Canada which operates in a store and the only one open to non-members.

Mr. Davis said the future for such ventures is bright. Not only are natural foods proving to be "much more than a fad" but the aspect of co-operation is becoming increasingly attractive to the general public.

"This kind of co-operative could be applied to many different areas, including book stores, sporting goods and clothing.

"We see it as a viable alternative to traditional systems, provided people are ready."

No Hookey Playing

NEWTON, N.J. (AP) — Nobody plays hookey at school here. It's the Survival School, which teaches people what to do in case of an emergency—earthquake, flood, avalanche, strike of truckers delivering food, etc. The unique school is operated by a Mormon minister, Jack Chase. He says enrollment is always good and there is a waiting list.

Eating More Beef

CHICAGO (AP) — Rising food prices and inflation apparently haven't dissuaded the American consumer's appetite for beef. A recent survey of Prairie Farmer, a farm magazine, reports that beef consumption the first half of 1975 reached a new high of 39.2 pounds per person. Pork consumption, however, fell slightly the same period.

help us celebrate...

One store tells you one thing. Another store another thing. You ask a salesman the difference between $4.98 pile and the $8.98 pile and he says, "One's better".
So you prepare yourself for things like this. But there's one thing you can't prepare for. One thing you can't know until it happens. Fear. Like when you write a cheque for a lot of money and you start thinking: "Will it really last years?" "Will it resist stains?" "Will they stand behind it if something goes wrong?"

It's one thing to offer discounts on names nobody's heard of. It's another thing to offer discounts on names everybody's heard of.

A SOLID GUARANTEE OF SAVINGS & SATISFACTION
At Cherney's, every installation is accompanied by a written guarantee of savings and satisfaction. On price we guarantee that if you can purchase the same carpet and quality elsewhere for less money within 10 days of your purchase, we will meet the price and give you 10% of the difference. Our policy on installation is simple and honest. Every installation is unconditionally guaranteed for 12 months. If it isn't right, we make it right. We aren't afraid to tell you the truth about carpet. All the more reason for coming to Cherney's.

INTELLIGENT QUESTIONS DESERVE INTELLIGENT ANSWERS
We don't think you need us to tell you that $10.00 carpeting is better than $5.00 carpeting. You need us to tell you why.
You need us to tell you why maybe it might be all right for your bedroom but not for your den. Or, all right for your den, but

Toronto Man Builds 'Mr. Noah'

TORONTO (CP) — Animals won't be the passengers in what is termed an updated version of Noah's Ark, says Roy Brown, who has been constructing a 65-foot motor vessel in his Toronto backyard for seven years.

Mr Noah is the name given to the vessel by Mr. Brown's colleagues who work for him at the Scarborough fire department.

Mr. Brown said he hasn't had to face ridicule from his neighbors during the construction of the 34-ton project as Noah did. "They've been really terrific and always willing to help out."

He is planning completion for early spring launching and said he will need a large crane to lift the boat onto a float or trailer to take it to Toronto Harbor.

Although it is the largest project he has tackled, he built a smaller boat several years ago and rebuilt his house. Whatever carpentry, electrical or plumbing knowledge he lacks, he learns from books or experts in the field.

"You can educate yourself to do anything if you put your mind to it," he said.

Mr. Brown, who works an average 20 hours a week on the boat, said he spends a lot of time scrounging around junk yards and searching for good buys in material and equipment.

The Margroy, named after his wife Margaret and himself will cost about $17,000 — a fraction of comparable size power quality would cost about $180,000, Mr. Brown said.

"I've always wanted a boat like this but if I had to buy it, I'd never get it," he said.

The Margroy's equipment and conveniences are three fresh-water tanks which hold 225 gallons, a refrigerator, freezer, microwave oven, air conditioning, water heater, sleeping accommodation for 10, bath, shower and two toilets.

Mr. Brown said the boat could travel 1,500 miles without touching land and has a cruising speed of about 19 m.p.h.

Remote Prisoners Take Test on Street

REGINA (CP) — The real test for prisoners who spend the summer in a wilderness camp in a remote corner of Saskatchewan will begin when they are back on the street, a prison official says.

Terry Thompson corrections director for Saskatchewan, said the future of the experimental wilderness camps will depend primarily on the performance of its "graduates" in the months ahead.

Eleven prisoners at the Regina and Prince Albert correctional centres spent the summer cutting trees, working on a log cabin, building a road and taking a 140-mile canoe trip through northern Saskatchewan.

The offenders, all between 16 to 21 years old, were released on parole at the end of the camp. All said they were not going back for more.

"The object of the program is to reach offenders who are classified as 'problem' boys but who are still young enough to change their attitudes," camp supervisor Vic Walsh said.

Only prisoners from cities and towns were accepted in the program.

The theory was that tackling the challenge of living in the unfamiliar bush would give prisoners a positive attitude about their ability to tackle problems, the camp supervisor explained.

He said morale at the camp was high, with no requests for sick leave made and no escapes. Only one boy was returned to jail.

Diet Proposed

NEW YORK (AP) — A polyunsaturated or low-fat diet for cattle may solve the high cholesterol problem in meat and dairy products for humans, reports Medical World News magazine. The magazine says experiments in California have shown that carcass eating products from low-fat cattle have sharply reduced blood cholesterol levels.

O'Neil Takes Hillcrest Issue to Provincial Housing Minister

By HARRY MUIHALL

The provincial government is being unreasonable and is using a technicality in refusing to help ease the high cost of sanitary sewerage for the Hillcrest, Hugh O'Neil, MPP Quinte has charged.

Mr. O'Neil says he now has asked Housing Minister John Rhodes to reconsider the government's stand and requested the minister meet a delegation from the area.

Meantime, Mayor Ben Corke said he expected to discuss the Hillcrest controversy personally with Mr. O'Neil today.

The mayor Monday sent a letter to Environment Minister George Kerr seeking an appointment to talk over the situation.

Late Thursday Mayor Corke said he had not yet received a reply and would not contact the ministry until he had an answer to his letter.

One proposal produced by city hall after the Hillcrest protest mounded five months ago was linked to the environment ministry's plan for similar services in part of neighboring Thurlow Township. There, residents will pay no more than five a year for sewer services installed by the ministry.

But, the Hillcrest installation is a municipal scheme with householders' costs based on local improvement charges. The program does not qualify for similar subsidies where there is provincial ownership of services, the ministry contends.

But, said Mr. O'Neil from Queen's Park Thursday, it is "unreasonable to deny the municipality essential assistance, based on a technicality, of this kind."

He said the "exorbitant" tax bills now being paid by Hillcrest householders are "grossly unfair" — particularly in light of the Thurlow scheme.

"Communities such as Hillcrest provide additional resident dental units at a time when the province is experiencing a housing shortage fast approaching crisis proportions," said Mr. O'Neil.

"All levels of government should look wherever steps are necessary to assist and encourage municipalities to solve this very serious problem of providing adequate housing."

He said he had provided Mr. Rhodes with the background information on the Hillcrest problem and asked his "urgent consideration" in examining the government's refusal of assistance.

Relocate Fair Grounds For Housing Says Corke

BY COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

Belleville Mayor Ben Corke said Thursday re-location of the Quinte Fair is something that me be dealt with soon to ease the shortage of residential land in the city.

Mayor Corke made the comment at a meeting of the Quinte Planning Board and urged discussion with townships of Sidney and Thurlow townships, also members of the board.

Deferring personal comment on the subject of fair re-location, Sidney Township Reeve Gordon Wilman said any recommendation of that nature should come solely from the city council.

Taking a different approach, Thurlow Township Reeve Thoreen Casey said, "if the fair comes our way, we'll make room for it." posing his township as the possible new home for the annual fair.

In stating his opinion of the fair as it exists within the city limits, Mayor Corke said "a fairground is not suitable in an urban centre."

"How long are we going to let substantial housing development go on, just a stone throw away from the fairgrounds," asked Mayor Corke.

"If we are going to agree to housing in this area, then the fair would be better somewhere else," he said.

"I'm convinced it's a problem we have to look seriously about a matter of grave concern," he said.

"In a city that is supposedly in desperate need of land, we have 23 acres for a drive-in movie and 16 acres for a fair," said Mayor Corke.

City Ald. Joe Cox suggested a study be made of the existing fairground with the view of locating it in one of the townships."

He also recommended that a committee be set up to consider the location of the fair with representatives of each municipality taking part.

"We've got lots of land and room for another," said Thurlow Reeve Casey.

Following the meeting Mayor Corke commented that the question of moving the fair would bring greater reactions from members of city council.

Ald. Arthur Symons said he is time opposed to any move to get rid of the fair, said during the meeting we're beginning to change my mind and am starting to agree with Mayor Corke."

It is anticipated the question of moving the fair will come under more detailed discussion at a Belleville planning meeting and subsequent council sessions.

Police Holding Suspect In Stabbing Incident

An East Moira St. man is in satisfactory condition in Belleville hospital today with a stab wound in his lower back after a fight and stabbing incident at his home early Thursday.

A hospital spokesman said today Arnold Bruce Thompson, 38, of 22 East Moira St. also sustained a broken hand.

Charged by city police with wounding is Gordon William Graham, 23, of 13 Earl St. The man was held in custody overnight and was scheduled to appear at a bail hearing today.

Police say they arrested a man in the immediate vicinity of the East Moira St. address after receiving a call about the stabbing. A knife, with a blade about six inches in length, was recovered.

Police said the incident followed a fight in Thompson's apartment.

A hospital spokesman said Graham was treated for facial lacerations and released Thursday.

Convocations Combined

Loyalist College Board of Governors decided Thursday the college's two convocations next year will be held on one day. Loyalist held its convocations almost a month apart in May and June this year.

Crest Unchanged

After about eight months of competition and judging Loyalist College officials have determined entries in their new college crest contain do not stack up to the current Loyalist crest.

A college crest committee had chosen the six best entries from which to select a new crest recently.

However, Douglas Walmsley of the college board of governors said he felt fellow members Thursday the submission are "not of sufficient merit to replace the present logo."

St. Thomas Charms Stolen

Canadian National security guards are investigating the theft of a number of gold and silver charms which were stolen Wednesday while on route for sale in Belleville at part of a St. Thomas Church fund raising project.

Gerry O'Connor said his store had handled the order with a Toronto jewelry firm for the charms and he personally went to Thunder Wednesday to retrieve the remaining charms which have been left by the thieves.

Mr. O'Connor said thieves made off with approximately eight gold charms and three silver charms. Retail value is set at $30 for the gold and $8 for the silver.

A CN investigation is continuing into the theft which occurred in the Toronto express shipping house.

Approximately 90 silver charms were left untouched and brought to Belleville for sale by a banner sponsored by the church Wednesday.

Each charm carries a facsimile of the church and is intended as a reminder of the church.

Dirty Laundry

Frankford area residents Alice White (left) and Rose Olsansky hold up their "dirty laundry" — stained yellow by what they believe is seepage of corn wastes into their rural wells. The women staged a protest Thursday against a "run-around" they claim the provincial environment ministry has given them.

Residents Protest Well Pollution

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

FRANKFORD — Undrinkable yellow water is being pumped from their wells, nine homeowners west of here say and the provincial environment ministry has admitted it's probable the source of the contaminant.

The charge was levelled against the ministry by homeowner Rose Olsansky during a protest outside their homes, about a mile west of Frankford, Thursday.

"No one can tell us what the problem is," Mrs. Olsansky said of the ministry, which has taken away samples of well water, is giving homeowners the "run-around."

Homeowners say they suspect the contaminant may be spread from a nearby farmer's earth silo, where about 800 ons of corn waste is stored.

In answer to homeowner's charges, Gordon Thom, an industrial abatement officer with the environment ministry said Thursday it's entirely incorrect that we're giving them the run-around."

Mr. Thom said he has been pushing laboratory technicians to isolate the contaminating element in the water samples, but to date, has seen no test results.

County Drops Out

Lennox and Addington officials have decided their county will not derive benefits from a proposed community arts centre to be located at Loyalist College, says Fred Bellstedt of the college board of governors.

Mr. Bellstedt is chairman of the Arts and Cultural Needs Task Force, an expanded group which administers the second phase of a $75,000 feasibility and preliminary design study for the proposed $7.17 million centre.

The expanded task force was to include representation from the City of Belleville and the counties of Hastings, Lennox and Addington and Northumberland-Durham.

"The warden of Lennox and Addington has felt it is not worth their while to join," Mr. Bellstedt told the board Thursday.

Requirements Under Review

The possibility of opening the doors of Loyalist College to Grade 10 secondary school graduates is under consideration, says Paul King, college dean of faculty and academic services.

He told the Loyalist board of governors Thursday the subject was discussed at a recent meeting of a liaison committee composed of both colleges and county boards of education representatives at which a large number of guidance counsellors was noted.

Mr. King said the committee discussed the opportunity for Grade 10 graduates to enrol in Loyalist in courses which do not require a high level of secondary school academic achievement.

He said no final conclusions have been made, but the ministry suggested two pollutants — either seepage into the well's water vein of the corn wastes or liquid dust suppressant used on township roads.

"We concluded that one of these two items is probably the source of the contamination," Mr. Thom said. "We're trying to identify which is responsible but it's entirely possible we'll not be able to."

The ministry has instructed the nearby farmer to install a catch tank for the seepage and suggested Sidney Township council to end use of "dust-layer" liquid dust suppressant on roads.

Both requests have been refused, he said.

In a letter to homeowners, Mr. Thom suggested they purchase a commercial water purification system for about $1,200. Costs for the system he suggested could be recovered through court action against the contaminator of water.

But homeowners Thursday said they could not undertake civil action until the source of the pollutant is pin-pointed.

Alice White, another homeowner, said a commercial water purification firm refused to consider installing a system because it couldn't guarantee the quality of the washing water.

Mrs. Olsansky said "We don't feel we should get anything because it was not our doing that caused the problem."

Now, all nine homeowners are going into a Frankford village laundromat to get water for cooking and washing. The well water, homeowners say, is causing rashes, stains on clothing and is "impossible to drink."

The residents have filed a brief outlining the problem with Quinte riding MPP Hugh O'Neil as well as officials of the health and environment ministries at Queen's Park.

Five Escape Injury In Car, Truck Mishap

Ontario Provincial Police at Belleville say five persons involved in a car-truck collision late Wednesday on Highway 401, 2.9 miles east of Belleville were lucky to escape uninjured.

Police said Thursday the vehicles were a tractor-trailer driven by Robert Charles Fritz, 44, of RR 3, Brockville and a 1975-model car driven by Heather Wesner, 24, of Hampstead, Que.

The Wener car also contained three female passengers. The four women are leaders who were on their way to Toronto to attend a convention, police said.

Police described that the tractor-trailer vehicle, westbound, was overtaking the tractor-trailer while in the passing lane when a tire blew, causing the car to spin in a circle three times and smash into the side of the other vehicle.

Police said the collision forced Fritz to lose control of the tractor-trailer which jackknifed into the north ditch.

The car ended up on the north shoulder of the westbound lane facing east.

Constable Errol Johnston, the investigating officer, stated that the corner of the empty trailer punctured the cab on the passenger side and commented that if the trailer had had a full load, it might have crushed the entire cab.

He estimated $1,000 damage to the tractor-trailer and $700 damage to the car in the 8:15 p.m. mishap.

Harry Joins Committee

Glyn Harry, director of finance at Loyalist College, has been appointed to a provincial government committee studying future financing for Ontario's 22 colleges of applied arts and technology.

Herbert Young, Loyalist president, told the college board of governors Thursday the government, through the provincial ministry of colleges and universities, formed the committee to determine both the amount and method of financing for the community college system.

He commented that Mr. Harry's appointment will ensure that the financial interests of the smaller community colleges will be maintained.

Loyalist Spending More for Staff Development

By ROBIN CHASE
Staff Reporter

Funds for professional development of staff at Loyalist College have been expended this year more on individual or group requests rather than college-wide activities, says Ted Fletcher, in charge of the program at Loyalist.

He told the college board of governors in a special report Thursday that during any final academic portions of the college year, the staff does not pack up an go study and attend professional development functions.

"This, in part, has been due to the varying difficulties we encounter each year from the types of operations of individual programs within each (college) school, that in turn makes it difficult to bring all the staff together at one time," Mr. Fletcher explained.

However, he said it is hoped the entire staff will come together for development activity during next academic portions of the year.

"We are currently investigating the possibilities of organizing professional development activities on a college-wide basis for the period between Christmas and New Year's, plus some activity during the mid-winter break," Mr. Fletcher commented.

He said the staff development "provides the opportunity for the staff to keep current within their fields of specialty or becoming aware of the interrelationships between themselves and others."

Mr. Fletcher outlined that the development budget this year is $47,280 or $400 per full-time staff member in the three main groups who take advantage of the opportunity — academic, administration, academic staff and non-academic staff (secretaries, stenographers, clerks, etc.)

He reported that since April, 88 staff members have spent 116 days in development activities, he noted, "it should be noted that although funds are requested by the staff individually, in the case that they receive the total requested amounts."

Thus, usually the staff member concerned has to provide some funds of their own, he remarked. "In this way, individual funds are able to provide more opportunities to individuals within the budgeted totals."

As an example of the development program, Mr. Fletcher cited one course for staff in the college school of health science and community studies where early this year a working reason on interview techniques was conducted for the nursing faculty.

College May Hold Seminars On Industry and Commerce

Loyalist College might provide seminars for visits across industrial and commercial staff on subjects similar to those attended by college staff in professional development activity, the college board of governors learned Thursday.

Ted Fletcher, in charge of college staff development, said such seminars could be possible through the college extension division.

In a special report on development to the board, Mr. Fletcher provided members with a list of various seminar subjects at which individual Loyalist staff have attended since April.

Following the list, Friedi Belstedt of the board asked if Loyalist could set up similar seminars for Quinte area industry and commerce. "They participated might come back for more formal education," he commented.

Paul King, college dean of faculty and academic services, said that staff development activities are certainly geared for industrial and business organizations as well as educational administration.

Red Wings' Maloney Charged After Attack on Leafs' Glennie

TORONTO (CP) — In one week, Ontario Attorney-General Roy McMurtry's much-publicized threat of legal action against violent acts in professional hockey became a reality.

On Thursday, the attorney-general's department announced that Dan Maloney of Detroit Red Wings had been charged with assault causing bodily harm.

Maloney was charged after an altercation with Toronto Maple Leafs defenceman Brian Glennie in a National Hockey League game Wednesday night.

Glennie spent Wednesday night in a Toronto hospital with a slight concussion and was released Thursday morning. He is expected to return to the Leafs lineup for a game tonight at Kansas City.

McMurtry's initial warning to the NHL and World Hockey Association came with its share of criticism, drawing a keep-your-hands-off attitude from pro hockey officials.

"I am concerned about the unprovoked assaults in hockey which happen by millions of people across the country," McMurtry said in announcing his police action last week.

McMurtry's threat-turned-action drew little support from hockey officials.

Punch Imlach, general manager and vice-president of Buffalo Sabres, called the whole hockey violence thing has been blown out of proportion."

"It's hard to define what this 'goal' (McMurtry) is talking about," Imlach said. "The law is the law and the hockey business is the hockey business. Everyone has their definition of violence in hockey. Nine is two guys standing there hitting each other over the head with their sticks."

Scotty Morrison, referee-in-chief of the NHL, said he thinks his officials can police the wagon. He backed it up with a directive to all 26 NHL referees to strictly enforce two fighters-both involving match penalties for players deliberately attempting to injure.

The incident between Maloney and Glennie started in the second period of what had been a relatively peaceful game eventually won by the Leafs 7-3.

Glennie knocked Detroit centre Bryan Hextall in the ice with a strong body check. Maloney came after Glennie, knocking him to the ice from behind. The fight continued until officials stepped in and referee Bryan Lewis handed Maloney a five-minute major.

Morrison said Maloney should have been assessed a match penalty.

The game turned rough after the altercation, punctuated by four sets of fights, including one between Maloney and the Leafs Dave Williams.

Maloney, a six-foot-two, 35-year-old left winger, will appear in court Dec. 4 to face the charge. He was not to be served with a summons.

Maloney was in Montreal on Thursday night preparing for the Red Wings' game against the Canadiens on Saturday. He declined to comment on the charge.

Clarence Campbell, NHL president, said the league would not intervene in the case.

"We plan no action or legal moves," said Campbell. "What's between him and the club."

Maloney was mentioned earlier this year by Toronto owner Harold Ballard as the type of rugged player his team needed.

In one of several statements by Ballard in which he criticized some of his own players for lack of aggressiveness, the Leafs owner said of the Red Wing player: "Maloney is rugged and won't back down to anyone. That's the type we guy I want."

Maloney is a native of Fort Erie, Ont., and a veteran of four seasons in the NHL.

It was only the third case before the American professional team sports in which players have been charged for their part in an incident that took place during a game.

Dave Forbes of the NHL Boston Bruins was charged with aggravated assault following his fight with Benny Douchan, then with the NHL Minnesota North Stars, in a game at Bloomington, Minn., last Jan. 6.

A nine-day trial in Minneapolis ended in a hung jury and the prosecutor in the case later announced he would not seek a second trial.

Meanwhile, Douchan underwent shoulder surgery to his injured right eye and said early this season he was still having problems with double vision.

In 1975, the late Wayne Maki, then with St. Louis Blues, and defenceman Ted Green, then with Boston Bruins, were both acquitted of assault charges brought against them in Ottawa after their fight in an NHL preseason game in Ottawa, Sept. 20, 1969.

The Green-Maki stick-swinging duel ended with Green suffering a skull fracture that almost ended his playing career.

Maki was not injured in the fight. He died four years later of a brain tumor.

Maloney started his NHL career in 1970 with Chicago Black Hawks. He was traded in 1973 to Los Angeles Kings where he spent 1½ regular season games before being traded to Detroit this season. He and defenceman Terry Harper of the Kings were sent to the Wings as compensation for centre Marcel Dionne who played out his option with Detroit before moving to Los Angeles.

Maloney acquired a total of 333 penalty minutes in his first four NHL seasons and scored 71 goals and 94 assists.

Flyers Held to 1-1 Tie

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There's no place like home—except for Philadelphia Flyers, Stanley Cup champions.

The Flyers have not lost a regular-season game at the Spectrum, the Broad Street establishment in downtown Philadelphia, since the end of last season.

Thursday night, Ross Lonsberry scored at 14:09 of the second period to enable Philadelphia to tie Los Angeles Kings 1-1 and preserve the Flyers' 25-game unbeaten streak at home.

In the other NHL game scheduled Thursday night, Pittsburgh Penguins won their second game in as many nights, a 4-3 victory over St. Louis Blues.

Gene Carr put the Kings off to a 1-0 lead at 10:34 of the first period when he scored from the left face-off circle. Bob Nevin of Los Angeles intercepted a clearing pass from Flyers' defenceman Joe Watson and pulled the puck left to Carr, who fired a ballet past Flyers goalie Wayne Stephenson.

The Flyers controlled the play in the final period but could not score on Kings' goalie Gary Edwards, who turned in a brilliant 31-save performance.

The Flyers pushed Los Angeles one point ahead of Montreal in the Norris Division standings.

Left winger Wayne Bianchin snapped a 2-3 tie early in the final period and Jean Pronovost added an insurance goal in the final five minutes to lift Pittsburgh past the Blues.

The Penguins exploded for three goals in the final 18 minutes after Ted Irvine's first goal of the season established a 3-2 St. Louis lead.

Pierre Larouche converted Pronovost's pass for a Pittsburgh power-play goal that provided the 3-3 tie before Bianchin connected 90 seconds later and Pronovost scored at 15:55 mark.

Pittsburgh's Gord Laxton, the first goalie selected in the NHL's amateur draft last spring, turned back 38 St. Louis shots.

Abrahamsson Responds To Switch with Goals

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Defenceman Thommy Abrahamsson relinquished his blueline chores in a World Hockey Association game Thursday night and may never take them back.

Abrahamsson was moved from defence to centre for the first time this season. The switch resulted in three goals as Abrahamsson led New England Whalers to an 8-3 victory over Cincinnati Stingers.

The Swedish import scored a goal in each period to help the Whalers move a point up on the Stingers for the East Division lead.

In the only other WHA game Thursday night, Quebec Nordiques stopped Denver Spurs 5-3.

Wayne Carleton scored two goals for the Whalers and Tom Webster, Leandre Paiement and Danny Arndt added one goal each.

New England took a 3-0 lead in the first 15 minutes of play but the Stingers fought back to tie the score at 3:45 of the second period.

Bernie MacNeil scored first for Cincinnati with 15 seconds remaining in the first period before Steve Andracsik and Don O'Donoghue tied the score early in the second period.

Abrahamsson's second goal at 11:58 put the Whalers ahead for good and they put the game away with four third-period goals.

Rejean Houle scored two third-period goals and Serge Bernier had four assists as Quebec beat Denver.

Houle snapped a 3-3 tie with a hard shot over the arm of Denver goalie Bob Johnson with only 26 seconds gone in the third period.

Houle put the Nordiques on top for keeps five minutes later after converting passes from Andre Lacroix and Paul Shmautz.

Quebec wrapped up the scoring on a disputed goal with only 45 seconds remaining. Leclerc pushed home a 30-footer from the right side which Denver argued that it hit the goal post instead of the inside of the net.

Denver's Ralph Backstrom tied the score at 3-3 on a shot from the left side which Quebec goalie Michele Deguise missed at the 4:08 mark.

Deguise missed at the 4:08 mark.

Spurs' Owner Denies Report

DENVER (AP) — Denver Spurs owner Ivan Mullenix has denied a report by a Toronto newspaper that the Spurs and four other World Hockey Association teams might fold by next summer.

Mullenix flatly intend to operate the Denver Spurs in the WHA, only for the 1975-76 season but in the future, as long as the Denver community supports professional hockey," Mullenix said in a statement Thursday.

Mullenix acknowledged Denver's poor early season attendance in the first year in the WHA.

"Although we admittedly have been disappointed at our low early season attendance, we are now getting assurances and support from the business community that we feel will produce the kind of general fan support to make this a solid franchise," Mullenix said.

The Spurs, with a 3-5-1 record, have averaged slightly more than 3,000 in the new 14,400-seat McNichols Arena.

Schutt Is Leader In Wolves' Win

By THECANADIA N PRESS

A three-goal performance by the Red Schutt and one goal from each of his new linemates gave Sudbury Wolves a 5-1 win over Windsor Spitfires Thursday in Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A action.

In other games, Hamilton Fincups edged St. Catharines Black Hawks 4-3 and Kingston Canadians downed Peterborough 6-4.

Play resumes tonight with Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds travelling to meet Kitchener Rangers, Sudbury visiting Toronto Knights, Windsor meeting Toronto Marlboros in Markham and Ottawa 67s playing host to Oshawa Generals.

In Windsor, Wolves' coach Gerry Toppazzini broke up the league's top-scoring line of Schutt, Ron Duguay and Alex McKendry. McKendry and Duguay were held scoreless.

On Day of the Big Play, Trojans Had It

By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

MADOC — Madoc Secondary School Trojans and Centre Hastings Secondary School Centurions made big plays at crucial moments, to many - did the two teams come up with here Thursday in the Bay of Quinte Senior Football Final.

The title went to Trojans 21-19 in a hard hitting contest that should several moments of both teams before it was over.

Nothing was lacking in this one.

The outcome was in doubt until Moira's John Lowe picked off a desperation pass by Centre Hastings' quarterback Scott Simpson on the last play of the game.

Centurions made a great bid to pull out the win.

With three minutes to play, a Lowe punt had Centurions pinned deep in their own zone. But running backs Randy Trumble and Harley Willemsen took turns ripping off large gains up the middle until the ball was on the Madoc 46 yard line.

Then Trojans went away from the ground game that was proving so successful. Simpson went to the air. The pass was incomplete. A running play gained nothing and with the minute flag up, V. J. Singh punted off the punt formation and again, the attempt failed.

Centurions held when Trojans took over and had time for one more shot at the title that eluded them in the final 60 seconds in 1974. Lowe had intended receiver Joe Brooks under wraps picked off the pass, and galloped out of bounds as time ran out.

It was Lowe who prevented Centre Hastings from adding two points in a 7-6 lead, late in the first half. Forced to punt deep in their end, Trojans got a high snap and punter Lowe finally caught up to the ball in the end zone. Trapped by hungry Centurions, Lowe ran to his right and got the kick away.

Excellent effort though it was, the clutch kick by Lowe served only to set up a surprise move by Centurions' Singh who dropped back to punt on third down but had perfect pass to a wide open Jim McConnell who wasn't brought down until he had dashed to the Moira 19-yard line. Willemsen crunched over for the major and it was 13-6, for the home side.

While the squads took turns attempting to outdo each other in a continuing exchange of super individual efforts, it remained for a pitch pattern offence to supply the effort which appeared to kindle the spark of hope in the Trojans.

Centurions led 6-6 when their talented back Willemsen broke loose for a 40-yard romp early in the second quarter. He was brought down at the five-yard line.

Moira came up with a goal line stand which prevented Centurions from taking a 13-point lead and perhaps securing enough momentum to carry them all the way. Cliff Reid was stopped at the one-yard line. Reid carried again and was stopped cold. Quarterback Simpson kept on the next play and created the goal line but the move was erased by a Centre Hastings offside. Breaks? Trojans had their share and fell just short and Trojans took over.

Shortly after that determined stand, Moira again came up big when Rob Graham spotted a Centre Hastings' fumble on the Centurions' 40-yard line.

Rick North spearheaded a Moira drive and carried the ball over the goal line after quarterback Tony Bennett had been stopped at the one.

That major evened the score at 6-6. Centurions had marched down the field following an opening kickoff on big gains by Reid, Willemsen and Trumble. Reid cracked over from the three.

Neither team managed to convert those early touchdowns.

Slagh's 40-yard single put Centurions back in front and Willemsen's major put them into a 13-6 lead at the half.

Lowe's 45-yard punt put another point on the board for Moira early in the third quarter and a Lowe pass to Larry Walsh off a fake punt very nearly set up the visitors for the tying points. But a third down gamble failed on the Centre Hastings' 19-yard line.

Trojans moved in front with a sudden upset that left everyone napping except Reg. Sprague who found himself with nothing but daylight in front of him on a counter play from the Centurions' 45-yard line. Ralph Kellars added the extra point and it was 14-13 Moira.

The Bellevillit team continued to exert its authority as the third quarter progressed.

Mike Crawford picked off a Simpson pass to give Trojans the ball on the Centre Hastings 35. Rick Barbeau carried to the 30 and Bennett connected to the nine. Then Bennett hit Sprague with a strike in the end zone and Moira had a 20-13 lead. Kellars was good on the conversion as Trojans rounded out their scoring at 21.

Centurions took a long shot out of Trojans' book on the last play of the third quarter. Blaine Wickens came up with a pass interception to give the home team possession.

Aided by a pass interference penalty, Centurions went all the way to pay-dirt with Reid finishing over. Again Centre Hastings came away without the extra point and it was 19-19. That's the way it stayed.

Oblivious to the fact he has lost glove from his shocking hand, Rideau captain Wayne Calberry tries in vain to come up with pick at Kingston Voyageurs' goalie Rick Copeland's feet. Shadowing defenceman on play is Kingston's Tim Dailey. Cats brought Metro Junior B Hockey League undefeated streak to 10 games with 5-3 win in Kingston. Belleville team meets Oshawa in game at Memorial Arena tonight.

There's No Stopping the Bobcats

KINGSTON — The Belleville Bobcats remain the Metro Junior B Hockey League's only undefeated team after a 6-3 Thursday victory here against the result kept the Bobcats out of the Kingston Township Voyageurs. The Belleville squad is as it had in the nine previous games, proved to be a potent team effort to score the win.

In their second game this week, the Bobcat took control early in the contest, firing three goals in the first period then holding off the home club in the middle stanza and coasting on strong in the final 20 minutes of play.

The Voyageurs picked up a total of 8 minutes in penalties, including three fighting majors, a misconduct and a game misconduct. Belleville was assessed a total of 20 minutes. Two of the boys drew five minute fighting majors.

Belleville had a much clearer edge in Thursday's outing, outshooting the Voyageurs 41-26.

Goegan and Meagher came in on the Kingston goalie with only one defenceman back for the home team. Meagher took a shot that reminded Rick Copeland blocked. Referee Orval Gravelle, anticipating the goalie would hold the puck, blew his whistle. The puck however bounced off the goalie with the rebound going to Goegan who got the puck in the net. The goal was disallowed.

David Gollogly had two Kingston goals. The other one picked up by Kim Ellis.

Belleville will go right back at it again tonight when the Oshawa Legionaires are in town for a 8 p.m. game. Oshawa is the only team the Belleville school has not picked up a win from this season. Oshawa fought to a 6-6 tie with Belleville in their only meeting.

"It was just a super effort on the part of everybody," said Cats' coach Meehan Bowman after their second win this week.

Belleville received strong showings from all positions as the forwards were picking up their checks when the defence stayed at the blue line. Voyageurs had trouble putting something together in the Belleville end.

Grant Goegan and Paul Tilley led the Cats scoring. Each picked up a pair of goals. It was Tilley's second two-goal night in a row. Rob (Bubba) Thompson had the other counter. The Voyageurs got a break on what should have been Goegan's third goal of the evening in the final period of play.

Junior Ah You May Miss Game

MONTREAL (CP) — Most would take, but given the stage treat Alouettes tre going to of the season, the Alouettes dance with the uses what brung may play their Hamilton game 'em. one man short and hope for Ah You's return in the CFC final 10 Ottawa on Nov. 19.

The Alouettes plan on entering the Eastern Football Conference semi-final Sunday against Hamilton Tiger-Cats with essentially the same lineup that brought the club into the game.

A contingent of World Football League refugees has been sent home without signing Alouette contracts. The only potential change in the roster may be the activation of guard Frank Pomarico, but that was a "remote possibility."

Defensive end Junior Ah You, however, is an improbable starter for the 3 p.m. EST Sunday start here against the Tiger-Cats. Ah You injured a knee on the second play of the Montreal game, and reserve Paul Dominik is listed as a probable starter at defensive end.

Ah You has practised this week but has been limping with a the knee injury. The Alouettes' spokesman said that if Ah You could be placed on the 21-day injury list without missing the rest of the season, that might be the course of action the club pursues.

Other Alouettes on the injury list are offensive lineman Bruce Smith, linebacker Chuck Zapico and defensive back Jerry Ward. Smith, all of whom are gone for the year.

Fred Smith, who was put out of action with a broken arm, has been the subject of trade speculation, particularly with respect to Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference.

The club spokesman said Smith, now at home in Calgary, "probably asked to be traded but no action has been taken in that direction yet."

"It's a next-year move and right now we're more concerned with this season. But there's nothing definite yet."

Smith was suspended by coach Marv Levy for one game earlier this year after missing a practice without "a valid excuse," Levy's words.

The Alouettes, the spokesman said, are preparing for the Hamilton game "with a heck a lot of hard work—nothing new.

"We're working very, very hard and we're not putting anything new or fancy into the offence. This is not the time to start experimenting."

NFL Teams Can't Agree on Method For Stocking Two New Arrivals

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League's two newest teams—Seattle and Tampa—may find the nucleus of their squads from the remains of the now-defunct World Football League.

NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle said he hopes the league's stocking formula for the expansion teams will be worked out today. But he also said both Seattle and Tampa could immediately sign WFL players now for the 1978 season when the two new teams begin pay.

"As 28 teams can sign WFL players for next year," the commissioner said, "As long as the two new teams are being permitted to sign them, we feel the players should have the right of choice of the other 28 teams as well."

Rozelle said the NFL owners failed in Thursday's all-day meeting to come up with a final plan on stocking the new teams.

"We've got the mechanics pretty well set, but not the numbers," he said.

The commissioner said the clubs had different ideas on pooling together the new teams.

"Those clubs that don't have many draft choices say 'Let's give them a break in the draft. That's how you build a club.' Those clubs that have plenty of draft choices want to do it a different way."

Both teams will be stocked in January before the Pro Bowl in New Orleans.

Rozelle said the procedure for signing WFL players would be to have the players request clearance through the NFL office.

Rozelle also said that in the cases where players signed with clubs other than those holding their NFL rights, the two teams involved would have to work out compensation.

Bomber Defence A Question Mark

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers go into Saturday's Western Football Conference semi-final game against Saskatchewan Roughriders without a victory in the last month.

The Bombers, who started the season with three wins in four games, had two wins and two ties in their last 10 games but all their matches have come against eastern teams. In their last six games against teams in the West, the Bombers have come up empty-handed.

The thing that has coach Bud Riley concerned is that the offence put enough points on the board in all but two of those 10 final games to pick up a victory.

"If you score 30 to 23 points, you should win," Riley said before directing the Bombers in another practice session prior to their journey to Regina to meet the second-place Roughriders.

Only three times in their final 10 games did the Bombers fail to put 20 points on the board and despite a strong offensive showing, the Winnipeg defence couldn't produce the effort necessary to preserve victory.

"I'm concerned about the effort of some of our individuals and the mental mistakes of some individuals," Riley said of his defence. "We're capable of playing well, but it's just a matter of how well we can get mentally prepared."

Despite the lack of recent success Riley said team spirit is high and he's looking for an improved defensive showing even with the absence of rookie safety Brian Heroguan, out the last two games because of a bruised spleen.

One More Season For Hank Aaron

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Hank Aaron will play one more season for Milwaukee Brewers and then join the front office as a vice-president of the American League club, it was announced Thursday.

When Del Crandall was fired as manager on the last day of the season, in which the Brewers finished a disappointing fifth in the East Division, Aaron was believed to be the No. 1 candidate as Crandall's successor.

But Aaron hinted in recent weeks he might want to play one more season, even though he hit only .231 with 12 home runs in 465 times at bat, mostly as a designated hitter, for the Brewers last year.

Aaron, 41, will not become a vice-president until after the 1979 season. Club president Bud Selig and general manager Jim Baumer did not specify what his front office duties will be.

"I appreciate the number of opportunities which Mr. Selig and the club have asked me to consider, and I have decided to accept their offer to become a vice-president of the club when I finish my playing career," Aaron, whose 755 homers in 22 seasons are a major league record.

Basketball Teams Are on Want List

OTTAWA (CP) — Organizers of the Eastern Ontario winter games are looking for men's and women's basketball teams to compete in a regional playoff to determine regional representatives for the Ontario winter games in Sault Ste. Marie, Feb. 12-16.

Bob Simpson, executive director of the National Capital Commission regional sports council, said today teams from Peterborough, Ottawa, Brockville, Cornwall, Kingston, Pembroke and other eastern Ontario communities are eligible for the regional games in Ottawa Dec. 5-7.

The games are open to men's and women's teams with players under 21 as of Jan. 1, 1978. Entries must be made by Nov. 22.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

For Saturday, Nov. 8

ARIES (March 21-April 20) Your ambitions are especially acute today. If someone comes up with an interesting speculative proposition, you'll be all ears.

TAURUS (April 21-May 20) Normally you take a lot of time to think things out. Today you'll act on impulse but you'll know you took the right action.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Today you'll find you work as well with your hands as you do with your head. You have a talent for making something useless and making it into something worthwhile.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You'll want to do something exciting today. Choose someone new who you think will be interesting. Ask them to join you for an evening out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Set some time aside today to putter around the house and do some thing constructive you've been thinking about for a long time.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're at your best in social situations today. Though it may not seem like much to you, your offhand remarks help create merriment in your crowd.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You have some clever ideas today on instructing others on how to handle their resources wisely. Feel free to suggest when requested advice.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you lack the mental challenge today, you'll be very restless and out of sorts. Try to get into some intellectual pursuit.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You have the good sense today to keep your ace in the hole until the last card and the highest until the last card is drawn. Save your punch line for the end in commercial dealings.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Go to new places and meet new faces today. They may be only friends of the moment, but the chances in atmosphere will do you good.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If someone offers to do you a favor today, don't refuse it out of hand. The offer will be withdrawn quickly if not readily.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In the Small World department, you'll learn that a friend is also a pal of a chum from a bygone day. You'll enjoy reminiscing about him.

To Your Good Health

Wants Help for Swimmer's Ear

By G. C. Thielsen, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thielsen: I am writing to you for help in keeping up an ear infection which is driving me crazy. My doctor says it is not outer ear infection, or "swimmer's ear."

There are terrific, sharp pains at my first bite of food — pain in the head and ringing in the ears. Also, there is a thick, oozing under the skin in front of my ears, and the ear-canals close up.

My hearing is impaired. What would be your honest opinion as to advice? I am 59-years-old. — L.M.

This is a bacterial of fungal infection of the outer ear sometimes referred to as external otitis. The ear canals are, in normal circumstances, kept rather dry and filled with air. When they become damp, anyway as in prolonged swimming, they invite germ growth.

The lining of the ears is thin and where closely set by the deriving structures. It is very susceptible to infection, and owing to clean the canal manually can injure the tissue, also. In normal circumstances kept rather dry and filled with air. When they become damp, anyway as in prolonged swimming, they invite germ growth.

The lining of the ears is thin and where closely set by the deriving structures. It is very susceptible to infection, and owing to clean the canal manually can injure the tissue, also. In normal circumstances kept rather dry and filled with air. When they become damp, anyway as in prolonged swimming, they invite germ growth.

Your hearing could be impaired because of the swelling in the canal or from an accumulation of debris from the infection. This will improve as the infection subsides.

All swimming waters (including pools) have bacteria of one sort or another. Warmer waters harbor more of the self-feeding organisms than does chilly water. I suggest that next summer you find a way to protect your ears from such infection. Perhaps ear plugs may be your solution after your infection has cleared.

Dear Dr. Thielsen: Please write something about tennis elbow. How do you happen to get it; is there a cure for it? How can I get? I am 55-years-old. Will I be able to do any work? — Mrs. T.P.

Many tennis elbow patients have never played tennis. But if you are a player and if your problem is related to that, then it can correctly be called "tennis elbow."

In tennis players it results from a twisting movement of the arm, particularly the forearm, in stroking the ball. Beginners should be careful, especially in serving the ball. Tennis elbow is a strain phenomenon and is in fact more common in persons using their arms in other occupations than is in among tennis players.

It can be a bursitis in the elbow joint, a disturbance of the tiny bursa sacs that facilitate joint movement. Or it can result from a tearing of a tendon or muscle attachment to the bone.

Rest, application of heat, sometimes injection of hydrocortisone into the painful bundle of treatment. Of course, if untreated or further irritated, tennis elbow can become disabling. With proper treatment the typical shoulder region full use of your arm again.

I suspect that with the recent surge in popularity of tennis we may be seeing more tennis elbow than formerly.

Dear Dr. Thielsen: My husband takes vitamins pills. Could he possibly be allergic to them? — Mrs. T.B.

The allergy reaction would more likely be to the binding material to the vitamin pills or in the coating than to the vitamin themselves.

Opening lead — 4 ♣

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY

The bidding in the box shows how the American Contract Bridge League staff figured most players' with less than 400 master points would get to six hearts.

Six hearts is a fine contract and South should have little trouble making seven since things break nicely for him.

The correct technique against a club lead is to play ace of spades at trick two. Ruff a spade with dummy's nine at trick three. Lead a diamond to the ace. Ruff a spade with dummy's ace, cash dummy's king of diamonds in order to discard the losing club, draw trumps and claim the balance since the spades are all good by this time.

Our own experience with ordinary bridge players is that most North would just bid four hearts over South's three hearts, but that would not stop the South players from going right into Blackwood and maybe even trying for a grand slam by bidding no trump after North shows the missing ace.

Nova Scotia Boat Studies Arctic

HALIFAX (CP) — In this day of specially reinforced steel vessels and Canada's renewed interest in her northern territories, next year's voyage of a Nova Scotia ship will be an Arctic Voyage with a difference.

The 45-foot Arctic Witch, a wooden craft built on the lines of the privateers of the 18th century, leaves next June with a cargo of sophisticated electronic gear to study the Arctic for an Edmonton firm.

The vessel was designed by Halifax architect James D. Mc-Murrough and built by Windsor Boat Limited, also a yacht building base for navigation and trade for Arctic Communications Ltd.

A privateer's hatch may be a strange choice to send to the frigid, icy waters of the Arctic but not as much as it may seem.

B. L. MacKay, head of Arctic Communications, said wooden hull will eliminate magnetic interference that would be experienced with steel structures.

"There's also some advantage to her being a sailing vessel," said Mr. MacKay.

"We can use the rigging, shrouds and stays as part of the antenna system."

The schooner will also reduce fuel requirements.

"For what we want to do," he said, "we might need a vessel of 150 feet just to carry enough fuel for our research and still allow us the room we have aboard the Arctic Witch.

She has three cabins and an enclosed wheelhouse. The forecastle sleeps two and has storage room and the main salon has bunks, seats, a dining table and a galley.

The stern cabin has bunks, drawers, a chart table and a freezer for meat and other foodstuffs.

Mr. MacKay said the company plans to have the vessel ready for sailing sail for the first lengthy leg of the trip to David Strait, Mr. McKeenpower engine will give her motor range of about 1,000 miles but Mr. MacKay said he would like to have auxiliary power for manoeuvring in the ice floes.

Arctic Communications Ltd.'s interest in a variety of systems has led to its participation in the voyage.

Mr. MacKay said the voyage of the Arctic Witch may take as long as three seasons to get through the fabled Northwest Passage.

The best time for navigation is the four weeks from mid-August to mid-September," he said. The last party known to reach Gjoa Haven on King William Island by the end of the first season.

Sky Shops Scandal Erupts in RCMP Parliament Raids

OTTAWA (CP) — A nine-month RCMP investigation into Sky Shops Export Ltd. erupted into activity Friday with raids on the parliamentary office and Montreal home of Liberal backbencher Louis Gilgoyer, who earlier this week admitted making a profit of $66,000 on a $1,000 investment in Sky Shops shares in 1973.

"They took practically everything," Senator Gilgoyer said in an interview with the Toronto Globe and Mail, his only public statement.

The investigation may have been triggered by documents turned over to Solicitor-General Warren Allmand late this week by Elmer MacKay, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Central Nova.

Mr. MacKay has petitioned the Commons for a judicial inquiry into possible conflict of interest in Sky Shops' acquisition in 1973 of a federal lease extension for its duty-free shop at Montreal International Airport.

The extension of the lease to 1980 apparently enabled shareholders to sell stock, much of it bought in the 1960s for $1 a share, for $30 a share.

As Sky Shops got the extension, and the value of the stock hit $30, the company's owners allowed Senator Gilgoyer to buy 5,000 shares at $1 a share.

The senator, a fund-raiser appointed in 1968 by Prime Minister Trudeau, earlier this week denied any conflict of interest, and said he had simply taken up an option offered in late 1972 or early 1973 by Sky Shops chairman Louis Lapointe, "a good friend of mine."

Mr. MacKay, in a letter to Solicitor-General Allmand dated Wednesday, enclosed a typed sheet of shares voted Senator Gilgoyer from eight sharpholders.

A handwritten note on the sheet provided the connection that may have started the investigation. Mr. MacKay warned however that he had no way of authenticating the note and this was one reason he had turned it over to Mr. Allmand and asked him to refer it to the RCMP.

As RCMP spokesman said the investigation into Sky Shops became active Friday with searches in Ottawa and Montreal.

"The RCMP has been investigating the company for nine months and would have preferred not to execute search warrants at this time," the spokesman said.

Trading Craft Will Winter in Belleville

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

There's a true salty touch to one of the more unique vessels to dock in Belleville for years.

And Sea Dream II will winter it out in the water in the city.

She's a skipper, Newfoundlander George Hardy, after he tied up the Belleville Marine Friday.

Sea Dream II is a trading schooner in which Mr. Hardy plies his goods-supply business around the Newfoundland coasts in summer.

And she was still in the trading business when the craft slipped into Belleville — ending a 13-day, 1,000-mile voyage from Port-aux-Casques.

Aboard, Mr. Hardy had cases of such Atlantic delicacies as smoked cod, tinned crab meat and lobster.

The Belleville arrival permitted the skipper to attend the Canadian Boating Federation meeting being held in the city.

But there were also sound business reasons for tapping-up Sea Dream II as a wintering made possible by plans to keep open water around the marine facilities by ocean-boatbuilder Allen Nye Scott.

Mr. Hardy has become a regular at the cops lounge at Orillia.

Also, the Olympic regatta is scheduled for Kingston next year. This offers an opportunity for probably chartering out Sea Dream II to Olympic visitors, he says. Then Belleville makes a handy winter shelter.

In the meantime, he'll travel back and forth to Newfoundland.

The 66-foot, two-master evokes an image of the romantic days of sea-sail.

But she's actually just a year old, and sports sail of neoprene-cotton makes about eight knots.

For it's owner, Sea Dream II also marks a return to where it all began for him — Dildo.

Mr. Hardy said he was born aboard a schooner — although he got away from sailing for nearly 30 years when in business.

Morocco, Spain Seek Peaceful Compromise

AGADIR, Morocco (AP) — Spanish and Moroccan ministers were reported working on a Saharan compromise today that would enable hundreds of thousands of unarmed Moroccans camped on both sides of the Spanish Saharan border to go home.

One Moroccan official predicted, "a decisive turn of events for the good" in the crisis.

Meanwhile, tens of thousands of Moroccan marchers opened "second front" Friday about 120 miles east of their first spreading into Spanish Sahara the province day.

Ifrane, Cmro, representing Spanish Premier, Carlos Arias Navarro, to Moroccan temporary capital late Friday to resume high-level negotiations on ending the crisis. He was immediately received by Moroccan Foreign Minister Ahmed Laraki.

Moroccan officials said Cmro and King Hassan II of Morocco were expected to meet this morning in the king's Agadir palace, the over-all command post for the march by Moroccan civilians into Spanish Sahara on the arid northwest corner of Africa.

Moroccan Information Minister Ahmed Taibi Benhima told reporters "you can expect a decisive turn of events in the next 24 hours." He did not elaborate, but his statement was widely regarded as confirmation of reports that a compromise between Morocco and Spain was in the offing.

By official Moroccan count, 30,000 marchers had crossed the border by nightfall Friday. This total generally excluded the new column which apparently tried to circumvent the Spanish minefields south of Tarfaya.

Moroccan officials said they had established close communications throughout the crisis with Spanish officers at troops facing the "dissuasion line" of barbed wire and landmines separating the two armies beyond the border near Tarfaya.

The new wave of volunteers—said by officials to number "tens of thousands"—was taken by truck along a winding, 60-mile trail from the base camp at Tarfaya to a point on the border deep in the desert outpost of Abtaitch.

B.C. Trade Unionists Boo Labor Minister

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Munro, federal labor minister, told the government's price and wage controls are the best British Columbia trade unionists Friday, responding with a swearing at him, calling him a pig, booing and hissing and walking out on him.

The minister told the B.C. Federation of Labor convention that the government regarded its program as "a bit-and-run program . . . we want to get out of it as quickly as we can."

One of many delegates who challenged and heckled the minister drew a round of applause when he said bit and run is against the law.

"You're right, bit and run is against the law," the minister said, "But we're making the law."

About 150 of the more than 950 convention delegates walked out during his speech in sing the old labor song Solidarity Forever.

Canadian Union of Postal Workers picket signs saying "Trudeau unfair to government workers" were liberally sprinkled about the convention floor.

In his speech, Mr. Munro said the controls were the best of five options—to do nothing; curtail everything with a big government bureaucracy; redirect money supplies, which would result in more unemployment; control prices..but not wages, or the selective system which was the government's choice to break the inflation psychology."

The minister said he could understood the frustration of labor.

"We're not frustrated," said one delegate, "we're mad."

Mr. Munro avoided shouting matches with the delegates and said he did not feel bad about their demonstrations.

"I agree that most of you don't like what we're doing. I understand the rules of the game."

CUPW Remains Firm as Some Strikers Rebel

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The executive of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) asked its 22,000 members Friday to stay on strike to back contract demands but some members are on the job or plan to be.

Joe Davidson, CUPW president, said only about 200 members across the country have gone back to work since the strike began almost three weeks ago.

The post office said there were more than 200 on the job but gave no figure.

A number of the inside postal workers on the job are at post offices with fewer than 10 employees and are handling only local mail. However, there are some larger post offices where employees have returned to work or plan to.

In Halifax, a post office official released a copy of the government's offer to the union and said CUPW members wishing to return to work are welcome to do so.

At least 17 inside postal workers returned to their jobs in Ottawa on Friday, said a part-time worker for the post office who led a demonstration on Parliament Hill two weeks ago calling for a return to work.

The CUPW local in Lindsay, Ont., about 75 miles northwest of Peterborough, said its members were to be back on the job midnight Friday night.

The Lindsay postmaster said only one of the 17 inside postal workers voted against returning to work.

In Toronto, local president Lou Murphy called a news conference Friday to deny his members are ready to go back to work. He said, however, there is to be a membership meeting today in Toronto which will be attended by a number of other CUPW locals and the national executive.

DUBLIN (AP) — Dutch industrialist Tiede Herrema, smoking after 36 days of captivity in a "filthy hellhole," held up a .38-calibre bullet today and said: "The terrorists gave me this as a souvenir." Looking undaunted, Herrema, 53, spoke to reporters several hours after he was released unharmed by two Irish Republican Army kidnappers Friday night. Medical examiners said he was "in very good health."

Hearst Stands Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Patricia Hearst, who once said she was nearly driven mad by her terrorist captors, is "clearly a troubled young woman," a judge says, but not too troubled to stand trial. U.S. District Judge Oliver Carter ruled the 21-year-old kidnapped heiress mentally competent Friday to stand trial on charges of taking part in an armed bank robbery with the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA).

Municipal Rates to Rise

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's municipal mill rates likely will increase next year, Treasurer Darcy McKeough said Friday. He told the municipal finance committee it now appears provincial payments to municipalities will increase by about six per cent next year, compared to a 15 per cent increase this year.

Teachers Walk Off

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Some school teachers in Montreal were off the job part of this week and secondary school teachers in Metropolitan Toronto spent one week out to the number of persons on strike in the country. In Montreal, six English language schools of the Lakeshore Regional Study Commission were closed Friday when 225 teachers held a walkout to protest delays by the Quebec government in tabling wage offers, a commission official said.

Belleville Local Backs National Executive

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

The 31 members of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers for the Belleville-Brighton Local are backing their national executive "100 per cent" and do not plan to go back to work until instructed to, according to local president Wayne Coleman.

"I've heard a bit of griping, but no one has said they are going back to work until the national executive says so," Mr. Coleman said today.

But in Trenton, he said, she has heard rumours that the 13-member CUPW local is going back to work Monday.

Trenton union secretary Ross Milligan today refused to confirm or deny the rumor.

The Trenton local, according to Mr. Coleman, has been made part of the Belleville local by a CUPW national director and only local work must be done to join the two locals.

B.C. Regional Labor Council Backs Strikers

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver and District Labor Council Friday voted to support striking postal workers and urged all unions to refuse to handle mail.

The council, which represents 100,000 members of 200 unions in the Vancouver area, also urged all unions to refuse to cross picket lines set up by striking postal workers.

The council's executive committee had recommended the support.

O'Neill Says Frankford Area Residents Getting Run-around

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

Hugh O'Neill, MPP Quinte, believes a group of Frankford area homeowners may have been "getting the run-around" from the provincial government over complaints of undrinkable domestic water.

Mr. O'Neill said Friday the matter was first taken up "some time ago" with environment ministry officials in Kingston.

A ministry of environment official said Friday test results of water drawn from nine wells contaminated by yellowish material near Frankford will not be available for at least a week and a half.

Gordon Thom, industrial abatement section district engineer, said ministry laboratory technicians in Toronto are swamped with work.

They will need more time to carefully test samples from the wells and the "black liquid" road-dust suppressant and roadsilage suspected of being the contaminants of the water, he said.

Recently, Mr. O'Neill said he contacted the health ministry in Toronto and three times tried to contact environment minister George Kerr for an appointment so the homeowners could "make their case."

"There is something seriously wrong and I don't think we're getting the action on it we should," said Mr. O'Neill.

The government has suggested homeowners install commercial water purification systems for an estimated $1,200. Costs would then be recovered in a civil court suit from the offender.

"Basically, it's a question of trying to isolate something from the corn sugar or "black liquor" that is also in the well water," said Mr. Thom.

Nine homeowners west of Frankford have charged that the ministry is giving them a "run-around" in not supplying them with test results of their well water. They say the ministry is not acting fast enough to pinpoint the source of the contamination.

The nine homeowners suspect that their well water is contaminated as a result of seepage from a nearby earth side in which about 400 tons of corn wastes are stored.

Mr. Thom said testing the samples is a "fairly complicated process."

Kingsize Carrots Astound Area Gentleman Farmer

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

You could have knocked Colin Hilton over with a carrot when he recently started digging up his vegetable patch.

The reason: The carrots turned out to be kingsize — some weighing up to three pounds.

In fact, says Mr. Hilton — who was born on a farm — he's never seen as many of the vegetables grow to such a size.

Brandishing one example — nine inches long and 15 inches in circumference — he nonetheless admits he's at a loss to explain the size of the crop.

Last year the carrots were about normal — although his patch produced some big potatoes.

"I sure didn't expect this — but I don't know what the explanation is," he says.

The 70-year-old Mr. Hilton, a retired welder who lives at 72 Wallbridge Cres., has always been interested in gardening. But three years ago he took over a plot on Thurlow Township's second concession "just to grow vegetables for the winter."

He hasn't changed his growing techniques, but this year he figures he's raised six bushels of carrots in a 50-foot row — much more than should normally be expected he claimed.

But he's got one problem: No one could eat that much carrot and he figures they will be unsaleable for the same reason.

So, what he and his wife don't consume themselves he says they'll have to turn over on the ground as fertilizer for next Year's gardening.

Madawaska Man Dies

BANCROFT — One man is dead and three are in hospital with serious injuries after a car missed a turn on the Madawaska Road, 27 miles northwest of here, rolled over and crashed through a clump of trees early today.

Pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. David Lloyd, Whitney, is Reginald Lacombe, 28, of Madawaska. A post mortem is scheduled for today.

In fair condition in Peterborough Civic Hospital are Adam Dupuis with severe scalp lacerations and head injuries, and Joseph Dupuis with multiple fractures, possible head injuries and lacerations. Both are from Madawaska.

Dr. Lloyd said today the third passenger, Kenneth Porath of Madawaska, is in excellent condition with a possible broken shoulder and broken knee cap.

Provincial police in Bancroft said today the Dupuis's were pinned inside the vehicle when OPP officers arrived. A door was pried off the car, called a write-off by police, to free the two men.

The accident was reported to police after another occupant, Kenneth Porath was picked up by a passing motorist wandering aimlessly on the Madawaska Rd.

Brooms Among Handicrafts Sold to Benefit Blind

BY MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Shoppers frequently stop at the Main Street show window of Robin Motors to view the latest in transportation but this week the window is filled with brooms.

The display is not a campaign for cheaper air travel it's the annual Canadian National Institute for the Blind craft sale here. A large number of brooms big and small were offered for sale Friday and remain available today.

In addition to these perennially popular sellers were woven decorator waste baskets, foot stools, aprons, moccasins, wallets and oven mitts.

Mrs. Douglas Lauer, a worker with the CNIB said Friday that most of the craft items were made in Kingston. Some were the work of Prince Edward County residents.

All proceeds from the sale are used to assist the blind.

Mrs. Lauer said that CNIB craft sales have been held in Picton in many years and for the past eight years Robin Motors has supplied a convenient Main Street location. The two-day sale ends today.

Picton Kiwanians Remember

PICTON — The Picton Kiwanis Club has planned a special Remembrance Day program to be held Sunday, November 12 at Prince Edward Yacht Club.

In a lighter vein a humorous wareline skit will be presented.

On Tuesday, November 11 the Picton Rotary Club will remember the war dead with a special program featuring guest speaker Woodrow Blakney, a Picton veteran and a teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute.

Farmers May Face Sileage Shortage Next Spring

BY CLIFF KENYON
Staff Reporter

There may be a shortage of roughage, hay and corn silage next spring, says Wayne Martin, Hasting County assistant agriculture representative, but the grain outlook looks good.

Mr. Martin said if there is a shortage it will be because of low yields due to poor weather early this year and due to increased numbers of animals on farms.

Dairy farmers who normally have half a year's supply of grain on hand at the end of spring did not have that much this year.

"Hay prices about 100 miles away are lower," said Mr. Martin due to better weather conditions to the west.

A bale of hay selling for $1.75 here is selling for about $1.25 west of Toronto.

"Feed costs are up a lot more than in past years," said Mr. Martin.

Irene Aickland of "Braeber Feeds, 260 Coleman St., said farmers do not seem as frustrated about feed prices as they have been in previous years.

"The price is a little more stable than it was in previous years. He not as up, up cycle that is was a few years ago. It wasn't just grain it was the economy around the world."

Bruce Thompson of Thompson Farm Supplies, 105 Church St., said there is a good supply of feed and pastures are in better condition now than they were during the dry summer.

Winterize Garden Now

By ROSS HAWTHORNE

What's happening in your garden now ? Guess depends on where you are located. Up our way, near Shannonville, it's rains over. The tender bulbs, tubers and corms have been dug, the annuals yanked and this weekend, the roses will be mounded.

But there are reports in the area of annuals still in bloom, later perennials in flower and roses in full bloom. But the frosts is coming. So now is a good time to review some of the things that are necessary to bottom up your garden for spring.

1) Pull over hybrid annuals. Let them go to seed and save you could have seed next spring, but they would be pale imitations of the real thing.

2) Prune perennials to within four inches of ground level. Again, if some perennials, such as phlox, go to seed, the resulting plants will be pale imitations copies of the mother plant.

3) Water your evergreens thoroughly now and in winter help them by shoveling your lawn and piling the snow around their bases. Evergreens never go fully dormant and need moisture all winter, especially next to the foundation where the dry, warm air escaping through the basement walls can parch the roots.

4) Mound your roses — heap them well over a foot of soil, piling it especially in the centre and packing it all around the outside of the canes at the base; Don't:

a) prune them back — let winterkill do that for you

b) use earth for mounding from the rose garden. You could be exposing the graft (which is really what you're trying to protect). Better to obtain the soil somewhere else.

5) Dig tender bulbs, tubers and corms — shake off most of the earth and let them dry in the sun for a few days. Then clean them off and store them in cartons, by placing a layer of paper in the bottom.

Next inches of peat moss, a layer of bulbs (dusted with fungicide), placed so they don't touch, two more inches of peat moss, more bulbs or tubers, and so on.

Glad corms should be cleaned of earth and can simply be hung in a cool dry place in something porous like a leg from an old pair of your wife's pantyhose.

6) Don't protect with plastic — especially evergreens. They never go fully dormant. Just breathe all winter. Cover them with plastic and you achieve the same effect as though you stuck your head in a plastic bag. But the browning off and demise may not show up in early next summer — and by then you'll be wondering why.

7) Fertilize your steps and driveway — if ice is a problem — don't use salt that can badly damage adjacent lawns, perennials, shrubs or trees. Instead buy a bag of high nitrogen fertilizer (21-7-7 or Urea (46-0-0) and have it ready to dedot your walks. It will do the job and next summer your lawns and shrubs will do nothing but pamper.

8) Don't spit perennials — wait now until spring when the growth is lush. Divide them now and the loose soil around the newly planted roots could be worn open for winter kill.

9) Cut your lawn — Don't leave it long and matted over the winter or you could subject it to all kinds of diseases — especially snow mould. Do add a fertilizer with high middle and last numbers for deep root growth and winter protection.

And then, sit back and start reading the seed catalogues. It will make next spring seem much closer.

Weighted Drum Poor Ploy by Owners

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A sour apple of the year award should be presented to the owners of the Armory Mall for outstanding efforts in alienate shoppers.

In recent weeks the mall management has devised a particularly offensive method of enforcing no parking signs in the rear of the building. The motorist who parks by accident or design in this office limits zone will return to find a weighted drum chained to his bumper. On the barrel is written the word "impounded" and a telephone number. When the number is called, a man arrives to remove the chains and collect a $10 fee.

Although it is easy to understand why the mall management is annoyed by shoppers who persistently park in no parking zones it is difficult to hold anything but contempt for such corrective measures.

In a recent instance the offender was a patron of The Haircutting Place, a beauty shop in the mall. The arched bar sat in the reserved area assuming that it was permissible for customers of the mall to use the parking facilities.

When she returned to her vehicle a barrel had been chained to the bumper and her new calfore cost her an extra $10.

The odd ball and chain technique may nab the toughest motorist who usually parks where he pleases be it at a meter or in a no-parking zone. It also punishes the conscientious driver who may have parked at the rear of the mall in the belief that the lot is open to mall customers only.

If the mall owners are so determined to close the parking area to tenants only then a chain link fence around the lot would seem a much more civilized solution.

It is obvious that mall patrons who may have been forced to pay $10 for the privilege of shopping there are highly unlikely to return. It would be to the best interests of all mall tenants to protest the methods now employed by the management to enforce its parking rules.

A number of Picton's larger stores such as Canadian Tire and The A and P experience problems with abuse of their customer parking facilities. Periodically advertisements warning of parking regulations are inserted in the press but, as yet, there has been no use of weighted drums and chains.

Owners of the Armory Mall would do well to follow the examples of other stores with parking problems. Results may not be as effective but public relations are improved. The motorist can respect his and no-parking signs but it is difficult to hold anything but contempt for the heavy-handed tactics now used.

Trenton Bureau

Burtidale Issue Prompts Change

BY JERRY TROWN
Staff Reporter

There have been some positive changes to building inspection procedures, both provincially and locally, instigated by the Burtidale Heights controversy, that will hopefully limit such problems in the future.

Trenton, has recently hired a second inspector who will take some of the pressure off the previous inspector and will allow for a more efficient comprehensive checking of builders in the municipality and not force the town to depend on Ontario Housing Corp. (OHC) inspectors to do its work.

Norm Mallory, building inspector, said the town has also instituted a more stringent inspection routine that he said should eliminate some of the problems that happened at the Home Ownership made easy program. From now on when a violation is found it will be cited in a written form which will be given to the builder and he will have a time limit to correct the problem. If a follow-up examination shows he has not done this further action can be taken.

Before the new procedure, a builder was not given a time limit and when an inspector came by to check they were often met with "I haven't had time to fix the problem yet." The new rule will increase communication between the inspectors and the town and local builders and should alleviate many of the problems.

OHC has also instituted new inspection procedures because of the problems they had in Trenton at the Burtidale Heights subdivision, said a spokesman for the agency. A fifth inspection has been added when the house is 97 per-cent complete and it is hoped this will help to regulate the builders activities and protect the new homeowner.

If these problems have taught anyone who is thinking about buying a new home anything it is that the old standby phrase caveat emptor (let the buyer beware) is still true.

Ottawa Said 'No' to Request for Plane for Mountbatten on Sea Cadet Visit

By RICHARD JACKSON
Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA — Defence Minister Richardson likely is a bit embarrassed, so isn't saying much — yet.

He may later, when Victoria Conservative MP Allan McKinnon gives up on making polite private inquiries and pushes him publicly.

But what is there for Mr. Richardson to say?

How can he explain why, when members of the federal cabinet can fly their families, friends, flacks and flunkies all over the country and overseas, too, aboard "Air Trudeau," not one of the government's fleet of 18 aircraft could be spared for one evening for Lord Louis Mountbatten, last of the Supreme Commanders of World War Two?

No, Lord Mountbatten is not just another distinguished old soldier, a decorated British nobleman, strategist of Burma and other heroic campaigns.

As Chief of Combined Operations, he commanded Canadian troops. So he is no titled stranger, but comrade in arms.

Recently he accepted an invitation for the Queen, Lord Mountbatten Sea Cadet Corps in Sudbury, for the fourth time the best in all Canada.

He is commercial - from London to New York and Toronto, on route to Sudbury.

He had to return to Toronto later that same night for the night flight back to London.

Canadian commercial air schedules couldn't get him from Toronto to Sudbury and back on such a tight schedule.

So the Cadets, through a group of civic leaders and community spokesmen asked the federal Department of Transport and the National Defence Department for the use, for only a few hours, of one of the government's Jet Stars or Air Force Falcons to fly Lord Louis on an emergency Toronto-Sudbury shuttle.

The answer was "Sorry, but no." Aircraft were unavailable, even in these exceptional circumstances for such an extraordinary passenger.

So the Sea Cadets, with the financial help of interested Sudbury citizens, chartered a Cessna from Manitou Airlines, and Lord Louis and the young sailors had an evening to remember.

Allan McKinnon, Conservative Defence critic and himself a former serving wartime field officer, jotted down these bare bones of the strange situation for Mr. Richardson and asked, "How come?"

The Defence Minister, who is forever trying to explain his Prime Minister's continuing putdown of the Armed Forces, persuaded his staff to give an answer from Headquarters that might pacify, if not altogether satisfy the citizens of Sudbury and Allan McKinnon.

It isn't going to be easy.

For one thing coming from Victoria, home of the Pacific Fleet and of Royal Roads, Allan McKinnon has a lot of sympathy for the Navy and its cadets, and is all too aware that they, like all elements of Defence, bother not the Prime Minister's policy and priorities list.

For another, he gets to see — and hear the unconvincing rationalizations — how the Cabinet uses "Air Trudeau" as a domestic and international aerial taxi service for business flights and fun junkets alike.

The Minister is flying out? Not just doing some interprovincial political city - hopping here at home, but to London, Paris, Rome, and even the sun spots of the Mediterranean or the Caribbean?

Family and favorites and relimes of retainers are often welcome aboard.

It can — and usually is — explained as "business," with Conservative MP Tom Cossitt who "watchdogs" the Prime Minister, over the years all together.

Meanwhile, Allan McKinnon was out at Ottawa International the other night, queuing up for an Air Canada flight to Montreal.

And chatting with a member of the Cabinet.

"The queue starts moving to board," relates Allan McKinnon, "and the minister has vanished. He's slipped inside the door of the government's executive jets for private VIP flip to Montreal. Air Canada is too commonly public for a member of the Trudeau cabinet on an ego trip."

The Minister able to say he was on a government assignment, if only part of the time.

Conservatives and New Democrats for some years have been saying — demanding — and receiving — the flight logs of the Cabinet.

And sometime, somebody in the Opposition, perhaps Lood

Past and Future

As we approach another Remembrance Day it is with the thought that the conflicts in which many gave their lives are fading farthest into the past.

It is said our young people think little, or are taught little, of those days at once so full of challenge and tragedy and hope.

But then this is a different era and the enemy is not so much an opposing army, but shadowy things that are less tangible. Perhaps it is this very lack of challenge and of clear-cut goals that is behind so much of the restlessness and troubles of this day and age.

Nevertheless the ties with a past that saw men and women serve their country in war, some never to return, are still with us. And they come to mind most poignantly at this time of Remembrance. The cadets and the scouts also, to whom the reality of war is something gleaned only from books or from parents who went through it, either in battle, or from the enemy in the sky — the air war . . . they too reflect the concern of the present generation.

But as those events recede more into the past, there are other, perhaps more difficult times ahead which they must face. Nor is today's generation found wanting. A Belleville school valedictorian might have said it for all of today's youth, in his awareness of an imperfect world.

"We may well ask," said David Joyce, "what does the future hold for us. Is it darker, or more uncertain than we think? In the late 18th century William Pitt, then Prime Minister of England, remarked, 'There is scarcely anything around us but ruin and despair.'"

But Joyce ended on a note of confidence. He said he believed hopes for a brighter future were quite good. He had heard many of today's young people "speak tolerantly of other races and religions . . . and speak favorably about their own and about the world's future."

The modern generation may yet lead us to a better day. Certainly in the past few years they have demonstrated that war does not have to be the constant companion of the human race, or the only means of resolving differences. Let us remember those who went before, in the cause of freedom; but let's have confidence in the future and in a new generation.

U.S. Hospital to Close

In the days when tuberculosis was much more of a menace than it is now and modern antibodies were not yet available, treatment consisted in the main of rest and clean air under a warm sun.

The high country of New York's Adirondacks afforded such a beneficial climate and it is in 1925 that the Variety Hospital came into being at Saranac Lake. As befits its name at the time of its existence the hospital catered principally to showbusiness personalities. Canadians know it today as the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital.

Times have changed however. Tuberculosis is not the scourge it was before, and on December 31 the hospital, along with the McDonnell Research Centre which has done work on pulmonary-cardiac diseases, will close. The low patient rate is a prime factor in this; the hospital has 100 beds, but today it has only 25 patients.

Comparing the era prior to drug therapy and the situation today, The Waterloo Times Review is closing as "an economic loss to the community and the end of another chapter in its history of medical beneficence."

Robert Louis Stevenson's sojourn in Saranac Lake comes to mind. In delicate health himself the great Scots literary figure spent a year or two in a cottage which still stands today. From there he set out on his last journey — to the South Seas, ending his days in Samoa.

The Stevenson home remains a shrine to the writer. Similarly, with regard to the hospital and research centre the Watertown newspaper suggests if they can no longer serve the purposes intended at the outset, "some thought might be given to preserving them as memorials to the immense good they have accomplished."

Election Expenses Commission Nails Government Advertising

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Score one for the election expenses commission.

One had to wait and see about this new agency's teeth in the spring.

It could be good, or it could be not so good.

It was given pretty broad powers, not only to control election spending but also to issue cease-and-desist dirty tricks.

The question was just how firm it would be about those powers, particularly the latter ones.

Now we have been given at least a partial answer. And it seems the commission probably be good.

It will likely have read about the rumpus in the legislature over advertising during the election by the ministry of housing.

The fuss originated with the committee's [illegible] Liberal Leader Bob Nixon.

The commission spent a session going over advertising that went out during the campaign and out of the review passed a notice giving broad hints that it was knuckles for this particular ad.

The ad, which cost more than $14,000 and came at the height of the election hustle over votes, gave notice that the government "will be" establishing rent review boards and invited tenants who thought they had a bad deal to contact the ministry.

The commission said that the advertisement offended the spirit of the Election Expenses Act.

There have been some lively times in the house as the Liberals have contended that the Conservative party should pay for the cost of the ad and Premier Davis has tried to defend the government's position—a hard job, for ever now there are no real review boards, and nobody knows if there ever will be.

However this action by the commission had an importance far beyond the day-to-day political infighting.

For it shows that it probably can and will be effective in ending at least some abuses which have crept into our system.

Advertising by governments has been one of the worst of these abuses.

For decades every time an election has drawn near there has been a great surge in government advertising.

Some of it has been legitimate. But a great deal of it has been at least semi-propaganda.

It is a practice which in large part should be knocked out, if only as an expensive relic of another day.

Most certainly the attention given this item by the commission was due to the presence on it of representatives of the opposition parties (both NDP and Liberals have representation).

Nobody gets anywhere a bit from it at the moment but the premier apparently made a good and forward step in setting up his commission.

Yardmen Corp's Future

Editor,
The Intelligencer,
With the Christmas Season fast approaching...and several Christmas Parades scheduled for the district, a question has come to mind. What has happened to the Yardmen Drum and Bugle Corps?

The last information I recall, was their instruments had been placed in storage and would be returned once they had acquired a suitable Board of Directors.

Following several months, I am understand, that there are four and possibly five separate groups or Boards of Directors, that are capable and willing to assume these duties, however, the Drum Corps is still without instruments.

Further investigation has revealed that the reason for the seizure of instruments was not the fault of the playing members of the Corps, however, these eager and dedicated young people are suffering the consequences.

These people who worked extremely hard to produce a competitive Drum Corps are rather bewildered at this time as they cannot understand if they will continue to proudly represent Belleville in parades and competitions or if they are out in the cold with nothing to show for their efforts.

I personally felt that after this long delay, the members would have interest and full some other activity or other Drum Corps to join, but such is not the case.

These young people are eager to resume and to hopefully pick up where they left off and more important they want to represent Belleville.

With several parades scheduled near the end of the month, and requests forwarded to the Corps asking them to appear, I am sure that those responsible will understand the urgency required to reinstate this popular group so that the people of Belleville and District may once again applaud the efforts of the Belleville Yardmen, Drum and Bugle Corps.

G.J. CRAWFORD

Editor's note: As the Intelligencer report is received, days quoted Yardmen benefit fund secretary Ernie Redenger as saying the city "will definitely have a drum and bugle corps, but it is unlikely it will be operating at time for area Christmas parades."

City Pool Hall Memories

Editor,
The Intelligencer:
The letter from Bill Bankier in your Nov. 1 issue brought back a lot of memories. I was connected with Lafferty's Pool Hall, some connected with Bill himself.

I remember those late nights when Bill used to go on C.P.R. 1 and 7 runs for some, to me, unknown time in a lot of years. If the story I read in Ellery Queen's Mystery Magazine was written by THE Bill Bankier.

But most of all I remember a few names he forgot to mention and another way one in particular was left out. The names I remember begin with Harold McCarthy, I arrived in Belleville on Dufferin Ave., then Bridge Street, and that the back door was reached through an alley off Front. The Bell Telephone building on Pinnacle Street took me a year to get tangled up with Homer "Red" Townsend (like Nellie P. Arbury, a Bell Telephone lady) and Ross Lafferty's name — the Real Legals mentioned by Mr. Bankier, as well as Johnny Neal.

By the time school started in September, I'd even figured out that Lafferty's was on

Healing No Miracle

You may have heard about pr. William Nolen, MD. Or you may have seen him on television.

He's been big on the talk shows recently flogging his new book, Healing: A Doctor In Search of a Miracle.

The book purports to be an objective investigation of psychic and spiritual healing. No doubt the book has been a moneymaker. But an objective investigation of psychic healing? That is most definitely is not.

Dr. Nolen is a small-town Minnesota surgeon. His contribution to science includes a monthly column on pop medicine for a women's magazine. But as an investigative reporter he is not of Sherlock Holmes' stature of his own skepticism.

Consider his "investigation" of evangelistic faith-healer Kathryn Kuhlman. After attending one — ONE, MIND YOU — of Miss Kuhlman's services, and following up a dozen or so reputed healings, "investigator" Nolen writes flatly that there are no miracles in her ministry.

Miss Kuhlman, wrongly he calls slavery but "abnormal" heals only hysterics and those with psychosomatic illnesses, he claims after this cursory examination.

Dr. Nolen also wonders about all the money Kathryn Kuhlman takes in. (Perhaps Dr. Nolen, unlike many other surgeons whose annual income run into six figures, provides his medical services free, as a service to humanity.)

The besetting sin of many doctors is arrogance. They appear to subscribe to the myth of their own infallibility. Dr. Nolen apparently didn't bother to consult any of the dozen books Kathryn Kuhlman has printed that miracles do occur in the evangelist's ministry.

(In contrast to Dr. Nolen, I attended dozens of Kuhlman services and spent five years documenting my book a pro-Kuhlman doctors I quoted were medical specialists with credentials at least equal to Dr. Nolen's.

They include: Dr. Robert Hoyt, a San Francisco pathologist; Dr. Mathi Biery, a California surgeon; Dr. Clair King, an Ohio ophthalmologist (eye specialist); and Dr. Lindsay Jacob, a Pittsburgh psychiatrist.

In his foreward to my book Dr. Jacob said: "Some of Kathryn Kuhlman's miracles are just that — miracles."

Dr. Hoyt described the healing of a terminal case of bladder cancer and said: "I believe this is one of the agreat miracles of Kathryn Kuhlman's ministry."

Dr. King recounted the spontaneous healing of a corneal lesion — a hole in the eye — which one of his patients experienced and reported: "In my long medical practice, I had never seen such a thing." He called it a miracle.

Dr. James Blachana of Youngstown, Ohio, documented the healing of his patient, Mila Litten, then six years old, who had a greatly enlarged heart, the result of rheumatic disease in childhood. Her only hope of survival was said to be open-heart surgery.

Mrs. Litten never had the life-or-death operation.

In October, 1966, while attending a Kathryn Kuhlman "miracle service" in the First Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, the terminal cardiac patient experienced a phenomenal recovery.

She returned to her physician (as Kathryn Kuhlman urges) for medical confirmation of the healing.

Television Image Harmful to Women

Recently the Ontario Status of Women Council produced a report called "About Face . . . towards a positive image of women in advertising." It outlined situations and dialogues in television commercials which either demean women or assign to them a specific lifestyle, or prescribe a set of values and desires for them.

In its report, the council deals mostly with advertising in television.

But what about the actual content of the television shows themselves? Sure, Rhoda is a "liberated" lady and there's Phyllis, and Fay and Mary and whoever — almost ad nauseum. But for the most part television shows portray women in such a way that, if the role models are not downright harmful, they're at least unreal. When are they harmful? When the INCIDENTAL portrayal of women shows them to be, AS A WHOLE, either silly or mean or foolish or as having any other undesirable character trait.

The key words are "incidental" and "as a whole". That is, making it seem as though it is common knowledge that all women — or for that matter men or Poetic Licans or left-handed writers or children or bachelors — are in some respect or other inferior. Because they are women or men or Poetic Licans . . .

A case in point: Channel flipping one evening brings the revival of the old series "Dragnet". Not the really old series, I think, but the moderately old series. (Unless it can be that it's being made again). At any rate, here is a policeman wisely breaking up a fight between two men.

They are arguing because one man became angered when the other said balle to his woman friend. (Notice the lack of sexism in my reporting of this scene. An un-enlightened person might easily have said that two men were fighting over a girl. A. They weren't fighting OVER her because that implies some action on her part to precipitate the fight. B. If they're men, she's a woman, not a girl.) To go on: the woman leaves, embarrassed by the scene, and the policeman advises the arguers: "My father told me one thing about women: never yell at them before you're married. After you're married, you'll have to yell to make yourself heard." Funny? Not really. Not if you think about your daughter sitting in front of the television set and absorbing that — and a thousand comments like it — and forming her self-image on that basis. It's not a nice way to see yourself.

What can you do about it? First, notice it. Train a little bell in your head to go "ding" every time someone makes a sexist comment, about men, too; for they are just as constrained in some ways.) When your bell goes off, make a note of the show and the sponsor. And then complain. Loud and long. To the sponsor. To the station. To the production company.

When you really begin listening, you'll really begin hearing and, I think, you'll be surprised. Unpleasantly.

Dream Came True Early for Antique Buffs

A retirement dream come true well ahead of schedule is the way that Peggy and Ted Williams describe their move from Peterborough to Foxboro.

The pair, proprietors of G.E. Williams Antiques since August, gave up their comfortable life to strike out as antique dealers in the small town, along with some Bendix, 10 and John, 5.

"We were a little fed up with suburban life," Ted says. A computer systems engineer he resigned to pursue on a full time basis the work he and wife Peggy had been pursuing as a profitable hobby from their home.

They chose the old Foxboro Cheesy Factory site on the main street of the town, put in a bay window and set up shop. They live in the house next door which is crowded with their own collection of antiques.

That collection was the result of a single gift from an aunt . . . a wash stand that needed work badly.

"We refinished that and have never looked back since."

That was six years ago and their avocation, along with the desire to return to the small town life they had enjoyed as children, has culminated in the shop.

So far they've seen no end to the process of buying and reading and learning about antiques.

"One of the only ways to learn is to buy and make mistakes. And the most common mistake," Peggy says, "is paying too much."

That mistake, they advise, can be avoided by not becoming an auction fad-head, determined to acquire something no matter what the price.

"I've seen people pay 10 times the value of something at an auction," Ted adds.

Ted Williams

Peggy and John find a cosy spot.

People and Events

Belleville Branch of the Business and Professional Womens Club will celebrate International Women's Year and Business Women's Week Nov. 17-23 with a dinner a Sun Valley Motor Hotel Nov. 17 for members and invited guests.

Guest speaker will be Tony Burns, of the Success Motivation Institute of Canada.

The club's club was organized 25 years ago to encourage women to participate in all levels of government and work towards achieving equality.

The club also gives women an opportunity to develop leadership qualities, said member Deena Whalen.

Ms. Whalen said the group meets monthly and regularly submits briefs to the government concerning changes in the law for women.

"We feel we do something about it," she said. " It's important to stress the significance of women in business."

BOARD MEETING

A general meeting of the Quinte Chapter of the Registered Nurses Association of Ontario was held in Edwards Hall at the Belleville General Hospital recently.

President Beth Slursa read notices of various seminars and conferences. Interpretive notes about new legislation regarding the health description act will be held in the coming months, the members were told.

A rug hooked by Peggy Barrett, for which raffle tickets will be sold, was displayed at the meeting. The film, Sexuality and Communication, produced by Dr. Beryl and Dr. Noam Chernick of London, Ontario, was shown to the group. It was followed by a discussion led by Norman Slater, marriage counselor at the BGH Mental Health Clinic.

GARDEN CLUB

Alma Gorome, Toronto, will demonstrate the creation of Christmas floral decorations at the next meeting of the Belleville Garden Club which will be held Tuesday, November 18 beginning at 8 p.m. Harry J. Clarke School, Rollins Drive.

Loreen Ellis, area councillor was guest speaker at the October meeting of Marmora and Lodge held at the Library.

Mrs. Ellis gave a humorous description of a seminar she had attended at Geneva Park in Lake Couchiching earlier this year on a course for leadership training.

Operation Eyeglasses and Operation Greenhouse were recommended by Mrs. Ellis as worthwhile projects which IODE members should support. The used eyeglasses will be sent to Dr. Warnico in the Carribbean where they are badly needed, she said. The greenhouse has arrived and been erected at Altawapitkat, but there is a need for funds to cover shipping charges, seeds and other materials, Mrs. Ellis explained.

The members voted to donate $25. towards the greenhouse project.

It was decided to hold the Christmas Tea and Boutique Sale on December 12 at the library.

Helen Brady reviewed the history of the student loan fund which was set up in 1917 to assist students going on to post-secondary education with interest free loans. Five students have been assisted since its inception, with four loans having been paid back.

Mr. and Mrs. Alan McAlpine

McAlpine — Gilbank

St. Joseph's Church in Bowmanville was the setting for the wedding of Donna Mae Gilbank, daughter of Mrs. E.L. Gilbank of Orono and the late E.L. Gilbank and Alan Bernard McAlpine, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard McAlpine.

Rev. Kenneth Slit and Rev. B. Long performed the service.

Escorted down the aisle by her brother David Gilbank, and given in marriage by her mother, the bride wore a fitted silk jersey formal gown appliqued with daisies, with long straight sleeves, a scoop neckline and a full skirt falling into a train. A shoulder-length veil fell from floral headpiece, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Elizabeth Spry of Orono was maid of honor in a sleeveless pastel green gown with matching long-sleeved jacket with waist tie.

Bridesmaids were Anne Nazarian of Scarboro, Pa., and Carol Webb of Toronto, sister of the bride and Janice McAlpine, sister of the groom. They wore gowns styled like the maid of honor's but in pink, yellow and blue respectively.

Delphine Nagarajan, the bride's niece was flower girl in a flowered dress.

Gerry Culhane, the groom's cousin, was his best man. His brothers Paul and Robert McAlpine, and the bride's brother Bill Gilbank were ushers.

A supper and dance at the Royal Canadian Legion Hall followed the wedding. After a trip to Montreal, the newly married couple settled in Belleville.

By Shirley Marcia

Fibes techniques from braiding to weaving to exotic East Indian tambour embroidery are explained in this beautiful new book from Viking Press.

Each chapter explains a technique with clear diagrams, gives examples of finished products and even includes a brief glossary. Colored photographs make the book even more appealing and there are discussions of design and description of each of the skills.

The book is available from the Corby Library.

Fact to Fiction, Her Career Spans More Than 60 Years

NEW YORK (AP) — Zelda Popkin went to work as a newspaper reporter at the age of 16 and more than 60 years later she is still writing. But now she deals in fiction rather than fact.

In those six decades she's drank her first highball during Prohibition, took her first airplane ride in the early 1920s, sold Liberty Bonds in the First World War, served overseas with the Red Cross in the Second World War, marched in suffrage parades, took part in political demonstrations, studied Russian under a private tutor, was married to her husband, traveled widely, served in politics and raised two children.

All those experiences have stood her in good stead during her writing career, said Mrs. Popkin, who at the age of 77 has just published her 18th novel, Dear Once, and is already thinking about No. 19.

"I'm like an old attic trunk; I'm full of stuff I've stored away that is always useful," said the author, wearing a blue and white polka-dot dress, her grey hair pulled back, and smoking one cigarette after another during an interview.

"If covered 3 dozen homicides before I was 18," recalled Mrs. Popkin, who became the first woman reporter in northeastern Pennsylvania when she went to work for the Wilkes-Barre Times Leader in 1914.

"My father was an advertiser and he got me the job; the city editor didn't want me and was sure I couldn't make it and kept giving me the toughest assignments."

Though she did not approve of the women's movement's attacks on men and the dropping of family responsibilities "just because you want something else," she's resisted to being liberated in her own youth.

"Most of my close friends have been professional women who've raised families; it just takes extra work," explained Mrs. Popkin, who wrote successful murder mysteries while she was busy with her children.

"It was the sort of thing you could do with the top of your head and the tips of your fingers. It took up the slack for me like other women's knitting.

"I could begin to take my writing seriously once I had my family responsibilities and could take all the time I needed to do a novel. Being alone is a pain that has two sides: One is loneliness. The other is independence—you can do what you please about dinner and go off to California or Texas if you want to."

Her latest novel deals with the power struggle between children and parents and the loosening of family ties with each succeeding generation, a situation she knows partly on architects who have destroyed the old family house and put people into cubicles" and on the mobility of the American people.

"It's only because I travel so much that my grandchildren know me," added Mrs. Popkin who has two sons, five grandchildren and one great grandchild.

"We know our roots, we know our families, we were close," she said of her own generation.

Ann Landers

Must Grieving Sister Attend the Funeral?

Dear Ann Landers: I'm sure I'm not the only person who's had this problem, and I'd like your opinion on how it should be handled.

My brother is dying. He was my favorite and I am very sad. Before he passes on I would like to know if it would be all right if I did my mourning at home and skipped the funeral. I would prefer to remember my brother as he was and not see him laid out in a casket.

Funerals have always been depressing to me. I do not care for the "social" luncheons that follow. The sobbing of relatives is out of place since their grief never seems to interfere with their appetites. Skip this—Needing To Know

Dear N. T. K.: Go to the funeral, since it will be your last act of respect for your dear brother. You can simply avoid the casket. Also—you can skip the luncheon.

Your absence from the funeral would be an affront to your brother and to the other members of the family.

Dear Ann: You will be happy to know I've quit smoking. It's no longer a temptation—just an occasional puff.

So what's the problem? It's those sub trays that I have all over the place. What should I do with them?

Don't say "throw them away." Some are collector's items—crystal, porcelain, ceramic, brass, copper, pewter—real gems. One is a valued treasure, a gift from a friend who didn't stop smoking soon enough.

I placed a few in the bathroom as soap dishes. Any other suggestions? — Mrs. Chew and Chat

Dear Mrs. Chat: How about putting aromatic flower petals in several? It creates a lovely scent in the room. Also sunflower seeds, pistachio nuts, and hard candy. You might plant a small cactus in one of the pewter or brass ash trays. As for the other—let's face it, some people still smoke, so leave a few out for their convenience. Poor things.

Dear Ann Landers: After 25 years of marriage my wife died. Our children were all married by then. Two years later I married a lovely woman with children and grandchildren. We've been happily married for 12 years.

My children were very pleased when I remarried. As they put it, "We don't have to worry about you any more." It appears what they meant was, "We don't have to be bothered with you anymore."

My children never include me in their Thanksgiving or Christmas plans. Although we invite them to our place they are always "too busy." I must make an appointment to see my grandchildren. To put it bluntly, I never hear from my children unless they need money.

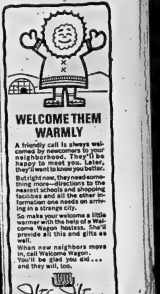
My children are just the opposite. They ask us to all their children's birthday parties, school plays, and we are included in all their family affairs. My son-in-law invite me to go fishing with them and I enjoy it immensely.

Problem: I've done well financially. When my children were growing up I sent them to the best schools. The girls had beautiful weddings. Now, since they seem to have so little interest in me I feel like leaving my money to my stepchildren. My wife says it would cause a terrible row. What do you think?—Wanted Dad

Dear Dad: Any family heirlooms should of course go to your children, but you don't owe them an inheritance. If you want to leave your money to your stepchildren because they treated you so well during your lifetime, go ahead and do it.

To Direct Film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ten women will get a chance to try their hands at film directing under a program of the American Film Institute. Actresses Anne Bancroft, Dyan Cannon and Tvish Van Devere, writer Carol Eastman and lyricist Marilyn Bergman are among those chosen to participate in the second directing workshop for women funded by $100,000 from the Rockefeller Foundation and $10,000 from producer Julia Phillips, who took part in the first workshop.



A friendly call is always welcomed by newcomers to your neighborhood. They'll be happy to meet you. Later, they'll want to know you better.

But right now, they need something more—directions to the nearest schools and shopping facilities and all the other information one needs on arriving in a strange city.

So make your welcome a little warmer with the help of a Welcome Wagon hostess. She'll provide all this and gifts as well.

When new neighbors move in, call Welcome Wagon. You'll be glad you did . . . and they will, too.

Medical Secretaries Attend Clinic Day

Bernice Murphy of Trenton and Mae Cathcart attended the Third Annual Clinic Day held at St. Joseph's Hospital, Toronto. This is a combined clinic day with Toronto Medical Secretaries Group taking an active part.

The first speaker the morning session was Robert Loach, whose topic was "A Clinch through the Vascular Tree". His talk was primarily on the insertion of pace makers, developed in 1959 and a major medical breakthrough.

Helen Morningstar, Chairman of the Board, Consumers Association of Canada presented a very informative talk on the CAC. This association was formed in 1937 and is staffed mainly by women, whose interest is in looking after price, quality and service. CAC interviews when business companies want to increase their fares or rates and they also have considerable input into various kinds of legislation.

Dr. Michael Lencner, of the University of Toronto Dept. of Medicine, Head University Clinic for Tropical and Parasitic Diseases gave a talk on man and his environment in a rapidly changing world.

Dr. Lenczner indicated that tropical diseases have been in existence in Canada since the 18th century with the outbreak of Cholera. This talk was followed by slides showing diseases in various countries.

The afternoon speaker was Jane McCallum, Assistant Executive Director, 1976 Olympiad for the physically disabled and her topic was "Who would ever think of Venus DeMilo as a Double Amputee". A film showed disabled men taking part in all phases of sports. Miss McCallum explained about the 1976 Olympiad to be held in Toronto on August 3 - 11, with approximately 1700 physically handicapped athletes from some 70 countries assembling for the games.

Salvation Army Officer Court Counselling Expert

TORONTO (CP) — In his 17 years as a Salvation Army correctional officer in police courts and prisons, Brigadier George Hickman has never handled the case with anything less than care and compassion.

A few weeks ago, before he moved to Peterborough from his post at old city hall in Toronto, he outlined his simple approach to counselling.

"Our counselling is strictly inter-denominational. Prisoners know you are not there to mention but to give what help you can.

"In time, prisoners size you up and you become their confidant is never betrayed."

At what normally is the standard retirement age of 65, the brigadier begins his nine-hour day soon after 9 a.m.

"I go to the cells and make my rounds. An average day would be anything between 30 to 50 interviews.

"Then I get busy on the phone calling lawyers and relatives. I'll phone anywhere on the continent as long as someone is willing to, accept the charges."

On one tour of the cells, a cup of coffee he had bought for a prisoner was thrown in his face.

"Nothing is made to fit about. Later the man came to his senses and apologized. I bought him another cup of coffee."

Since he came to the old city hall 6½ years ago, the number of drug-related cases has increased and now is handled in two courts on a full-time basis from one court.

"Although marijuana and hash cakes still are in the majority, there has been a most disturbing increase in charges concerned with such hard drugs as cocaine and heroin.

"Nobody should underestimate the gravity of the situation."

Although the serious cases have professional hospital treatment by the time they reach the old city hall, he still finds comradeship among them "trying on the cell floor, moaning and yelling."

"There is nothing you can do. Nothing at all."

Often he is the first person to tell parents that they have a drug addict in the family.

As the constant mouthpiece of bad news and recipient of hard luck stories, Brigadier Hickman treasures the memories of achievement — like the time when someone taps him on the shoulder and says he is still going straight.

He recalls a truck-driver who shouted to him one day in downtown Toronto:

"I recognized him as a stooge in my days at [illegible] institutions. 'Hi, brigadier, I'm still behaving,' he called. —"These things make you feel good. Something has rubbed off."

We Don't Listen To Those Who Died

By
DR. GORDON C. SMYTH

November 11, we will pay our respects to the honored dead. We will remember those who died that freedom might live. We will bow our heads in tribute to men and women who gave their all to make the world safe for democracy.

I write this column with a heavy heart. Our items are seriously out of joint. When the Prime Minister and his wife are hailed as militant unionists, we seem to be on the verge of a real class war. From overseas, news comes daily of wars and rumors of war.

Why? I believe it is because we have not had enough courage to listen to those who gave their lives. We have never taken the time to listen to the voices of those whose earthly mission was to keep foreign field a precious bit of Canada.

As I sit at my desk, I am trying to hear what the Unknown Soldier is endeavoring to say. Amid the din and strife at home and abroad, I have to concentrate as never before. I think I can hear a voice. I am sure of it, now.

I know no cowardice withholds a name. From what I have long since read about comrades in arms, I am not surprised that he is making no reference to denomination and partisan bickering. And his accent does not tell me where he was from.

"My big regret", says the Unknown Soldier, "is that we who never returned, have had so little to say in the making and keeping of the peace. Why can't you people tell together like people did when we went overseas?"

"Sure; some of us enlisted to get a job or to see the world. But we had our times of idealism. We never thought you would let discrepect for God, war, and hate take over, desert churches into which you ran every time the Allies faced a crisis, or condone the sale of nuclear products to military-controlled lands like Argentina and South Korea.

"Remember us and the things we wanted to accomplish. Don't let us down. We belong to a great fellowship on the other side. We would like to rest in peace. Keep faith with us on this side."

What can I say? What can we do? The voice of the Unknown Soldier has trailed off into silence. In this silence, let us repeat a familiar phrase, and mean it. "Under the nations, spare us yet, lest we forget — lest we relive."

U.S. Families Fear Panama Canal Crisis

BALBOA HEIGHTS, Panama Canal Zone (Reuter) — Americans who live in the U.S.-controlled Panama Canal Zone are fighting a political handover to Panama.

They fear this would expose their families to danger or mean exile to the U.S. — now unfamiliar to many of them.

Douglas Schmidt, a 38-year-old Canal Zone government administrator, has spent most of his life in this 550-square mile enclave and now leads one of the civic group campaigning against negotiations under way with Panama to relinquish control of American control.

"I was born and raised here in the zone," he said. "I do not want to give up everything which I have invested in my life here and in my family's future."

He said the biggest grievance among the 10,000 American civilian workers and their dependents was that the U.S. government had announced no plans so far for their future.

He believes that although Panamanian officials have spoken of 25-year handover period, most of the Americans will be out of a job soon after a new canal treaty is signed.

The other major anxiety of the American residents is the future of the Panamian National Guard, which would take over the policing of the zone three years after a treaty.

"As soon as the Guards come round the corner of every street, my children and I are leaving this place for good," one young woman wife said.

The American residents are collectively known among outsiders here as the Zonians, a name which they have come to dislike.

The word is taboo here because it carries overtones of the old colonial stereotypes: underemployed and overpaid foreigners living in huge mansions with flocks of servants in neatly-tended gardens.

They get three months' annual vacation, cheap and attractive housing and a 15 per cent salary bonus for tropical living. They pay U.S. federal income tax but no local taxes.

What holds many of them in the zone, however, is not only bad tradition American embassy officials in Panama calculate that about one-third of them are second-generation residents. Many of the others have been here for at least a decade.

The treaty negotiators have already agreed in principle that Americans, police, law courts and public services will die appear three years after the treaty is signed. There are not many other jobs which Panamanians could too quickly take over.

As Schmidt put it: "Three-quarters of the way force to zone is already Panamanian and they have been taking over at an accelerating rate. I do not believe our jobs are going to be necessary for 25 years more. It is unrealistic to think so."

Scotland's Church Now Complacent

OTTAWA (CP) — The Church of Scotland has become rather complacent but it finds itself in more favor at home than do churches in Canada, Dr. A. W. Loos of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church in Ottawa made these observations after six weeks in Scotland this summer on an exchange.

He spent July preaching in parish churches at Dundee, Scottish city about the size of Ottawa. There are 54 parish churches there.

Dr. Currie said that being a minister in Scotland was in some ways like being home. Many Scottish traditions still are strong at St. Andrew's here.

Although Scotland is feeling the pinch to a greater extent than Canada, churches in both countries are facing mutual problems of declining church attendance and inflation, he said.

Canada seemed to be harder hit by social problems, such as youth and drugs. Although alcoholism was a problem in both countries, the Canadian version was more serious.

Rev. Frank Dey was in Ottawa from Dundee to take Dr. Currie's place.

Dr. Currie expressed the opinion that Scotland's greatest resource still is its people. Mr. Dey said he will take back many impressions of the cooperation and kindness he received here.

O'Neil Opens Doors

The people of Quinte riding now have another political office in which to register problems and input on the provincial government process.

Hugh O'Neil, newly-elected Liberal MPP for the riding, has moved to close the gap between himself and his constituents.

Friday, he opened a constituency office in Belleville. Monday, a similar operation will be underway in Trenton.

The contact points will enable telephone relay of constituents' problems directly to Mr. O'Neil while he's in legislature attendance at Queen's Park.

The residents outside the direct-dial Belleville area a toll-free Zenith phone will be established.

At night and on Sundays when the offices are closed, messages are taken by a telephone answering service.

The need for such ready contact with the local representative since he was elected to the legislature for the first time Sept. 18, said the MPP.

Already "facing a heavy volume of inquiries" up to 15 constituents are now calling daily - seeking help with a problem or a question, ranging from health, environmental worries to getting birth certificates, he said.

"I think too often in the past the government has not been available," said Mr. O'Neil.

"And I am also told a number of people who need to fight there is been done locally they question or ask advice." I just feel it puts you closer to the people."

Some questions may be answered on the spot, he said, but will be relayed to him in Toronto once their voroble studies with various government departments, he said.

Unlike their counterparts in federal government, provincial MPPs receive no financial assistance for constituency office operations.

Some MPPs do operate such offices in the province, but without special compensation from the government, he couldn't do it," said Mr. O'Neil.

The MPP has solved the problem in Quinte by incorporating some of his real estate business and the offices in which operates offices in both Belleville and Trenton.

Mr. O'Neil will make use the offices to personally interview people who make appointments when he's back in the riding on weekends.

The Belleville office is at 38 North Front St. and the telephone number 968-1744.

In Trenton the constituency office will operate at 111 Dundas St. East - telephone 392-3088.

Police Seek Trenton Man

The Crown attorney's office here has been unable to determine the whereabouts of a 19-year-old Trenton man charged with criminal negligence and with pointing a dangerous gun - a firearm in connection with the shooting death of a 17-year-old Belleville youth at Sandwich July 7.

A Crown spokesman said Friday Steven Brant disappeared before police officers could serve an initial warrant.

The charges followed a Crown investigation into the death of George Vincent Lake Jr. who was struck in the head by a bullet from a 22-calibre rifle while he was in a shed behind his father's house during a target practice. He died shortly afterwards in Bancroft he dCross Hospital.

5 Cruisers Pursue Tweed Car

TWEED — A police chase that started here early Saturday came to a grinding halt 35 miles away - in Belleville.

The pursuit started when Tweed police attempted to stop a car on Victoria St. because, they said, the driver was speeding his tires.

The chase wound south from here along highways and township roads, emerging onto Highway 2 at Shannonville and headed for Belleville.

Police say the pursuer car went through four road blocks at the city. The chase ended when the car crossed the median on East Dundas St. and hit gridcoons-by which time five police cruisers were in pursuit.

Police charged Robert O'Coin, 23, of 403 Minnie St., here with criminal negligence and failing to stop for emergency vehicles. He will appear in court at Madoc Nov. 28.

Constituency Contact

Hugh O'Neil, MPP Quinte, Friday opened constituency office in Belleville and plans similar operation starting Monday in Trenton. Secretary Trudy Sands will take calls from constituents in Belleville area for relay to Mr. O'Neil at Queen's Park.

Lacrosse Assault Charge One on Fall Assizes Docket

Over a dozen cases are scheduled to be heard by Judge Russell C. Honey during autumn sittings of county court at the Hastings County Courthouse here to begin Nov. 17.

A spokesman for the Crown attorney's office here said Friday the exact number of cases will be determined Monday when a grand jury will hear evidence for all charges and decide which cases should go to trial.

The spokesman said it is estimated at present there will be eight cases before both judge and jury followed later in the month by four or five cases before judge alone.

He added the sittings might be completed in a minimum of three weeks but noted there is every possibility they might extend into January.

The following are included among cases before both judge and jury:

Donald Turner, 18, of Prospect Hill in Trenton is charged with assault causing bodily harm in connection with a fight following a juvenile lacrosse game here June 8.

Terry Joseph Cassel, 31, of Trenton faces a charge of theft over $200 in connection with the disappearance of a Cessna Skylark airplane from the Oak Hill Flying Club, located about five miles north of here, on Sept. 2, 1971. The aircraft, never recovered, is reported to be in Cuba. Cassel was arrested April 18 this year by Royal Canadian Mounted Police detachment at Toronto International Airport following his return from Kingston, Jamaica on a commercial flight.

Lyle William Parker, 21, of 2364 West Moira St., was committed for trial after he was charged with the rape of a 23-year-old Chatham woman here July 10 near a footpath in a wooded area between Trenton and Bell Blvd. (The spokesman said Parker has indicated a wish to change his election to trial by judge alone.)

On trial before judge alone will be Douglas Ernst Dickborn, 19, of RR 1, Kingston, charged with armed robbery in connection with a holdup at Kelly's Drugs at 411 East Bridge St. on Sept. 9.

The Crown spokesman said Cockburn, in custody at the Quinte Regional Detention Centre at Napanee, waived the taking of any evidence at a recent preliminary hearing.

He said the Cockburn case will probably be the first one heard following the jury sittings.

Madoc Man Gets Two Years

TORONTO — Andrew James Edward Rodgers, 21, of 40 Nelson St. in Madoc was sentenced to two years less one day in reformatory and two years probation following his reformatory term by Ontario Supreme Court Justice Jean Marc LaRoseway Friday in connection with the shooting death of his wife Jan. 8.

Rodgers pleaded guilty in Supreme Court sittings in Belleville a month ago to a lesser included offence of manslaughter after he pleaded not guilty to the non-capital murder of his wife, Ruth Eleanor Rodgers, 19, murdter of two-year-old Christopher.

Mrs. Rodgers was shot in the back of the head with a .22-calibre rifle. She died several hours after the shooting in Kingston hospital.

Seniors to Get Chauffeurs

BY AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

In less than two weeks, the city will have a chauffeur service available to take senior citizens and the disabled to various appointments and places in Belleville.

The service,sponsored under the 367,500 Local Initiative Program grant, got underway Nov. 17 and coordinator Enid DeSmidt is mobilizing volunteer drivers and advertising outlets in the city to make people aware of the service.

The co-ordinator said this week her normal passenger vehicle, as opposed to specialty, equipped vans, will be used over the 20-week duration of the project to ferry people to doctors' appointments, the hospital and to city shopping centres.

Information sheets listing the project-Belleville services for handicapped and senior Citizens-are now big pieced in various doctor's offices, senior citizens homes-all those places where the handicapped or elderly live, or visit on a regular basis.

The service, said Mrs. DeSmidt, will be available by appointment and a per-trip charge of 50 cents will be made. The ride can be arranged by either calling Mrs. DeSmidt (968-3811) or the Central Volunteer Bureau.

Publicity Planned For Landlords Seeking Big Rents

BY AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

Quinte Information and Assistance Centre staff will ask directors next week if the names of landlords demanding large rent increases can be publicized.

Centre staff spokesman Bill Hockley says the board will be asked to "go on" to the possible legal and ethical aspects of such action, prompted by the "desperate" straits some tenants are now finding themselves in.

Tied into the request will be another for an okay to act as a clearing house for city tenants increasingly being saddled with rent increases, said Mr. Hockley.

"We would collate the information into a monthly report and send it to the applicable bodies once they are set up by provincial rent review legislation.

Mr. Hockley admitted it would not present a true picture of the size or number of rent increases in Belleville.

But it would indicate "the people who feel they are being treated unfairly."

Showcasing landlord names on a bulletin board outside the centre's Coleman St. Office would tend to forestall tenant victimization by landlords, he said.

The two proposed measures are in response to the growing number of tenant complaints the centre has handled in the past two weeks, Mr. Hockley said. Centre staff are already advising tenants to pay rent increases "in the courts" until the provincial government establishes a rent control legislation.

Problems exist because tenants are afraid of repercussions if they open their mouths to complain, Mr. Hockley said. "People are pretty desperate."
